IN THE WORLD OF LABOR

Every Department of the Homestead Mills Idle.

ALL THE WORKMEN DISCHARGED.

Employes of the Bay View, Wis., Mills Leave For an Indefinite Period—Mahoning Valley Works Close—Glass Factories Shut Down in Bellaire.

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—Every department of the immense Carnegie steel works at Homestead have been shut down, and about 3,800 men have been thrown out of employment. It has been the custom of the Carnegies and all other mills to discharge their men on the night of the expiration of the yearly contract.

The men had declared positively that they would strike at the date of the expiration of the yearly contract. This term of expiration was to occur at 6 o'clock a. m. At midnight the firm forestalled the men and flatly declared a shut-down. Instead of being a strike, then, at the great steel works, the action of the firm has made it a lockout.

Over one hundred Pinkerton men armed with Winchester rifles have gone to the seat of the trouble.

The preparations made by the owners show that they are going to make a vigorous fight.

Bloodshed is expected by many, and the opinion is universal that things have reached such a stage that settlement or compromise on either side is an impossibility.

The mill workers protest that they are fighting for principle, and the company protests that it is fighting to preserve rights as sacred as those of the men, and will not be dictated to.

The members of the Amalgamated Association contend that it is really a strike on the part of the workmen for higher wages, and that they can hold out for three years, if necessary, and that there will not be a hungry man, woman or child during the time.

At 10 o'clock 3,000 workmen assembled in open meeting at the Opera House and thoroughly canvassed the situation.

The meeting was orderly and the several addresses counseled strict observance of law and order.

A resolution was adopted that during the lockout no member of the Amalgamated Association should be permitted to leave the town without a special permit from the lodge officials, under penalty of dismissal from the organization.

Another resolution was unanimously adopted that the day mechanics and day laborers shall be called out to-day. Committees were appointed to watch all trains and entrances to the town to prevent the importation of outside workmen.

Twenty of the Amalgamated Association men were sworn in as special officers by the Burgess and will aid in pre-cials ornamented as many telegraph poles in the vicinity of the mills.

At noon good order prevailed throughout the town and the locked out workmen were assembled in groups quietly discussing the subject.

ALL HANDS QUIT WORK.

Employes of the Bay View Mills Leave for an Indefinite Period.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 1.—Promptly at 12 o'clock last night the workmen at the Bay View Mills dropped whatever work they had on hand and left the place for an indefinite period. If a "run" or "turn" had not happened to be completed before or at that hour it was left where it was, as the forces that goe on at night did not put in an appearance.

The company desired to run a few days after the last of the month in order to complete several jobs, but the executive committee at Pittsburg refused to allow the men here to work a minute over time unless the company signed the scale.

It is admitted here by both sides that the future condition of affairs at Bay View will be largely governed by the result of the conference at Youngstown between the Amalgamated Association's Executive Committee and the Manufacturers' Association in the Mahoning and Shenango Valley districts.

If a compromise scale is adopted, there is every prospect for the same result at Bay View.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE WRECK OF THE TAYLOR.

Further Particulars of the Accident—The Crew Saved By the Trave.

LONDON, July 1.—The North German-Lloyd steamship Trave, which left New York June 21, has arrived at Southampton. The Trave had on board two hundred and forty-seven cabin passengers and several hundred passengers in the steerage, and also Captain E. F. Hurlbert and twenty men, the shipwrecked crew of the Nova Scotia full-rigged ship, the Fred B. Taylor, wrecked in a collision with the Trave on the morning of June 22.

Captain Hurlbert's first inquiry when the Trave came into port, was about his wife in Brooklyn, and when he heard that she had become a mother and that she and the baby were well, he seemed to forget his troubles, and exclaimed joyfully, "Thank God!"

Captain Hurlbert's wife had accompanied him to Havre, but went back by steamship to New York, as she was in need of medical attention.

The Fred B. Taylor left Havre in ballast, and the voyage was without incident until early in the morning of the 22d, when Captain and crew were looking forward to an early arrival in port, the Captain especially anxious to see his wife and the little one whose arrival he had expected.

The Fred. B. Taylor was about 260 miles east of New York. A dense fog prevailed, and it was impossible for the lookout to see even a foot beyond the bows.

Suddenly was heard the throb of the engines of a great steamer, and the swish of the waters as the steamship clove its way swiftly through the sea. Almost at the same instant the great vessel loomed up in the fog, and just as the lookout shouted warning, at that moment the steamer crashed into the Fred. B. Taylor.

Captain Hurlbert at the time was on the bridge. This is always his custom in fog, or when near land at night, and his personal anxiety was added to his vigilence for the safety of the vessel in keeping him from below.

The Taylor was cut very nearly in halves.

The water rushed in like a torrent, and the broken halves of the vessel sank out of sight.

Those of the crew who had escaped immediate death or injury were struggling in the water. The chief mate had been crushed to death in his cabin. Captain Hurlbert had his legs badly hurt in the collision, but he forgot his own injuries in his anxiety to save his men, who were now struggling for their lives, in the water, some holding to pieces of wreckage, and others making an effort to keep themselves up by swimming, until rescue should come.

The Nova Scotians are, as a rule, good swimmers as well as good sailors, and this accounts for so many having been saved.

Captain Reimkasten and the other officers of the Trave acted with noble humanity and admirable promptitude.

The collision came to them as unexpectly as to the Fred B. Taylor. They were making good headway through the fog, and taking the usual precautions when the steamer crashed into the ship, at the same instant that the ship's outline became visible in the fog.

The Trave was brought as soon as possible to a full stop, and even while she was being stopped officers and crew were busy preparing the boats, which were lowered within a few minutes after the collison.

The German seamen leaped into the boats, and with a few strokes they were among the struggling crew of the wrecked ship, pulling them in as fast as they could be reached.

The Captain of the Fred B. Taylor would not permit himself to be rescued until he had seen the rest of his men safely in the boats. His legs had been crushed, but he kept encouraging the others and assisting them as far as he could.

The stewardess, the only female on board, was rescued, but not until she was almost exhausted and about to sink. Several of the crew who were able to swim took turns in helping to keep her above water.

All were taken aboard the Trave in safety, except the dead mate and the drowned Russian seaman, who had also acted as a carpenter on the Fred B. Taylor.

The passengers on the Trave were so much pleased at the conduct of the officers and crew of the steamer in risking their lives in the rescue of the Fred B. Taylor's crew, that they held a meeting, presided over by Colonel Martin, and passed a resolution expressing the appreciation of the courage and devotion exhibited on the occasion by the officers and crew of the Trave, and it was ordered that a copy of this resolution should be sent to the owners of the steamship.

STORM'S TERRIBLE WORK.

Several Killed and Great Damage Done in Lower New Jersey.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 1.—A terrific wind and rain storm passed over lower New Jersey doing immense damage and causing loss of life. Robert Hamilton of Gloucester, was instantly killed, and his two daughters, aged 10 and 19 years respectively, were seriously, perhaps fatally, injured.

Patrick Highland, of Philadelphia, was instantly killed at Gloucester.

James and Edward Beddington, brothers, of Haddonfield, were blown from a building and seriously injured.

The storm did great damage in Moorestown and vicinity. Two workmen were injured and a man was killed at Palmyra.

Farmers in the vicinity of Burlington suffered severely from the storm.

In Atlantic City the streets were flooded and the electric cars were blocked.

Great damage by wind and lightning is reported in the adjacent country; but, owing to the almost impassable condition of the roads and the prostration of wires, it is impossible to learn particulars.

During the storm lightning struck the house of James Lolly at West Ocean Grove, shattering it badly. Mrs. Lolly was struck by a falling brick from the chimney as she rushed out into the back yard. The back of her head and neck were so badly cut that her recovery is doubtful.

TUPPER'S PLAN DEFEATED.

The Proposal for British Preferential Dealings With Canada Falls Through.

LONDON, July 1.—The Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire declared for free trade by adopting Mr. Medley's resolution by a vote of 47 to 34.

Mr. Medley's resolution, which, with Sir Charles Tupper's amendment, has been under discussion for over two days, declared that fiscal union between Great Britain and her colonies by preferential duties, being based upon protection, would be politically disastrous, and that the arrangement that would best conduce to intimate commercial union would be for the self-governing colonies to adopt as closely as circumstances will permit the non-protective policy of Great Britain.

Sir Charles Tupper's amendment in favor of preferential duties was finally defeated by a vote of 55 to 33.

A resolution was passed unanimously in favor of abrogating all clauses in treaties with European governments which hinder agreement as to trade between Great Britain and her colonies.

The Congress then took up the question of boards of arbitration for the settlement of trade and commercial disputes.

HE OWNS THE JAIL NOW.

Mahoning County, O., Buildings Revert to a Private Citizen.

CLEVELAND, July 1.—In the United States Court Judges Taft and Ricks rendered a decision whereby the Mahoning county court house and jail, valued at $100,000, becomes the property of Charles C. Young of Whitestown, N. Y.

In 1802 John Young, an ancestor of the plaintiff in the present case, deeded two lots to the city of Youngstown, "to be used as a public burying ground."

In 1875, when the county seat of Mahoning county was changed from Canfield to Youngstown, these lots were selected as a site for the court house and jail. Charles C. Young then began suit to recover the property, on the ground that it had been perverted from the use for which it was originally dedicated to the city, and a decision in his favor has been rendered here.

By this action of the court Young becomes possessor not only of the land, but all improvements upon it.

PALACIO SURROUNDED.

If Captured He Will Be Shot by the Revolutionists.

ASPINWALL, July 1.—Advices from Caracas by the steamship Panama, which left La Guayra on the 14th inst., are to the effect that Dictator Palacio has not left Venezuelan territory, but is at Caracas surrounded on all sides by the revolutionists.

It is the general belief that if he is captured he will be shot.

To Stop Racing at Gloucester.

CAMDEN, N. Y., July 1.—The members of the Law and Order Society are indignant at the delay in the case of William Thompson, under indictment for mantaining a nuisance in running the Gloucester race track. Thompson's trial was to have taken place Wednesday, but was postponed. This so incensed the Law and Order men that they at once applied for another warrant for the arrest of Thompson.

Whittier to Write the Ode.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., July 1.—It is now stated on good authority that it is a settled fact that Poet Whittier will write the opening ode for the Chicago World's Fair. When the matter was first broached to the poet he was unable to give a definite answer, but improved health will now permit him to write the ode. The title is still a mystery to everybody, except Mr. Whittier.

M'AULIFFE DEFEATED

"Big Joe" Knocked Out by the Barrier Champion.

GODDARD WON IN THE 15TH ROUND.

The Californian Made a Game Fight—He Became a Veritable Chopping Block Toward the End—The Republican Wigwam in San Francisco Crowded.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—The Republican Wigwam on Eddy street was crowded to the doors by people who witnessed the fight to a finish for heavyweight honors and a purse of $5,000, in which Joe McAuliffe of San Francisco was defeated by Joe Goddard of Brisbane, Australia.

At exactly 9 o'clock Goddard made his appearance in the ring accompanied by his seconds, Fitzpatrick and his brother Harry Goddard. A few minutes later McAuliffe entered the ring, and behind him were Alex Greggains and Martin Murphy. At 9:10 the gong struck for the first round.

First round—Both led and clinched. Goddard shot out his left and then there was another clinch. Goddard was forcing the fighting when he was sent to the floor by a left-handed smash over the head. The men were sparring lightly when the gong sounded.

Second round—Mac came up with a confident look upon his face. Goddard appeared a little nervous. Nevertheless he was anxious to get to work, driving his left into Mac's ribs. Mac led with his left, fell short, leaving himself wide open, but Goddard was too tired to take advantage.

Third to tenth round—When the men toed the scratch Goddard shot out his left for Mac's head, but was stopped. He punched Mac lightly on the nose and followed it up with a gentle tap on his breadbasket. Some sparring at long range took place, after which the men got to work at close quarters where honors were about even. Mac feinted, then received a hard punch on the stomach, then a stiff right-hander in face that sent him in sitting posture on the floor. On coming to his feet he met several hard punches, when the gong sounded.

Eleventh round—Goddard went for Mac right at the start and furiously punched him about the head. Mac now got to work and gave as good as he received. Goddard became more aggressive at this show of fight and went for his opponent with great vigor.

Twelfth round—Mac was slow in coming up, and Goddard walked almost over to his corner and sailed in to him. He seemed to have renewed strength and fought vigorously.

Thirteenth round—Mac kept away from the Australian, who came for him as though he determined to put an end to the combat at once. Goddard worked hard, punching his apparently beaten opponent squarely in the face. Goddard forced him into a corner, where he hammered him viciously about the face.

Fourteenth round—Mac led but missed the Australian, after which there were several clinches, in one of which Goddard's right hand being again free he smashed Mac repeatedly on his gory nasal appendage.

He was entirely gone, but Goddard was too weary with his exertions of the last minute to knock him out.

Fifteenth round—When the gong sounded time Goddard walked clear over to Mac's corner. After sparring for a few seconds he sent Mac to the floor by a right-handed swing on the face. Mac remained on his knees a second or so and rose, only to take terrible smashes from the barrier champion. He had now become a veritable chopping block. He was sent down on his knees and remained down nine seconds. He raised himself most wearily to his feet. Goddard saw that the victory was his and humanely withheld from administering a blow that would finish the Californian. He moved up to him and giving him a little shove Mac fell to the floor again on his knees. He was down ten seconds when he again wearily rose to his feet just as the eleventh second was announced. He was just one second too late, and the fight and purse were awarded to Goddard.

ACTOR MANTELL IN TROUBLE.

He Fails to Pay His Wife Alimony and She Will Prosecute Him.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Robert B. Mantell, the well known actor, is threatened with imprisonment.

Last November he had some trouble with his wife, well known on the stage as Marie Sheldon, and the couple separated, Mr. Mantell agreeing to pay his wife weekly $75 for her support. This he did until about three weeks ago, when the payments ceased.

Mrs. Mantell has now employed counsel to take proceedings against the actor, and if he does not pay up the arrears and the weekly alimony when it falls due he is likely to go to jail.

Theatrical men say that Mantell's finances are not in a prosperous condition and that his failure to pay alimony was probably due more to his inability to pay than his lack of intention to keep his contract.

Cut Off for Horse Racing.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 1.—The will of W. S. Culbertson, of New Albany, has been probated. His estate, which is estimated to be worth from $3,000,000 to $7,000,000, is divided between his widow and children. His grandsons, Glover and Perry Culbertson, of St. Paul, are cut off with $100 each because they engaged in horse racing.

FIVE MEN IN A BOAT.

Alarming Adventures of Plainfield Fishermen on a Yachting Trip in a Cyclone.

John Bearbower, Charles H. Lyman, Noel Verrier and C. D. VanWinkle drove yesterday morning to Sewaren, to meet Mr. Buckley, recently of Plainfield. After a pleasant and copious breakfast at the hotel of Mrs. Swarenson, aunt of Col. C. K. Moore of Fanwood, the party of five repaired to the yacht of Mr. Buckley, for a fishing trip. After loading the yacht with the necessary refreshments for a long cruise, and fish enough bait to catch all the fish in the Bay, the party started on their journey.

The first portion of the trip was a very enjoyable one. After a short stop on the Staten Island shore, the yacht was put off from shore and started across Raritan Bay. Though a very strong breeze was blowing, the yacht was well manned by Mr. Buckley, and landed the occupants at Keyport, N. J., all greatly disgusted over their failure to tempt the finny tribe, but all very hungry, having themselves contributed to the safe arrival of the yacht, having helped the captain by substituting themselves as ballast.

After a very pleasant stop at Keyport, the party started on their return voyage. About ten minutes from shore a very heavy storm arose. Buckley, being unable to hold both the jib boom and the rudder at the same time, gave the jib boom to Beerbower to take care of. Suddenly a very heavy gale struck the yacht, careening it over to the scupper-holes. Beerbower, instead of letting the jib boom loose, misunderstood the instruction of Mr. Buckley, and held fast to it, and consequently the yacht went plunging and thrashing about in the water. Mr. Buckley realized the danger, and by masterly manipulation of the rudder succeeded in securing the yacht to the shore, arriving just in time, for the heavy storm broke, and a perfect cyclone raged.

After the storm had abated, Mr. Buckley, finding the breeze all in his favor, made preparations for the return trip. But Chas. H. Lyman and Noel Verrier sat on the pier in deep meditation, and came to the conclusion that it would be safer not to leave terra firma again, but to return by rail to Sewaren. They therefore abandoned the yacht, after having witnessed almost the drowning of Beerbower, who, while boarding the yacht, missed his footing and floundered about in deep water. After the drenched and dripping Beerbower had been rescued, the three sailed for home.

The remainder of the trip was uneventful. The frightened party met the intrepid mariners at Sewaren, and all drove safely back to Plainfield, congratulating one another that they were alive.

Sudden Death of Henry Roach.

The many friends of Henry Roach were grieved to learn of his sudden death last evening. Mr. Roach was employed at the home of Mr. Burgess, 209 Central avenue, where he occupied the lodge. He milked the cows at 5 o'clock, and, feeling as well as usual, ate a hearty supper. Then he was seized with a congestive chill, so serious that both physician and clergyman were immediately sent for. Dr. Boone did all in his power for the patient, but the sufferer was past medical aid. Father Stafford administered the rites of the church, and spoke words of comfort to the afflicted family. Mr. Roach was a most trustworthy workman and highly esteemed citizen. He leaves a wife and three children. His age was 42. Funeral services will be held from his late residence to-morrow a 9 a. m., and from St. Mary's church at 10.

Lost by The Crescents.

The base-ball game at Middletown yesterday was a defeat for the Crescents, by the score of 10 to 4. It was a scratch team the Crescents put in the field. Daley did n't appear, and Leidy took his place at third. The outfield was composed of Sneeden, Meakin and a pick-up named Hudson who had never before worn a uniform. But for the outfield, the Crescents would have put up a good game. The outfield was utterly incapable, however, and their errors and bad judgment were a powerful auxiliary in the losing of the game. Powers pitched well enough, but was discouraged by his weak fielding support. Holford succeeded in getting three bases on balls. The Crescents weren't batting, and got only 4 hits.

A Century Run by Way of Plainfield.

At the last meeting of the Metropolitan Association of Cycling clubs all arrangements were completed for the century run to Princeton, July 23. The start will be made at 4 a. m., from the Continental hotel, Newark. The route will be as follows: Newark by way of Orange and Scotch Plains to Plainfield, 24 miles; Plainfield to New Brunswick by way of Franklin Park to Princeton, 17 miles; Princeton to Blawenberg, by way of Plainville and Belle Meade to Somerville, 12 miles; Somerville by way of Bound Brook to Plainfield, 12 miles; Plainfield by way of Westfield and Elizabeth to Military Park, 18 miles, making a full century. Entries close July 18 with J. J. Woods, 317 West Forty-sixth street, New York.

Lost by The Crescents.

Alonzo Randolph, the negro who outraged little Alice Day in Plainfield last week and was threatened with lynching by the enraged citizens, retracted his plea of not guilty in the Union County court at Elizabeth, yesterday, and pleaded guilty to atrocious assault with intent. He will probably be sentenced to-morrow by Judge McCormick.

Sportsmen Have a Jolly Time.

The sixth monthly shoot of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' league, held on the grounds of the Independent Gun club in Hyde's grove, North Plainfield, yesterday, was a very enjoyable affair, the management of which reflected creditably upon the hustlers of the home club. The weather up to 2:30 p. m. was cool and pleasant. At that hour a heavy shower came up, which drove the shooters under shelter for half an hour. After that, however, there was no interference with the fun.

The team shoot for the championship of New Jersey called out nine teams of five men each, and each man shot at twenty-five artificial targets. This was under the direct management of Neaf Apgar and W. E. Hobart, manager and secretary respectively of the league. C. H. Townsend, trap editor of Forest and Stream, and one of the organizers of the league, was official scorer. The team of the Independent Gun club of Plainfield, which had won four out of the five previous contests, was again victorious, the South Side and Maplewoods being a good second. The Independents scored as follows: C. Smith, 24; Thomas Brantingham, 22; Soper, 23; Apgar, 21; Miller, 25. Total—115.

The other teams scored thus: South Side Gun club of Newark, 108; Maplewood Gun club of Maplewood, 108; New Jersey Shooting club of Claremont, 96; East Side Mutual Gun club of Newark, 94; Boiling Springs Fish and Gun club of Rutherford, 93; Passaic City Rod and Gun club of Passaic, 93; East Orange Gun club, 70; Brunswick Gun club of New Brunswick, 64.

While the team shoot was going on on one set of traps another set was utilized for the shooting of events in a regular programme arranged by the home club, these being managed by those well-known shooters, "Tee Kay" Keller and "Dutchy" Smith. Prominent among the winners were the Plainfield marksmen.

The sportsmen were very hospitably treated by C. Smith, who managed the affair, assisted by his estimable wife. The refreshments they provided were greatly appreciated.

The next shoot will be at Clermont.

Big Time Among Plainfield's Neighbors.

The people of New Market claim that they will have the biggest Fourth of July celebration that has been witnessed anywhere in Middlesex county for many years.

The parade in the morning will start from the Dunellen station at 11:30; it will be led by a brass band, and will include the members of Wm. G. Holton council, No. 55, and Friendship council, No. 81, Jr. O. U. A. M., and visitors from the members of the order from Plainfield, Bound Brook and Somerville. In the afternoon there will be athletic sports, for which elegant prizes have been provided, and in the evening an elaborate and attractive display of fireworks will be given. All the bells will be rung at sunrise, and cannon will be fired. It will be the most patriotic and noisy celebration that Middlesex county has ever known.

The grounds secured for the occasion afford a plenty of shade, and are known as the Mahlon Vail place, alongside the Lehigh Valley railroad and adjacent to the pond. The programme of sports is as follows, beginning at 1 p. m.:

1. Address.
2. Boat race.
3. Tub race.
4. Swimming race.
5. Bicycle race.
6. Sack race.

Smart Fellow Answers Mr. Errick.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I have just finished reading John Errick's letter in this evening's PRESS, and from the general tone of it I judge he must be more or less intimately acquainted with "most insidious something" of which he writes, the chemical symbol being C 4, H 6, O 2, and I would advise a smaller quantity of the same and some of the cracked ice applied about where his hat band usually rests.

Then the readers of his articles would not be led to think they were being treated to a chapter from some of Jules Verne's works warmed over. The "continuous feed" might suit some men, but I recommend him to reduce the pressure, or, better yet, to change his system to one with numerous side-tracks, so that he would not meet with some of the "disadvantages" in the shape of musical Pangboys should he venture into the borough.

C. NOLLY.

Brief Reign of a Local Highway Assessor.

A very small sandy-haired boy went about town this morning armed with a paper-cap pistol, which he discharged at everyone he met, saying: "What's yer name? I'll shoot yer dead! Bang!" He had not progressed far in his career when a motherly-looking woman swooped down on him, confiscated his arms and ammunition, and led him home by the ear, screeching and squalling at the top of his voice.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

ROADS, SUSPENDERS, POSTMEN.

The Censor Chats of the First, Kicks at the Last, and Tells One on the Girls.

One of my good cycling friends—and they are legion—who has repeatedly told me that my stiff and hardened joints could work a wheel if I were but to try them, and who generously forgets how problematically difficult it is to inculcate new accomplishments in canines of advancing years—has shown me the outline of a scheme which, fathered by Col. Albert A. Pope of bicycle fame, points to a comprehensive exhibition of the arts of making and maintaining good roads at the forthcoming Chicago fair.

The idea is to show by models and plans how good roads are to be constructed, the materials and appliances useful in their building, etc., etc. Congress is to be asked to appropriate a proper sum, and the thing only needs cordial popular encouragement. It has my sincerest good wishes, and I venture to prophesy its complete success.

Two-thirds of our people don't know what a good road is. Just in this particular locality the thoroughfares—barring those in the heart of town, which are awfully mountainous—are moderately well made, but you jump on your wheel or your horse, and I, less athletic, will climb into my little buggy, if you please, and go with you out into the country, along the highways by which the farmer brings his produce to the mart, where the estimable bushwhacker wends his way to prayer-meeting and the tow-headed rustic urchin his stony path to school, and I'll wager you will come home devoutly hopeful that Col. Pope's scheme may somehow inspire our mighty-minded legislators to give us all such good roads as we find throughout most of the European dominions.

A good road is the highway to commercial prosperity, Christian thrift and liberal education, and a bad one is the enemy of all these and of everything else that is commendable. I hope New Jersey, if she be called on, will send a slice of a Union ...y road to the woolly city to illus... we can do when we try; and I ...oute, if need be, my old car... ...e equine, and myself and ...w what wonders the bad ... rural roads have wrought in ...land.

Every now and then for more than a year back, there have come to me from many different sources, a lot of complaints about our local postal service. I have had only a trifling experience with it myself, but some of my friends, whose correspondence is extensive, have a list of grievances that, having all reason to believe them sincere, I think ought to be aired. The other night I met a young woman who was vehement in condemnation of the procrastinating habits of her postman. She says that her mail consists very largely of pictorial papers, readable magazines and the like, and these are anywhere from four days to four weeks in reaching her from New York. She believes that her postman is of a literary turn and keeps her mail until he can get time to look it over before delivering it. Another friend of mine, a young fellow who does some sort of writing for the metropolitan press, has it that an entertaining paper to which he contributes, mailed in New York Tuesday, until recently seldom reached him earlier than Friday, and he narrates one occasion when the intelligent postman actually had the nerve to hand him his paper a day or so late and venture a criticism on the matter it contained.

I do n't believe that the postmaster is cognizant of this state of affairs; for he is, I am persuaded, too good a business man to tolerate it. But unless he chooses to shake up his co-workers the hour of redress seems exceedingly remote—as far away, perhaps, as the time when we elect Grover Cleveland again. The young woman before quoted, when asked why she did not put in a complaint against her postman, said:

"Why, that would be the last thing I should think of doing! If he delays my papers now, what might he not do to my letters as a matter of revenge? I dare not complain; I am perfectly helpless."

It looks as if she spoke the case concisely and precisely, too. The postmen ought to bestir themselves now for a while, and if they are innocent of any such perverted literary tastes as are charged to them, as I should like to think, let them prove it by doing their work in a manner that will place them above suspicion.

They were seated at the soda-fountain, and gossiping like mad between the spoonfuls of ice-cream soda. I am sure they did n't see me, for I sat in an obscure corner waiting for my prescription, and, indeed, their conversation was evidence in itself of their complete and blissful ignorance of the presence of a horrid man. I tremble every time I meet them now, too, but then I always was wretchedly timid about some things.

"Yes, of course, I understand"—said the prettiest one, bending over confidingly and casting a shy glance at a masculine shadow which flitted across the door-...—"I understand, but what are they ...

...ist for looks, stupid"—returned the ...

"Well, I know; but tell me,"—asked ...nocence—"do they go over the shoulders and come all the way down just like a man's?"

"Oh dear, no"—replied Experience.—"They fasten on the upper edge of the bodice, front and back, the same as if they supported it, only they do n't, you know. Then they have a buckle sewed, and—well, really, at a distance you 'd almost imagine they were genuine, out-and-out suspenders."

"Oh, how cute!"—exclaimed the novitiate.—"And you have seen them?"

"Yes, indeed. Why, all the girls in New York are wearing them, and really you ought to have them on your new calico."

"I do believe I will; but where on earth can one get a pattern?"

They there followed a series of low and confused murmurs, amid the babel of which I only caught the words "Papa's might do", and "too old fashioned"; but at length, suddenly inspired, the pretty prospective wearer of the calico braced up and cried gleefully:

"I 've got it—just the very thing! I'll steal Harry's some night when he's sound asleep, and make a copy from them!"

Then the druggist came in, and the game was called.

This is to warn Harry that it may be well for him to tie his suspenders in a hard knot and put them under his pillow every night from this time forth uptil that calico is made up.

THE CENSOR.

Who Campbell Is.

In a speech in the United States Senate, Tuesday, Senator Vest said: "I know Campbell, the new chairman of the Republican National committee, and it is a providential dispensation (as the preachers say) that he has been put there. He is the feed attorney, and nothing else, of P. D. Armour. He haunted my committee (the committee on beef products) from one end of the country to the other, representing Armour and his beef monopoly at Chicago. He is the man who advised Armour to defy the Senate of the United States and refuse to obey its subpœnas. This man is nothing but a tool of monopoly. He was the aptest and most pliant instrumentality in the hands of Armour and his company, in order to rob the people, and especially the cattle-raisers of the West.

"Of course he is at the head of the Republican National committee. He is the sort of man to do the work. Why should he not be there? Armour's money and his talent and monopoly against the American people and the consumers of the country. We accept the [tariff] issue. God willing, we will stand by it until not one solitary Democrat throughout the country can be found who will not admit that this is the great issue, the overwhelming one now, to be determined by the suffrages of the people next November."

The Reading Gets the Bridge

Receiver J. K. O. Sherwood of the Central New England and Western railroad and the Poughkeepsie bridge has surrendered possession of the properties to the present officers of the companies under an order of Judge Pratt of the New York Supreme court. The railroad and the bridge now pass into the possession of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, who have been for several months trying to get control of the properties. President and General manager A. A. McLeod of the Central New England Western, who is also President of the Philadelphia and Reading, has reappointed the subordinate officers, including I. W. Fowler of Hartford as superintendent. No changes in the operating officers of the road are anticipated.

Genteel Somerville Disgusted.

(Unionist-Gazette.)

It is seldom that those who profess to be gentlemen behave so much like rude school boys, as do the sympathizers of the Crescent League, of Plainfield. They acted like a lot of boors when the Somerville club were in Plainfield two weeks ago, and it was little better here on Saturday last. There might be some excuse for them when on strange grounds, and with defeat staring them in the face. But to be so discourteous as they proved to a visiting club, displays a lack of chivalry, such as is seen nowhere, to such a degree, as in Plainfield. No one objects to enthusiasm, but downright barbarism is something which Somerville people are not fond of.

Colors of the Rolling Stock.

The Reading Railroad company have been testing several kinds of paint for their cars, and it is understood that they have decided to use black with gilt trimmings similar to the Pullman cars. These colors are to be adopted for all the cars on the Reading system. Already some have appeared, and they look very handsome. The new colors of the Jersey Central cars are a great improvement over the gaudy yellow.

—Remember, Harper's, 75 Park avenue, is the cheapest place in the city to buy reliable fire-works, fire-crackers, etc.

—The Sunday-school of the First Baptist church will meet during the summer at 9:30 a. m., instead of in the afternoon as formerly. The change will take effect next Sunday.

My catarrh was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntard statement that others may know of the Balm. J. W. Matheweon, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

With Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

THE PEOPLE TO DECIDE.

Railway Rivalry in North Plainfield to be Settled by a Public Meeting.

The Mayor and street committee of the borough met last night in conference with contractor Thomas Nevins, jr., son of the president, Dr. J. T. Fritts, one of the incorporators, and other representatives of the Plainfield Street Railway company. The borough officials listened to the company's proposition to extend the trolley line into the borough. Now they will give a hearing to the rival company in which Dr. J. H. Cooley is interested, and will then call a meeting of the citizens and property-owners to discuss the various propositions. The Mayor and his co-workers are determined to have only that railway system which the people want, and are desirous of having the public make its own decision.

The Mayor has received from the Jarvis Air Motor company a proposition now under consideration. The company will run its cars free of charge, on trial, over any tracks that may be laid, the company laying the tracks to buy the cars if the trial is satisfactory. The Jarvis people's scheme is to have some one else pay for the laying of tracks to give an exhibition of its system on.

The Jersey Central's Manly Defense.

The Philadelphia and Reading, New Jersey Central and Port Reading railroad companies, in their answers in the suit brought against them in the name of the State by Attorney-General Stockton, defend their consolidation of interests and deny the charge that one of its main objects is to monopolize the coal supply. They assert that none of the railroad corporations owns coal lands or mines, or sells coal, and that they have no power to fix or increase the price of anthracite coal or to create a monopoly in the business of mining and selling it. All that they could do to influence the price, they say, would be to change their tolls for carrying coal These tolls have not been increased since the leases went into effect. If the wholesale or retail price of coal go up, the combined railroads assert it will be through no act of theirs. Standing on the privileges conveyed by their charters, they assert that in the leases they have in no way transcended their rights as railroad corporations.

What Has Happened.

The New York Tribune seeks to explain its conduct in saying on January 12 that it considered Mr. Cleveland the "strongest candidate the Democrats can select", and on June 24, that of the "suggested Democratic candidates he is the weakest", by remarking that "it is a long time between January and June" and "many things may happen in the interval". What has happened in the interval is the nomination of Mr. Cleveland, and this was precisely the thing which the Tribune did not anticipate in January, for in its frank article at that time it said: "The outlook at the present moment does not seem to us to be favorable to Mr. Cleveland". Mr. Hill had just held his snap convention, and the Tribune, rejoicing in the belief that he had made Mr. Cleveland's nomination impossible, ventured to tell the truth about him. Now that he has been renominated it has resumed its old method of treatment. That is all that has "happened" to affect its estimate of his strength in the long interval between January and June.

The Wiechers Case Up Again.

An affidavit and order in the case of George F. Wiechers against the Central Trust company of New York, has been filed in the county clerk's office at Buffalo. The plaintiff alleges that eighteen certificates in the sugar refineries companies, which had been placed in the hands of Field, Lindley & Co., were transferred by the trust company, upon a fraudulent instrument of transfer, prepared by Edward M Field and purporting to be signed by plaintiff. Plaintiff seeks to recover $205,200 with interest, alleging that he was the owner of and entitled to possession of said eighteen certificates of deposit, and had never surrendered his title to them.

Buried Unknown in a Pauper's Grave.

The young man who was found dead near the Jersey Central tracks at Asbury, yesterday, was this morning buried as an "unknown" in the local cemetery. Detective John K. Large, of the Central railroad force, made an investigation, but discovered nothing, and the remains were unidentified.

Asbury is a little hamlet about twenty miles above Somerville. The railroad station, two houses, and a store, comprise the village. The finding of the body caused much excitement among the natives.

The first quarter you spend should be for a vial of Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Why? Because that feeling of dullness with debility or headache means that your liver isn't doing its part. One of these little Pellets does the right thing in the right way.

They cleanse and regulate the liver, stomach and bowels—thoroughly and effectively, but mildly and gently. They persuade, rather than force. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet's a gentle laxative; three to four act as a cathartic. They're the smallest, but the best. There's less to take, but there's more good in it when it's taken. They're the original Little Liver Pill, and they've never been equaled. Sick and Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, because they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

GEN. BIDWELL THE MAN

He Will Head the Prohibition National Ticket.

NOMINATED ON THE FIRST BALLOT.

Demorest, of New York, and Stewart, of Ohio, His Opponents—His Vote Was 509—The Platform, as Presented By the Majority, Adopted.

CINCINNATI, July 1.—At midnight Gen. John Bidwell of California was nominated for President by the Prohibitionists on the first ballot. The opposing candidates were W. Jennings Demorest of New York and Gideon T. Stewart of Ohio.

The vote was: Bidwell, 509; Stewart, 176; Demorest, 139; Bascom, 3. Necessary to a choice, 487.

The platform, as presented by the majority of the committee, makes the usual declaration in favor of legal prohibition of the liquor traffic; pronounces for woman suffrage; money to be issued by the general government only; unlimited coinage of silver and gold; the levying of a tariff only as a defense against foreign governments which levy a tariff upon or bar out our products from their markets; government control of railroads; restriction of immigration and the extension of the time of residence for naturalization; no naturalized person to be allowed to vote until one year after he becomes a citizen, and no alien ownership of land, and the limitation of private and corporate ownership of land; denounces mob law and the Republican and Democratic parties for being responsible for it; favors arbitration and the suppression of speculation on margins, corners, pools and trusts, and attacks generally all other parties.

THE BALLOT BOX STUFFERS.

Their Cases Removed to the United States Supreme Court.

TRENTON, N. J., July 1.—Judge Green of the Federal Court has signed the papers which remove to the United States Supreme Court the cases of Durancy, Fallon, Hart and Moschell, the four Hudson county ballot box stuffers who are still in the custody of Sheriff McPhillip.

This will serve to keep them out of the State prison for the present, if not for ever.

Counselor Charles J. Pesham, who represents these men, has been at the State prison to see some of the ballot box stuffers already there. He says their cases can also be removed to the United States Supreme Court on writs of error, and pending a decision there they are entitled to their liberty on bail.

He intimated that such proceedings would be taken and that the ballot box stuffers would soon be free again.

The Cholera Spreading.

LONDON, July 1.—A dispatch to the "Times" from Vienna says: "A week's quarantine of travelers from Usunada and Astavar through Balashem has failed to stop the spread of cholera. A large quantity has already been destroyed as suspicious."

The receipts of grain since the opening of navigation this year was 51,890,951 bushels as against 35,190,078 last year.

Whiskey Trust Indictments.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Judge Gresham is expected to arrive in this city next week, and it is believed that arrangements will be perfected for the hearing of arguments on the indictments found in Boston against Messrs. Gibson, Morris and Hennessey of the whiskey trust.

Held for the Grand Jury.

BOSTON, July 1.—Thomas Ryan, charged with the killing of T. F. Gellin as the result of a prize-fight between the men, has been held in $5,000 for the grand jury. The autopsy showed that Gellin died from concussion of the brain.

Buried Under a Fall of Top Coal.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., July 1.—John Candiskey, while at work in Kehley Run Colliery, was completely covered by a fall of top coal. When uncovered he was alive, but his back and legs are so badly crushed that he cannot recover.

Shot from Ambush.

"Recommend me to your friends ven dey vants someding in my line," said Mose, out of pure force of habit, that being his usual parting salutation to his customers.—Alex. Sweet, in Texas Siftings.

"HOW OLD I LOOK, AND NOT YET THIRTY!"

Many women fade early, simply because they do not take proper care of themselves. Whirled along in the excitements of fashionable life, they overlook those minor ailments that, if not checked in time, will rob them of Health and Beauty. At the first symptom of vital weakness, use

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S Vegetable Compound

The roses will return to your cheeks, sallow looks depart, spirits brighten, your step become firm, and back and head aches will be known no more. Your appetite will gain, and the food nourish you. The Compound is sold by all Druggists as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00.

For the cure of Kidney Complaints, either sex, the Compound has no rival.

"Send two 2-cent stamps for Mrs. Pinkham's beautiful 88-page illustrated book, entitled "GUIDE TO HEALTH AND ETIQUETTE." It contains a volume of valuable information. It has saved lives, and may save yours."

Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

AT BEDTIME I TAKE A PLEASANT HERB DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 per package, buy one to-day. Lane's Family Medicine Moves the Bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary.

A Tonic and A Pleasure:

That's the happy combination found in

Hires' Root Beer

You drink it for pleasure, and get physical benefit. A wholesome, refreshing, appetizing, thirst quenching drink.

One package makes five gallons.

Don't be deceived if a dealer, for the sake of larger profit, tells you some other kind is "just as good"—'tis false. No imitation is as good as the genuine Hires'.

COTTOLENE

and not one of us has had an attack of "richness" since. We further found that, unlike lard, Cottolene had no unpleasant odor when cooking, and lastly Mother's favorite and conservative cooking authority came out and gave it a big recommendation which clinched the matter. So that's why we always fry ours in Cottolene.

SILVER IN THE SENATE

The Stewart Bill Passes by a Vote of 29 to 25.

HILL VOTES IN THE AFFIRMATIVE.

Generally Believed That the Bill Will Now Pass the House—Representative Pierce and General Tracey Hold Different Views on the Subject of its Passage.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The Silver bill has passed the Senate.
Senator Hill voted in the affirmative. It is the general belief that the bill will now pass the House, although Gen. Tracey, who will lead the fight against it, says that he can successfully filibuster against it, unless the House should adopt a cloture rule, which he does not believe they will do.
The Senate refused to recommit the Silver bill to the Finance Committee by a vote of 31 to 28. This was a test vote and a victory for the silver men.
Mr. Hill voted against the motion to recommit, because he believed it to be in violation of the agreement entered into.
Mr. Vest moved to postpone the bill and amendments to the first Monday in December, and on the motion a roll call was ordered.
Mr. Stewart and others insisted that this was in violation of the agreement.
Mr. Blackburn moved to lay the motion to postpone on the table, and on that motion called for the yeas and nays, which resulted: Yeas, 28; nays, 28; so the motion was lost.
The question then came up on the motion to postpone until the first Monday in December.
The motion was lost without a division. Then Mr. Stewart offered his substitute bill as an amendment.
Mr. Morgan moved to amend this by adding a provision requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to coin all the silver bullion in the Treasury. Mr. Hale moved to adjourn.
Mr. Blackburn demanded the yeas and nays on the motion.
The vote was: Yeas, 15; nays, 27. So the motion was lost.
The yeas and nays were called on a number of other motions.
Then the roll was called on the final passage of the bill as amended, and resulted: Yeas, 29; nays, 25. So the bill passed.
Representative Pierce, of Tennessee, one of the leading silver men in the House, is jubilant over the passage of the Silver bill in the Senate.
Speaking of its chances in the House, Mr. Pierce said that he had 80 Democrats pledged to force the Committee on Rules to bring in a special order fixing a day for the consideration of the bill.
If this is not done they will block all further legislation until their demand is agreed to.
Congressman Catchings, a member of the House Committee on Rules, which committee will very likely take a prominent part in the fight for or against the speedy consideration of the Silver bill, says that he does not know what action the committee will take in the matter.

CAMPAIGN FIGHTS.

Row at Cork Caused by Burning Timothy Healy in Effigy.

DUBLIN, July 2.—Reports of campaign fights continue to come in from various quarters.
At Cork a row was caused by the burning in effigy of Timothy Healy and William O'Brien. A Parnellite was stabbed.
In Ballina John Dillon and Daniel Crilly were pelted with eggs, cabbages and stones. Mr. Dillon made a speech, guarded by constables, while others kept watch upon the audience to prevent interruption.

Assafoetida Tea for Colic, Nervousness and Similar Ailments.

Coal Prices.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—The Pennsylvania and Reading coal sale agents met here to fix the rate for July. They decided to demand the same price as received last fall with the exception of chestnut coal, which, owing to its increased size, will be advanced 10 cents over last fall's price.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 2.—William B. Greene, a prominent member of Kiernan's News Agency, New York city, was struck and killed by a train near the Long Branch station. Mr. Greene was 51 years old and leaves a family. He was a summer cottager of Long Branch.

THE CONFERENCE CAME TO NAUGHT.

No Settlement of the Trouble Among the Iron Men.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—At the request of the Iron and Steel Manufacturers of the Pittsburg district, representatives of the manufacturers and the regular committee of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers met in conference on the wage scale.
The conference lasted three hours and a half, and was without result.
The time was occupied in arguing the demands of both parties, the manufacturers demanding the acceptance of a $4.50 basis and the Amalgamated $5.50 for boiling iron.
No compromise scale was offered or discussed.
The conference adjourned to meet on Wednesday of next week.
No settlement of the differences is in sight, and the feeling to-day seems to be that a disastrous wage war is near at hand.

ITALO-AMERICAN EXHIBITION.

Opened at Genoa With a Large Attendance and Imposing Ceremonies.

ROME, July 2.—The Italo-American Exhibition at Genoa in honor of the discovery of America by Columbus has been opened with imposing ceremonies. There was a large attendance, both of foreigners and of prominent Italians, including the various diplomatic representatives accredited to the Quirinal.
The United States and the republics of South and Central America were represented, and the Italian fleet has a conspicuous part in the display.
The buildings are not yet completed, and the Exhibition was not, therefore, as attractive as it will be later.
The buildings are erected on the broad esplanade on the right bank of the river Risagno, and they cover 110,000 square metres. They are of imposing and attractive architectural designs.
The Exhibition is intended to give an idea of the progress made by both Italy and America since the Italian, Columbus, discovered the Western Continent, and the exhibits will include specimens of the artistic, industrial and agricultural products of Italy and America.
The Argentine Government, where many Italians are settled, has taken great interest in the Exhibition, and is represented by a corvette from the Argentine fleet.

RICHMOND TERMINAL AFFAIRS.

Meeting to Induce Drexel, Morgan & Co. to Undertake Reorganization.

NEW YORK, July 2.—A movement is on foot among the various Richmond Terminal security holders to have a meeting called for the purpose of considering some steps by which Drexel, Morgan & Co. may be induced to undertake the reorganization of the property.
Security holders who are represented in the Committee of Fifteen say that they disapprove of W. P. Clyde's action in placing an obstacle in the way of an organization by Drexel, Morgan & Co., and it is understood that several members will withdraw from the committee at the meeting on Wednesday.
It is understood that Mr. Clyde's personal holdings of Richmond Terminal securities is very small, but he seems to be determined to control the reorganization if possible.

Looking for His Wife.

NEWARK, N. J., July 2.—Martin Metzroth, of 51 Grafton avenue, is looking for his wife. She ran away with a man of the name of Mason, one of the keepers of the Poor Farm, on Randall's Island, N. Y. One night last week Metzroth arrived home unexpectedly at a late hour, and found Mason sitting in the parlor in company with his wife. Mason, at the sight of Metzroth, jumped through the window, leaving his coat in Metzroth's hands. The latter fired three shots at Mason, none of which took effect. Some days ago Metzroth's wife disappeared, and it is believed that she has joined Mason.

Position of America Cited.

LONDON, July 2.—The Right Hon. John Morley, replying at Berwick to Mr. Balfour's statement that it was absurd to assume that Ireland could control her own affairs if not permitted to regulate the customs duties, or to establish a State Church, cited the position of the American Union, where every State was sovereign in its own domain, yet was not allowed by the Constitution to endow a State Church or to raise a revenue from imports or exports.

British Sealers Seized.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 2.—The steamer Queen, which has arrived from Alaska, brings news of the seizure by the revenue cutter Corwin of 25 English sealers, with 6,000 skins. The supply steamer Coquitlam, with all her supplies, was also taken.

Actor Curtis' Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The case of M. B. Curtis, the actor, charged with the murder of Police Officer Alexander Grant last September, was called by Judge Troutt to be set for second trial and was continued until July 23.

IS HE JACK THE RIPPER?

Cream and Neill and the London Fiend May be the Same.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The police of this city are interested in the report that the Thomas Neill, now in custody in London for murder and blackmail, is a native of Quebec by the name of Dr. Thomas N. Cream. It is stated on good authority that Cream was in London at the time of the Jack the Ripper outrages, and that he was in Canada when they had entirely ceased. A prominent officer at police headquarters said that it is quite possible that Cream, or Neill, is Jack the Ripper.
Cream is the son of a wealthy lumber merchant of Quebec, who died some years ago. He swindled his father's estate out of several thousand dollars, and was charged with having killed several women in Kingston, but was acquitted. He was later confined to the penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., on a life sentence for having murdered a woman, but was released about two years ago.
There is strong corroborative evidence that Neill is the man who has this record on this side of the ocean. He calls himself Thomas Neill, and Cream's name is Thomas Neill Cream. Besides this, the only picture of Miss Sabbatini, the woman who was engaged to Neill, and who is now the chief witness against him in this country, was given by Dr. Cream to a friend of his in Quebec.

GRESHAM MAY BE NOMINATED.

But He Don't Like the People's Party's Sub-Treasury Plank.

OMAHA, Neb., July 2.—Delegates to the National Convention of the People's party are arriving slowly.
As yet there are few indications that the convention will be as large as the Republican or Democratic conventions. H. F. Taubeneck, chairman of the National Committee, is among the early arrivals. He is a strong Gresham man, and when reminded that the Judge had refused to accept the nomination, said:
"Judge Gresham has only one objection to accepting the nomination at the hands of the People's party, and that is the Sub-Treasury plank. Gresham will be the nominee and the Sub-Treasury scheme will be shelved."
Senator Kyle, of South Dakota, is talking of Stewart, of Nevada, and says with him at the head of the ticket the People's party would capture the electoral votes of Nevada, Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, Idaho, North and South Dakota, Montana and Minnesota. Fusion between the People's and Prohibition parties is no longer talked of.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS OF EUROPE.

Report Concerning a London Firm Denied. Uneasiness on the Paris Bourse.

LONDON, July 2.—The report that a prominent house engaged in the China trade would have to suspend owing to a refusal of the discount banks to take its paper is without foundation.
The firm obtained all the accommodation it required and obligations amounting to £100,000 will be promptly paid.
A small brokerage firm failed on the London Stock Exchange, but it had no significance.
PARIS, July 2.—Some uneasiness is felt on the Paris Bourse, and two houses may not be able to meet their engagements. The settlement shows large losses for firms on the long side of the account.

The N. Y., P. & B. Out of Existence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 2.—The New York, Providence & Boston Railroad Company has practically gone out of existence, so far as the general public is concerned, when the old officials assumed new titles and came formally under the control of the New York, New Haven & Hartford officials. This section will now be known as the Eastern Division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. Practically all of the New York, Providence & Boston officials are retained, the only change of importance being the resignation of J. W. Miller, formerly general manager of the New York, Providence & Boston.

Ships to Fly "Old Glory."

NEW YORK, July 2.—The report that the Inman Line is to build two, and possibly three, new steamers in this country for the company's service between this port and Liverpool is confirmed by James A. Wright, jr., the head of the line in this city. When seen he was unable to state, he said, as to what time the contract would be awarded, nor could he tell when the City of Paris and City of New York would begin to fly the American flag.

William A. Griswold Leaves Town.

TROY, N. Y., July 2.—William A. Griswold, agent in this city for J. S. Bache & Co., bankers and brokers of New York, has left the city, and rumor has it that considerable of the firm's money is missing. The amount he is said to have absconded with is estimated at from $3,000 to $10,000. An agent for the house has arrived in this city, and is engaged in making a thorough examination of the books and accounts of Mr. Griswold.

YALE'S EASY VICTORY

Harvard Badly Beaten in the 'Varsity Race.

BLUE COMES IN 15 LENGTHS AHEAD.

The Crimson Secured the Lead and Held It for the First One Hundred Yards—After That Yale Secured First Place and Held It to the End—A Yale Week.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 2.—This has been a Yale week with a Yale finish. Tuesday's baseball victory over Harvard; the Yale freshman conquest of Harvard '95 in the annual two mile row on the Thames, and, to put a gloss finish on the whole season's aggregate of Yale's athletic achievements, the record of the Yale 'varsity in turning the tables on the Harvard crew, leaving them even farther behind than Yale was left last year—and that is saying a great deal.
It was Yale's year to choose between the east and the west course, and she selected the former.
The observation train made its appearance as the referee's word was given, and sixteen oars dug into the water. Harvard's spry stroke secured the field first and the crimson took the lead. For the first 100 yards she kept it, pulling a 39-stroke, while Yale's was about 38.
Yale splashed badly, and the boat rolled a little, while Harvard got off comparatively smoothly.
At 150 yards from the start the Yale prow had shot past Harvard's. Yale had found its form.
Harvard quickened its stroke a little, making a desperate fight before relinquishing the lead.
At the first half-mile Yale was rowing half a length in the lead, with both crews exhibiting the finest burst of speed witnessed during the entire race, except possibly at the finish.
Yale continued its effective spurt during the second half mile, while Harvard fell back little by little.
When the Yale shell passed the first mile post it was three lengths ahead. Yale took matters a trifle more easy from the mile to the mile and a half post, and the gap between the shells remained little changed.
Yale was four lengths ahead at the two-mile post, which marked the conclusion of half the race.
Yale pulled like one man. At the 2 1-2 mile post Yale had placed fully eight lengths between her stern and the Harvard bow.
It was then a gift for Yale and the race was won by over fifteen lengths by Yale.
The official time for the four miles is 20:48 for Yale; for Harvard, 21:42 1-2.
Fifteen thousand people witnessed the race.

WILL NOT ARREST AN EMBEZZLER.

Germany Holds to the Letter of Her Extradition Treaty With This Country.

BERLIN, July 2.—Shortly after the flight from Washington of Ryan, the express messenger, who embezzled $45,000 from the United States Express Company, a dispatch was received here, asking the German authorities to arrest him if he should attempt to enter this country.
It is understood that the German government would not have taken Ryan into custody had he come here, as the offense with which he was charged does not come under the provisions of the extradition treaty between this country and the United States.

Ryan was arrested in Denver, and all the money he had stolen, with the exception of $300, was recovered

FOUR MEN BURIED ALIVE.

A Horrible Accident to Laborers Laying Stone Abutments.

PROVIDENCE, July 2.—A bank caved in upon a body of workmen engaged in laying stone abutments to a railroad bridge under Broad street, in this city, and four men were buried alive.
Two others, who were working near-by, were caught by the mass of dirt, and had to be extricated by a steam derrick.
Those who escaped made the greatest exertions to rescue their buried companions, and just as they reached one of the imprisoned men, who opened his eyes, blew the dirt from his mouth and begged to be taken out, a water pipe above them burst, flooding the place and ending all chance of rescue.

Money for the Grant Monument.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Subscriptions to the Grant Monument Fund are still being received, and the responses to Gen. Horace Porter's appeal for sufficient money to complete the monument bid fair to amount to $375,000. Gen. Porter only asked for $350,000. All the excess, however, can be used to good advantage by the association in the interior of the monument and in other ways.

National Note Company Dissolved.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The office of the short-lived National Note Company in the Astor building has closed. It was organized a short time ago under a State law with a nominal capital of $150,000 to negotiate commercial paper. The United States Treasury Department brought it to book for illegal use of the title National, and the company dissolved.

Senator Stewart's Denial.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Senator Stewart says that the report that he had sent a special messenger to Omaha with a platform and information for the third party convention that he would accept the nomination for President on that platform, is incorrect. He said that Gen. A. J. Warner had gone there to look after the silver plank, and that was all the foundation there was for the report.

Three Men Die in a Conflagration at Woodland, Cal.

WOODLAND, Cal., July 2.—A fire in the business portion of the town caused a heavy loss and was attended by several fatalities.
W. M. Porter, superintendent of the Woodland Water Works, was killed by falling walls, and an unknown man was burned to death in the Jackson Block. George Tobias inhaled flames and is dead.
The fire broke out in a barn in an alley back of the main street. The blaze made rapid headway, and before anything could be done was devouring the Jackson Block.
The Exchange Block was next attacked by the flames, and owing to the scarcity of water burned rapidly. The block occupied by the Exchange Hotel and the Beamer Block were partly burned.
The losses aggregate fully $200,000, on which there is insurance amounting to about half that sum.

HIS LIFE FOR A HORSE.

A FAITHFUL COACHMAN HORRIBLY BURNED IN THE SERVICE OF HIS MASTER.

Two Disastrous Fires at Scotch Plains—August Schleitner Rushes Into the Flames to Save a Carriage Horse—Overpowered by the Heat and Smoke—Heroic Action of a Servant Girl.

August Scheitner risked his life for a horse, in a fierce fire at Scotch Plains, last night, and was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital this morning in a dying condition.

The fire in which Scheitner was so terribly injured was one of two disastrous conflagrations that raged in Scotch Plains Plains soon after midnight.

At five minutes past 12 flames were seen issuing from the barn of Charles Richardson, whose house at Fanwood was burned to the ground a few months ago. The building was all in flames when the fire department of Scotch Plains and Fanwood reached it, and despite their strenuous efforts it was burned to the ground, with all its contents, except the live stock, which was rescued. The cause of this fire is unknown.

August Scheitner was coachman for Bennet Brittin, the ex-hotel keeper, who occupies the John Cook estate. Scheitner slept in an apartment over the Brittin stable. The glare of the Richardson fire shone in his eyes and awakened him. Springing from his bed, he dressed hurriedly, and was about to leave for the scene of the fire when he accidentally overturned a lighted kerosene lamp. The lamp broke, and the burning oil ran about the floor, and in an instant the entire apartment was ablaze. Scheitner leaped from a window to the ground, and turned his attention towards rescuing the live stock. He succeeded in saving all except one horse, and his efforts in behalf of that animal cost him his life.

The piteous cries of the horse were heartrending, and he ventured into the stall when the flames were roaring all about. The heat became so intense, and the flames raged so furiously, that he had to retreat and abandon the creature to its fate.

Overpowered by the smoke and heat, he fell prostrate on the floor. A domestic employed by Mr. Brittin, saw him fall, and though the flames enveloped him she risked her life for his. Crawling along on hands and knees, she reached into the fierce furnance and dragged the senseless body away. She was in imminent peril of her own destruction, and her arms and face were severely scorched, but she escaped dangerous injury, and was able to assist in the efforts to revive the unconscious Scheitner.

Dr. Westcott was promptly summoned, and did what he could for the sufferer, but said the unfortunate man could not survive his terrible injuries. Scheitner's body was burned almost beyond the semblance of a human form, and the mass of charred flesh was conveyed to Muhlenberg Hospital and laid out on one of the cots there. The man suffered untold agonies during the night, but was unconscious most of the time. Scarce an inch of his body but is horribly burnt or blistered. His condition to-day is critical, and his death is hourly expected.

At 2:30 this afternoon Scheitner was still alive.

The light of the fires as seen in this city caused alarms to be sounded in both Plainfield and North Plainfield, and the departments started out, but turned back after finding the fires were far beyond the limits.

The Brittin barn and stable was destroyed.

A Plainfield Boy Built It.

Another notable new building has just been completed in Brooklyn and will be ready for use next week. It is a nine-story structure at Washington and Johnson streets, and will be the home of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, the oldest and most prosperous newspaper in the city across the bridge. The building has been nearly two years in course of construction, and is a solidly built and handsome structure, ranking with the new Real Estate exchange and the Franklin Trust company's new buildings, among the best office edifices in the city. Ground was broken for it in August, 1890, and the corner-stone was laid on Thanksgiving Day of the same year. Advantage will be taken of another holiday, the Fourth of July, to transfer the office of the newspaper from its home of many years, near the foot of Fulton street, to the new quarters.

The building is 68x106 feet in ground plan and 129 feet high. It is in the Renaissance style of architecture and is built of granite, brown stone and brick, and presents a handsome appearance. The counting-room, occupying the main floor, is 45x81 feet, and is handsomely finished in oak and marble. The three floors over this are divided into business offices, the fifth and sixth floors are devoted to the job work of the printing-office, the seventh floor is occupied for editorial purposes, and the eighth and ninth floors by the composing and proof-rooms. The presses are in the basement, where all modern appliances have been placed. The builder is a son of the late Timothy Hunting Morse of this city, one of the best-known architects of Brooklyn.

Now All Rush for the "Victa".

The Courier says that the prizes in the coming bicycle race will include a "fishing reel, five pounds of best candy, a large chamois skin and other articles of victa".

WRECKED HIS HOME.

Crazed by Liquor, a New Market Man Smashes His Wife's Property, and Prostrates His Wife.

New Market yesterday witnessed one of the worst cases of drunkenness on record in that vicinity. Mr. Hallot is said to have been indulging very frequently and abundantly, of late, and yesterday his mind seemed so crazed with intoxicants as to render him almost a savage. Early in the afternoon, according to his wife's story, he had some words with Mrs. Hallot, and a quarrel ensued, after which, it is alleged, he proceeded to wreck the furniture in their home, breaking everything within his reach. He is said to have destroyed a valuable piano and several other pieces of furniture, and smashed two large portraits of his parents. Mrs. Hallot has only recently recovered from a sick bed, and has an infant in arms only a few months old. She is now prostrated.

It is thought that Mr. Hallot's brain has become affected by the continual use of liquor. He was arrested last night and taken to the jail at New Brunswick on complaint of his wife.

Little Business in the Borough.

Nothing of importance was transacted at the regular July meeting of the borough council last night. All the members were present. The usual routine business, such as paying bills and adopting the minutes of previous meetings, was accomplished. Some discussion over street lighting affairs took place, and the committee on lights was instructed to follow up the matter of having the lamps properly distributed. The street committee reported that the work of macadamizing Manning avenue had been completed, and most thoroughly done, at a cost to the borough of $1,546 above the amount subscribed by citizens. The committee further reported work begun on Myrtle and Willow avenues. A sidewalk was ordered laid in front of the property of Mrs. E. Stites, 26 Chatham street. The council authorized the borrowing of $800 for borough purposes, in anticipation of taxes. The committee on marshals reported that 34 dogs had been caught, and $13 collected for the redemption of a baker's dozen. There was still $4 due to the marshal on his expense account of $17 for killing 21. The roof of the engine-house stable was ordered painted. Henry Bodenheimer, Samuel Taynor and J. Kettering were appointed special marshals. The session of the council lasted less than half an hour.

Preparing for the Great Conventios.

Extensive preparations are being made for the eleventh international convention of the Christian Endeavor societies next week at Madison Square Garden, New York. All of the local Protestant churches have societies of Christian Endeavor, and each one will be represented by delegations. It is expected that over 2,000 will be present from New Jersey. A large number of these will go from Newark. The number of delegates from the whole country will not fall far short of 25,000, it is said.

The delegates from New Jersey will register at the Hoffman House, which has been secured for the New Jersey State headquarters, and will receive badges, which will be necessary for admission to the garden. As it is expected that the crowd will be too large for the garden, which cannot accommodate more than 16,000, means have been provided for overflow meetings, which will be held in churches in the neighborhood.

The New Jersey committee of '92, which will be in attendance at the Hoffman House, includes Miss Alice B. Spangenberg of Netherwood.

Crescent League Concert and Fireworks.

The thorough and complete arrangements which have been made to handle the large number of people which will undoubtedly be present at the Crescent League exhibition, July 4, assures absolute safety and comfort to all. Tickets will be on sale on the grounds at both morning and afternoon ball games. There will also be a number of booths outside the grounds for the sale of tickets. All entrances except those for carriages will be open, thus preventing any crowding. Many well-known citizens, members of the League, have volunteered their services, and everyone can rest assured of an enjoyable and comfortable evening.

Herron—Brown.

The marriage of Miss Bella Brown to James Herron, both of this city, took place last evening at 5, at the bride's home on West Third street. The Rev. G. K. Newell performed the ceremony. Later in the evening a reception was held, at which all had a merry time. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sherlock, of Newark, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Paine, Miss Fagan, Mr. and Mrs. Lormar, Alex. Muir, Thos. F. Brown, G. E. Firstbrook, R. Marsh, jr., Benj. Eddy, and others.

Thirsty for Netherwood Springs.

(Elizabeth Journal)

Roselle can be numbered with any one of the thriving New Jersey country towns for improvements and enterprising citizens. Whenever they undertake to have improvements they make a success. Take, for example, the water question. Not over six weeks ago the matter was first spoken of, and in a few weeks the purest water in the country will be flowing from the great mountain springs of Netherwood to Roselle, and from this great main every citizen of the village can be supplied at nominal cost.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know, a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

TO UNION COUNTY FARMERS.

Exhibits Wanted for the Great World's Fair at Chicago.

President Dennis Long, of the Union County Board of Agriculture, has issued an informal notice to the farmers of Union county, to the effect that exhibits of agricultural products are wanted, to represent the different counties of New Jersey at the great Chicago exhibition.

President Burroughs, of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture, has been placed in charge of the New Jersey agricultural exhibit, and it is from him that president Long has received notice, with reference to the Union county exhibit.

What is wanted is an exhibit of the grasses and grains produced in this county. The roots, straw, heads, and in short the plant complete, is what is wanted. Pick out the tallest, best specimens, tie them in neat bunches some five or six inches in diameter, and send them to president Long, who will see that they are forwarded to the proper parties.

Very fine specimens of hay, wheat, oats, rye, etc., doubtless will be made, and Union county may take very high rank in the exhibition of these products.

Somerville's Tongue Still Wagging About That Game.

(Harkinstown Democrat.)

Of course Plainfield brought up a crowd—to the game of last Saturday,—but such a mob, who howled, hissed and jeered at our men until a threat of forcible expulsion was necessary to quiet them. And the players. Plainfield talks of dirty ball playing on the part of the West End men. Ye Gods, what could be more vile than the talk of that great big "Gentle Willie" when he was caught off first base in the first inning, and again when he told Harkins he would spike him if he got the chance.

A great many ladies came from Plainfield to see the game, among whom one in particular caught our eye as she split her gloves in the first inning applauding "Gentle Willie". She was attired in a dark blue gown, leather belt and suspenders, and from behind one was really at loss to determine for an instant her sex. The sickest, most broken up man after the game was a young man with the map of Ireland in his face, light blue eyes, and a dainty blonde mustache. Rumor has it that he rode in the engine going home, not because he had lost all of his money, but because he wanted to get away from Somerville as soon as possible.

There were some, however, in the crowd who were "busted" in every sense of the word—two in particular, who had not the price of a ticket home, but who late in the evening hired one of our local liverymen to drive them to Plainfield. When they reached Bound Brook they stopped to see Landlord Force, and the liveryman embraced the opportunity to take the before mentioned host one side and ask him if they were good for the price of the drive home. He assured the driver that he would be paid when he reached Plainfield, and no doubt he was but he did not receive any More than he was entitled to.

One real pleasurable thing we noticed was the lack of general hissing on the part of the Crescents' supporters—a thing they have never attempted to stop before. Some Plainfielder, more brainy than the general run of them, composed a war cry which runs thusly: "Rah! Rah! Rah! Ah! Sis! Boom! We are the Crescents! Give us room!" Well, they had room. They had seven cars to go home in, so that every man, woman and child might occupy a double seat. They needed it. Their manifold sorrow and disappointment bubbled out all over them as the waters of a spring from an overhanging rock. And their long faces as the train pulled out—you could scarcely encompass them with a horse collar.

Hofford, who formerly pushed a clam cart in the City of Brotherly Love, but who now is commander-in-chief of the Crescent ball team, said after the game that "he did n't want a penny from Plainfield this year if he could not beat those stuffs from Somerville". Go slow, Chic, old boy; you will surely starve if you follow out these lines.

Sheep Raising in Dakota.

It is a financial success, as is evidenced by the statements made by prominent Dakotians in a pamphlet just issued by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, a copy of which will be sent free upon application to J. Kipling's Omission.

When Rudyard Kipling wrote "The Light that Failed", he neglected to mention that it is n't always the light that fails, but that we often fail to see the light. Weak eyes can, however, be cured by the simplest of methods, and a call at Collier's will explain this method and be of lasting benefit to you.

HOMOEOPATHISTS AT ODDS.

Dr. Bell, Who Was Charged With Believing in the Doctrine of "Divine Healing", Succeeded by Dr. Rushmore of Plainfield.

The International Hahnemannian Association, the select organization of strictly orthodox homœopaths, has been shaken to its very foundations as a result of the annual meeting held last week at Narragansett Pier. The cause of the internal dissensions was the charges preferred against Dr. James Bell, the president of the association. He was accused of advocating the theory of divine healing and of resorting to the use of the surgeon's knife in a manner not in accord with the regulations of the body of which he was the representative head.

The accuser was Dr. Harlyn Hitchcock of 19 Broadway.

Dr. Thomas Dillingham of 46 West 36th street was one of the principal champions of the venerable president. When seen yesterday Dr. Dillingham was very loath to speak at all about the affair. He said that the association was all right and that Dr. Bell had been overwhelmingly upheld by the meeting, although Dr. Edward Rushmore of the board of censors, of this city, was elected to succeed Dr. Bell.

Dr. Dillingham admitted that the members were very much angered by the publicity which had been given to the family quarrel. They proposed to sustain Dr. Bell, he said, and there were only about five members of the entire 200 who were inimical to Dr. Bell's interest. The friends of the president were in favor of expelling these members, but were restrained by the wishes of Dr. Bell himself.

WHO MR. STEVENSON IS.

President Harrison's New Secrtary Knows, and Congratulates Him.

Letters of congratulation continue to pour upon Hon. A. E. Stevenson. The most important one is one which arrived Thursday from President Harrison's new Secretary of State, John W. Foster. It expressed the latter's personal congratulation and good will on the subject of Mr. Stevenson's nomination. Mr. Foster was one of Mr. Stevenson's warmest personal friends during his stay in Washington four years. Their friendship reaches back to the days when they were both representatives in Congress.

Mr. McGee Pays the Mortgage.

(From the Rev. Mr. Mitchell's Visitor.)

A most important step has been taken by the officers of our church in regard to Monroe Avenue chapel. James McGee agrees to pay off the mortgage of $2,500 on the property, and just as soon as it is considered advisable, a Society of the Methodist Episcopal church will be organized in the chapel, a board of trustees constituted, and the property leased to that board for a mere nominal sum. Just as soon as it appears that it is wise to make a complete transfer of the property to the Monroe Avenue society the church trustees will do so. In the meanwhile, the property is not to be encumbered by debt. Mr. McGee will have placed in the chapel a memorial tablet in memory of his wife, who, with her husband, was so much interested in the success of the chapel. The official board has most heartily expressed its high appreciation of Mr. McGee's liberality in connection with Monroe Avenue chapel, and all unite in prayer for the highest success of the enterprise. The outlook is hopeful for a vigorous young society at Monroe Avenue in the near future.

A Divorce from Mrs. Bullock No. 1.

Justice Truax of the New York Supreme court, yesterday, granted a decree of absolute divorce to Mrs. Thomas O. Bullock against her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Bullock were married at Grafton, Ill., May 24, 1864. In 1869 they came to New York, where Bullock started in business as an importer of broken rice for use in breweries. They went to live on Pacific street, Brooklyn, and Bullock became the superintendent of Dr. Talmage's Sunday-school. Mrs. Bullock began a suit for divorce in 1876, charging her husband with intimacy with a Sunday-school teacher. They became reconciled, but quarrelled again about the same girl. He went West, promising to pay her $50 a week. She learned later that her husband had obtained a divorce in Utah and had married a widow named Lydia P. Bidgeway, who was a Miss Sutton of this city. The latter fact she did not learn until 1888 and she began suit in 1890. Bullock stated the Utah divorce was valid.

Some Facts That Will Help Elect Cleveland.

Andrew Carnegie is a Republican. The great coal barons who ordered another increase in the price of coal yesterday are Republicans. President Cornell, of the Iron League, is a Republican. Long live protection!

My catarrh was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntard statement that others may know of the Balm. J. W. Mathewson, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

With Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

Can't be found—the equal of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If other medicines of it's class were like it, they'd be guaranteed. This is: If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case for which it's recommended, you get your money back. It isn't a "cure-all," but it does cure all diseases arising from a torpid or deranged liver, or from impure blood. For all Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp Diseases, it's a positive remedy. Even Consumption, or Lung-scrofula, is cured by it, if taken in time and given a fair trial. That's all that's asked for it—a fair trial. Then if it doesn't help you, there's no pay.

Beware of spurious imitations or dilutions, offered at less prices.

We claim it to be an unequaled remedy to purify the blood and invigorate the liver. We claim it to be lasting in its effects, creating an appetite, purifying the blood, and preventing Bilious, Typhoid and Malarial fevers, if taken in time. The time to take it is when you first feel the signs of weariness and weakness. HANDY SEWING TABLE.

How to Make One That Will Hold a Lot of Odds and Ends.

There is nothing strikingly new or original in the idea of an hourglass sewing table, yet the improvements I mean to introduce in the construction of mine may be of service to some other busy housemother. As usually made, they somehow convey the impression that they are in imminent danger of breaking in two, in the middle, so, for added strength, closer imitation of the original article, and ease of construction by feminine hands, I shall first make two circular pieces of one-half or three-eighths-inch pine board, seventeen or eighteen inches in diameter, joined together by a broomstick, or similar piece of wood two feet long, with grooves cut half an inch each side of the middle and at the same distance from each end. I shall then upholster it with some soft material, in quiet colors. This will require about thirty inches in length, by five and a half or six feet wide, besides allowing for twelve ten-inch squares of the same. These squares are to be folded cornerwise, sewed along both straight sides, having an opening cut along the bias edge, sufficient to allow easy insertion of a person's hand, and these pockets are to be inserted into the larger piece, at regular distances, six in the upper edge of the piece, and six in the lower, beginning at the middle. Run a strong gathering thread in each edge, and in the middle of the large piece, draw the middle gathers close around the middle of the standard of the little table; then, with heavy cord doubled, catch the top corner of each of the lower set of pockets, and tie securely into the groove just below the middle, and again tie the square corners into the groove at the bottom of the standard. Reverse the operation for the upper set of pockets, draw the edge gathers close over top and bottom of table, and the upholstering is finished. Now secure three sticks (turned ones are nicer, but plain broomsticks will do) cut them just the length of the part upholstered. Two more circular pieces are of half-inch material, twenty inches in diameter, (or more may be necessary.) Decorate these discs and sticks to suit your fancy; black or white and gold are pretty. When finished and dry, fasten one piece on the top, and the other on the bottom of the hourglass part, being careful to cross the grain of the two pieces to prevent splitting. Small wire nails will do to hold the bottom in place, but brass-headed ones are better for the top, which may also be ornamented with geometric designs worked out with the same. Fasten the three sticks at equal distances apart, to help support the table top; a single nail driven into the end through top and bottom will make all secure. Be sure that they come between two pockets instead of in front of one. Insert three small casters in the bottom of the little table; then it can be easily moved whenever desired, and will always stand steady, which it might not do if four were used. The upper set of pockets being point down do not hold much individually, but will be found useful for a variety of small sewing necessities. The lower ones being base downwards will contain quite a quantity collectively, and be found very serviceable in keeping together, unmixed and conveniently concealed, many of the sewing necessities.—American Agriculturist.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDY.

Assafoetida Tea for Colic, Nervousness and Similar Ailments.

Did you ever give assafoetida tea to the baby for colic, or to the older ones for nervousness? If not you ought to try it, for there is no simple home remedy equal to it. For colic, pour half a cup boiling water on a piece of assafoetida as large as a pea, let it stand until cool enough to drink, sweeten a little, and give baby as much as it will drink of it; and you will be surprised how soon it will cease its cries and drop off into a quiet sleep.

If the older children are fretful, peevish and worrisome without any seeming cause, ten chances to one it is nervousness of some kind, and a half cup or more, according to their age, will work wonders in their deportment. If they do not sleep well at night, give them a good drink at bedtime; and if you are tired and worn out, and nature is vainly calling for the rest you fain would take, but cannot from nervousness, just drink a generous draught of it yourself and see what a help it will be to you.

Of course the odor is disagreeable but the taste is not, and, if properly sweetened, children never object to it. Indeed they seem rather to relish it.

So the next time you go to town, just add a nickel's worth of assafoetida to your home medical stores, and, our word for it, you will never again be without it.—Clara S. Everts, in Farm, Field and Stockman.

IT WILL BE AN OPEN MILL

The Fight at the Homestead Works Developing.

TO BE A LIFE AND DEATH STRUGGLE.

Latest Move of Carnegie's New $25,000,000 Organization—Thirty Thousand Men Idle in Pittsburg—Employes of the Homestead to Be Paid in Full.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—"Hereafter the Homestead Steel Works will be operated as a non-union works. We shall not recognize the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers in our dealings with the men. The mill will be an open mill, where all men may work regardless of their affiliation to a labor organization."

The foregoing plain statement leaves no doubt as to the company's intention regarding the fight at Homestead, and narrows the fight down to a life and death struggle, so far as the Amalgamated Association is concerned.

30,000 MEN IDLE.

Effect of the Dispute Over Wages in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—The only additional signatures received to the Amalgamated Association wage scale are these of the Scottsdale Pennsylvania Iron & Steel Company and the Covington, Ky., Steel Company.

There are beyond doubt more idle men in Pittsburg and vicinity to-day than there has been at any one time for the past 15 years.

The employes of all the iron mills except the sheet mills are walking the streets, and the wheels of the great manufacturing concerns of Pittsburg which were so busy are idle.

With the various iron and glass plants idle, the South Side presents an odd appearance. It is a complete shut down.

Every mill has suspended and there are 30,000 men idle in that part of Pittsburg.

At nearly all of the iron mills in the district millwrights and mechanics are at work making necessary repairs, and at some, at least, the shut down is known to be temporary, as the manufacturers have assured their employes that work will be resumed as soon as repairs and stock-taking are completed.

WILL BE PAID IN FULL.

Four Thousand Men to Receive Their Money and a Discharge.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 2.—A notice has been posted at the entrance to the Homestead Company's office enjoining all employes, from the highest to the lowest, that they will be paid off in full.

About 4,000 men in all will receive their money and also notices of discharge.

Barring the fact that the crowd of workmen may be noisy no demonstration is anticipated.

A member of the Advisory Board of the locked-out men said to-day:

"Mr. Frick's statement that only 986 men were affected by the new scale is a mistake. Every man in the mill suffers by it, and we can prove it. The general reductions in all departments range from eight to ten per cent, and in some as high as 40 per cent."

While it cannot be exactly estimated yet, the loss to the Carnegie Company every day the mill is idle is very heavy and amounts to thousands of dollars.

In case the firm fails to recede from its present determined stand there will be great danger of being unable to fill the government and World's Fair contracts. The company is under a $500,000 bond for the completion of a large amount of armor plate, and unless the old men are taken back or new men secured there is a probability of the government demanding a forfeiture.

WILL EMPLOY 40,000 MEN.

The Carnegie Steel Company, Limited, Adds to Its Already Immense Plant.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—The extensive operations in iron and steel formerly conducted under the firm names of Carnegie Brothers & Co., limited; Carnegie, Phipps & Co., limited; Allegheny Bessemer Steel Co., and the Keystone Bridge Company at the Edgar Thomson Furnaces, the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, Duquesne Steel Works, Homestead Steel Works, Lucy Furnaces, Keystone Bridge Works, Upper Union Mills, Lower Union Mills, Beaver Falls Mills, Scioto Ore Mines, Larimer Coke Works and Youghiogheny Coke Works will be carried on by the Carnegie Steel Company, limited.

The general offices of the new firm will be in this city, with branch offices in all the principal cities of the United States.

None of the details of the transaction will be made public by the firm at present, and they will wait until the trouble at their works is settled before filing the papers of record.

The capital stock will be $25,000,000.

The company will have in its employ upward of 40,000 men.

One Hundred and Fifty Quit Work.

ST. LOUIS, July 2.—As the result of a refusal to sign the scale adopted by the Amalgamated Association in session for a week past at Pittsburg, Pa., the heaters, rollers and puddlers employed by the Helmbacher Forge & Rolling Mills Company, numbering 150, have quit work and the mills have been shut down.

Union Rolling Mill Closes.

CLEVELAND, July 2.—The Union Rolling Mill has closed, and it is impossible to tell when it will reopen. The mill usually shuts down for repairs during the summer, but the present suspension is due to the trouble between the manufacturers and the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers.

Another Shut Down.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 2.—At midnight the Susquehanna and Columbus Iron Companies of Columbia shut down for an indefinite period. Fully 500 men are thrown out of work. It was stated that the shut down was for the purpose of making some repairs.

OUR GRAND NATAL DAY

Celebration of the Glorious 4th All Over the Country.

CEREMONIES IN NEW YORK CITY.

Washington Does Honor to the Day—The Display of Fireworks at Pittsburg Equal to Any Since 1876—The Celebration at Woodstock—At Other Places.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The celebration of Independence Day in this city was begun early in the morning by hoisting on the block fort, in Central Park, and on the Liberty Pole, in the Battery Park, the national colors by the few remaining survivors of the war of 1812.

Aside from this and the celebration by the Tammany Society there was nothing of moment in connection with the ceremonies, and the burden of commemorating the day seemed to rest entirely on the small boy, and he did his best to fill the bill.

The weather was fine, and every one that could take advantage of the holiday to leave town did so.

Consequently the streets were comparatively deserted.

All the resorts within 50 miles of the city were well patronized.

Yacht races, horse races, a number of aquatics, athletic and other events went to make up the programme of outdoor sports.

The 116th annual celebration of American Independence by the Society of Tammany, or Columbian Order, at Tammany Hall was one of the features.

The hall was beautifully decorated and filled by an immense crowd.

At 10:30 the exercises were opened by the playing of national airs by the 69th Regiment Band.

Grand Sachem Thomas F. Gilroy delivered a short address heartily welcoming those present. He then introduced the quartette of the Tammany Glee Club, who sang some patriotic ballads.

The Declaration of Independence was next read. The reading was frequently interrupted by the applause of the audience.

Addresses were made by Hon. W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, Hon. J. C. Pendleton, of West Virginia, and others, and letters of regret were read from Grover Cleveland, David B. Hill, and other prominent Democrats.

Italian Societies Celebrate.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The United Italian societies of this city observed the Fourth by breaking ground for the foundation of the statue of Columbus to be erected at 58th street and 8th avenue. The large gathering was addressed by President Barsotti and Vice-President Barotoni.

AN OLD-FASHIONED CELEBRATION.

Washington Does Honor to the Natal Day of the Union.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—A real, old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration was held in Washington under the auspices of the Sons of the American Revolution and the Sons of the Revolution.

At 9 a. m. the exercises began with services of a patriotic-religious character at the Church of the Epiphany, where both societies were well represented.

Brief addresses were made by Rev. Drs. McKim and Childs, and the choir rendered "America" and other anthems of a patriotic character.

At the conclusion of these services the societies marched in a body to the Washington monument under escort of the Washington Light Infantry and a section of District Artillery. At the monument a salute of 13 guns was fired.

From a platform near the base of the monument the Declaration of Independence was read by Mr. Barry Bulkley, and short addresses were delivered by the Hon. John Goode of Virginia and Mr. Henry Wise Garnett.

President Harrison was present during the services at the monument, but made no address. The Daughters of the American Revolution participated in the exercises as did a delegation from the Oldest Inhabitants Association. A singular circumstance connected with the ceremonies attracted a good deal of comment. Just as the speaking began a beautiful rainbow formed apparently just above the apex of the monument. It soon disappeared and reappeared just as the ceremonies ended. The phenomenon was the more marked as the weather was delightfully clear.

AT PITTSBURG.

The Display of Fireworks Equaled Any Since 1876.

PITTSBURG, July 5.—The greatest celebration of Independence Day ever seen in Pittsburg was held in Schenley Park between the hours of 9 a. m. and 10 p. m.

Unbounded interest in the affair has been manifested by thousands of patriotic Pittsburgers for months, and the dawn of a perfect day set at rest the last doubt that the affair would be a huge success.

At 9:30 o'clock the celebration was officially opened by the firing of the national salute.

Then followed a programme of music by a band of 200 pieces, songs by 150 young school children and addresses by prominent speakers.

The rest of the day was given up to athletic sports and general holiday festivities.

The display of fireworks in the evening equaled any that has been held in the country since the centennial exhibition in Philadelphia in 1876.

40,000 People at Asbury Park

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 5.—Forty thousand people witnessed the celebration here. Athletic games took place in the morning, a firemen's parade in the afternoon, and a concert by Cappa's band and the fireworks by Paine enlivened the evening. The business men spent $20,000 for the celebration.

Omaha Indulges.

OMAHA, Neb., July 5.—Omaha indulged in an old-fashioned celebration yesterday for the first time in many years. Six thousand men took part in the parade, and 50,000 people, citizens and visitors, were on the street to witness the procession.

THE DAY AT ST. LOUIS.

Celebrated on a Grander Scale Than Ever Before.

ST. LOUIS, July 5. — Independence Day was celebrated here on a grander scale than ever before. The weather was delightful.

The exercises began in the morning with a mounter parade, embracing Government troops, military organizations and civic societies.

The parade was viewed by Gov. Francis and staff, Mayor Noonan and city officials.

In the afternoon an old-time celebration was carried out at the Fair Grounds.

After a salute of 44 guns the consolidated bands, numbering over 300 musicians, rendered "America," at the conclusion of which addresses were delivered by Gov. Francis, ex-Gov. Johnson, Mayor Noonan and others.

The afternoon and evening display of fireworks was the finest ever witnessed in the West.

IN THE OPEN AIR.

Notable Celebration of the Glorious Fourth at Woodstock, Conn.

WOODSTOCK, Conn., July 5.—Of all the celebrations throughout the country of the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence the one at Roseland Park, the country residence of Henry C. Bowen, was perhaps the most notable.

The celebration was the 22nd of the series.

The celebration, as in previous years, took place in the open air, and the exercises attracted an immense crowd. The proceedings were opened by an address of welcome by Congressman Charles A. Russell of Connecticut, and then Senator Platt, of the same State, was introduced as president of the day and delivered a patriotic address. Secretary Tracy followed with a lengthy oration, and then an original poem, "Ode to the Republic," by Prof. Wilkinson of the Chicago University, was read.

A SAD ENDING.

Fatal Accident at an Independence Day Balloon Ascension.

BOSTON, July 5.—The balloon ascension from the Common yesterday afternoon, one of the features in the celebration of the Fourth prepared by the city government, had a sad ending.

One of the aeronauts accidentally tore a hole in the side of the balloon while it was at a great height, and it immediately began to fall at a frightful speed.

As a result, Prof. Augustus Rogers of Malden, is dead; Thomas Fenton, his assistant, is dying, and the third occupant of the balloon, Delos E. Goldsmith, is suffering from the shock and the inhalation of gas.

THE FOURTH IN LONDON.

Many American Flags Fly and Minister Lincoln Receives.

LONDON, July 5.—The sun shone brightly and the Stars and Stripe hung over many West End houses and shops all day, especially in Regent street.

Minister Lincoln gave his first open reception for the benefit of the American colony and their friends among the Londoners.

The banquet in honor of Independence Day was held at the Savoy Hotel.

Col. Ochiltree gave a banquet at the Albermarle.

The Colonel has entirely recovered his self-possession, disturbed by the recent Drayton-Borrowe affair.

Paterson's Celebration.

PATERSON, N. J., July 5.—The celebration, which began Saturday, of the founding of this city by Alexander Hamilton, was continued yesterday. At sunrise a National salute was fired. An industrial and civic parade began at 9 a.m. and was reviewed by the Marshal of the day. At noon a salute of 44 guns was fired. In the afternoon there were races and games, and at night there were concerts and oratory.

Whitelaw Reid at Rye.

RYE, N. Y., July 5.—The Fourth of July was celebrated here by a procession, literary exercises and music. Hon. Murat Halstead was the orator of the day. Whitelaw Reid came upon the invitation of the committee of citizens to tak e part with them in the celebration. At the conclusion of Mr. Halstead's address, Mr. Reid was called upon and delivered a patriotic speech.

Quincy's 100th Anniversary.

QUINCY, Mass., July 5.—Quincy celebrated her 100th anniversary with her 4th of July ceremonies with appropriate exercises by a parade, literary exercises in the First Church, music and a banquet. Charles Francis Adams delivered the oration. The city was prettily bedecked with flags and bunting and a salute of 100 guns was fired at sunrise and sunset.

A Ramrod Through His Head.

TRENTON, N. J., July 5.—Frank Holland, 13 years old, was instantly killed while ramming powder in a large cannon. The powder exploded, sending the ramrod through his head, entering just under the left eye.

Mrs. Sears Assisted.

PARIS, July 5.—Owing to Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge being indisposed, Mrs. Sears assisted the American Minister to receive at the Hotel Continental.

Representative Crain Better.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Representative Crain, of Texas, who was taken suddenly ill in the House on Saturday, is better, and spent a very good night.

WEAVER AND FIELD

People's Party Candidates for President and Vice-President.

NOMINATED ON THE FIRST BALLOT.

Gen. Weaver Received 995 Votes and Field 173 on the First Roll Call—Another Set of Candidates Nominated at Night After an Exciting Session.

OMAHA, Neb., July 5.—After an exciting afternoon and evening session of the Third Party, Prof. Vincent, of Indianapolis, at midnight, announced that Indiana would go solid for Weaver.

Dean, of New York, amid applause and confusion, stated that the 59 votes of that State were for Weaver. Mississippi followed suit.

Schilling of Wisconsin charged the Chair with being privy to an attempt to stampede the convention.

Georgia withdrew Paige and moved that Weaver's nomination be made by acclamation. But a number of the delegates were loud in their protests of disapproval and the roll call went on.

Virginia endorsed Weaver. South Dakota changed from Kyle to Weaver. Wisconsin was reached at 12:15, and Robert Schilling seconded Kyle.

At 12:30 Oklahoma, last on the list, was reached, and Samuel Crocker supported Weaver.

The first ballot stood: Weaver, 995; Kyle, 275, scattering, 2.

After the ballot, S. F. Norton moved that the nomination be unanimous. Schilling of Wisconsin seconded the motion, which was carried. The nomination was made unanimous at 12:55 a. m., and the delegates rose to their feet and gave three cheers.

A Texas delegate moved an adjournment until 8:30, but the Chair ordered the call of the roll for nomination for Vice-President at 1 a. m.

Gen. James G. Field, of Va., was nominated for Vice-President on the first ballot, the vote standing: Field, 733; Terrell, 554.

CAMPBELL WILL DECLINE.

H. C. Payne Says He Will Not Conduct the Republican Campaign.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 5. — H. C. Payne, the Wisconsin Republican leader, and member of the National Committee, has sent to J. S. Clarkson the following telegram:

"Campbell will decline. Keep this private. I am posting our Washington friends so as to secure wisest action. Campbell will be in Washington to-morrow."

The fact that this telegram had been sent leaked out here accidentally, and caused much talk in Republican circles here.

There is a rumor to-day that Mr. Payne himself is possibly to be chosen in place of Campbell.

MAJOR FALLS DEAD.

He Led the Daring Cavalry Charge at Cedar Creek.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Major J. Falls, a veteran of the Mexican War and of the War of the Rebellion, is dead, of general debility.

At the battle of Cedar Creek he led the cavalry charge on the Confederate ranks, which for daring and boldness of execution had but few equals during the war.

After the war he located in San Francisco. He was appointed on the police force in 1875, and in 1889 was retired as sergeant.

CITY OF CHICAGO STILL FAST.

A Diver Reports that the Steamship is Badly Damaged.

LONDON, July 5.—The hull of the City of Chicago has been examined by a diver, who reports that the steamship is firmly caught on the jagged rocks, and that she is in a much damaged condition.

The tugs sent by the Inman Line from Liverpool are preparing for an attempt to pull the City of Chicago into deep water.

A Stirmly Attended Convention.

CINCINNATI, July 5.—The National Convention of representatives of the colored race, held in the Zion Baptist Church, was poorly attended. The object of the convention was to arouse public sentiment and to put a stop to the outrages against the colored people in the South.

No Clew to the Murderer.

LEXINGTON, Va., July 5. — Granville Leech, a prominent and wealthy citizen of Rockbridge county, was murdered last night on the public highway near historic Goshen Pass, a lonely locality. He was shot in the head and back. There is no clew to the murderer.

Michael Davitt's Forecast.

DUBLIN, July 5.—Michael Davitt asserts that the McCarthyites will carry eighty seats in Ireland, the Unionists seventeen, and the supporters of Mr. John Redmond, five, and that the home rule majority of Ulster will be maintained.

Won the Championship.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Peter Priddy, of Pittsburg, at the annual games of the New York Letter Carriers' Association here, defeated the five-mile champion runner, R. C. McClelland, thereby winning the championship of America.

SALISBURY'S SON BREAKS OUT.

Describes His Father's Government as Weak, Vacillating and a Little Flabby.

LONDON, July 5.—The Hon. Edward Blake of Canada, who has been selected as anti-Parnellite candidate to wrest the seat of South Longford from the Parnellites, has arrived at Londonderry.

A number of priests and other leaders of the anti-Parnellite party were there to receive him, and addresses were read welcoming the arrival of the distinguished Canadian as a favorable accession to the cause of Irish Home Rule.

The anti-Parnellites are making vigorous efforts to strengthen their cause by restraining the tongues of Timothy Healy, Father Behan and others. Healy declines to be bridled.

Meantime the Catholic clergy everywhere in Ireland are entering into the contest with the greatest earnestness.

Viscount Cranborne, Lord Salisbury's son and heir, is about 30 years of age, a frank, soldierly young man, and given to speaking his mind. By uttering thoughts too freely on political subjects he is making things uncomfortable for his father.

According to the Lancashire "Evening Post," published at Preston, the Rev. Mr. Boardman asked Viscount Cranborne why the government had not allowed Parliamentary inquiry regarding the Michelstown outrage, when the Irish constabulary made a most brutal and unjustifiable attack on the people.

The Viscount replied that the government was weak, vacillating and a little flabby. The incident was most unfortunate, and the attack upon the crowd a serious mistake.

"Suppose," added Lord Salisbury's heir, "that inquiry had shown a policeman to have been guilty of murder, and the policeman had been convicted and hanged—what would have become of the government?"

The report of the conversation, apparently authentic, has angered the managers on the Tory side, and they are asking Lord Salisbury to put a muzzle on his son.

MRS. SEILOS TAKES POISON.

She Had Been Told By a Friend That Her Husband Was Faithless.

NEWARK, N. J., July 5.—Mrs. Mamie Seilos, aged 22, is lying at the point of death at the City Hospital as the result of a dose of iodine which she drank with suicidal intent. She and her husband lived at 13 Broad street.

The couple, notwithstanding the fact that a young man of the name of Samuel Snape is at present serving an 18 months' sentence for having criminally assaulted her while she was employed in Clark's Thread Works, have been married several months, and were believed to have been devotedly attached to each other.

During the day, however, Mrs. Seilos received from a gossiping female friend an intimation that her husband was faithless.

She accused him of it upon his return from work, and in a fit of indignation Seilos left the house.

Scarcely had he gone than she seized one of her husband's bottles containing iodine and immediately drank the entire contents.

At 4 o'clock in the morning she was removed to the hospital in an unconscious condition.

At noon the hospital authorities said that her life hung in the balance.

THE CHOLERA SPREADING.

Moscow in Danger Owing to Its Trade With Saratov.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 5.—The cholera is gaining a hold in the town of Saratov, capital of the government of Saratov.

The town is on the Volga, and the seat of an extensive trade both with Central and Asiatic Russia.

For this reason it is thought that the cholera may spread from Saratov to Moscow and other places, as the trade between Saratov and Moscow is very large.

Eight deaths have already occurred from cholera in Saratov, and the number of poor persons sick with the disease is increasing.

The authorities are causing the streets to be thoroughly cleansed, which has not been done before in many years, the dwellings of the sick are fumigated, and those known to be suffering from cholera are rigidly quarantined.

Owing to the cholera invasion there has been a sudden display through Russia of earnestness in enforcing sanitary rules, which, in many places, have been dead letters.

German Railroad Accident.

BERLIN, July 5.—Twenty persons were injured during the evening by a railway collision near Charlottenburg station. One, train loaded with passengers was waiting outside the station for the signal to start. Another train came dashing into the rear carriages of the train which was at a standstill, crushing the hindmost carriage into splinters, and terribly injuring many of the passengers.

Charged With Manslaughter.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 5.—Mrs. Clara Kaufman Hall was arraigned yesterday upon the charge of manslaughter in the first degree and pleaded not guilty. The woman, whose death it is alleged she caused by a criminal operation, was known as Mrs. Margaret De Larme, but proves to be the wife of the noted thief and jail breaker, Clarence Tear.

Taken to West Point for Burial.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—The remains of Colonel John Mendenhall, Second United States Artillery, and late Commandant at Fort Adams, have been taken to West Point for burial. The entire garrison was paraded as an escort. The remains are accompanied by Mrs. Mendenhall and a guard of honor from the fort.

Captain's Wife and Child Drowned.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 5. — The ship Peter Stuart, Captain Hughes, St. John, for Liverpool, deal laden, struck on the ledges of Chebogue Point, Yarmouth, early in the morning in a dense fog. The ship immediately went to pieces, the captain's wife and child being drowned before they could leave the vessel.

William O'Brien Badly Injured.

DUBLIN, July 5.—William O'Brien was fiercely attacked by the Parnellites and was badly wounded by being struck on the temple with a stone. Mr. O'Brien was removed to the nearest house, and medical aid was summoned.

LIBERALS GAIN SEATS

Home Rule Almost Undoubtedly Assured.

EMMETT'S EPITAPH MAY BE WRITTEN

And Ireland Take Her Place Among the Nations of the Earth—Gladstone Likely to Be Swept Into the Premiership By an Overwhelming Liberal Majority.

LONDON, July 5.—If the contested elections yesterday are an indication of the ultimate result, the next Parliament will be overwhelmingly Liberal, and Ireland will have home rule. Of course, the elections are not decisive, but the figures point to a tidal wave sweeping Mr. Gladstone into the Premiership and establishing an Irish Parliament again in College Green. If the results continue, the epitaph of Emmett may soon be written and Ireland take her place among the nations of the earth.

The battle has not been won, but it has been well begun, and Liberals everywhere are rejoicing over the results so far achieved.

The total results are: Elected, 95. Conservatives, 49; Liberals, 39; Liberal Unionists, 7. The Liberals have gained 11 seats, the Tories 2, and their allies, the Liberal Unionists, have gained 1 seat. The net gain for the Liberal party and Irish home rule is therefore 8 seats.

Of the 64 seats voted for the Conservatives and Unionists held 40 in the last Parliament and the Liberals 24.

DESPERATE MEASURES.

An Alleged Plot to Wreck a Parnellite Train.

LONDON, July 5.—Among the minor incidents connected with the election, and which indicate the intensity of feeling between the contending parties, it is learned that at Peterborough a Unionist meeting was broken up and a free fight indulged in by a crowd of political opponents rushing in upon them.

The seats were smashed and the hall in which the meeting was being held was damaged. Several persons were injured.

News comes from Ireland that an attempt was made to wreck a special train carrying 300 members of the Parnellite branch to Lisdeen to attend a public meeting.

Fortunately the engineer of the train had received a warning and a terrible accident was averted.

AN ACTRESS THE CAUSE OF MURDER.

Lagreenie, the Stonebreaker, Kills a Sailor With His Fists.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5.—Fred Lagreene, an actor at Moran's Theatre, and Eli Severson, a sailor, whose home is in Chicago, quarreled over a pretty actress, Mabel Leighton, in the theatre, at an early hour in the morning.

Severson said she had engaged herself to him, while Lagreene claimed she was to marry him.

Lagreene, who breakes rocks with his bare fists, then dealt Severson two terrific blows on the head, and Severson died ten minutes later.

Lagreene escaped to the Central depot, where he bought a ticket to Toledo. He was arrested before the train left.

Five years ago he attempted to kill a woman on Canal street.

RESULTS OF THE MADRID RIOT.

Three Policemen Killed—Bad Taxes Likely to Be Abolished.

LONDON, July 5.—The correspondent of the "News" says that in the recent riot in Madrid three policemen were killed and several officers of the gendarmes, including the commander, seventeen privates and twenty policemen were injured.

The Civil Governor was badly bruised. Very few women and only about a dozen male roughs were hurt.

The newspapers express the opinion that the rioters were victorious, and that the objectionable taxes are likely to be abolished.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY IN TEXAS.

Farmer Pierce Kills His Wife, His Hired Man and Himself.

SHERMAN, Tex., July 5.—M. M. Pierce, a farmer living near Pottsboro, in this (Grayson) county, suspected Morgan E. Pack, his farm hand, and Mrs Pierce of being too intimate.

In the morning Pierce shot Pack dead with a rifle, and then cut his wife's throat.

Then, dragging his wife's body into the house, he lay down by her side and cut his own throat.

Pope Leo Confers Two Titles.

HALIFAX, N. S. July 5.—Information has been received from Rome to the effect that the title of Monsignor has been conferred by the Pope upon the Rev. John Carmody, of St. Patrick's Church, and the title of Doctor of Divinity upon the Rev. E. P. Murphy, of St. Mary's Cathedral.

Earthquake in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 5.—There were strong earthquake shocks felt in Guadalajara yesterday. They were accompanied by unearthly subterranean noises, which created much terror. Some damage was done at Colima. There was a beautiful eruption of the Colima volcano at night.

Hanged a Minister in Effigy.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 4.—The Rev. J. S. Ives, pastor of the Congregational Church at Stratford, a suburb of Bridgeport, was hanged in effigy early in the morning. The clergyman made himself very unpopular lately by trying to enforce the blue laws.

Archbishop Cleary to the Rescue.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 5.—The Roman Catholic diocese of Kingston will contribute a large sum of money, which will be applied in aiding the election of Home Rule candidates in Ireland.

School Teachers in Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 5.—Three thousand school teachers are assembled here to attend the convention of the Georgia State Association and Southern Association.

THE GROWTH OF "THE PRESS".

The story of the progress and prosperity of the Plainfield people's newspaper, THE PRESS, is familiar to all, and it is unnecessary to repeat the tale of its constant successes and of its continuous growth in the affections of the public. The support given by local tradesmen has always been hearty and generous, and steadily increases, and to accommodate the continued demands on its space the paper to-day has to undergo another enlargement. Each column is lengthened two inches, making a total increase of more than three columns over the old size. THE PRESS of to-day is twice as large as the infant PRESS of five years ago. It is the paper that all read, and every prosperous merchant has space in its advertising columns. That advertising generates success, the experience of PRESS advertisers effectually proves.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The first Asbury Park excursion is that of to-morrow. Don't miss the frolic.

W. J. Lackey and family, of West Second street, have gone to Kenoza Lake, N. Y., for several weeks.

—The Park club has erected a substantial iron fence across the entire front of the club-house grounds.

—Alonzo Randolph, the negro brute arrested for assaulting little Alice Day, has again pleaded guilty, and will be sentenced to-morrow.

—The Union County Country club gave a fine display of fireworks on their grounds, corner of Arlington avenue and Seventh street street, last evening.

—Clarkson Mundy, sexton of the Trinity Reformed church, showed his patriotism yesterday by ringing the Trinity church bell as usual to usher in the Fourth.

—The firemen are said to be responsible for the ringing of the M. E. church bell on the Fourth. It is alleged that they hired a boy to climb up into the belfry and fasten a rope to the clapper so they could operate it from outside the building.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss M. E. Heidt, of West Second street, is visiting friends at South River, for two weeks.

Miss Georgia Chamberlin, of this city, is mentioned in the New York papers as a new arrival at Chautauqua.

Peter Vandeventer, of East Fifth street, who has been absent about six months, spent the Fourth at home with his parents.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis was prominent at the convention of Prohibitionists at the opening of their new auditorium at Fort Richmond, S. I., yesterday.

Mme. Alberti, principal of the Delsarte School of Expression of New York, is again dean of the summer school at Avon-by-the-Sea. She will be assisted by Miss Eleanor T. Morrison, of North Plainfield.

It is Dr. Mitchell now. The pastor of the Methodist church, whom all Plainfielders are proud to know, has received the degree of Ph. D. from Allegheny college. This is not an honorary, but an earned degree. It represents actual scholarship.

The death of John C. Van Dyke, Jr., occured Sunday afternoon, after a long illness. The end was peaceful and happy. Deceased was a member of the Trinity church and its Christian Endeavor society. Funeral services were held at the residence of the senior Van Dyke this afternoon, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck officiating. Members of Franklin council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of which deceased was a member, attended in a body.

Samuel McCutchen and Samuel Townsend represented the Park club in a tennis contest on the Hillside avenue grounds, Saturday, and were defeated by the Hillside players. Several interesting series of games were played among the members. The Saturday afternoon tea was as usual a great success. Those who did the honors of the day were Mrs. John B. Drayton, Mrs. R. Henry Depew, Miss Marguerite Yates and Miss Grace Howard.

Still a Chance to Help the Needy.

The Plainfield Relief Association, to its friends about to leave home for a summer outing: Do not forget that our funds have been exhausted by the work of the winter, while a number of persons—because of sickness or misfortune—will continue to require the help of the association through the summer. Donations in cash or by check will be thankfully acknowledged by the treasurer,

MRS. H P. REYNOLDS,
71 Washington avenue.
North Plainfield.

Grist of the City Court.

Judge Codington fined Harry Fosberry $12 this morning, and Michael Duncoe $5, for drunkenness.

Thomas Burke, for letting his goat run at large and trespass, was fined $1.

Michael Heffern, for fighting, was fined $4. Thomas Sheridan, with whom he fought, had sentence suspended.

FANWOOD'S FIRE-BUG.

Citizens Openly Charge a Well-known Resident with Crime.

August Scheitner, who was so badly burned in a stable fire at Fanwood Friday night, has died of his fearful injuries, at Muhlenberg Hospital. His funeral took place in Scotch Plains this afternoon.

The news of another fire in the village last night caused much excitement among the Scotch Plains and Fanwood people.

The fire was again on the place of Charles Richardson, and started in his house. The local department battled nobly, and extinguished the blaze. The damage was about $500. The singular coincidences of these fires on Mr. Richardson's property have aroused the suspicion of the public, and to-day charges of incendiarism are openly directed against a well-known citizen who is suspected and threatened with arrest. Numbers of people are eager for the prosecution, but are waiting for the insurance companies to take the initiative. An investigation is being made. The suspected person stoutly protests his innocence, and defies anyone to bring proof of his guilt.

Active Borough Democrats.

The executive committee of the North Plainfield Democratic association at a recent meeting secured a permanent headquarters for the association's use, at 85 Somerset street, where meetings will be held weekly during the campaign, and which will serve as a meeting-place for the regular Democratic association hereafter. The growth of the association has been somewhat retarded by the want of a permanent place for meetings, and as this difficulty has now been overcome the organization expects to grow rapidly. The first meeting of the association will be held at the new hall this week Thursday evening. Prominent local speakers will be present, and a formal ratification of the national ticket and platform will take place. Campaign literature in abundance will be provided, and the headquarters will be open every day and evening.

Hallett Held for Trial.

James W. Hallett, of New Market, whose destruction of $1,500 worth of furniture was detailed exclusively in these columns Saturday, has been held at New Brunswick in default of $3,000 bail for trial. The charges are as follows: For malicious mischief, on complaint of Clarence Hallett, $500; assault and battery on Mrs. Alice Hallett, $1,000; threats against Clarence Hallett, $500; threats against Mrs. Hallett, $500; assault on servant girl, Antonia Kierpulonia, $250, and threats against the latter, $250, a total of $3,000. Mr. Hallett's unsuccessful attempts to kill his wife and child are said to have been brought on by insanity brought on by drink.

Casualties of the Fourth.

Mrs. Charles F. Denecklau, of 5 Plainfield avenue, was at work in her kitchen. Charles Yeager of No. 3 was shooting at a tin can in his yard. His aim was not true, and a bullet whizzed into the Denecklau kitchen and scraped along the side of Mrs. Denecklau's shoe.

Carmon Sutphen's right hand was severely burned in touching off a cannon with a piece of punk. His forehead also was slightly burned.

Willie Acken, of Washingtonville, by the premature discharge of a small cannon, had considerable powder blown into the flesh of his face.

Seeking for a Pastor.

The Rev. Henry Miller, at present pastor of the Fifth Presbyterian church at Chicago, may be the next pastor of the First Presbyterian church in this city. He has preached twice before the Plainfield congregation, and is favorably considered by many of the congregation. He is a man of much talent.

The congregation will meet to-morrow evening to decide whether or not they are ready to extend a call, or whether they would prefer to hear other candidates. In case they decide they are ready to make a call, the selection of a pastor will then be made, and the question of salary will be adjusted

An Officer Assaulted at a Picnic.

Special officer Jacob Krineg was on duty under Capt. Grant's orders at an Evona picnic yesterday. In the evening, he says, a mob of drunken toughs assaulted him. He laid one fellow out with his club, and paralyzed the others. He will have his assailants arrested. The officer seems plucky and cool-headed in the hour of danger, and is evidently able to handle himself when attacked.

A Good Plainfield Trotter, and a Rare Good Trainer

M. Quinn's fine trotting mare, Kitty Pilot, won three straight heats in a race at Trenton, yesterday, making the good time of 2:35¼. The success of this mare is due to her excellent training in the hands of Mr. Brower, who is one of the best horsemen in Plainfield, and who has trained many horses to run victorious races.

Lost His Valued Horse.

E. T. Dunn, letter carrier, No. 8, lost a faithful friend and helpmate, when Sam, his horse, died yesterday morning. It was sick only 24 hours. Two veterinary surgeons did all that could be done, but the agony of the horse was so great that he could not be approached by those who wanted to alleviate his suffering. It is a great financial loss to Mr. Dunn.

City Council to Meet Friday.

The few councilmen who met in the council chamber last night, for the regular July meeting, were not enough for a quorum. Therefore they could not as had been planned adjourn to any date. A special meeting will be called for this week Friday evening.

My catarrh was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntary statement that others may know of the Balm. J. W. Mathewson, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

With Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

THE FOURTH AT THE HEIGHTS.

A Day of Many Pleasures Crowned by a Full-Dress Hop.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

NETHERWOOD, N. J., July 4.—The glorious Fourth has been one of the most delightful and lovely days ever experienced by your correspondent in this latitude, and I am quite sure I only voice the sentiment of the guests sojourning at fair Netherwood. Everyone seemed happy, and the day of days will be long remembered as most enjoyable. The crowning event of the day was the full-dress hop in the evening, given in the grand parlors of The Netherwood by proprietor Miller to his guests.

There are about one hundred and fifty visitors here, and at nine-thirty sharp the guests and their friends entered the grand parlor, when the festivities of the evening commenced. Professor Greenop's excellent orchestra, augmented for the occasion, furnished the music. The scene in the parlors was a "joy forever", to quote the expression of a friend, and I can safely say in my experience of now five years at this charming hostelry, I never witnessed a more beautiful sight than the thronged parlors of The Netherwood filled with brave men and lovely women.

What shall I say of the lovely costumes worn by the fair participants? Without particularizing, they were ravishingly beautiful. At eleven o'clock an excellent supper was served in the large dining room of the hotel, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number of guests present thereat.

The verdict, unanimous of the participants, that the event was thoroughly enjoyable and a complete success from the start to the finish, I duly chronicle.

A number of invited guests from Plainfield were present, and all expressed themselves highly delighted with the festivities of the evening.

The Netherwood is rapidly filling up, and the prospects for a prosperous and enjoyable season are now beyond question.

A list of charming events is now under advisement, and will be duly announced.

A Fourth-of-July Sermon.

The hours from midnight July 3 to 7 a. m. July 4 were altogether too noisy for comfort in Plainfield. It is nonsense and folly to permit youngsters to get up at 1 or 2 in the morning, even on Independence Day, and make the night hideous with their racket. The sentiment of ushering in the day by bell ringing and salutes for a few minutes at midnight is well enough, but the hours from 12:30 to 7, at least, ought to be quiet. There are more people who want and need sleep than there are who prefer babel. The summer day is long enough for the jolliest kind of a celebration, without robbing people of the rest that is due them at night. Parents and children have a duty to the community, and it is the parents' duty to prohibit the youngsters from making a nuisance of themselves. Seven in the morning is early enough to begin the noisy work of the Fourth. Holidays are made to give rest to tired nerves, but the Fourth just past made many people wretched. The thoughtless ones should recollect that there are many people whose organizations are extremely sensitive, and to them all-night explosions give a serious shock. To many fair women the night racket of the Fourth was a really terrible experience. They suffered greatly from the violence of the night disturbances, and not a few were made hysterical and brought to the verge of nervous prostration by the sleeplessness and shock. A fine old lady who is confined a helpless invalid to the house had for weeks been shaken by a nervous dread of the tumult of the night preceding the Fourth. Her neighbors knew this, but instead of restraining their sons and keeping their racket and confusion within daylight bounds they permitted the boys to do as they pleased, and as a result pandemonium reigned in front of the poor invalid's residence from midnight to breakfast time. Children should be taught that the day is long enough for their fun. When they start in so early they burn up all their powder before noon, and the quiet that ought to have obtained during the night falls on the afternoon instead. The prohibition of disorderly conduct from 12 midnight to 7 a. m. ought to be a matter of neighborly kindliness, not of municipal legislation, yet it looks as though the passage of an ordinance alone would quell the disturbances. To annoy the public and to deprive of sleep those needing rest is not the true spirit of the Fourth. Patriotism does not consist of making one's self a nuisance. It is a good thing to teach the young people true patriotism, and it is a good thing to instill into their hearts the humanity of the Golden Rule. When the sick and the weary want rest, it is cruelty and barbarism to deprive them of it. The true gentleman is ever considerate of the comfort of others. The true patriot is brave and manly enough to forego a share of his pleasures to gratify his fellow men and women. True gentleman is true patriot; and he is neither who is disloyal to the American and Christian doctrine of suffer injury a thousand times rather than inflict it once, or who wilfully trespasses on the rights of his fellow-citizens. To be good and brave is to be chivalrous, to be sensitive to the wants of more delicate organizations; it is better to suffer than to inflict pain; kind hearts are a more precious jewel than the coronets of kings.

Safe, Sure and Speedy.

No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

Masked Burglars at Evona.

Two masked men tried twice to enter Ed. Vail's house at Evona, after midnight Sunday. At 2 a. m., special officer Jacob Krineg scared them away. An hour later they were again prowling around, and Ed. Vail fired a pistol at them. The suspicious characters had been in the neighborhood some time. They have now disappeared.

Worn-out, "run-down," feeble women, need Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It builds them up. It's a powerful, restorative tonic, or strength-giver—free from alcohol and injurious drugs. The entire system is renewed and invigorated. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, gives refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. As a soothing nervine, it allays and subdues hysteria, spasms, and all the nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease. It's the only guaranteed medicine for women. It does what is promised—or it asks nothing. It gives satisfaction, in every case, or the money paid for it is refunded. No other medicine for women is sold on such terms.

That's the way its makers prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

PLAINFIELD STILL LEADS.

WESTFIELD DEFEATED IN AN EXCITING CONTEST.

A Wild-Eyed, Four-Legged Native Hoodooed the Game, But Sneeden Was Knighted by THE PRESS and Won the Triumph All Alone—Berriman No Longer a Friend of the Crescents, and Westfield Wants Hammill Back.

The pent-up excitement in last Saturday's game between Plainfield and Westfield was enough to give a spectator heart disease. 'Twas a tough and tangled struggle from start to finish; and 'twas mighty uncertain, all through, who was to be victorious. If it had n't been for Sneeden, the game was Westfield's certain. Twice during the contest his eagle eye and stalwart arm snatched the Crescents up out of the hole they were in, and turned defeat into triumph.

The game was hoodooed at the outset by a lean, lank, ungainly rabbit—one of the wild creatures that thrive on the town-lot prairie-land on Ripley hill. This animal went whizzing at full speed across the field and diamond, just before the game began. As he passed the players' bench he waggled his ears at Hofford, Bonner and Murphy and with a wriggle of his tufted tail completely hypnotized them. He stuck out his tongue at Leidy, said "Pat!" and gave that good-natured individual a thorough razzle-dazzle. Sneeden tried to catch the skinny, long-legged creature in his hat, but bunny said "Youse fellers ain't in it, see!" and with a wicked flirt of his hind legs vanished through a hole in the grand-stand.

Of course the Crescents were n't in it, after that. There was no use bucking against fate. They were willing to try their prowess against any human aggregation of base-ball players, but when it came to roping in a spirtualistic jack-rabbit as a mascot against them they had no heart or nerve left.

The first chance they got, therefore, they went all to pieces and presented their opponents with two great big runs, much to the disgust of their lugubrious followers on the stand. This was in the fourth inning. There was one man out. McIndoe stepped to the plate, gave a grin just like the grin of that rabbit, and banged the ball down to Bonner. The fingers of fate had that ball hugged tight in their grasp, and Bonner's usually agile digits were powerless to wrest it away, so Mac got safe to first, still wearing that sardonic grin. Lever also wore a demoniac smile as he sent the ball on a visit to Turner's territory. By the time he got through monkeying with the fingers of fate Lever was gleefully dancing on first, and McIndoe was speeding like a deer for home. The ball was fielded in to the little Brownie man Chic Hofford. McIndoe had spurned third base with his heel, and the ball reached Hofford just in the nick of time. But when Mac ran up against the doughty little catcher Hofford dropped the ball, and it rolled out towards Sneeden. That gentleman was crazy with grief. McIndoe had scored, and Lever was almost to third. Sneeden snatched up the ball and made a spasmodic throw towards Daley and Murphy, who were frantically prancing about the bag Lever was after. But Sneeden must have thought Murphy was on top of the Westfield school-house, for he threw high enough to hit the giant in the castle on top of Jack-the-giant-killer's beanstalk. While the ball got lost, Lever scored.

Well, if that did n't make the Westfield contingent delirious with joy! For five minutes the grounds were turbulent with a babel of yells and hootings. Four errors for Plainfield; two for the enemy! Chic Hofford took a long breath, and braced his men up for the next inning. "We must get those two runs back"—he said. And they did, but 'twas a close shave.

O'Rourke hit the ball, and Shorty Howe fumbled it. Leidy endeared himself to the hearts of his people by making a hit, the first of the game. Bonner tried a sacrifice, and while O'Rourke reached third he got first, but Leidy was put out at second. Jones fanned the air and made two out. It was do or die. Sneeden was equal to the occasion. He banged the ball out into the lot for a nice clean hit; and Bonner, who had stolen second, followed O'Rourke home. The score was tied. This was glory enough for on inning, and Hofford struck out.

Westfield made a run in the sixth as easy as rolling off a log. Sharrott was first to the bat, and promptly met the first ball pitched for a smashing three-bagger. He easily scored on the throw-in of McIndoe's long fly to right. Lever and Estabrooke followed Mac's example and flied out.

To tie the score again, Plainfield worked hard in the seventh. Leidy reached first on an error, stole second, and got put out at third when Bonner hit the ball and reached first on the play. Jones astonished the people by a fine two-base hit, bringing Bonner in from second, where he had stolen. Sneeden sacrificed for Jones's sake, but Hofford's long fly was captured, and the side was out with Jones left on third.

The eighth inning was heartrending. It was Freddy Jones's turn for an error, and he proved himself capable of making one as disgraceful as had his four fellow-butter-fingers. That gave Sharrott, of all men, first. Sneeden began to worry, and in his anxiety to hold Sharrott to first made some funny moves in the box. Berriman adjudged him guilty of an illegal delivery, and sent McIndoe to first, advancing Sharrott to second. Then there was the biggest kind of a kick. The Crescents left the field grumbling audibly at what they deemed injustice, and went back to their places only in response to manager Keller's strong persuasions. Sharrott gave the Crescents an exhibition of how to steal third. Lever went out, Bonner to Jones. Jones tried for a double, and the Plainfield people swore that Hofford surely had Sharrott out at the plate, but Berriman would n't have it, and declared the runner safe. Another stew! The Crescents declared themselves in favor of forfeiting the game, rather than submit to robbery. But Berriman was inexorable. He was evidently anxious to square himself with manager Coding of the Westfields. That worthy had taken umbrage at the umpire early in the game, and was quoted as saying: "This is the last game Berriman shall umpire for us." What more natural than that Berriman should make himself solid with the man who is notorious for wanting the earth!

The Crescents swallowed their wrath, braced up, and then it began to rain. Estabrooke insisted that the game be called, but the Crescents did n't see it that way, for the score was 4 to 3 against them. So they went manfully to work, and all Plainfield breathed a sigh of relief when Westfield was retired in the ninth without another run. But Ripleyville still had the lead, and now was the Crescents' last chance. O'Rourke dashed the people's hopes by hitting a little one to short, who snapped him out at first. Leidy brought cheer to troubled souls by a dandy hit. Then he frisked down to second on Clare's delivery. Bonner was agile enough to reach first while Smith was fumbling the ball. Jones popped up a little one to second. Plainfield was in despair. Two men were out, and the prospects were extremely dubious. Oh, if only that hoodoo of a rabbit had not been lugged into the game! But just then the PRESS scorer bethought himself of a talisman warranted to ward off the evil of supernatural powers. He touched Sneeden with it as though with a fairy wand. That settled it. You could hear that hoodoo of a rabbit gnashing his teeth under the grand-stand till they fell in fine white shavings to the ground. The hoodoo's power was gone. Sneeden proved it by whacking the ball far out into the field, for a tremendous two-bagger. Leidy scored, and Bonner scored, and the crowd rushed in and grabbed up Sneeden and hoisted him to their shoulders and carried him about the field in triumph. Proud moment was that for Sneeden, and prouder yet for the doughty champions of the pennant. But Westfield packed up her bats and went home sulkily and in disgust. The rabbit under the grand-stand shivered, lay down and gave up the ghost. His occupation was gone.

Notes.

Clare pitched the game of his life, Saturday, but Sneeden surpassed him, in spite of his disabled hand.

Westfield would n't let Charlie Hammill play on the Crescents, claiming that his release had been reconsidered and that they would n't let him go. Nevertheless he will wear only the Crescent uniform the rest of the season, and manager Keller will make a big kick to play him in future league games.

Sharrott, the ex-Leaguer, played great ball for Westfield. He is anxious, however, to join the Crescents. He is a good man.

Estabrooke is an old League player, and gave the Westfield boys some pointers. Altogether 'twas a very much strengthened team Westfield had in the field—a team hard to beat.

O'Rourke is anxious to do good work for Plainfield. He has good stuff in him.

Murphy was back in his old form, and acquitted himself creditably.

THE WEST ENDS' FOURTH SCALP.

Another Victory Hung to the Belt of the Somervillians by Heavy Batting in the First Two Innings.

"Say, Bowes, it's dead easy!" That's what the leather-lunged Al Williams of Elizabeth said to the clean-cut first baseman just as the game began at Somerville last Saturday. But old Al neglected to tack on the words "for the West Ends", and the Elizabeth rooters were cruelly deceived. At precisely twenty minutes to four the Elizabeth and West End teams faced the music, which lasted for exactly one hour and fifty minutes. But the official ball delayed the game more than anything else. In the first place, about one hundred fouls were put over the fence, necessitating numberless new balls being put in play. Of course neither pitcher could think of using the new white globe until it had been rolled in the dirt and passed to each one of the nine men in the field that they might carefully examine it. Then two balls were ripped and returned to the home manager; and, taken all in all, the most important part of the game was in putting a new ball in play. It was an old-time slugging match for the West Ends. That's about the sum and substance of the story. Francis gave six bases on balls, and was pounded until his face looked like a red light on a foggy night. Miller was slugged well, but not so steadily. The West Enders made Francis's head ache in the first two innings, for they scored all their runs then, and while it lasted Francis's nervousness seemed to demoralize the whole team. The first inning was a discouraging fifteen minutes for Francis. He started in to pitch the Elizabeth gang to victory, but when he got the ball over the plate a West Ender would meet it half way. By the time he got down to Miller the West Ends had secured their first block of five runs, while the Elizabeths had only one, which they made in the first inning, after two men had failed to solve Miller's curves, and on the only errors made in the game by the West Ends. After Coogan and Bowes had both fanned the air, Murray hit one to Farrell. Jack had taken too much preliminary exercise, and fumbled the ball, allowing Murray to reach first. Then Al Williams drove a high fly into right, which Carlin muffed. This put Murray on third, from which he came home a moment later when Miller threw to Harkins to catch Williams napping. Then Tierney struck out. In the West Ends' second, four base hits, two stolen bases, two sacrifice hits, and a couple of errors by the Elizabeths, gave the West Ends six additional runs making a total of eleven. It looked as though as many more might be made each time the home team came to the bat. Everyone was then wishing that the clearing-house system was in force, and that part of these runs could be saved until the time when the West Ends again meet Plainfield. But the crowd was mistaken. No more runs came to the West Enders, as for the next seven innings Francis pitched like a whirlwind, and cut out quite a pace for himself. In the third the Elizabeths began to master little tow-headed Miller's delivery, and by hard banging of the ball earned a run, with three men on base. Al Williams unleashed his voice with "here 's where we win, boys; we have only to make nine runs to beat them", but the lead was too great. There was no exciting finish like in the previous week. At the beginning of the sixth inning Miller was taken out, and young Anderson put in the box for the West Ends. The first man to face him was Williams. The first strike Al never saw, but the next two he struck at, and walked to the bench completely disgusted. Not a single hit did the Elizabeths get off of Anderson's delivery, although they tried with might and main.

The star play of the day was made by Carbonell in the fourth inning. Tierney, the great hitter, lifted the ball safely into left. Dillon then forced Tierney out at second. Berry came up looking as big as a house. With one strike on him, he raised the ball toward right center, almost on a line. Carbonell dashed after it with all the speed in his legs. While on the dead run he stuck out his left hand. The ball stuck to it like a stamp to a love-letter, and without stopping he threw to Harkins, closing the inning. The applause at this circus catch came both from Somerville and Elizabeth, and was so loud and prolonged that Carbonell was compelled to doff his cap.

FOURTH-OF-JULY GAMES.

Crescents Twice Victorious—Contests Against Jersey Central League Teams.

The Crescents had an easy time defeating the Gorhams yesterday. The "colored champions" had several weeks before defeated the Plainfielders in an exciting contest, and 1,500 people turned out to see this second game. Meakin pitched well, and the visitors got only four hits, and one of these could have been got by any one of the infield or battery, but all ran towards it, stopped still, and let it fall to the ground, each waiting for some one else to take it. The Crescents did some terrific slugging of the ball, and knocked all the spirit out of the "Gormans", as the visitors are familiarly called. A number of gorgeously-arrayed chocolate-hued gentry turned out to see the game. They were greatly broken up over their favorites' defeat. The Gorhams seemed to have lost their old spirit. The team was largely made up of players picked from Thompson street, New York. True it was that some of the "stars" of bygone days were seen among the dark-colored ranks, but not many. Oscar Jackson was there, and caught and talked with some of his old-time "enthuse". Seldon, once a great twirler, but now an ordinary short-stop, did his best in the box, but his former glory had departed. His arm is entirely gone, and his work was saddening. Stovey was greatly missed off the team. He was carried along on the salary list by the Gorhams for a long time while his arm was out of shape and he was useless, and he showed his gratitude by going over to the Cuban Giants the first chance he got. Hammill was warmly welcomed back by Plainfield.

The Wedding Prelude.

Little Boy—Say, ma says you are going to take sister off.

Engaged Youth (soon to be married)—Yes, in a few weeks she's going to my house, and my ma and pa will be her ma and pa. See?

"I see. Then she'll be your sister, same as she was mine. Say, don't you do anything she doesn't like, for if you do she'll bang you around awful when your ma and pa ain't looking."—Demorest's Magazine.

Bliss of Ignorance.

Young Housekeeper—It's such a trial to have a servant who can't understand a thing I say to her.

Old Housekeeper—Yes; but think how unpleasant it would be if you could understand the things she says to you.—Puck.

A Dreadful Time.

The spring housecleaning days have come,
The maddest of the year,
With curtains down, and carpets up,
And hallways chill and drear.
Now pa comes weary home at eve,
Without one ray of hope,
And swift toboggans down the stairs
Upon a cake of soap!
—N. Y. Herald.

In Society Circles.

"Did your son take a degree in college?" said a gentleman to a lady who was enthusiastically praising the ability of her offspring.

"No, indeed, he didn't," she replied, with pride. "He didn't take anything. He is the healthiest boy you ever saw."—Demorest's Magazine.

One Below Par.

Bloobumper—I always laugh when I hear Cubbage trying to sing "Old Hundred."

Spatts—Why?

Bloobumber—He's never able to get any higher than "Ninety-and-Nine."—Judge.

A Converted Sinner.

Neighbor—Is it true that your husband got converted at the revival last week?

Mrs. Grabhall—Yes, and he has resolved hereafter to lead a true Christian life.

Neighbor—I am delighted to hear it. What is he going to do with his summer hotel?—N. Y. Weekly.

The Rest Easy.

Borus (with literary aspirations)—Naggus, give me an idea for a poem.

Naggus (literary critic)—For a magazine?

"Y-yes."

"You don't need any idea, Borus. Get a rhyming dictionary."—Chicago Tribune.

Legal Note.

Pompous Judge—I hope you have much practice.

Young Lawyer—Yes, I have, thank you.

"I am glad to hear it. And in what branch is your practice mainly?"

"Mainly in economy."—Texas Siftings.

Not His Political Doctor.

Politician—Yes, I am trying in my quiet way to feel the public pulse as regards—

Voter (tired of the pump handle exercise)—How can you feel the public pulse when you are shaking its blamed arm off.—Indianapolis Journal.

Took It Coolly.

If I Were You.

Mrs. Keene—There are times when I wish I were a man.

Mr. Keene—For instance?

Mrs. Keene—When I pass a milliner's window and think how happy I could make my wife by giving her a new bonnet.—Puck.

An Explanation.

Teacher—Of what is the ocean composed?

Boy—Of salt water.

"Why is the water of the ocean salt?"

"Because so many salt codfish swim about in it, I suppose."—Texas Siftings.

Settling Her.

Mr. Richchapp—Miss Beauti does not seem to be a very warm friend of yours.

Miss Pretti—N-o; I believe she and my mother had some sort of a quarrel when they were girls.—N. Y. Weekly.

...of the Ro... Explorer.

...of the Man Who Has ... Than Any Other for ... Civilization of the Na... tives of Africa.

...e Boston Tageblatt confirms the ...ent rumors of the death in the interior of Africa of Emin Pasha. If it is true that Emin is dead the natural supposition is that he has fallen a victim to smallpox, from which reports in April stated he was suffering.

The birth and early life of Emin Pasha are shrouded in mystery. He has been called Dr. Schnitzer, and it is said he was born in either Prussia or Austrian Silesia about 1838 or 1840. A couple of years ago an assurance was given that he was born March 28, 1840, at Oppein, Prussian Silesia. His father died when the boy was quite young, but his mother is still living. According to this report, young Schnitzer graduated from the gymnasium at Neisse, went to the University of Breslau and to Kingsberg to study medicine, afterward studying at Paris and Vienna. He also devoted much time to natural sciences, ornithology especially. Wandering eastward, he became the companion of Ismael Pasha in his journeys to Trebizund, Erzroom, Constantinople and Janina, in Epirus. He learned French, English, Italian, several Slavic dialects, and Turkish, Arabic and Persian. In 1876 he took service with Egypt and remained with Gordon until that leader's death. He was appointed governor of the Egyptian equatorial provinces with the title of bey. He established himself in the Albert Nyanza and for three years nothing was heard from him. He was known to be surrounded by hostile tribes, and Stanley was sent to learn what had become of him. The history of Stanley's march to the rescue is fresh in the minds of all. April 10, 1889, Emin decided to accompany Stanley to the coast and a start was made. They marched up the valley of the Semliki river, crossing at Awamba, through Usonora and the Victoria Nyanza; Mywapwa was reached November 11, and Bagamoyo on the east coast of Africa opposite the island of Zanzibar December 4, where, during a banquet in honor of the safe return of the traveler, Emin was seriously hurt by falling from the second story of the house in which he was quartered. Upon his recovery Emin went to Cairo, where he wrote the story of his African experiences. It was an interesting narrative, with much more in it, however, to touch the sympathies of the naturalist than of the student of natural history or of political conditions.

Emin found his element in the wilds, and having emerged from it he was seized with a consuming desire to return. The atmosphere of Europe had no attraction for him. Having written his book he felt that he had paid all he owed to civilization. He returned to the interior late in the spring of 1890. The people were glad to have him back with them, apparently, for the first reports from him after his return were that he had regained his control and restored order. The reports seemed conclusive evidence that Emin was content to remain away from civilization, and that by letting him alone explorers would do him a service that he would appreciate most highly.

The reluctance with which Emin left Central Africa is to many unexplainable, but still is not difficult to understand. His troops had married in the land and refused to leave it. He had immense herds of cattle and flocks of sheep and lived like a nabob. His stock of ivory, which he could not take with him to the coast, would, if the road to the north were ever opened, bring him vast wealth. What more could be desired? In a letter written at Wadelai in 1886 he said: "I will never return with Stanley. I have passed twelve years of my life here and have won the trust and confidence of the people. I taught them useful trades and have aroused in them a desire to advance in civilization. True, the work of years has lately been undone in a measure, but its influence cannot be wholly lost."

Odd Names in Virginia.

Senator Epps Hunton's queer Christian name is less queer than some of the curious names to be heard and seen in his native state. A colored man in the senator's immediate neighborhood had two sons and a daughter, who were named respectively: "I Will Arise and Go to My Father," "Only Begotten Son," and "Amazing Grace." The elder son, after the manner of the famous Puritan "Damned Barebones," was abbreviated to "Iwilla" when addressed in a hurry. In another part of Virginia a worthy colored couple named their two boys Orange and Lemon, and their two girls Florida and Missouri. They had heard of white peple naming their daughters Virginia and Georgia, and a college professor of a distinguished family, who bore the name of Delaware, so the use of names of states was natural enough; but why the boys were named after fruits has never been explained, unless it be that Peachy Grattan, an old time Virginia lawyer, made his name famous.

Very Considerate.

"Is Mr. Jessup at home?" inquired a man of the servant who answered the bell.

"Ah! sir," replied the maid, "he is dead, and was buried day before yesterday."

"Dead, is he—er—well, I won't disturb him. Some other day will do just as well."—Texas Siftings.

A Valuable Suggestion.

He—I'm looking for a girl who can bake a cake, a loaf of bread, or cook a meal; one who isn't afraid to sew a button on, or roll her hands in a little housework.

She—I should strongly advise you to try an intelligence office, Mr. Close.

BELTS AND GIRDLES.

Some of the Fashionable Things of the Present Season.

Among the girdles of high and low degree included in every smart girl's outfit, there are the Swiss corselets of suede, with braces and buckles which adapts itself so comfortably to the needs of the athletic girl, and the empress belt, a double band of five-inch ribbon, drawn around the waist well up under the bust and finished with a soft rosette bow, which forms an obliging connecting link between the bodices and skirts of widely different materials and textures now cheerfully combined. For the ribbon is glorified by every art known to designer and colorists, watered, shaded, shot, brocaded and plaided, and obligingly blends the colors of the gown in subtle shadings and intricate patterns.

Among the new belts is a pretty one that has a regular bit and horseshoe clasp. The horseshoe is usually in gold and the belt itself is commended to the young woman who fairly "adores the races."

The Russian belt, with its delicate enamelling and beaten chains, is a charm of every woman's heart, and the narrow, flexible band of gold ribbon is the less expensive but pleasing realization of the charm to the woman of moderate means.

One never-to-be-forgotten principle governing the selection of girdles is that if the waist is large a belt darker than the dress makes it seem smaller; if the waist is willowy a light or bright belt emphasizes its slender grace; and another equally important is, that a wide belt and a small waist and a narrow girdle with broader girth, are the only combinations compatible with good taste.

A quaint conceit is that of matching the belt with shoes for outing costumes, lizard, alligator and suede being the materials usually employed. Ultra fashionables indulge in rattlesnake and pig skin for girdle and boots, and white suede, white canvas, and white patent leather will be well worn. For evening wear red slippers with jet butterflies and black suede with jeweled butterfly tips or cream white fans of lace set in over the instep and jeweled buckles are among the novelties. Cloth-topped button boots with patent leather tips are most approved for the promenade, and low-laced shoes of patent leather or suede, matching the costume in tint, for house or carriage use.—N. Y. Sun.

FOR MUSIC LOVERS.

A Music Stand Whose Either End Is a Perfect Harp.

Music hath other "charms" than its concord of sweet sounds. Love, we know, of old lingers in its lap; legend, poetry, romance, cling and abide about it, but it is also often the reason for "being" to any number of beautiful things. Such, for example, is a music stand all over richly gilt. Either end of it is a perfect harp, wonderfully true and graceful in line and curve. Inside are these graduated partitions, crowned with floriate garlands. The whole thing stands about two feet and a half high and is a mighty ornamental bit for either parlor or music room.

To keep this shining stand in countenance there are pianos with white and gold cases, in the finest enamel. So far they are made only to order. But the fancy for them increases so rapidly that manufacturers say that white and gold pianos will soon be kept in stock.

Instead of a stool such instruments have seat enough for two performers, with low arms and solid, slightly incurved back. This, too, is all over gilt like the music stand and has a loose cushion of rich gold satin accurately fitting the bottom.

A narrow scarf of the same gold satin, heavily fringed and wrought with white silk, is the couch drapery for the edge of the white and gold piano.—Chicago News.

Baby's Sleep.

I wonder, if all mothers know that baby likes to be turned over after he has slept for an hour or two on one side? When he stretches and wriggles, and finally, perhaps, cries out, try turning him on his other side, or almost on his back, and see if he does not relapse into another sound nap without further effort on your part. Do not forget to turn the pillow over also sometimes. The one or two-year old who wakes up in the night and sits up in bed, rubbing his little fists into his sleepy eyes, feels perhaps, hot and uncomfortable. Try turning the pillow. If he is like some children the writer knows of, he will wait for the sound of the turning pillow, and then drop back into a renewed sleep. Remember also to keep a child's clothes smooth under him. Drawing down the rumpled night clothes and smoothing the cover has much to do with quieting the restless tossings of the little sleeper.—Household Monthly.

DEPUTIES NOT WANTED

First Hostile Move of Carnegie Cleverly Blocked.

THE MEN WIN AT EVERY POINT.

Advance Detachment of Deputies to Protect the Homestead Mills Quietly But Firmly Escorted Out of Town—The Feeling Intense—Bloodshed May Occur.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 6. — The first aggressive move in an attempt on the part of the Carnegie Steel Company to start their mills in opposition to the wishes of the locked-out men was made yesterday, but was unsuccessful.

The mill workers came off victorious at every point.

In the morning the Carnegie Steel Company applied to Sheriff McCleary of Allegheny county for help in guarding their Homestead property and protection for those men whom, they claim, are willing and anxious to go to work, but are in fear of bodily harm from the strikers.

Sheriff McCleary, accompanied by ex-Sheriffs Gray and Cully, came from Pittsburg at noon and repaired to the strikers' headquarters, announcing that they would assume control of the Carnegie Steel Company's property, and would send some deputies to guard the works later in the day, but before doing so, wished a personal inspection of the grounds.

They asked for a pass to visit the interior of the mill, which was not only given by the Advisory Committee, but a body guard of 10 men were furnished the sheriff to show him everything in sight.

After an inspection of the works the sheriff was escorted to headquarters, where a committe was awaiting him.

The Chairman of the Advisory Committee addressed the sheriff as follows:

"Mr. Sheriff, the Homestead people, both before this trouble came and since its precipitation, have expressed their intention of not only guarding their own property, but the property of their employers, the Carnegie Steel Company, as well. The property is not endangered, but the bringing into Homestead of deputies ostensibly for the purpose of guarding property which is not in danger, is unnecessary.

"Now, we, the people of Homestead, wish to make an offer. We will place from 50 to 500 of our best citizens inside of that mill to guard that property, if the firm think it is in danger, and these men will protect the property with their own lives if necessary, and further than that, a bond of $10,000 will be given for the faithful vigilance of each man posted. We don't want deputy sheriffs here, as it will precipitate trouble, and, therefore, make this offer."

Sheriff McCleary said that he was unable to accept the offer, and stated that he had been instructed to bring 50 deputy sheriffs to Homestead during the afternoon and would do so.

"You bring them at your own risk; we hereby dissolve the Advisory Committee, and we will not be responsible for any trouble which may accrue from their coming," said the Chairman.

When Deputy Sheriff Cluley and his staff reached Homstead they were met by a committee of the men and it did not take long to convince them that they were in the way.

They were in a very short time escorted to the steamer Edna, taken aboard and landed down the river on the opposite side at Glenwood, where they took an electric car for Pittsburg.

The feeling in Homestead is more intense than ever. A conflict is bound to come, and the cooler heads of the locked out men are having a hard time to prevent outbreaks.

A petition is in circulation at Homestead asking Governor Pattison to come to Homestead and see for himself how peaceful everything is.

RAISED THE FLAG OF ANARCHY.

But American Miners Soon Tore It Down and Hoisted the Stars and Stripes.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—At Bower Hill, a mining town a few miles from Pittsburg on the Pan Handle Railroad, Monday, 25 Hungarians, Poles and Germans gathered in the public square and ran a flag to the top of a 25-foot pole.

No one knew the object of the men until they saw the emblem of Anarchy floating in the breeze.

The men who raised the flag began cheering and singing songs insulting to Americans in general.

The news of the affair spread throughout the town. This was more than the American miners could stand, and one, who took the lead, raised a band of 20 men.

Forming themselves into a company, and armed for action, they marched to the public square. When the Anarchists saw them coming, they fled to the woods, leaving their flag at the top of the pole.

The Americans expected a fight, but the Anarchists gave none.

The field being clear, the American miners soon tore the red flag from the pole and ran up the Stars and Stripes.

The red flag was then trampled in the dust and torn to shreds. A guard was then appointed, which acted as the protector of the American flag.

SILVER MEN SKIRMISHING.

The Senate Free Coinage Bill Before the House.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The struggle over the bill for the free coinage of silver, which passed the Senate last week, opened in the House yesterday. It was more of a skirmish than a battle.

The issue was joined as soon as the Free Coinage bill was taken from the Speaker's table. Its natural reference would, of course, have been to the Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, of which Bland, of Missouri, is chairman.

Gen. Tracey, of New York, who so successfuly helped the Republicans to lead the last fight in the House against the Bland Free Coinage bill, again assumed the leadership, by moving to refer the Stewart bill to Committee on Banking and Currency, of which Mr. Bacon, of New York, an anti-silver man, is chairman.

The issue was thus apparently joined, but the House was unable to reach the issue for hours. It see-sawed between motions to adjourn, and calls of the House necessitated by the absence of a quorum, and after passing the afternoon in this ineffectual manner, in sheer weariness and despair of reaching any definite result an adjournment was taken.

CAMPBELL OUT.

He Says He Will Formally Tender His Resignation Soon.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Chairman Campbell, of the National Republican Committee, is in the city. Mr. Campbell gave out the following statement:

"When I was elected chairman of the National Committee, it was with the distinct understanding that my business engagements then pending might render it impossible for me to act in that capacity.

"This contingency was fully understood by the committee and others directly interested. Since the adjournment of the committee I have been unable to adjust my affairs so as to render it practicable for me to act as chairman; and I, therefore, as I reserved the right to do, announce that I will not so act.

"Under the autnority invested in me, by the National Committee, I will probably announce the Executive Committee within the next few days and that committee will meet at an early date. At that meeting I will formally tender my resignation and my successor will then be appointed.

"My successor will be chosen by the Executive Committee as authorized by resolution adopted by the National Committee."

NEARLY ALL RECOVERED.

Ryan Spent Only $187 of the $45,000 He Had Stolen.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—Of the $45,000 stolen from the United States Express Company on June 21 by E. J. Ryan, the company has received $44,813, Ryan having spent only $187 of the stolen money.

Detective Dammett took Ryan to the Safe Deposit Company building on Fourth a venue. He was identified by the Safe Deposit Company's officials.

He was taken to the vault, where he reached to the top row of boxes, pulling one down. It was opened in the presence of the officials and was packed full to overflowing with bills of various denominations.

He took the money out, counted it, signed the necessary papers to the Deposit Company, and turned the money over to United States Express Company Agent Zimmerman.

Scarcely a word was spoken, and when he had given up the money he left the building accompanied by Detective Dammett.

Bicyclist Lenz Reaches Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Frank Lenz, who left New York June 4 on a bicycle tour around the world, has arrived here. It has taken him 30 days to ride 1,136 miles, which distance he has covered between New York and Chicago. He expects to reach New York again June 4, 1894. His route follows the Northern Pacific Railroad to San Francisco, and he will wheel from Shanghai, China, to Calcutta, India, a trip that has never yet been made by a wheelman.

Death of John A. Messick.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 6.—John A. Messick, probably the youngest person who enlisted in the Union army during the Rebellion, is dead, after a short illness. He enlisted at the age of eight years as a drummer boy in Co. A, 42nd Indiana infantry. He was honorably discharged after three years' service.

Died at Sea.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Mrs. Redmond Gilles, aged 28 years, of New York, a saloon passenger of the steamship Ethiopia from Glasgow, died June 26 of consumption. The body was brought to this port. The Ethiopia passed a large iceberg on June 30, in latitude 46.06; longitude, 48.30.

GOLDSMITH'S STORY.

The Survivor of the Boston Balloon Ascension Tells of the Accident.

BOSTON, July 6.—Delos E. Goldsmith, the only survivor of those who ascended in the balloon Monday, told the story of the trip as he lay on a cot in the hospital this morning. He said:

"When the balloon rose in the air the sun was declining and the scene from the car was beautiful. We all anticipated an enjoyable trip.

"At first it seemed as if the balloon would take a westerly course, but a strong wind suddenly arose and swept it in the direction of South Boston. It was soon evident that we were heading for the harbor.

"It was then that Prof. Rogers said he would land on Thompson's Island. To fail of this all of us knew meant to be carried out to sea.

"The Professor seemed to realize this, as he became a trifle nervous. He pulled the escape valve cord, but the cord refused to work.

"It was then a question of life or death.

"Again and again he pulled. For a moment the huge mass shook and quivered. Soon our position became uncomfortable because of the odor of the gas. To mitigate this the hold on the cord was relaxed.

"To our amazement the valve refused to close. Prof. Rogers kept his hold on the rope.

"Suddenly a noise overhead caused us to look up. There was a small rent in the balloon which as the gas escaped increased to a yard. At first slowly and then like a dart the balloon descended.

"In this awful descent it occurred to me that two carrier pigeons were in the bottom of the car. With one wrench I pulled the cover from the cage and they were free, a moment later we struck the water.

"It seemed as if I went ten feet below the surface.

"I knew we would have to swim and before we struck the water I had thrown my coat away. I had no time to remove my shoes, but while in the water I lay on my back and removed them. Then I became tangled up in the netting.

"When we came up I wiggled free and jumped out of the basket. The land seemed far away, though I am told it was only 500 yards.

"All this time I heard Prof. Rogers behind me, and I supposed he too was swimming for the shore. I felt sick at the stomach as I swam, from the effects of breathing the gas, and if I had not been picked up quickly I would have soon given out.

"Whether Prof. Rogers died from the effects of the gas or from his fall I do not know. He was near me all the time until he sank in my wake."

Goldsmith is 23 years of age. He is fond of athletics, and is an expert yachtman and swimmer. He is suffering severely from the nervous shock, but will be able, probably, to leave the hospital to-day.

A DRAWN BATTLE.

Chicago Police Fail to Dislodge the Enemy at the Van Buren Street Dock.

CHICAGO, July 6.—The attempt of the police to execute the Mayor's order to compel the owners of the Van Buren line of pleasure boats to move their boats from the dock so that the World's Fair steamers might have an undisturbed monopoly met with desperate resistance.

The police resorted to nothing more formidable than their clubs, but the steamboat men used axes, caulking mallets and clubs, and squirted hot water from the boilers at their foes.

A half dozen arrests were made, and a number of men from both sides were taken to the hospital for treatment.

At noon Inspector Hubbard, commanding the policemen, ordered a retreat for dinner, leaving a squad to guard the two boats captured.

After dinner the black squadron was still under arms, while the city forces evidently had little desire to break the truce.

No fresh attack was made, the city forces were ordered to retreat, and the matter will probably be settled at the meeting which the Mayor has called for this afternoon.

Catholic Sioux Congress.

CHEYENNE AGENCY, S. D., July 6.—There are 6,000 Sioux Indians here attending the great Catholic Sioux Congress which opened here on Sunday. The Congress is convoked by Bishop Marty to dedicate the new church and mission house erected here by Miss Drexel, of Philadelphia. All the famous chiefs are here, including Grass and Gall, Little White Bull, Judge Swan, Hump and Chaska.

Three Persons Drowned.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 6.—At Spring Park Lake Minnetonka, a small row boat occupied by Oscar Sandell, Rufus Johnson, Laura Lewis and Ida Swanson, all of St. Paul, was upset and all but Sandell drowned. Johnson's body has not been recovered.

YOUNG EASER RETURNS

But the Maspeth Mystery Seems No Nearer Solution.

CORONER THINKS HIM INNOCENT.

He Tells a Straightforward Story and Introduces a New Character Into the Dark Tragedy of Lizzie Buhler's Death—His Statements Corroborated.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The sensation in the Maspeth murder mystery yesterday was the return to his home of Joseph Easer, the young milkman whose disappearance at the time of the discovery of Lizzie Buhler's mutilated body on the railroad track gave rise to a suspician that he feared to remain in the neighborhood and face investigation.

Young Easer was cool and straightforward, and his manner went far toward convincing Coroner Brandon that he was innocent of all complicity in the death of the unfortunate girl.

He was subjected to a rigid examination by Coroner Brandon, but he told a straight story, with the exception of a few insignificant contradictions.

After denying that he ever took Lizzie to a picnic he said he often met her at such festivities. He said he never called on her at her place of employment. At Feltman's picnic, six or seven weeks ago, he saw her with a strange man, who was thin, tall, well dressed, about 21 years of age, and rather dudish in appearance.

The last time he saw Lizzie was on Sunday a week ago, the Sunday before her death. He denied that Lizzie ever reproached him for any misconduct or told him she was in trouble.

The young man was released on his own recognizance and Coroner Brandon sent out his Pinkerton detective to verify his statements and the detective's report was in Easer's favor.

Efforts will be made to find the dudeish young man who Joe Easer saw with her at Feltman's picnic. Kate, who worked with Lizzie for the Snyder family, says that Lizzie frequently spoke affectionately of a young man, whose name she had forgotten. This proves Lizzie had another admirer.

The neighborhood where the Buhlers live is overrun by ruffians who "run pints," as it is called. When they meet a belated pedestrian they ask for the price of a pint of beer. Refusal is invariably the pretext for an assult, and several murders have been perpetrated for no greater provocation in this very district. Some persons believe Lizzie fell into the hands of one of these gangs.

NOT UP TO EXPECTATIONS.

Liberals Disappointed Over the Results of the Elections.

LONDON, July 6.—The expectations of the Liberals as to gains in the metropolitan boroughs have not been realized. The total number of members elected is 160, of whom the Conservatives have elected 89, the Liberal-Unionists 8, and the Liberals 63, including Mr. Thomas Power O'Connor.

The Tories have gained 7 and the Liberals 7 seats in the contests, leaving the Liberals a net gain of 8 seats, including Monday.

There is deep disappointment among the Liberals over the results in London, where it is evident that the success of the radical element in the County Council elections has not involved desertion of the Conservative ranks in the general elections.

Suit Against the United States.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—John Baker Roach and William Euthey McPherson, as executors of the will of John Roach of Chester, Pa., ship builder, have entered suit in the Court of Claims against the United States to recover $304,428, amounts alleged to be due and unpaid for building the United States steamships Atlanta, Chicago and Boston.

O'Brien's Assailant Arrested.

Changes in the Circulation.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The Treasury Department's statement of changes in the circulation during the last month and fiscal year just closed shows a net decrease during June of $16,936,291; but for the twelve months ended June 30 an increase of $103,005,783.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—It was Michael Burke, not Thomas, who was fined yesterday, for letting a goat run at large.

—Such fine weather as this tempts people to stay in Plainfield. It can't be surpassed by any summer resort.

—The bottom of a coal car dropped out at the North avenue station this morning, and the cargo of coal was strewn a foot deep along the tracks.

—An excursion that always affords a day of rare enjoyment is that of the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school. Remember this year's date, Wednesday, July 13.

—Fans from five to twenty-five cents apiece are offered at Rand's, 24 West Front street. They have just imported through Vantine of New York, a large assortment.

—The sale of the City Hotel property, set down to take place at Elizabeth this afternoon, has been adjourned again for one week. At the last day of sale John H. Staats bid $18,800, and the sale was adjourned with his bid the highest. Johnny Moore will probably get nothing from the sale on account of the numerous judgments.

—Monday a man by the name of McCabe struck Fred. Shaeffer as he was passing him on the street in Dunellen. McCabe walked deliberately up to Shaeffer and hit him without provocation. However, McCabe still walks the streets unmolested, while Shaeffer is suffering from a black eye and swollen face.

—Twenty-six passenger coaches were required to accommodate the Crescent Avenue excursionists to Asbury Park this morning. The weather of to-day is the most superb that could be desired—the sky is clear and the air is crisp. It's ideal excursion weather, and the crowd that went is the largest in Plainfield's history.

—Just as the 3:30 train from New York was leaving Fanwood yesterday afternoon, a rock was thrown that smashed a window of one of the cars and scattered the broken glass all over a vacant seat just between school trustee Probasco and councilman Frazee. Plainfield may well be thankful that the rock did n't strike the window just before or behind where it did.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis will preach in the Washingtonville chapel next Sunday evening.

The Misses Katy and Etta Storm, of Brooklyn, are visiting their cousin, Miss Nettie Beeching, Washingtonville.

The Elizabeth Journal says that Louis Clauss is entertaining J. L. Young, of Plainfield, who is enjoying a week's visit in that city.

The Hon. Joseph W. Yates has returned home after a trip to Chicago, where he helped nominate Cleveland, and a business visit to Denver.

C. G. Hedge of Sandford avenue will remove, with his family, to Berkley Arms, Berkley, N. J., to-day, to enjoy the summer pleasures of the Jersey coast.

The Catholic Young Men's Lyceum last night elected John Casey president and John Lynch vice-president. Thomas Carty was named for the presidency, but declined.

Hanson Smith had a very fine display of fireworks, the evening of the Fourth, on his grounds near Washingtonville. The display was greatly enjoyed by his host of friends and neighbors.

George T. Rogers and family, of Rockview avenue, will spend July among the hills and lakes of Worcester county, Mass., where their address will be Wachusett House, Princeton; and during August they will make their headquarters at Chatham, along the Cape Cod shore.

Prof. Franklin S. Smith of the High school, in company with his brothers Robert G., Oscar, and Stanton, will spend July and August camping in the Maine woods. They left Plainfield to-day. During September Robert will engage in Episcopalian mission work at Pittsfield, Mass., before returning to Harvard College.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis of this city has returned from a delightful week at the peerless Lake Hopatcong. The report that he was in attendance at the Prohibitionist convention on Staten Island was a mistake. That was another Dr. Lewis. The Plainfield clergyman was fishing instead, and had lots more fun than his namesake.

John H. Jackson is absent from home, and his family and friends are said to be anxious about his whereabouts. It is alleged that they have lost track of him, and fear he has become seriously ill among strangers. His partner, judge Codington, is also out of town on business, and the office is closed, and no information could be obtained this afternoon concerning his alleged disappearance.

Seely Edsall, in company with his friend C. W. Ailing of Newark, started to-day for a fishing trip to Lake Simcoe and Georgian Bay, Canada. Mrs. Edsall and J. Linn Edsall will meet Mr. Edsall about July 20 at Clayton, Thousand Islands, and from there they will go down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, thence to Albury Springs, and home via Lake Champlain and Lake George. The trip will end Sept. 1.

He Was Cured, and Recommends the Treatment.

This is to certify that I have taken vapor baths of H. Hornish, on North avenue, Plainfield, N. J., for rheumatism. I went there on crutches, and came away without, after a few baths. I cheerfully recommend them for anybody who is troubled with rheumatism.

RIOT IN HOMESTEAD.

NINE REPORTED KILLED—STRIKERS TURN A CANNON ON THE PINKERTON MEN.

Three Hundred Deputies Attempted to Land from Boats at the Carnegie Steel Works, When Fierce Engagements With the Strikers Followed, in Which a Number of Men Were Killed and Wounded—An Appeal to Gov. Pattison for Aid.

PITTSBURGH, July 6.—The arrival at the Homestead Mills at 4 this morning of two barges loaded with Pinkerton men was followed by a riot in which several men on both sides were killed and a large number wounded. The Pinkertons made two attempts to land, but were repulsed. The firing between the deputies and the strikers continued at intervals for several hours.

It is reported that the captain of the Pinkertons is dead. In the first assault he was seen to fall, and he has not been seen since.

At eleven o'clock the strikers had set fire to a car of oil standing near the works on the P. V. and C. Road for the purpose of igniting the boat in the river. The river was covered with oil by which the flames might easily reach the barges. The men had also placed a cannon on the hill on the north side of the river, and were firing into the boat. Balls and pieces of iron were used, and at every shot the boat's side was penetrated and pieces thrown into the air. Not a soul could be seen on the boat.

The strikers claim that at least nine men on the boat were killed or fatally injured. One man alone says he saw six fall.

Dr. J. Osborne's house is turned into a hospital, and he has treated ten men. On every hand men are gathering ammunition of all kinds. Every possible form of firearms is being collected, and shot-guns are being loaded with buckshot.

Word reached the sheriff's office in this city at 10 o'clock that the great fence about the works had been set on fire.

Four thousand men, the majority of whom are armed, are in possession of the Carnegie works.

The following telegram has been sent to Gov. Pattison:

The situation at Homestead is very grave. My deputies were driven from the ground and watchmen sent by mill-owners attacked. Shots were exchanged, and some men killed and wounded. Unless prompt measures are taken to prevent it, further bloodshed and great destruction of property may be expected. The striking workmen and their friends on the ground number at least 5,000, and the civil authorities are utterly unable to cope with them. Wish you would send instructions at once. W. H. MCCLEARY, Sheriff.

The sheriff said: "I believe it would be suicide for me to take my men to Homestead. We could not hope to cope with 5,000 men, and I will do nothing till I hear from the governor. I expect a reply soon, and will then know what to do. I think the governor will at once come on, and I hope for good results from his presence."

At 9:40 the model barges, with Pinkerton men, are on fire.

FIFTEEN YEARS FOR RANDOLPH.

The Plainfield Negro Gets a Heavy Sentence for Assaulting a Little Child.

Alonzo Randolph, the negro wretch charged with assaulting little Alice Day, was sentenced to State Prison, this morning, for fifteen years. When arraigned before the court for sentence the prisoner was forced to listen to a scathing denunciation of his character from prosecutor Marsh, who made a most vigorous arraignment of blemishes in his record. The negro did not quail a particle before the attack, and seemed utterly unconcerned about his fate.

PLAINFIELD WON BOTH.

Great Batting and Bowling by the St. George Cricket Players.

The Brooklyn Cricket club sent a strong team to Plainfield, July 4, to play a two-innings match against the St. George boys, and after a pleasant and interesting game were sent home defeated by nine wickets. The St. Georges played a fine game, both in batting and bowling, and only won the match by sterling cricket. Hendry and Higham bowled very effectively the first innings, the former taking four wickets for ten runs, and the latter four wickets for six runs. Higham bowled nine overs, seven of which were maidens. The innings ending in the remarkably low score of eighteen runs.

The St. Georges then went to the bat, and, chiefly through the batting of Marston, Hendry and Arden, scored forty-seven.

After luncheon the Brooklynites began their second innings and were not disposed of till they had made fifty runs. Hendry bowled splendidly, taking eight wickets for twenty runs.

The St. Georges wanting only twenty-two runs to win, succeeded in obtaining them at the loss of only one wicket. The two not outs, Ogden and Wharton, handled the bat in fine style.

Plainfielders in a Cyclone.

Andrew Wilson and wife are back from Asbury Park. While out driving in that place, Thursday afternoon, they had an exciting experience with a cyclone. Seeing the storm coming, Mr. Wilson drove into a barn. He was scarcely in the building when the wind carried off the roof and tore away the clapboards. The slates off the roof fell upon the horse, and this and the noise frightened the animal so that he bolted through the open side of the structure. Fortunately, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were able to get out of their road-wagon before it was upset. The horse broke loose, and the wind carried the wagon over the fence a considerable distance from the barn. The Wilsons reached home safely, but very sore from their fight with the elements.

A NEW DOUBLE TEAM RECORD.

Belle Hamlin and Globe Trot in 2:12 Under the Watches of Wesley Johnson and "Barney" Williams.

The kite-shaped track at Kirkwood, Del., was opened Monday. It is estimated that there were 12,000 persons on the grounds.

The event of the day was the successful effort of Belle Hamlin and Globe to break their record made on the track at Independence, Ia. The time made to-day was 2:12, one second better than the Independence time.

The three judges, Joseph W. Wenderoth, president of the Philadelphia Tattersall; and W. F. Williams and J. W. Johnson of this city, associates, recorded the time as 2:12 flat, and this stands as the record, although the watches of a number of horsemen in the judges' stand marked 2:11½ and 2:11¾. The best previous double team record was 2:13, made by Belle Hamlin and Justina in October, 1890, on the Independence kite track. The best previous record of Belle Hamlin and Globe was 2:13½, made on the Belmont Park, Philadelphia, elliptical track last May.

A number of visiting brothers and the members of Dunellen and New Market councils of Jr. O. U. A. M., started from the Dunellen station at noon of Monday preceded by Friendship council brass band. They paraded through the principal streets of Dunellen and by way of Prospect avenue, to New Market, where they celebrated the balance of the day with games and fireworks. A costly prize was given to each winner, but the only prize of twelve carried out of this vicinity, was that of the 100 yards dash won by Mr. Sheppard of this city. The other winners were: Bicycle race—First prize Tingley of Dunellen; second prize Apgar of Dunellen. Potato race—Day of New Market. Standing high kick—Apgar of Dunellen. Running high jump—Giddis of Dunellen. Tug of war—Friendship council. A grand display of fireworks was given in the evening with music by the band.

The Officer's Assailants Arrested.

Three young men have been arrested for the assault on officer Jacob Kriney at the Evona picnic of the Fourth, and will be tried next week Thursday. They pleaded not guilty and were released on bail this morning.

These Be Enthusiastic Politicians.

The Fourth Ward Democratic club held a regular meeting in T. A. B. hall, last evening. President V. L. Frazee presided. A number of new members were added, and the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we, the members of the Fourth Ward Democratic club, most heartily endorse and approve the action of the Democratic Convention in naming as our standard bearers for President and Vice-president Cleveland and Stevenson. We deem them to be the earnest exponents of that truly Democratic sentiment—Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation. And we do hereby pledge our sincere endeavor to aid and advance their election as being the best means of promoting the interest and welfare of all classes of our fellow citizens irrespective of race, rank or condition—we hold that the blessings of government should, like the dews of heaven, fall upon all, equally and alike.

—In Bound Brook, as in Plainfield and North Plainfield, during all of the afternoon and evening of the Fourth, the local fire department had horses hitched to their apparatus, with men on duty, ready to start at a moment's notice. The past experiences with fire in the Raritan river borough have taught the men a lesson. No blaze occurred, however.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

ALL EAGER FOR OFFICE.

Amusing Pranks of Union County Republicans Seeking to Wrest Public Honors from the Stronghold of Democracy.

[Union County letter in New York World.]

Mr. Kean may prove a much stronger candidate than people generally think. Everybody laughed when years ago the Republican convention as a sort of forlorn hope placed him in the field against that sound old campaigner, Miles Ross, and everybody was amazed when the politically unknown young man snowed Ross under by fully two thousand majority. Some years ago Mr. Kean gave another example of his political strength by a second time carrying the district which had steadily been growing more Democratic. These two campaigns placed Mr. Kean's stock as a clever politician away up, and, supplemented with his money, make him a really formidable foe to encounter.

Mr. Kean wants the nomination and is not afraid to tell his friends so. He is his mother's favorite son and can get from her ample fortune all the financial aid he wants, even if she did not have hundreds of thousands himself.

The Republicans are all at sea as to who will be their Congressional candidate, and in this differ radically from their opponents, who have three pronounced candidates already in the field, with a half-dozen promising dark horses in the background. It is safe to bet, however, if John Kean is nominated for Governor, he will do his utmost to get his friend, Foster M. Voorhees, to consent to take the Congressional nomination. Foster doesn't want it and will fight hard against the use of his name, but he will probably be forced to succumb for the good of the party and make the race.

Assemblyman and freeholder George Kyte, of Fanwood, is spoken of as a likely Republican candidate for the county clerkship. There is no doubt Mr. Kyte if elected, could acceptably fill the place. Mayor Chamberlain, of Rahway, seems to be a favorite, however, with the leaders of his party. His only formidable opponent, ex-Judge Ulrich, of Plainfield, does not seem to be working his boom very much these days, and it is whispered that if the judge could get the Congressional nomination he would let Rahway's chief executive have a clear field for the clerkship.

Surrogate George T. Parrot is easy in his mood so far as Republican candidates for his place are concerned. His party concede that George is the strongest man that they can put forward for the position, and he will be renominated by acclamation. He has made a model surrogate from a purely business standpoint, and his Democratic opponents will all bear witness to the uniform courtesy with which they have been treated. Surrogate Parrot uses everybody alike, and this has enhanced his popularity, and it is safe to predict that he will poll the largest vote of any Republican on the ticket. Whether it will be enough to win can better be guessed when his Democratic competitor is selected. Who the latter will be is a difficult matter to predict.

Ex-surrogate James J. Gerber can have the nomination if he wants it, but it is rumored that Mr. Gerber's friends will try to push him for the county clerkship. Mr Crowell, the capable incumbent of that office, will seek a renomination, and as he has only served one term and part of another, his supporters claim he is entitled to the party custom. The chances are that he will get it, as Rahway must be recognized in the make-up of the slate.

Alleged Child-Beating.

The following complaint has been referred to the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, for action:

"TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Is there a Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Children? If there is, I think they ought to have witnessed a certain house on Chatham street last Wednesday noon, where a brutal father was whipping his eight-year-old child with a horse-whip, until the child pleaded for mercy, "Don't, papa, please don't." So after the father got through whipping him the child ran out in the yard crying with the pain which had been inflicted upon him. While there, the father called for him to stop crying, which of course was impossible after the whipping he had received, so the father called him in and gave him a still more severe whipping than the first, while the neighbors stood outside with tears in their eyes, and aching hearts, while every lash went through them like the point of a knife, in sympathy for the child. I think such cruelty ought to be put a stop to. Those who have seen and heard so much of these parents' treatment towards their children, have been disgusted with them. HUMANITY."

A Fire Winds up the Day.

The usual ending of the glorious Fourth came about 11 at night, at Somerville, when an alarm of fire aroused the quiet villagers. The blaze was found to be at the old barracks near the fair grounds, used by Solomon Bauer as a stock pen. The building was a circular framework shell, and was originally built to accommodate the Italians when the town was putting in the water works. The fire was supposed to be of incendiary origin, as no combustibles of any sort were ever used near the building. Ten minutes after the blaze was discovered nothing but a pile of ashes remained. The fire department was called, but as the fire was out before the department reached the scene, there was no trouble between the rival firemen, chief Doughty and foreman Cook.

Sheep Raising in Dakota.

It is a financial success, as is evidenced by the statements made by prominent Dakotians in a pamphlet just issued by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, a copy of which will be sent free upon application to J. BRIGHT BITS FROM THE VISITOR.

Paragraphs of General Interest from Pastor Mitchell's Newsy M. E. Paper.

Church service begins promptly at 11 during the summer months.

Mrs. Herbert Welsh and daughter, Dorothy, are at James McGee's until August 1.

Clifford McGee is home again after another hard year's work at Yale. Everybody is glad to see him.

Charles Angleman, who graduated with honor from the High school, hopes to enter college in the fall.

By placing a partition in the primary room in Monroe Avenue chapel, a fine room has been made for Mr. Morgan's young men's Bible class.

The Rev. Charles H. Bruce, pastor of the Fifth Presbyterian church, Kansas City, a classmate of the pastor, will occupy our pulpit on Sabbath evening, July 10. He is a very able minister, and all our people should hear him.

When the street cars are running our people should frequently take occasion to attend the services at Monroe Avenue chapel. A few visits there will impress you with the earnestness and success of the work going on in that neighborhood.

The Burt family are all at home again. Miss Florence is back from school at Hackettstown, and Miss Clara is home from Wellesley, where she graduated this year with high honor. She expects to occupy a professorship in one of our higher colleges, and will succeed admirably.

Mr. Douglass and family, of Brooklyn, are spending their second summer on Willow avenue, North Plainfield. They are members of Sumner Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, and while in Plainfield are regularly found in their pew in our church. We hope they may permanently reside here.

Bishop Newman preaches for us Sabbath morning and evening, July 31. It will be remembered that Dr. Newman, now one of our Bishops, was the pastor and intimate friend of General Grant. You will want to hear the man preach who could command the respect and love of the greatest soldier of modern times.

On Wednesday, June 1, occurred, at the family home, Evona, the wedding of Gates Willard and Miss Katrina Haff. Miss Haff was the eminently successful primary teacher at Monroe Avenue Sunday-school, and in every way a most charming, Christian young lady. Mr. Willard is a New York business man, an old friend of the family, and a most worthy gentleman. James McGee assisted in the marriage ceremony.

The Young Ladies' Mission circle recently sent a fine broadcloth, tailor-made suit of clothes to the presiding elder of the Oklahoma district. A good dress-pattern and bonnet were sent to his wife, and also many other useful garments. James C. Peck, of Rockview avenue, gave the fine cloth for the minister's suit. A most touching letter has just been received from the minister's wife, expressing their gratitude, and explaining some of the hardships of the work on the frontier. The young ladies are encouraged to continue their good work.

The new Sunday-school in Park Place chapel has been regularly organized by the pastor. The disciplinary constitution has been apopted and officers and teachers have been duly elected. The list of officers and teachers is as follows: Committee in Charge, appointed by Official Board—H. K. Carroll, Chas. B. Mitchell, John Valiant, Edwin Loomis, Jas. W. Jackson. Sunday-school officers—Superintendent, John Valiant; Assistant-superintendent, A. A. Taft; Secretary, W. H. Griffen; Treasurer, John Valiant; Chorister, Edwin Loomis; Organist, Mrs. Wilfred Powell. Teachers—T. R. Crosley, Edwin Loomis, Mrs. Wilfred Powell, Belle Lunger, Grace Carroll, Mrs. John Carney, Miss Smalley, L. A. Hummer, Alice Carroll, Mrs. Hummer, Robert Luckey, J. H. Christopher, Mrs. G. S. Raynolds, Mrs. J. Christopher. Ladies' Aid Society—President, Mrs. E. P. Stevens; Vice-president, Mrs. John Valiant; Secretary, Mrs. Wilfred Powell; Treasurer, Miss Alice Carroll.

Pastor Cleaver Scores Harrison.

The annual celebration of the Fourth, on the Washington camp-grounds one mile back of Bound Brook, was highly interesting, and included music, the reading of the Declaration of Independence by lawyer F. H. Cook, and an oration by the Rev J. B. Cleaver, formerly of Plainfield. In the course of his speech Mr. Cleaver gave some powerful arguments for Democracy, and scored Harrison and his cabinet severely. In the evening, fireworks on the avenue among the 400 gave pleasure to a large crowd.

They Will Not Wear Trains.

The Goodhue Co. (Minn.) W. C. T. U. recently passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That inasmuch as the wearing of trained dresses is compulsory at the courts of kings, it is a fashion that may well be set at naught by the women of a republic; and, since a style of dress which keeps a woman continually clutching at her garments detracts from her dignity and moral influence, as well as from her freedom and comfort, and whereas by the wearing of trains our sisters are made weak, we will wear no trains "while the world stands".

It disappears—the worst forms of catarrh, with the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties effect a perfect and permanent cure, no matter how bad the case, or of how long standing. It's a remedy that succeeds where everything else has failed. Thousands of such cases can be pointed out. That's the reason its proprietors back their faith in it with money. They offer $500 reward for a case of catarrh which they cannot cure. It's a medicine that allows them to take such a risk. Doesn't common sense lead you to take such a medicine? "An advertising fake," you say.

Funny, isn't it, how some people prefer sickness to health when the remedy is positive and the guarantee absolute.

Wise men don't put money back of "fakes." And "faking" doesn't pay.

They believe in themselves. Isn't it worth a trial? Isn't any trial preferable to catarrh?

TEMPTED BY FARMER'S DAUGHTERS.

As a Result of Fair Women's Pleadings, a Smalleytown Resident Is Laid up for Repairs.

Thomas Coakley, a highly respected citizen of Smalleytown, was calling on a neighbor, Sunday morning, when some of the feminine members of the family induced him to climb a cherry tree to get a nest of robins that were just ready to fly.

Mr. Coakley is not as young as he used to be, but he is just as gallant as ever, and, being a bachelor, he wished to oblige the ladies, even if the tree was an old one and a difficult one to climb.

He soon climbed the tree, and went out on a limb toward the nest, when he was attacked by the old birds, which flew fiercely at him in their endeavors to protect their brood. Just as he reached for the nest, which was just above him, the limb beneath him broke, causing him to fall about 25 feet, and landing him upon a heap of rocks. He fell on his side, bruising his hip and side severely, but fortunately no bones were broken.

The young fledglings are still in the nest. If anyone wants them, he says, let them get them, as he intends to stick to terra firma hereafter in spite of the wiles of fair women.

DEFAULTER DANN'S SHORTAGE.

It is Nearly Half a Million and the Bank is Out $280,000.

BUFFALO, July 6.—The amount of Defaulter Dann's shortage in the National Savings Bank, came out in court when the application for the appointment of a receiver was argued before Judge Ward. Up to date, or so far as the Bank Examiners have got with the examination the defalcation amounts to $426,638.

This bears out the estimate made in these despatches last week that the shortage would reach half a million.

Deducting the bank's surplus and the amount restored by Dann, the bank is at the present time $280,000 in the hole.

Killed His Wife and Another Woman.

ARLINGTON, S. D., July 6.—A man named Thompson killed his wife and an old woman with a butcher knife Monday. Last winter he beat his wife nearly to death and tied her down in the cellar, where the neighbors released her. He was on trial at the present term of court here, but was bailed out and allowed to go home. His wife went with him but said she was afraid he would kill her. The other was a witness against him. He stabbed his wife five times. He admits his guilt and will probably be lynched.

His Body Blown to Atoms.

CAMBRIDGE, O., July 6.—Monday Fred Albright, aged 24, purchased four half-pound 60 per cent. dynamite cartridges. He came out into the middle of Main street and lighted the fuse of one of the cartridges. It exploded in his hands, and the other three went off in his pocket at the same time and blew his body to atoms. Fragments of his flesh were found plastered to the walls of the buildings in the vicinity.

Goshen Bank Will Resume.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Acting Comptroller Nixon of the Treasury Department has returned from New York city, having been in consultation with Bank Examiner Gatman relative to the Goshen, N. Y., National Bank. Mr. Nixon said that the impairment of the bank's capital was about $35,000, and the stockholders would, he is informed, make it good and resume business.

Jay Gould's Health.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 6. — President Clark, of the Union Pacific Railroad, is here on his first tour of inspection since his election to the presidency of the road. Speaking of the health of Jay Gould, who is in Idaho, Mr. Clark said: "Mr. Gould is improving substantially, though slowly, and he will soon be a perfectly sound man. He has never been so badly off as reported."

Egan and McCreery Not Invited.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—A special cable depatch from Valparaiso says the Fourth was celebrated by the American colony at Santiago. A ball was given, at which there was a large attendance. Several prominent Chilians were present. Neither Minister Egan nor Consul McCreery was invited.

Brazil Offers Reparation.

ROME, July 6.—In reply to Italy's protest against bad treatment of Italian sailors at the Port of Santos, the Brazilian government has offered to make satisfactory reparation, and conciliatory negotiations have been opened.

OKLAHOMA'S BIG INJUN.

The Territory Represented by a Full-Blooded Shawnee Warrior.

Outside of the men of national prominence, the man who attracted the most attention at the republican convention was a member of the Oklahoma delegation—a man to fame and politics heretofore unknown. When the Oklahoma republicans met in territorial convention, says the Chicago Herald, they departed widely from all precedent, and fitly chose a full-blooded American Indian as one of their representatives at the national convention. The man chosen was White Turkey, chief of the absentee Shawnees. He is a full-blooded Indian and a direct descendant of the great Tecumseh. His father was for many years the leader of this tribe, and under his guidance, in 1830, they left their early home in Missouri and went to the Sabine country, where they had been promised a large grant of land by the Mexican government. At the breaking out of the Mexican war the tribe migrated to the Indian territory, and it was while on this pilgrimage that White Turkey was born and received his name from a fowl of that description soon after brought in by a hunter. At the breaking out of the civil war the Shawnees sided with the north, and were so persecuted by their southern neighbors that the entire tribe emigrated to Kansas and remained until the war was over. Here White Turkey and eighty other members of the tribe enlisted in the Fourteenth Kansas cavalry. He served two years faithfully, and was several times wounded. At the close of the war he was mustered out and, returning to his tribe in the territory, married a Shawnee girl. In 1885 he succeeded his father as chief, and has since been influential in inducing his subjects to adopt the ways of civilization and become citizens of the United States.

Although he never received any education he is intelligent and progressive, and accepts the changed conditions of his people with good grace. He is still supreme in authority in the tribe, though by common consent they now take their most important disputes into the white man's courts.

For several years White Turkey has been an active member of the G. A. R., and since the organization of Oklahoma he has taken a deep interest in politics, having been an uncompromising republican from the first. Most of his tribe are of the same political creed, while their neighbors, the Pottawatomies, are mostly democrats.

The entrance of the full-blood Indian into national politics marks a new epoch in American history, and the outcome will be watched with interest.

MRS. BURDETT-COUTTS.

Peculiar Marriage of the Wealthy Widow to Ashmead Bartlett.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who has announced her intention of coming over here shortly for the purpose of taking an active part in the organization of the woman's department at the world's fair, is enormously wealthy. The basis of her fortune is the celebrated old Coutts bank, and she has done a vast amount of good with her money.

Her marriage to the young American, Ashmead Bartlett, some years since, was a unique social sensation. Aside from the marked disparity in age between the couple—the baroness had then passed her sixtieth year—a singular feature of the union was the fact that the usual custom of conferring the groom's surname on the bride was reversed, and Mr. Bartlett became Mr. Burdett-Coutts. On the wedding day the baroness settled upon her husband an annuity of $250,000 for the term of his natural life. But this liberal allowance is merely pocket money for his personal expenditures, as all the household expenses are defrayed out of the enormous income of the baroness. Although the husband is most devoted to his wife and their relations are apparently based on sincere mutual affection, the marriage has never found favor in London social circles, and as a result the young husband has had the doors of all the best clubs closed against him. Mr. Burdett-Coutts take an active part in politics and is a pronounced conservative.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S PROVERBIAL PHILOSOPHY . . .

Coming events cast their shadows before.

The feeling of utter listlessness, lack of energy, desire to be alone, or the "don't care" feeling, are all shadows of coming events. No woman should permit those symptoms to gain ground, for, being forewarned, she should be forearmed. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will disperse all those shadows. It goes to the very root of all female complaints, renews the waning vitality, and invigorates the entire system. Surely such letters as this will support our claims:

DEAR MADAM.— . . . I think your Vegetable Compound saved my life; it is the best medicine for kidney and female troubles I ever saw. I induced my friends to use it, and it has never failed.—Mrs. H. E. FOSKETT, West Rutland, Vt.

Druggists sell it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00. An illustrated book, entitled "Guide to Health and Etiquette," by Lydia E. Pinkham, is of great value to ladies. We will present a copy to anyone addressing us with two 2-cent stamps.

FAMOUS GENERALS.

The Men Who Stand at the Head of Europe's Armies.

Most of Them Have Been Engaged in Hard-Fought Campaigns—The Military Leaders of the Five Great Continental Powers.

[Special Letter.]

In a recent letter in this correspondence I attempted to give a brief outline of the fighting strength of the German, French, Russian, Austrian and Italian armies. Reference was made to the generals who would command these gigantic forces in case of war. In fact, it is difficult to tell the names of the men who would be placed in chief command.

Germany, whose generals achieved such glorious victories in the Franco

COUNT VON WALDERSEE.

German campaign of 1870-71, will, in the coming conflict, have to depend on comparatively untried men. Unless Emperor William should issue a special order the command of the German armies will be in the hands of Count von Waldersee, the present commander in chief. Waldersee is a comparatively young man, being but 53 years of age. He was a particular favorite of Von Moltke, who had unbounded faith in the young soldier's capacity and judgment. He has, however, never had an opportunity to show his ability in the field. It is true he served in the war against Denmark in 1864, in the Austrian campaign of 1866, and during the French war was chief of staff to the grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin; but the positions he occupied were not important enough to attract public attention. Should Waldersee be superseded, the command would probably be intrusted to Gen. Von Alvensleben, at present commander of the Thirteenth army corps, who made a grand record during the war with France. He is one of the ablest of German tacticians, and, at the same time, a grand leader in battle. Emperor William thinks highly of him, and even should he not be appointed commander in chief he is destined to play a most important part in the military operations of the empire.

GEN. VON ALVENSLEBEN.

Gen. Saussier, military governor of Paris and commander in chief of the French army, although he made a creditable military record for himself in the war with Germany, is more of a politician than a soldier. He prevented Gen. Boulanger from achieving his coup d'etat a few years ago, and has since been in high favor with the powers that be. Military men pronounce Gen. de Galliffet the comlag man. He is not only the foremost organizer in the French army, but immensely popular with the rank and file. During the Franco-German war he performed marvelous feats of valor. His heroic attack on the Prussian forces at Sedan bears close resemblance to the famous charge of Balaklava. Although it proved just as ineffectual, it spread the name and fame of the gallant leader from one end of France to the other. Galliffet began his military career as a private in one of the crack cavalry regiments and worked his way up without relying upon family influences. He is the one really picturesque character among the high officers of the French army. The only real strategist of the republic is Gen. Mirabel, who has served in most of the wars in which France has been engaged during the past half decade. He was a great admirer of the methods and work of his great antagonist, von Moltke, and reorganized the general staff of his own country on the plan laid down by the silent German. He is chief of the general staff, the highest position in the military establishment of France.

The Austro-Hungarian army is commanded by Archduke Albrecht, a grizzly veteran of many wars and the most noted disciplinarian of Europe. He is assisted by Gen. Beck, who occupies the position of chief of the general staff. The latter is said to be an able man, but not capable of originating a grand plan of campaign. He has served in many campaigns, however, and what he lacked in brilliancy he made up by thorough application to the work before him. The leading cavalry general of the dual empire is a Croatian, Count Pegasevitch. He is noted everywhere for his dash and the almost marvelous influence he has over his men. According to some authorities, he is the equal of Gen. Sheridan and Jeb Stuart, whose characteristics he is said to possess in a remarkable degree. Archduke Albrecht has a grand history, his defense of the Italian quadrilateral against Victor Immanuel at Custozza being one of the great military feats of the century.

Italy has no generals who have established more than a local record, but its executive officers are without exception men of excellent training and great personal bravery. The Italians have proved themselves good fighters in their struggles with Austria and the wars for independence. In case the kingdom should take part in the coming conflict, its army will unquestionably produce gallant leaders.

The Russian commander best known in America is Gen. Gourko, the hero of Shipka pass. He enjoys the confidence of the czar, and has but recently been intrusted with the reorganization of the Russian army in Poland. He is rapidly concentrating a strong army on the borders of Prussia and Austrian Poland. His movements are watched closely by a small army of spies and reported daily to the war offices at Berlin and Vienna. Gen. Gourko is the only one of the many Russian generals who is feared by the commanders of other armies. He is a dashing cavalry leader and at the same time a careful tactician. He established his fame for bravery and reckless daring in the Russo-Turkish campaign of 1877, which ended in the wresting of the Shipka pass in the Balkans from the Turks. There was, according to a contemporary writer, one dramatic incident in that succession of hard-fought battles to which Gen. Gourko's admirers are never tired of reverting. This was the taking of Kazanlik, a small town on the southern slope of the Balkans. The general, on reaching the head of Shipka pass on July 13, 1877, instead of halting, immediately set out upon a daring foray into the enemy's country.

A correspondent who accompanied Gourko on this wild march through the mountains wrote at the time: "A single storm in the mountains, a determined opposition at the mouth of the pass, the concentration of a strong force anywhere on the road between the pass and the town, any of these would have accomplished his ruin." But fortune favored the intrepid leader, his headlong attacks sent the Turks flying into the plains below, and left him possessor of the southern gateway of the Hainko pass. This passage of the mountains by a pass which is one of the rockiest and wildest in the Balkans, the only path for miles being a ledge but a few feet wide on the mountain side, and surrounded at all times by superior forces, was justly regarded as a great achievement.

Unfortunately for Russia's cause, Gen. Gourko has but recently become an invalid, and it is doubtful whether he would now be able to lead an army in person. Still his labors in an executive position would prove of incalculable advantage to his country.

The chief of the staff of the Russian army is Gen. Obrutschef, a tactician of some note. He has never had an opportunity to display his genius, but will probably soon have a chance to show his ability. Gen. Vannesky, at present minister of war, is known to the world as the reorganizer of the Russian army.

A Proposal for Every Lady in Plainfield and Vicinity to Make Delicious Custard Without Eggs WITH BIRD'S Custard Powder

An English table luxury providing dainties in endless variety, the choicest dishes and the richest custard, without eggs. A 25c packet will be sufficient to make four pints, which can either be served in dishes or from glasses.

A supply, fresh from England, has just been received by GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Plainfield, N. J. 4-30-y.

WHAT TO EAT

is a difficult problem with many people because but few articles of food agree with them. The doctor says

and the result is unpalatable food. The reason the physician objects to grease is because lard is the article most used, and every physician knows that hog lard in any shape is unhealthy and indigestible.

Every one interested in pure and healthful food hails with joy the new product which is composed of pure cottonseed oil and pure beef suet—nothing else—not even salt. It is better than either lard or butter for all cooking purposes, and one pound of Cottolene will do as much as two pounds of lard or butter, and it costs less than either.

Every housekeeper that tries Cottolene will find in it just what she wants.

STRIKING MILL MEN VICTORIOUS

Pinkerton Detectives Forced to Lay Down Their Arms and Surrender.

UNABLE LONGER TO WITHSTAND THE FIRE OF THE ENEMY.

RESULT OF THE HOMESTEAD BATTLE

The Captives from the Barges Forced to Run the Gauntlet—Their Boats Looted and Burned and Arms, Ammunition and Provisions in Large Quantities Fall Into the Hands of the Strikers—The Detectives Roughly Handled on Their Way to a Temporary Place of Refuge—Details of Yesterday's Great Battle—The Carnegie Company's Attempt to Secure Outside Help Precipitates the Dreaded Crisis—The Pinkerton Question in Congress—Frick Goes Guarded—The Battle Will Not Change the Company's Policy.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 7.—For hours the crowd of workmen behind the barricades of structural iron within the walls watched the barges with guns cocked, waiting for a head to appear.

Down in the boats, sweltering and with hearts filled with fear, lay the 270 Pinkerton guards.

The suffering of the wounded on the boats must have been awful.

All sorts of plans were tried to fire the boats.

A hand fire engine owned by the steel company was gotten out of its shed and connected with a big oil tank.

The oil was pumped down into the river and burning waste was thrown after it.

This did not do, and the stores with overstocks of Fourth of July fireworks were drawn upon, rockets, Roman candles and the like were used, but without effect.

The oil was of the lubricating kind, not inflammable as other grades. But if the mill men had succeeded, an appalling fate must have been in store for the Pinkerton men.

Seeing their efforts were in vain, the steel workers rested and discussed the situation.

Hugh O'Donnell, cool-headed and anxious to avoid further bloodshed, seized a small American flag, mounted a pile of iron, and soon had the attention of the 2,000 maddened men who were shouting for blood. His words were received with cheers.

He said a wite flag should be carried to the bank, and he was going to explain his plan (further when a howl arose from 1,090 throats:

"Show the white flag, Never," was the cry.

"They shot at one flag, and if there is any white flag to be shown it must fly from the boats."

"What will we do then?" asked O'Donnell.

"We will hold them in the boats until the sheriff comes and we will have warrants sworn out for every man for murder. The sheriff will then have to take them in charge," said one man, and shouts of approval rent the air.

Seeing that this was the desire of the men, O'Donnell stepped down and went to work to keep them to that and prevent further conflict, if possible.

While the meeting was in progress in the mill, another was being held by the beleagured ones in the boat.

The result was soon shown by a white handkerchief being cautiously shoved out of an opening and cheers greeted it.

"They surrender!" Victory!" "We have them now!" and like cries rung out.

Then Hugh O'Donnell, accompanied by two or three of the Advisory Committee, ran down the steep bank to receive the message of peace.

The spokesman of the Pinkertons announced that they would surrender on condition that they would be protected from the violence of the mob.

After a short parley this was agreed to, though a multitude of enraged people were howling for the blood of the men who killed their comrades.

As soon as the committee had arranged the preliminaries, one hundred or more men from the shore climbed upon the boat.

The steel workers did not let the Pinkertons talk long, but ordered them to hurry out.

The first one to leave had his Winchester rifle with him.

"Disarm them," cried the mob, and the rifles were then taken away from all, and became the property of the man who took the gun.

Then began a looting of the boat.

The uniforms the guards had intended to wear were either thrown in the river or given to the Hungarians.

Everything of the slightest value that was portable was carried away by the crowd.

When the boats had been looted, the march of the captured crew began.

Down the gang plank, one by one, they came, and that they might be distinguished from the men on the bank, so that none would get away, they were forced to walk with uncovered heads.

Cries of "To the woods!" "Lynch the dogs!" were heard on all sides. Every striker seemed as if he wanted a particular man among the Pinkertons. After considerable parley some one suggested that the guards be marched to the big skating rink and there tried for murder. Many of the captors would not listen to this. Some wanted to take the scared Pinkertons and shoot them as they stood. Cooler heads, however, prevailed and the march to the rink began.

The poor guards, with most of their clothes torn from them, were compelled to march through the town to the rink. On both sides of them stood lines of the strikers and their friends, hooting and yelling as they passed. As the men passed through the gauntlet they were kicked and cuffed on all sides. Their captors tried to protect them, but it was a physical impossibility.

One woman had a stocking filled with iron, and she struck one of the Pinkerton men over the head with it. The leaders of the strikers could not keep the people away from the prisoner. Scenes that almost beggar description were enacted all the way to the rink. It was the general supposition that the men would be given a speedy trial and convicted by a judge lynch jury.

While the men were being formed in line for the march to the rink, a portion of the strikers boarded the boats. They ransacked everything, and secured 360 Winchesters. The men just took from the boats what they thought was of value and then burned the barges. In one boat was found everything in the way of edibles. There was enough provisions to last a regiment a week. It did not take the barges long to burn after they were fired.

There was little pity expressed for the captured guards.

The workers finally landed their captives in the large skating rink and opera house, where they were kept under heavy guard. The leaders then sent word to Sheriff McCleary to come in person and take charge of the Pinkertons.

Sheriff McCleary is on the scene, and will take them to Pittsburg, when they will be charged with murder.

Shortly after 12 o'clock this morning it was rumored about Homestead that the prisoners were to be taken to Pittsburg on a special train brought up by Sheriff McCleary.

About 12:30 President Weihe of the Amalgamated Association appeared in the Opera House and ordered the hall cleared of all outsiders.

Hugh O'Donnell, of the Advisory Committee, took charge and formed the men in ranks.

A few minutes later the procession started for the depot.

The wounded brought up the rear, several being carried in chairs, and no demonstration was made on the way to the station.

The trip down to Pittsburg was made quietly.

On reaching the station at Pittsburg, 15 wounded men were taken from the train and removed to the West Penn Hospital.

The train was then taken to the 28th street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, another engine attached, and the train pulled out eastward.

How far East they will be taken, or their destination, is not at this time made public.

Up to 6 o'clock this morning, as far as could be ascertained, 11 workmen and 9 detectives were killed, and 18 workmen and 21 detectives were wounded in the battle.

In addition to these, at least 100 detectives were seriously hurt while running the gauntlet.

KILLED:

The list of the killed and wounded as far as obtained is as follows:

William Foy, shot through the breast.

John Morris, shot through the forehead.

Henry Stfeigle, shot through the neck.

J. H. Klein, Pinkerton man, shot through the head.

Joseph Shepa, shot through the breast.

Silas Wayne, bullet through his neck.

Thomas Weldin, shot in stomach.

Peter Farris, shot through the stomach.

In addition to these two Pinkerton men were shot and fell overboard and their names could not be learned.

INJURED:

Andrew Sular, shot in the leg.

Miles Laughlin, shot through the body.

Hugh O'Donnell, shot in the hand.

Martin Murray, shot in the right knee.

J. Hoffman, shot in the leg.

David Lester, Pinkerton man, arm broken.

Russell Wells, Pinkerton man, shot in the leg.

George Rutter, bullet in the hip.

John McCurry, shot in the groin.

Harry Hughes, shot in the cheek.

Andrew Schuyhir, shot through the anklecap.

William Johnson, shot in the hip.

In addition, not less than 25 Homestead men are slightly wounded. Nine other Pinkerton men are also slightly wounded.

A DAY OF TERROR.

The Great Battle Between Workmen and Pinkertons at Homestead.

Never in the history of the Homestead Mills has such a day of war and terror been witnessed. The town was literally besieged, and throughout the day the roar of cannon and the firing of guns stirred the citizens to the highest pitch of excitement.

About 3 a. m. word was received here that the steamer Scout, with 25 men aboard, supposed to be sheriff's deputies, had left Pittsburg for this city. Upon receipt of this news a general alarm was given on the big electric light works whistle, and in a few moments a pandemonium, akin to that only supposed possible in the infernal regions, was raging.

About 4:45 a. m., the steam tug Tide, several barges in tow, on which were about 300 Pinkerton detectives crept through the fog to the landing at the steel works.

For two hours before the boats arrived 5,000 or 6,000 persons awaited their coming on the river banks.

The mills have a landing for boats within the enclosure of the fence and at first it appeared that there would be no way to prevent the Pinkertons entering the mills.

Shortly before the boats reached Homestead a horseman, riding at a mad gallop, spread the alarm that the Pinkertons were coming.

As the boats steamed toward the landing it was impossible to longer restrain the crowds.

With a whoop and a yell of derision an onslaught was made on the fence. Soon 100 feet of the enclosure was torn away and 1,000 men were at the landing.

As the Pinkertons landed they opened fire and two workmen dropped in their tracks.

The first shot came from the barge. It was aimed at a big Hungarian who stood at the water's edge. The ball went wide of the human target, but it was the signal to the Pinkerton men to begin, and for a full ten minutes they continued to fire.

The first man to fall was Martin Merry, a heater in one of the mills. He was shot in the left side and fell face downwards on a pile of ashes. Close beside Merry stood a Hungarian. He stooped over Merry's prostrate body, and as he was in the act of raising him he staggered and fell by the side of his comrade.

This bloody spectacle roused the drooping spirits of the crowd, and with a hoarse cheer half a dozen men rushed to the place where Merry and the Hungarian lay.

They picked up the bodies and carried them behind the trestle. One of the rescuers, a Welshman, who refused to give his name, was shot in the left leg just as he raised Merry's head from the ground.

Merry and the Hungarian were carried to Dr. Furman's office, where it was said they would die.

In the first of the firing the Pinkerton captain was shot. He was carried to the pilot house of the steamboat. One of his men said although the wound was serious it was not fatal.

The aggressiveness of the Pinkertons enraged the crowd and they bore down upon the detectives with resistless force, driving them back to the boats.

The boats pulled up to the pump house of the works. There they were greeted by the crowd, composed of old men, young men, women and children, ready at all hazards to prevent a landing.

For a few minutes both sides rested on their arms, but the fighting was soon renewed.

Five thousand men, women and children stood upon the river bank watching the fight and cheering on the workman in their efforts to prevent a landing by the Pinkertons.

It was supposed the Pinkertons would not make another attempt to land.

This time the strikers scored first blood by firing a volley at the boats. Four of Pinkertons men dropped in their tracks, but their associates quickly returned the fire of the strikers.

Then after a few moments of indiscriminate firing on both sides the skirmish ended. The victim of this apparently unpremeditated collision was Henry Streigle, a lad 18 years of age, who was formerly employed at the works as a helper. He was shot through the left breast, and lived only a few moments.

The strikers then busily began constructing a stout barricade of steel bars as a line of defence, situated on the bank overlooking the spot where the boats were anchored. Behind this barrier of steel was a cannon, antique as to pattern, but still capable of doing serious damage if called upon.

The cannon which had been trained on the barges anchored in the river were fired every few minutes with terrific effect.

Strikers and their friends lined both sides of the river and a constant fire with but the exception of slight intervals was kept up for several hours.

The steam tug finally left the barges and steamed away with several wounded on board.

At 9:30 o'clock it was said that there were five dead on each side, and that several Pinkerton men had fallen overboard and, it is believed, were drowned. It was also alleged that several men had gone to Pittsburg to secure dynamite with which to blow the barges out of the river.

At 10 a. m. the chief leader of the workmen, accompanied by a reporter, went to the front of the line of battle. The main fight was at that time being made near a huge oil tank on the river front, one mile from Homestead.

Here the reporter saw one of the workers breathe his last. The man was standing near the B. & O. railroad tracks, firing a 30-lb. cannon, trying to sink the barges on which were the Pinkertons. His shots went wide of the mark. A moment later, the millworkers head was almost severed from his body by a shot from a Winchester rifle in the hands of a Pinkerton man.

At 10 o'clock the barges were strewn with wounded and dying and the river was stained with blood. The detectives at that hour were unable to escape.

A raft of logs and barrels of oil was set on fire half a mile above the barges and started down the stream. This ment that the barges and their human freight would soon be in flames, unless some unforseen escape presented itself.

Silas Wagners, a striker, was shot dead, about 10 o'clock. His body was carried down the street by his brother. The sight added greatly to the general indignation.

The great fence about the works was set on fire.

The Burgess has issued a proclamation calling on all citizens to remain indoors and ordering all saloons closed.

At 10:10 near the lavatory, one man aimed his rifle and the next instant a shout went up and a Pinkerton detective who had been standing on the barge fell. The bullet had passed through his head and the detective dropped in the river never to rise.

The look-out men gained entire possession of the Company's lavatory and in this their ammunition is stored. The workmen have at least 500 rifles in their possession.

At 11 o'clock the men reported that they were out of ammunition and the committee was immediately sent after more.

At 11:30 a. m. the boat Little Bill, which towed the barges to Homestead, was seen coming down the river, a large United States flag flying from the mast head. The appearance of the boat was a signal along the river front for renewed activity both on and off the barges.

"She's coming to take the barges away."

As the boat came nearer it was seen that she carried a squad of armed men who were lined up on the side next the Homestead mills.

When opposite the converting department the men on the boat opened fire on those on the shore.

For ten minutes firing continued, the Pinkertons on the barges joining the men on the boat in the shooting.

The men on the bank returned the fire from behind the furnace stacks which they used as a shield. So warm was the fire from the shore that the men on the boat were driven to cover.

Several men on the boat were seen to fall and it is certain that they were wounded.

No one on shore was injured by the firing from the boats.

The Little Bill made an attempt to tie up with the barges, but this was futile, owing to the shower of bullets from the shore, and the towboat passed down the river, leaving the occupants of the barges in very uncomfortable quarters.

The attempt to set fire to the barges did not prove successful by the raft process, and another attempt was made.

From the converting department of the mill to the edge of the river where the barges are moored runs a switch. On this was run a car filled with barrels of oil, lumber and waste. To this a lighted torch was applied and the car cut loose.

The flames sprang up a distance of a hundred feet, while great volumes of smoke rolled heavenward.

The crowds on the hillsides overlooking the scene sent up a lusty shout as word reached them of the intended burning of the barges and all on board.

The car of fire rushed down the steep incline in the direction of the barges, and the men on the barges watched it approach with blanched faces.

Just then the steamer Little Bill pulled in between the barges and the shore, but on reaching the water the car of fire came to a stop.

The heat, however, was intense, and the little steamer was soon smoking hot.

All this time a continuous fire was kept up from the Winchesters by both sides and it is calculated that one thousand shots were exchanged during this brief engagement.

The steamer Little Bill, which had evidently received a fresh supply of ammunition and reinforcements of Pinkertons, continued down the river.

George Retter, a prominent citizen, had his thigh shattered.

The following Pinkertons are at the Homeopathic Hospital, Pittsburg:

Capt. F. H. Heinds, of New York, in charge of the Pinkertons, shot in left leg; J. G. Hoffman, shot in right leg; Russell Wells, shot in shoulder; J. W. Kline, shot in head, dying; David Lester, shot in head.

HOMESTEAD, July 7.—The Pinkerton men run up a flag of truce on their barges at 3 o'clock but it was not recognized by the workman on the shore.

THE TRIP OF THE BOATS.

Capt. Heinds Describes the Attempt to Land the Detectives at the Mill.

PITTSBURG, July 7.—Captain F. H. Heinds, who is now in the Homeopathic Hospital, with a badly wounded leg, describes the scenes while the boats were passing up the river and during the futile attempts to land the men.

"When we reached the B. & O. bridge above Glenwood," said he, "the time was about 3 a. m. There was just daylight enough to show that there was a heavy fog, which obscured the river banks; but we could hear shouts and calls of men, women and children on the Homestead side.

"As we neared the works firing commenced from the bank, and the rattle of discharging firearms was like the whirr of bees.

"The boat in the centre of the two barges steamed up to the Pittsburg, McKeesport and Youghiogheny railroad bridge at the steel works, and then backed down to the landing.

"When the barge next the shore swung in, one of our men and myself threw a plank ashore.

"The firing had then ceased, and we could by this time see swarms of people crowding from the tall bank right down to the water's edge.

"As soon as the plank was thrown ashore, Kline, in advance, and myself started down the plank.

Kline reached the shore and I saw him scuffling with some men.

"Then the firing commenced and before I had taken two steps on the plank, I received a shot in the leg and fell on the plank with my shoulders on the deck. Afterward the boat pulled out and steamed to Port Perry, where we were placed on board of a B. & O. train and brought to the city."

O'DONNELL ON THE RIOTS.

He Says That the Carnegie Officers Invited the Attack.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 6.—Mr. Hugh O'Donnell, the leader of the workmen here, was shot in the hand while attempting to quell the disturbance yesterday morning. In speaking of the trouble Mr. O'Donnell said:

"Every man who has common sense in the county of Allegheny full well knows that we were not responsible. It was precipitated by the Carnegie officials, who invited the attack.

"The Advisory Committee did all in its power, but were compelled to dissolve. I never carried a firearm in my life and have none now."

On the 9 o'clock train President-elect M. M. Garland of the Amalgamated Association arrived. He was quite downcast at the state of affairs. He said:

"This is certainly to be regretted, and there are none more sorry than the Amalgamated Association officers."

A gentleman said this morning:

"This action on the part of the mill owners looks like a preconcerted scheme to precipitate a battle.

"Any child might have known that an attempt to reach the works from the river would result in bloodshed.

"For all the lives that have been lost the company is, in my mind, alone responsible. The men on the barges did the first firing.

"It is a bold scheme to lead the idle workmen into battle, but thus far they have come off victorious, and everyone here is glad of it."

Will Maintain Their Policy.

PITTSBURG, July 7.—The officials of the Carnegie Steel Company have little to say on the occurrences at Homestead. What they did say was in effect that what had happened and whatever may happen, they would maintain their policy that the Homestead Steel Work would be run as a non-union plant and that it was now in charge of Allegheny County, and if the plant was damaged the county would be held responsible to the last cent.

HISTORY OF THE CARNEGIE WAR.

The Events Which Led Up to the Fighting.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 7.—The strike at Homestead is the result of a fight between Andrew Carnegie and the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers.

Mr. Carnegie began life as a poor boy, and made his money by dint of careful saving, and, later in life, by judicious management.

The Amalgamated Association consists of 60,000 members. It has been said that if they lose their present fight against Mr. Carnegie, a great blow will be dealt to organized labor.

For years there had been trouble at the Homestead mills, but it never broke out into such violence as at the present crisis.

The immediate causes of the strike may be summed up as follows: The appointment of H. C. Frick, who is known to be opposed to organized labor, as chairman of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Steel Association; the declaration of an ultimatum to the Amalgamated Association, and the alleged neglect of Mr. Carnegie to arbitrate.

The ironmaster has never shown any disinclination to enter the lists with the strikers, and it is said will be willing to lose $1,000,000 in his fight for principle. Representatives of the Amalgamated Association state that the new scale contemplated such sweeping reductions that the men were not able to sign it.

After a long discussion the workmen agreed to accept a minimum price for steel billets of $24 a ton.

Mr. Frick, however, would not go beyond $23. This made a difference of $1 per ton. An ultimatum was then made by Mr. Frick that the new wage scale would be signed by midnight of June 24, and that after that hour there would be no conferences. Immediately after this Mr. Carnegie's representatives began to fortify the works at Homestead.

The great steel works at Homestead cover 110 acres. Twelve big buildings and a score of smaller shops and sheds occupy much of the space. Among these are the converting mill, where Bessemer steel plate is made, the beam mill, the plate mill, the armor plate mill, the open hearth mill, the finishing department, the 10-inch, the 22-inch and the 119-inch mill, and the big plate-pressing room.

The water for the works comes from the Monongahela river and is sufficient in quantity to supply a town of 50,000 inhabitants. One hundred and fifty boilers run the great engines, the pumps and the steam hammers.

Natural gas for fuel is furnished by the company's own wells. About 4,500 men are employed, and the output is four times as big as from the great Krupp works in Germany.

The Carnegie company has purchased 100 additional acres and will add it to the works next year. It is already fenced in by heavy barbed wire.

The steel works are completely surrounded by a stout board fence 12 feet high, built upon a foundation of slag 3 feet high. The fence is 3 miles long and is strung along the top with 3 strands of barbed wire, so connected with the electric plant that the turning of a switch makes the wires alive with a powerful current of electricity.

Hydrants are stationed at frequent intervals, from which great streams of hot or cold water can be poured. The fence is lighted with electric lights, while powerful search lights make the approaches as clear as day. Four-inch portholes are bored in the fence. The office is fenced additionally and a railroad track connects it with the Munhall station.

A bridge connects the office with a building outside the works. The place has been completely fortified, and preparations have been made to accommodate an army of defenders.

A big camera has been set up to take instantaneous pictures in case of riot. On the river front is an armed steel launch.

The Pinkerton Question in the House.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Mr. Williams, (Dem. Mass.), introduced in the House a resolution reciting the employment of Pinkerton detectives in the Homestead, Pa., mills. The resolution directs an investigation by the Committee on Judiciary of the employment of detectives by corporations engaged in Inter-State commerce, and especially "the causes and conditions of the sanguinary conflict now going on at Homestead." The resolution was referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

City Poor Farm in Danger.

PITTSBURG, July 7.—Supt. Linderman, of the City Poor Farm, near Homestead, telephones the Chief of the City Fire Department that the strikers had stored quantities of oil near the city farm pumping station; that the buildings, in which are several hundreds inmates are in imminent danger. He asked that a fire engine be sent up at once. The request was complied with.

Most of the Detectives New Yorkers.

PITTSBURG, July 7.—The managers of the Murphy Detective Agency most emphatically deny that the men who went to Homestead in the boats had anything to do with their agency. The majority of them belong in New York.

Free Coinage Bill Still on the Table.

WASHINGTON, July 7. — Another day has passed and the Free Coinage bill remains on the table of Speaker Crisp, unreferred and in decided peril. Its antagonists have taken advantage of the rules of the House to delay it in every way.

NEW PASTOR FOR PLAINFIELD.

Dr. Ketcham's Successor Chosen in the Rev. Henry Miller.

As was predicted in these columns Tuesday evening, the congregation of the First Presbyterian church last night chose as Dr. Ketcham's successor the Rev. Henry T. Miller, at present pastor of the Fifth Presbyterian church at Chicago.

The meeting of the congregation was a protracted one, and the question of selecting a pastor was warmly debated. There were some who favored the examination of further candidates, before deciding to call any particular one; and when the Moderator's question "Are you ready for a call?" had been answered by a majority in the affirmative, there was dissent over the choosing of a pastor.

The meeting was therefore quite interestingly exciting, but the controversies that were known to exist, and that were developed by the debate, did not result, as had been feared by some, in unpleasant personalities, but instead everything was conducted in a courteous, dignified and parliamentary way. Many spoke, and the speeches were very vigorous, but no bitter personal animosities were shown, and every difference was amicably adjusted and it was decided to call Mr. Miller. The vote in favor of the Chicago clergyman was not unanimous, but it was the necessary majority, and the elders and deacons of the church were authorized to extend the formal call to Mr. Miller and to prosecute the call before the Presbytery. The following document will therefore be signed by elders Bettmann, Cadmus, Lounsbury and Cave, and deacons Lindsay and Radford, attested by the Rev. W. E. Honeyman, who was the efficient moderator of the session, and forwarded to the Rev. Mr. Miller:

The congregation of the First Presbyterian church of Plainfield, N. J., being on sufficient grounds, well satisfied of the ministerial qualifications of you Henry T. Miller, and having good hopes, from our past experience of your labors, that your ministrations in the Gospel will be profitable to our spiritual interests, do earnestly call and desire you to undertake the pastoral office in said congregation, promising you, in the discharge of your duty, all proper support, encouragement and obedience in the Lord. And that you may be free from worldly cares and avocations, we hereby promise and oblige ourselves to pay to you annually the sum of $2,000 in quarterly payments, together with one month's vacation, during the time of your being and continuing the regular pastor of the church. In testimony whereof, we have respectively subscribed our names this 6th day of July, A. D. 1892.

The only unpleasant feature of the evening was the foolish introduction of a resolution, at the opening of the session, excluding reporters from the session and insisting that they publish nothing of the proceedings detrimental to the church. Knowing that such action was contemplated, self-respecting newspaper men stayed away, and if any inaccuracies or misrepresentations are made in the reports of the meeting the ill-advised endorsers of that unwise resolution have only themselves to blame.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. U. B. Crane and children have gone to Ocean Grove for a month.

Mrs. Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, president Union county W. C. T. U., presided last evening at the annual School of Methods of the New Jersey W. C. T. U.

Frank Hubbard of West Fifth street has gone to Olean, N. Y., as engineer in charge of the work that F. A. Dunham is doing for that city already told of in these columns.

Dr. Long Saves a Life.

Edmund H. Bone, of Newark, was almost drowned at Ocean Grove, yesterday. Only the prompt attention of Dr. M. B. Long, of this city, who was fortunately present, saved his life. Mr. Bone came down to the shore with his wife and children, on a day excursion. He sent his family riding in an electric car while he took a surf bath. Suddenly he stepped in a hole and sank out of sight.

Rescuers with life lines around them dove down, found the man with difficulty and brought him ashore. Dr. Long, who was down at the seaside with the Crescent avenue excursionists, began at once the work of resuscitating the unfortunate man. There was a slight pulsation in the wrist, but the man's lungs were filled with water and his breathing had stopped. He was laid on his side and rubbed to produce artificial respiration until natural breathing should come again. It was twenty minutes before he was brought to life.

Grist of the City Court.

John Newman is beginning young. Judge Codington this morning was forced to tell him he was thoroughly bad; and for throwing stones and saying vile things to aged Mrs. Connealy the lad was sent to jail for 10 days, preferring that imprisonment to paying an $8 fine.

Newman's mother was also a prisoner. For permitting her goat to trespass on the streets and vacant lots she was fined $1.

Carl Whitney and James McCormick, who had been arrested for alleged violations of the hack ordinances, were honorably discharged.

Thomas Lyons, a playmate of Newman's, arrested for the same offence as Newman, was acquitted.

Thrashed a Drunken Man.

A man known as French Mike, at Dunellen, who has made his home for some time in anyone's barn and by getting odd jobs for a living, indulged a little too freely on the Fourth, and annoyed those who came in contact with him. He met David Runyon, and, following him, called him vile names until it became unbearable, when Mr. Runyon turned upon him and gave him a sound thrashing.

Mr. Jackson in Massachusetts.

Yesterday, on authority of Mrs. Jackson, there was published in these columns the statement that the whereabouts of counselor John H. Jackson was unknown, and that his family were anxious concerning him. To-day information comes from the office of Jackson & Codington that the absent counselor is recuperating in Massachusetts, whence the office has received communications from him.

LOST BY THE ROOTERS!

While a Lot of Crescent Followers Create a Disturbance, the Staten Island Athletic Club Run Away With the Game.

The Crescent League ball team went to Staten Island yesterday and defeated the New Jersey champions for the third time, but just as the Crescents were about to leave the field for home, a concatenation of circumstances—including a man called Powers—arose, and the feet of the Staten Island players began to trot around the bases and patter on the plate until they had rolled up all the runs they needed to win and stopped of their own accord.

The score stood 7 to 1 for Plainfield when the Staten Islanders stepped listlessly to the plate to close the ninth inning. They expected nothing. They had put up a new pitcher on trial against the Crescents and the latter had hit him for fourteen bases, while the Athletics had not been able to bunch the half dozen safe ones they had got off Meakin. But when the last half of the last inning came to be played—it was different!

In the first place some of the irrational rooters who persist in following the Crescents although not members of the league, and whose mouths are always open to the annoyance of everybody around them and to the degradation of Plainfield, began their shouting and general disturbance until it was necessary to call the police, all of which created such a noise and excitement that Meakin could n't hear the the umpire and did n't know whether he was pitching to Hofford or throwing to Jones. Then the Staten Islanders had no trouble in hitting every ball he tossed them, and as Powers in right field refused to catch anything that came his way, and as "Chic" amid the general dazzle-dazzle failed to see a third man out that he could have caught between third base and home, the runs continued to roll up against the Crescents without interruption as fast as you can tell it. The winning run came in on a long fly to center field that Leidy threw himself down on his face to get, but lost in rolling over. It would have been the third man out. The score:

Mayor Gilbert on County Sewers.

(Westfield Leader.)

Mayor Gilbert of Plainfield tells a LEADER representative that the idea of a county sewer need not be altogether moonshine, if it is taken hold of with the right spirit. His plan, or rather the plan to which he refers; is to run a trunk sewer from Plainfield, along the line of the Central railroad to Newark Bay. Each town would be expected to pay for so much of the sewer as passes through the town limits. This would mean about one and two-thirds miles for Westfield, and a cost of not more than $6,000 per mile. The advantages would certainly be many, and the interest on the investment would come in large figures to all of the towns. But Westfield wants the $10,000 for something else just now, and it will undoubtedly be best to give the subject an extended consideration. A real good thing never suffers any deterioration in value by being ruminated upon; and we of Westfield are adept at rumination. We are outgrowing the day when it is in order for the dish-water to be thrown out of the back-door to find its way back into the house in some foul miasmatic state.

The Christening of James McGee's Granddaughters.

Last Sunday morning in Dr. Mitchell's church, will always be a memorable date. It was the occasion of a most unusual and charming scene. Four sweet little maidens were christened. They were the daughters of James McGee's daughters, and their grandfather stood at the altar with them.

The quartette of little women were: Charlotte and Margaret Ashbrooke, whose mother was formerly Miss Anna McGee; Helen Joy, whose mother was formerly Miss Emma McGee; and Dorothy Welsh, whose mother was formerly Miss Addie McGee. The Rev. Mr. Welsh, father of the last, baptized all but his own, which was subsequently christened by Dr. Mitchell.

Only One Painless Remedy for Tooth-Sufferers.

You may think because you have n't had a toothache in weeks that this paragraph does n't apply to you—but it does, for you are liable to have an ugly time with some recalcitrant tooth at any moment. And when the occasion for tooth-pulling arrives, there's just one way to have the bad tooth out without pain or trouble. Remember Dr. C. R. Thiers and his famous anæsthetic, and make good use of the knowledge that Dr. Thiers extracts teeth without hurting. When his anæsthetic is used there is absolutely no pain, and as physicians recommend it you can judge for yourself that there are no evil after-effects.

A Plainfield Young Man Enraptured.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I have been so pleased and delighted with Wanamassa Camp during my stay there on the 3rd and 4th, that I cannot help calling the attention of the young men of our city to it as a place in which they can most enjoyably spend any number of days or weeks which any of them may have at their disposal this summer for recreation.

This camp, under the direction and control of the State committee of Young Men's Christian associations, is situated on the banks of Deal Lake, the northern boundary of Asbury Park. It is most beautifully situated on a peninsula between the two arms of the lake. It is thickly wooded, and therefore very shady and cool. There are three buildings on the main camp ground, namely, headquarters or office and reception building; dining room, seating over 250, with kitchen, and auditorium. Scattered over the grounds are the splendid tents, with fine cots and other necessary furnishings. A quarter of a mile away on another peninsula are the athletic grounds, including gymnasium, bowling alleys, bicycle track, ball field, etc., surrounded by shade trees. I cannot dwell longer on the grounds; they only need to be seen to be highly appreciated.

This camp is under wise and liberal management. The table is just such an one as hungry young men like. It is fine and varied. The two essential things to insure a good time on a vacation are good fare and a good comfortable bed, and these are what are supplied in this camp.

Any young man can patronize this camp whether he is a member of an association or not, but the association man has the advantage of a slight reduction in rates. Athletic exercises under supervision of trained teachers, bicycle riding, base-ball, boating, canoeing, ocean bathing, and all the pleasure and recreation that Asbury Park and Ocean Grove afford, are to be had, with all the freedom and delight of camping out.

I trust you will pardon me for taking up so much of your valuable space, but I was so pleased myself that I felt that my fellow young men should know something of a place so near at hand where they can enjoy themselves at small cost. The price of board and lodgings is only $7 per week. J. A. ROBINSON.

The Growth of Garwood.

The town of Garwood, on the Central railroad between Westfield and Cranford, has not depended for its start or growth on fence posters, excursion trains, free luncheons and brass bands. With such men behind it as J. Rogers Maxwell, and in the hands of a man so highly esteemed and trusted as general manager Frank Morse, formerly of this city, the success of the Garwood Land and Improvement company's project has been prompt in beginning and steady in progress. It offers manufacturing sites with complete railroad facilities, and building lots with unsurpassed advantages, and the property is so desirably, advantageously and attractively located, it fairly sells itself.

Already the contracts are awarded for the erection of extensive plants for the Hall Signal Co., of 50 Broadway, New York, and the American Steel Wheel Co. The latter's main shop will be 502 feet long

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

A QUARTETTE OF TRUTHFUL TALES.

The Censor Visits Long Branch, Tier's Lake, and the Astor House, and Learnedly Discusses the Color Line.

Stopping at the Astor House in New York, the other night, I was a mite amused by the card given me by the man who keeps the book-stall in the lobby of the sedate and seedy old hostelry. It read something like this:

ASTOR HOUSE NEWS STAND.
Books, Periodicals and Magazines.
NEWSPAPERS FROM
Out-of-Town Cities a Specialty.

"Out-of-Town Cities", is particularly original: is n't it, when you come to think of it?

What a lot of these two-seated yellow vehicles with big side-lights on them we are coming to see! Monday I counted no less than half-a-dozen passing the club-house in an hour. They are not a bit pretty, either. I never did fancy yellow, and yet it is all the go here and in the big town across the river to the east. Yellow bluchers, yellow ties, yellow ascots, and yellow is the dominant coloring of the new buildings and horse-cars. That suggests the probability that our prospective trolley cars, too, will be painted yellow. I'd lay ten to one on it in the open, but just the same I do hope the man who has the thing in hand will have the moral courage to give us something new in the color line. We would all appreciate it so much, I'm sure.

I took a run down to Long Branch the other day to see how the old place is getting on in these days. I had not stopped there for ten or twelve years, and things have changed a bit. I got out in disgust once, because the place became so overrun, so abominably popular, so wretchedly cosmopolitan; all sorts and conditions of men and women—and children (shall I ever forget them!)—invaded the then rather aristocratic resort and virtually ruined it for such as I. It was the same parasitic growth that in time chokes every nice, quiet place unless the prices are made prohibitory.

But my friend, John Hoey, has done nobly with his "Hollywood", a perfect paradise, albeit too far from the water. I think I could enjoy myself there for a whole week if it were not for the memories of better days when one might walk in one's bathing suit, unseen and unmolested, from the old Hollywood to the West End beach, and take a real, quiet swim and come back when he got good and ready. No town built there then, no insolent, intrusive cottages, no advisory bathing-masters, so-called (did you ever meet a college professor who compared with a bathing-master for knowing it all?); no Coney Island element (I had almost made it "elephant"); and no kodak fiends. Ah, those were days to dote upon and times to talk about! I hear it said that the California beaches are about the only nice, exclusive places now, and I believe I'll try them before long. We club-car men get a way of being exclusive that we can't shake off, doncher know.

The argent moon was shining softly on our only lake, the catarrhal bull-frog was having it all to himself on the green banks, and the dark night waters were stirred here and there by the wings of some aquatic insect or the incautious down-shoot of a near-sighted fire-fly. The ice-cream pavilion was well patronized, because the night was hot and the cream was good. At the next table sat two girls, and opposite them, a young man, their escort. The girls giggled and snickered and whispered to each other, as girls always do, and the young man, very uncomfortable, gazed first at the starry sky, then at the water, then over at me, and then at the stars again. I wonder why girls will be so inexcusably rude. Let any two of them be together for a few minutes and they are bound to forget their manners, no matter whom they may be with, and sometimes I have known some very superior, otherwise lady-like society girls, two or three years after their comings-out, to laugh and giggle for five or ten minutes hand-running to the discomfort of a third party. High or low, it's all the same. And the fact that they never impart the nature of what strikes them so happily hardly redounds creditably. The only available hypotheses are that their joke was either something disagreeably personal, something which would not bear repetition aloud, or else no joke at all. The latter is generally the case, I venture to hope. I'm sure the girls would n't do it if they stopped to think how unpleasantly it places an escort, and how indelibly it stamps them as being unworthy the title of lady. A lady can always manage her tongue and her actions as well as her skirts.

I think I never heard of two gentlemen so far forgetting themselves in the presence of a lady, as the average two girls invariably do in the presence of a gentleman.

THE CENSOR.

Resolutions of Respect.

MEMORIAM

At a regular meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., held July 7, 1892, the following resolutions of respect were adopted:

WHEREAS, The Divine Ruler of man's destinies, in his omnipotent wisdom, has led through the valley of the shadow of death into eternal happiness our beloved and respected brother, John C. VanDyke, jr., it becomes our sad duty and privilege to offer our tribute to his memory; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in so great an affliction, words are inadequate to express the full measure of our sorrow, and we can simply say that we sincerely mourn his loss, and shall ever hold his memory dear. As a member and officer of our order, and as a citizen, he performed carefully and conscientiously every duty which devolved upon him, and leaves behind him an untarnished and imperishable record; and for all this we loved him.

Resolved, That we extend to his sorrowing relatives our sympathy in this dark hour, commending them for consolation to that great Physician "who healeth the broken in heart".

Resolved, That as a further token of respect our charter be draped for thirty days, these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, published in the American Eagle, and daily papers of this city, and a copy of them be presented to the relatives of our deceased brother.

HAD FAITH IN THE LIMITED.

From New York to a Chicago Court Room In Twenty-four Hours.

The perfection to which the art of railroading has been carried in these days had a striking illustration last week in the case of a prominent New York lawyer, who was a passenger on the Chicago Limited on the Pennsylvania railroad. He had an important suit pending in the United States court of Chicago, which was to be called at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning. It was absolutely essential that he should be there on time, but on account of a pressure of business he could not leave New York before Sunday. The alternative was then offered him of taking a Sunday afternoon train and spending two nights on the road, or of waiting until Monday morning and taking the Chicago Limited, which would land him in Chicago at 9:45 on Tuesday morning.

The consequences might possibly be serious if the Limited should be late in reaching Chicago; but, trusting to its well-earned reputation for being always on time, the New Yorker decided to take it and run the risk. The result showed that his confidence was not misplaced. Exactly at 9:45 on Tuesday morning the Limited rolled into the union station at Chicago. Jumping into a cab with his wife, the lawyer was driven straight to the temple of justice, where judge Gresham presided. He reached it in eight minutes, and a few moments later was in the court-room. The court opened promptly at ten o'clock, and his case was called first on the list.

Just twenty-four hours after leaving New York he was addressing the court in Chicago, feeling as fresh and vigorous after his luxurious trip as if he had just come from his own home. It might add to the story to say that after concluding his argument he took another train back to New York, and was in court there on Wednesday, as usual, but he did n't. He stayed in Chicago to see the Democratic convention, and came back at his leisure.

JAMES HALLETT'S CASE.

His Wife and Son Tell of His Wild Carousings, and He Is Held for Trial.

James W. Hallett, the man from New Market, who created such havoc about his home a few days ago, smashing $1,500 worth of furniture, was given a hearing Wednesday afternoon by justice Hayter of New Brunswick.

Mrs. Hallett, who is now inclined to be lenient towards him, does not wish him confined in jail if he will promise not to come near her house for two years. At the hearing Wednesday she and her son told the story of Hallett's wild rampages, as were described exclusively in these columns at the time

Hallett was greatly discomfited while the hearing was on, and looked daggers at everyone in justice Hayter's court. The fact was brought out that the property he destroyed belonged to his wife. He was held for the grand jury. He may sign for trial and thus have his case more expeditiously disposed of.

NOTES OF THE GREAT CONVENTION.

The PRESS Delegate Writes of the Big Endeavor Meeting.

The New Jersey delegation of nearly 3,000 members to the eleventh international convention of the Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor met at the Hoffman House. M. M. Dunham, president of the Plainfield local union, was a prominent figure at that place, and when interviewed by the PRESS representative last evening said he had done a good day's work.

The programme of the day was as follows:

2:30—Prayer and praise service conducted by Edwin F. Sos, general secretary Young Men's Christian association, Brooklyn, N. Y.
3—New York city's welcome. Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., LL. D., pastor of the Church of the Strangers.
3:20—Brooklyn's welcome. Rev. Amzi Clarence Dixon, pastor of the Hanson Place Baptist church.
3:40—Singing.
5—Adjournment.

In the evening, from 7:30 until 8, a service of song and praise was conducted by R. B. Clark, Denver, Col., which was made particularly impressive by the vast number of voices engaged in the singing.

The space occupied by the New Jersey delegation was toward the rear end of the immense building, making it difficult for the speaker to be heard. The choir consisted of several hundred voices led by Ira D. Sankey, and the manner in which the singing was conducted, and the correct response by the enormous congregation of people on all sides, showed that only those of the highest education both in music and otherwise were sent as representatives to this the greatest of great religious conventions. At 8 o'clock the Rev. Henry T. McEwen, the presiding officer of the convention, spoke upon the immense growth of the society, which had been acquired seemingly without the knowlege of the outside world.

At 8:10 Secretary of State Foster made a short address and was greatly applauded. After the address by Mr. Foster, the choir and congregation sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee", Mr. Sankey singing the last verse as a solo.

The chairman introduced the Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., president of the union, at 8:25. Mr. Clark received so much applause that it was fully five minutes before he could be heard. In his address he dwelt principally on the origin of the society and the vast possibilities of the society.

After a service of song, J. W. Bashford, D. D., President of the Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, delivered the convention sermon.

This vicinity was largely represented, there being representatives from all the local unions. It is estimated over 200 Plainfielders were there.

The following are the representative delegates from Dunellen and New Market: Dunellen—The Rev. A. I. Martine, Miss Lucy Dunham, Miss Ella Dunham, Miss Maude Benton, Miss Peck, Miss Annie Titsworth, Miss Maggie Swackhamer, Mr. and Mrs. G. Elston Lowrie. New Market—Elmer Blackford, Miss Kate Coriell, Miss Irene Day, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Graves, Chas. Dayton, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Livermore.

The cars set aside for the Endeavorers on the trains coming out last night were well filled. In most of the trains a service of song was held all the way from Jersey City.

One of the Largest in the State.

[Newark Evening News.]

The Plainfield Press, a five-year-old daily, yesterday enlarged its sheet, and is now one of the largest dailies printed in New Jersey. J. A. Demarest is managing editor and Walter Irving Clarke city editor.

Used up. It's the only way to use some things, but it's a bad condition for a man or woman. It means disease. Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That means health. It invigorates the liver and kidneys, purifies the blood and cleanses and renews the whole system. For all scrofulous humors and blood-taints, and even consumption (or lung-scrofula), if taken in time, it's a positive remedy. It's a guaranteed one. In all diseases of the liver, blood and lungs, it's warranted to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded. No other medicine of its class is sold, through druggists, on this peculiar plan. You can judge why. You only pay for the good you get.

In other words, it's sold on trial.

No other medicine of its kind is.

And that proves that nothing else is "just as good" as the "Discovery."

The dealer is thinking of his profit, not of yours, when he urges something else.

Judge for yourself which is likely to be the better medicine.

My catarrh was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntary statement that others may know of the Balm. J. W. Mathewson, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

With Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

Safe, Sure and Speedy.

No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

FAMOUS OLD CHURCH.

The Sanctuary in Which the Father of His Country Worshiped.

Well-nigh in its original condition there stands at Alexandria, Va., one of the oldest and most interesting churches in this country, says the New York Herald. Its architect bore the name of Wren—not Sir Christopher, whose memory is perpetuated by St. Paul's cathedral, but a certain James Wren of some reputation. On February 1, 1765, by virtue of an act passed the previous year, the parish of Fairfax was divided from that of Truro, and in the same year a vestry of twelve gentlemen was elected. Col. George Washington was one of these. In November, 1766, the vestry ordered an assessment upon the parish of 31,185 pounds of tobacco to build two churches, one at Falls and the other at Alexandria. In the specifications for the latter, which James Parsons agreed to erect for £600, it was stipulated that the shingles were to be of the best juniper, three-quarters of an inch thick and eighteen inches long.

CHRIST CHURCH, ALEXANDRIA, VA.

the mortar for the outside walls to be two-thirds lime and one-third sand. The pediments were to be in the "Tuscan order," and the altar, pulpit and canopy in the "Ionic order." Parsons failed to complete the edifice, and the vestry made an agreement with Col. John Carlyle to finish it for an additional £300. The building was completed and turned over to the vestry February 27, 1773. The original dimensions were increased to admit of ten additional pews, Washington being the purchaser of No. 5 for £36 10s.

At this time many functions of a civil character were performed by the vestry, as the records show. In 1775, £2 10s was collected of Bryan Fairfax for "killing deer out of season," and Thomas Lewis paid 5 shillings for "hunting on the Sabbath." The vestry also provided for the poor, maintained the blind and lame, took charge of vagrants and buried the dead.

The first rector was Rev. Mr. Townsend Dade, who took charge on December 30, 1765. His salary was paid in tobacco, 17,280 pounds being allowed him, to which was subsequently added 2,500 pounds to compensate him for the lack of a parsonage. In 1773 a rectory or "Glebe House" was erected on a parcel of 500 acres bought of Daniel Jennings for 15 shillings an acre. To the parsonage was added a dairy, barn and meat and corn houses.

IT WAS YANKEE LAW.

And a Missouri Jury Decided That They Had No Use for It.

Soon after he began practice in Pike, along in 1868 or 1869, says the St. Louis Republic, Capt. Morrow was pitted against A. L. Loucks, of St. Louis, in a case before a justice of the peace up in Pike township. Morrow had no case, but he had what frequently is just as good—the closing speech. Loucks made a great display of reading the law from a lot of books he had with him. When Morrow's turn came he spoke about almost everything except the case, and wound up by saying:

"Gentlemen of the jury, Mr. Loucks couldn't find any Missouri law to back him up. He is a New Yorker, and all this stuff he has been reading was manufactured in New England. The book speaks for itself, and shows that it was published in Boston, Mass. Such highfalutin law may do for Yankees, who live on baked beans and codfish, but it is an insult to your intelligence to try to ram it down the throats of honest Missouri farmers. It won't do for this latitude—as I hope you will show by your verdict."

As most of the jury had spent considerable time in Gratiot Street prison and on Johnson's island, they agreed with Morrow and knocked Loucks and his client higher than Gilderoy's kite.

Rapid Locomotive Building.

Who would think, to look at a big railway locomotive, that it could by any possibility be put together in less than one day? A London paper states that the feat was accomplished at the Stratford works of the Great Eastern railway of England. The locomotive was a "standard freight locomotive of the six-coupled type, weighing more than thirty-seven tons and able to haul a load of 560 tons." From the driving of the first rivet to the application of the final coat of varnish the work occupied less than ten hours.

A GRAVE QUESTION.

Chairman Frick Talks of the Trouble in the Carnegie Mills.

PITTSBURG, July 8.—In an interview H. C. Frick, chairman of the Carnegie Steel Company, limited, said:

"The question at issue is a very grave one.

"It is whether the Carnegie Company or the Amalgamated Association shall have absolute control of our plant and business at Homestead.

"We have decided, after numerous fruitless conferences with the Amalgamated officials in the attempt to amicably adjust the existing difficulties, to operate the plant ourselves.

"I can say with the greatest emphasis that under no circumstances will we have any further dealings with the Amalgamated Association as an organization. This is final."

The Latest Style.

Old Mr. Clawhopper, who is very rich, recently went to a prominent New York carriage manufacturer and ordered a family carriage built specially for him.

"What style do you prefer?"

"I don't keer what style it is as long as it's the latest style."

"You will want armorial bearings on the panels."

"Certainly. I want to keep up with the procession."

"What armorial bearings am I to put on the panels?"

THE WOMAN OF FASHION

Follows the Black Fad That Now Reigns in Paris.

Some of the Black, and Black and White Gowns—The Hats They Wear with Them—Pretty Sunshades—The Girl in Pink Muslin.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

There's a black rage in Paris; it's the style to look as if you were in light mourning there, whether it's so or not. All the toilets one sees are black of some description, or black and white; that is, all but the hats. A woman may go out deeply and solemnly robed in a garment that one would surely suppose to be worn as a token of grief until one's eyes reached the headgear, when its light and brilliant coloring would immediately dispel the effect. They're not a bit consistent in gay Paris, else one might think they had at last reached a period of sobriety and common sense; that they had concluded to be more like their English sisters, and settle down in quieter and more subdued colors. But when a woman wears a black gown and a hat containing several colors of the rainbow in bright display, there is little foundation for the belief, after all.

A dress that has just come here from that city, one that will be worn by a gay city belle at a very quiet little watering place, is in soft foulard silk, of a big black and white and gray plaid; at least, the plain skirt is of this material. The long bodice is of black mousseline de soie, and is gathered in at the front in loose folds. The edge is scalloped all round with white. Down the front a double jabot of black and white chiffon, with a scallop the same as that at the edge of the bodice, is fastened, belted in by a sash that starts wide and high under the arms, and narrows off and ties in a stiff bow at the front. I had a peep at the hat, too, that is going to be worn with the dress, but it wasn't gay, as I expected it would be. It was just a very tiny, flat shape, covered with soft, gray lace, trimmed with black jet flowers and black ribbons.

And then I scanned a pretty black chantilly that was coming out at a dinner; it had a long silk over jacket that came way down over the lace skirt, but was open a little at the front to let the lace come through.

I saw another of black crepe—the soft, silky, flimsy kind—of princess cut, all fulled and gathered close into the left shoulder. Over it went a deep white collar of sheer batiste, edged with lace points.

TWO DAINTY SUNSHADES.

There's something about black that attracts one, and Americans are beginning to take up the French fad. There's nothing like gauzy black against an exquisitely fair skin, especially these summer evenings, and so the summer girl, knowing full well the value of looking her prettiest and most captivating in the warm season, speedily orders two or three thin black gowns among her summer wardrobe.

Even in the hot city one sees considerable of it. I saw a couple walking before me this morning that made a charming picture. The man was clad in a light, cool summer suit. The little woman by his side was gowned all in black, but she looked as cool and charming as if the thermometer had been sixty instead of ninety. She was a genuine Gretchen, sweet and plump and fair, with a faint color on her cheeks and a pure gold in her hair. Her dress was of black faille, made very simply, with deep black jet points at the edge of the skirt, the same deep points around the bodice's edge and also at the neck. But what was most attractive was her perfect neatness. Although her train was very long, there wasn't a speck of dust on it—she held it up so well—and I caught a glimpse underneat of a dainty, spotlessly white skirt—a most refreshing sight after our fussy silk ones. Her little russet ties matched her hair, and her black lace bonnet had faint blush roses standing up from it. The two looked so comfortable and so happy that I followed them a long time, watching them as they talked easily together, and catching the look of distress that came over her face when the lace of her tie loosened. She stopped right away to have it fastened, and I heard her say: "Tie it tight," as I passed them and went on, wishing all women would look as pretty and dress as quietly as this one.

Say, don't you love parasols? Even if you haven't the remotest idea of buying one, isn't it delightful to pick up a lot of the pretty things and open and close them with a snap, and hold them behind your head and admire yourself in the mirror as you twirl one, all puffs and ruffles, over your shoulder? It is nice to have one for every gown, but if that is out of the question, why, do the next best thing and pick out a pretty one that will harmonize with most anything. That is what a friend of mine asked me to do for her, to purchase a parasol that she could wear with all her summer gowns, and I stood and hesitated long before these two.

Number one—White chiffon ground, and over it, star-shaped, so as to cover almost all the ground, Irish point of exquisite pattern; jabots of chiffon running from center to edge at wide intervals; two short flounces of white chiffon; innumerable fine white ribbon loops in the center, on top of the stick; stick in cream, well thorned, with an onyx ball at the handle.

Number two—Black moire, all covered with black lace, put on like palm leaves; each palm leaf trimmed with a ruffle of crepe lisse around the whole parasol; the stick black bamboo, with fancy carved handle.

"Which of the two would you have chosen?"

I chose the white one at length, for I knew the maiden had a favorite dress that would doubtless be seen on many occasions, and that would look particularly well in connection with this white sunshade. The color of the dress is a pale pink, and its skirt has no train, for she wants to run over the shining sands without holding it up. It has a very deep ruffle of the same pink as the dress—a thin, fine muslin—headed by a closely-twisted muslin rope. At the belt is a narrow band of pale fawn velvet. The neck is cut in a rather low V, and a pretty lace fichu falls over the shoulders and knots itself carelessly in front. Her sleeves come only to the elbow and the lace ruffles do not bring them down very much farther, so that she looks cool and airy on the warmest of days. And when she shall raise that white sunshade over the pretty figure and take a stroll over summer piazza or green grass, there'll be no resisting her, I know. EVA A. SCHUBERT.

Could Retaliate.

Mother Simpson had sent to Boston, and bought a new "set of china." There it was, in its glory of white and gold, nobody knows how many pieces; enough, apparently, to set a table for "all the king's men."

"But don't it seem a sinful waste, sister?" asked her brother's wife, who was still using her old "mulberry pattern." "You're gettin' along in years, an' you won't need no chiny long."

"I may not need it long, but I need it now, an' I have needed it for forty years," returned Mother Simpson, stoutly. "You don't know how I've been cramped, Laviny!"

"Well, I don't jestly see how," said Laviny. "You've al'ays set your table, an' eat off on't, an' that's all any on us do."

"Set my table! Yes, but have I ever give a tea-party? Now, Laviny Edwards, have I? I've been invited out over'n over again, an' now I can retaliate!"—Youth's Companion.

Confined for a Defense.

"Ah, can I hope, Viola?" said the young lover.

"There is no apparent reason, Mr. Hamilton," responded the fair maid, severely, "why you are entirely incapable of hoping as you would seem to imply by the use of the auxiliary verb 'can.' But if, as I infer, you meant to make your interrogation in the potential mood and inquire whether you may hope, I should say no, you may not."—Chicago News.

"Great heavens! Ate eight cucumbers? I should think she would be ill."—Texas Siftings.

A supply, fresh from England, has just been received by GEORGE W. ROCKFELLOW, Plainfield, N. J. 4-30-y.

Good Old Fashioned Gingerbread.

1 cup molasses, 1 teaspoonful soda,
1 " sugar, 1 " cinnamon,
1 " butter, 1 tablespoonful ginger,
1 " sour or butter milk, 2 eggs.

Almost 5 cups of flour—work in four, then add cautiously. Stir butter, sugar, molasses and spice together to a light cream. Warm slightly on range. Beat eggs well, then add to the warmed mixture, milk, eggs, soda, and last flour. Beat very hard—for 10 minutes and bake at once in loaf or small tins.

HOMESTEAD PASSES A QUIET DAY

Peace and Calm Succeed the Din of War and Exciting Night Alarms.

BUT THE TROUBLE SEEMS NO NEARER ADJUSTMENT THAN EVER.

ARMED MEN ARE STILL ON GUARD.

Highways to and from Homestead and the Banks of the Monongahela River Patrolled by Squads of Determined Men. Strangers Stopped and Questioned—Sheriff McCleary Holds a Conference With Citizens of the Town With No Satisfactory Results—Believed That the Sheriff Knew of the Intention of the Pinkerton Men to Take Possession of the Works. The Harrisburg Conference—Carnegie Enjoys Himself—Adheres to His Determination Not to be Interviewed—Offers of Assistance—Philadelphia Labor Associations Hold an Open Air Meeting and Denounce the Action of the Carnegie Company—Homestead's Trouble May Cause a General Strike in New York—Colorado Wants No More Pinkertons.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 9.—This has been a day of quiet, marked by no unusual incidents to disturb its peace, but the troubles which caused the tragedy of Wednesday are seemingly as far from adjustment as ever.

Under the excellent leadership of their prominent associates, the locked out workmen have maintained a quiet attitude, but beneath the surface of their calm demeanor a rigid determination exists and the men are ready to meet any emergency that confronts them.

The highways to and from Homestead and the banks of the Monongahela river are patrolled by squads of men.

Strangers are stopped and questioned and made to give good accounts of themselves.

An unusual feature of the trouble is that the town of Homestead is more quiet and orderly than it is when nothing of an exciting nature is in the wind.

Taking the advice of their leaders the men have kept indoors all day.

No unusual gatherings are seen except at the railway station and the crossings at train time. No loud talking is heard on the streets; no rabid utterances are indulged in; all is quiet as a Sunday calm.

This is the situation in a nutshell.

The most important event of this day of uncertainty, other than the meeting at the rink, was the conference held between Sheriff McCleary of Allegheny county and a committee of citizens of Homestead.

The sheriff had been invited to meet this committee and endeavor to affect some arrangement for the prevention of further trouble. He arrived in Homestead late in the evening and met the committee.

Twenty men had promised to be at the meeting, but less than half this number were present. They told the sheriff that he would agree to put a sufficient number of reputable citizens in the Carnegie works as a guarantee for their protection from violence if Mr. Frick and other persons interested would also go there.

The sheriff gave no promises, and went back to Pittsburg.

On his way to the station he was stopped by a saloon keeper and asked why it was necessary to keep all the saloons closed.

The argument between McCleary and the saloon keeper attracted quite a crowd, which grew so large that a policeman was obliged to disperse it.

The meagre attendance at the conference with the sheriff was due, it is believed, to a suspicion that has grown to almost general proportions in Homestead, that McCleary is not disposed to deal fairly with the locked-out men.

It is openly stated by some of the workingmen that they believed McCleary was awaiting his opportunity of creating more trouble in order to turn the trend of popular sympathy from the strikers.

The harsh feeling against him is intensified, however, by the suspicion that the sheriff knew of the intention of the Pinkerton men to take possession of the Carnegie plant.

The name Pinkerton to the locked-out workers is like the waving of a red flag in front of a bull, and in their eyes a man cannot commit a greater sin than have connection with the hated name.

A rumor has gained currency that Capt. Bob Pinkerton was in Homestead for a few hours.

He is reported to be in Pittsburg, and the man to whom his name was applied created some excitement by drawing a revolver on a newspaper reporter.

Conservative men do not believe that Pinkerton would take his life in his own hands without reason, for he would do so by coming to Homestead.

The feeling against him here is so strong that the coolest heads would hardly have influence enough with the excited people to keep him from bodily harm.

The statement made by Secretary Lovejoy of the Homestead Works that he with two other officials was prevented from entering the Carnegie property, is denied by several of the men prominently connected with the strike; that is to say, their denial extends to a statement that no orders were issued to prevent any of those connected with the works from entering the property, and they hardly think it would have been applied to Mr. Lovejoy if he had made himself known.

During the night O'Donnell, with three of the local leaders, were in Harrisburg conferring with Gov. Pattison as to the troubles. It is understood that they importuned him not to call out the State troops until every other means to prevent violence is exhausted.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

ANGRY PINKERTONS.

Did Not Want Their Names Given Out for Publication.

PITTSBURG, July 9.—At the West Penn Hospital some sharp remarks took place between Superintendent Cowan and two men connected with the Pinkerton agency, who came here to arrange for the removal of the wounded Pinkerton men.

The Pinkerton men were incensed because the names of the injured Pinkertons had been made public.

"Was there any objection to their names being given out for publication?" inquired Superintendent Cowan.

"Yes, there was a lot of objection. We don't want to be made monkeys of," said the Pinkerton man.

"Here, here, that kind of talk will not do," said Superintendent Cowan. "I want no such language in this building. By giving out those names I simply did my duty. It is a matter of public information. Some of your men have already died and there are others who will likely not recover."

Mr. Cowan was informed that arrangements had been made with the railroad company for the removal of the injured men to their homes.

After leaving the hospital the men were accosted by a reporter and asked if they were connected with the Pinkerton agency.

"What is that your G—— d—— business?" said one of the men.

"I simply asked the question for information," repiled the reporter.

"You're one of those d—— newspaper reporters, and if you don't make tracks d—— quick I'll blow your d—— head off."

He thrust his hand into his hip pocket and partly drew some weapon.

Dr. Murdock, a hospital surgeon, witnessed the act and called to the man to hold. The detective replaced his weapon and the two men strted in the direction of 29th street, where they boarded a car for the city.

CARNEGIE ENJOYS HIMSELF.

He Still Adheres to His Refusal to be Interviewed.

LONDON, July 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Miss Whitfield and Mr. Armitage have left Braemar, Aberdeenshire, with a splendidly equipped four-in-hand.

They are on their way to summer quarters at Loch Rannoch, in Perthshire, one of the most charming spots in Scotland, and not far from the scene of the battle of Killiecrankie, which the party, it is said, will take an opportunity to visit.

The air, as the party got on the coach, was delightful, and the highland scenery looked its best.

Mr. Carnegie had evidently got over the agitation which affected him yesterday, and seemed much brighter when accosted by a correspondent.

Mr. Carnegie adhered to his refusal to be interviewed on the subject of the Homestead tragedy, and declined even to say whether he had heard of the struggle and loss of life. There is no doubt, however, that he has.

He chatted pleasantly with Mrs. Carnegie and Mr. Armitage as the coach rolled away, pointing out to them memorable spots in the Braes o'Mar.

The laughter of the party at some jocular remark could be heard as the four-in-hand rolled away in the direction of Blairgowrie.

OFFERS OF ASSISTANCE.

Armed Men Ready to Aid the Strikers at Homestead.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 9.—A tall, burly man carrying a rifle strode wearily into Homestead at daybreak and inquired for the Amalgamated headquarters.

When questioned by a reporter, he said:

"I am from Jones & McLaughlin's mill; there are about 100 more out in the brush at Six-Mile Ferry, waiting to march into town. They are armed, and we have come to relieve the men here who have been watching for days without sleep. The South Side mill workers will never forsake the Homestead men."

And this is but one instance of the proffers of assistance.

In the evening twenty men arrived from Wheeling. They were well supplied with money and side arms, and assured the men of Homestead that they were a delegation from 1,000 workmen of the Ohio valley, all of whom were ready at a moment's notice to come here and fight.

NINE TIMES MARRIED

Record of Mr. and Mrs. Crandall in Eight Years.

NOW SHE LOOKS FOR A DIVORCE.

The Husband a Preacher Who Has Had the Ceremony Performed Again and Again, Because He Thought Each One Not Strictly Formal—Want Another One.

PROVIDENCE, July 9.—The Divorce Court records here will soon receive a very peculiar petition from Mrs. Sadie Crandall, the wife of the Rev. Walter Crandall, a Michigan minister, who will contest the separation.

Mrs. Crandall has taken the initial steps to secure an absolute divorce. She is 32 years old, and a prepossessing woman.

She has been married nine times within eight years, the preacher being her first and also ninth husband. He is also her second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth husband.

According to the statement of the petitioner, Mr. Crandall is a marriage maniac. Owing to this matrimonial mania, Mrs. Crandall says her married life has been a long and harrowing honeymoon.

This remarkable couple were first married in Lansing, Mich., according to the forms of the Methodist Church.

The Old World was selected for the honeymoon tour, and while in Dublin the clergyman told his bride he thought their marriage was not ecclesiastically perfect because the parson who united them had not been ordained by the Apostolic imposition of hands.

He held that this was absolutely necessary, and he made arrangements for another marriage in St. Patrick's Cathedral in Dublin.

Mrs. Crandall considered her husband over scrupulous, but she assented to the second ceremony, and there was another marriage.

Mr. Crandall then learned that St. Patrick's had once been a Catholic cathedral, that the mass had been sung there, and that the cathedral had not been dedicated since it ceased to be used for Roman Catholic worship.

This omission the preacher held to be fatal, and another marriage was ordered.

Then he forced her to be married on board ship by a Presbyterian preacher, Rev. Giles Knight.

Attendance at one of Col. Ingersoll's lectures convinced him that this was illegal, for there he heard John Calvin denounced.

Marriages by Unitarians, Baptists, Spiritualists and Swedenborgians followed, and then a year ago the wife, weary with the long record of marriages to the same man, left him and removed to this city, where she is now looking for a divorce.

She has recently had letters from her husband telling her that he has ascertained that a Congregational marriage is the only one that has the endorsement of Heaven, and that if she will only consent to a marriage in the Congregational Church he will forgive her flight and promise that this shall positively be the last nuptials that he will ask her to participate in.

Will Demand Indemnity.

ROME, July 9.—The Italian Minister at Rio Janeiro has been ordered to ask for complete satisfaction for the outrages at Santos on the sailors of the Mentana, the satisfaction to include indemnity to the families of the victims. No vessel of war will be sent to enforce the demand.

Ignited the Petroleum Gas.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 9.—James Helm, manager of the Standard Radiator Works, was instantly killed in the morning by the explosion of petroleum gas which had accumulated in the boiler and which he ignited with a lamp while about to inspect the interior of the boiler.

Cleveland's Private Secretary.

BOSTON, July 9. — Robert Lincoln O'Brien, of the reporters' staff of the "Transcript," has just received an appointment as private secretary to ex-President Cleveland, and will at once enter upon the performance of his duties at Gray Gables, Buzzards Bay.

Died of Sporadic Cholera.

CINCINNATI, July 9.—Isaac Edward, aged 66, a retired commission merchant of Hartwell, died of sporadic cholera after an illness of 36 hours. The two physicians who attended Mr. Edward agreed that the symptoms were unmistakably those of the disease.

Two Death Warrants Signed.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 9.—Governor Pattison has signed the death warrants of William Kack, convicted of murder in Lehigh county, and Henry Davis, convicted of murder in Philadelphia county. Both executions will take place on Thursday, September 8.

Cholera Ravages.

VIENNA, July 9.—The ravages of the cholera are causing a terrible panic among the lower classes in southeastern Russia. At Astrakhan a large number of workingmen got so afraid of catching the disease that they became demoralized and went on strike, refusing to work any longer. The police tried to drive them back to work. A fierce conflict ensued, and the troops were called out to aid the police. The workingmen resisted the military, who fired, killing five and wounding thirty of the rioters. Two policemen were fatally wounded, and have since died. The riot was suppressed, and martial law proclaimed.

AN OPEN AIR MEETING.

Philadelphia Labor Associations Condemn the Action of the Carnegie Co.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—Local labor associations held an open air meeting on the City Hall plaza at night as an outcome of the Homestead affair.

Resolutions were adopted declaring that the Carnegie Steel Company and other manufacturers in Pennsylvania and in every State in the Union have heaped up millions of dollars at the expense of the people and at a fearful cost to the consumers of the entire country.

The moneyed kings and monopolists, in utter disregard of the interests of the whole people, have created private standing armies of Pinkerton hirelings and cut-throats to overawe the workers into submission.

Strikes are forced on the working people as a measure of self-defense, and in the past there has been little or no protective legislation in their behalf and there will be none in the future, unless they organize to protect themselves and combine to use their brains and ballots for their own advancement.

It was further resolved that the citizens assembled, regardless of political party, declare themselves in hearty sympathy with the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel workers at Homestead and in this city.

STARTLING RUMOR.

Said That the Strikers Will Eventually Resort to the Use of Dynamite.

PITTSBURG, July 9.—A startling rumor, which cannot be vouched for, is current that the Homestead strikers are determined to make the events at that place as costly as possible before they will acknowledge defeat.

The report is that several South Side men who are thoroughly informed as to the manner of handling dynamite effectively, have been employed to act when an emergency comes.

It is said that the strikers will not permit injury to the Carnegie mills until they have exhausted other means of defense.

The last step will be the use of dynamite.

As soon as an armed force appears on the ground, either deputy sheriffs or the militia, it is asserted that the dynamiters will be prepared to hurl bombs into the mill, and an effort will be made to destroy the entire plant.

THE HARRISBURG CONFERENCE.

A Valuable Book Turned Over to the Adjutant-General's Department.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 9.—Hugh O'Donnell, ex-Representative John Cox, Dr. John Purman and G. W. Sarver, the committee from Homestead arrived at 10:30.

As soon as the delegation put in appearance they were closeted with the Governor and Attorney-General Hensel.

Nothing could be gotten for some time.

One of the members of the committee turned over to the Adjutant-General's Department a valuable book found on one of the barges which contains all the names of the Pinkerton men, their plans of organization and contracts under which they were working.

A desperate effort was made to obtain a glimpse of the contents, but Major Woman, who had possession of the work, refused all requests.

A GENERAL STRIKE.

Homestead's Strike May Bring New York Iron Workers Out.

NEW YORK, July 9.—From the very inside of the labor element in this city, as gleaned this morning, and from the iron workers in particular, everything points to a general strike in this city within the next ten days unless matters at Homestead, Pa., are satisfactorily settled.

Every precaution has been taken to keep the actual facts in the matter quiet, but it has become known, nevertheless, that such a state of affairs exists.

The success of the strikers at Homestead has won the sympathy of all wage workers in this city, and the general opinion is that the Homestead men should be supported and given aid.

The Coroner Will Investigate.

PITTSBURG, July 9.—Coroner McDowell announces that just as soon as peace is restored in Homestead he will begin an investigation into the riots of last Wednesday. He is determined that no effort shall be lost sight of that may in any way lead to the detection of any one that may furnish evidence leading to the cause of the first outbreak.

Would Not Renew Their License.

DENVER, Col., July 9.—Gov. Routt has refused to renew the license of the Pinkertons. The use of the Pinkertons at the Crested Butte strike and the Burlington strike aroused the feelings of the Colorado workmen against their employment in this State. It is said that the Pinkertons will make another attempt to have the license renewed.

Signed the Scale.

PITTSBURG, July 9.—Word has been received at the Amalgamated Association headquarters here that Carnegie, Phipps & Co.'s mill at Beaver Falls, Pa., the New Albany Rail Mill Co., New Albany, Ind., and the Nixdorff-Wein Company of St. Louis have signed the scale.

Robbed the Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—Timekeeper H. H. Cain and Chief Clerk John A. Reid, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, have been detected in altering the payrolls and mulcting the company out of several thousand dollars. Reid had control of the payrolls. When a man would have but two or three days in a month coming to him because of having been laid off or for some other reason they would credit him with from ten to twenty days that he was not entitled to and get him to sign the roll for the entire amount and then pay him but the rightful sum. Warrants were sworn out for their arrest.

Would Like to Meet Fitzsimmons.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—Martin Costello arrived from Australia by the steamer Alameda. Costello is an American middleweight pugilist, who has been in Australia over five years, during which time he met with defeat but once, in a fight with Slavin. He is ready to meet any middleweight, Fitzsimmons preferred.

IT IS CHOLERA ABOUT PARIS.

Nature of the Epidemic Has Been Mistakenly Concealed.

LONDON, July 8.—A dispatch from Paris to the "Lancet," the authority on British medical journal, says:

Already 150 deaths prove the character of the cholera epidemic here.

The official Council of Hygiene makes a mistake in concealing the facts and resorting to the feeble stratagem of secrecy.

The "Lancet" adds that there is no disguising the great extent of the epidemic which is prevailing in twenty-four communes and the suddenness of the deaths.

The "Lancet" concludes: It is cholera, not cholerine.

CHICAGO, July 9.—C. A. Norton, receiver of the Georgia & Alabama Investment & Development Company, is in the city to confer with the hundreds of local people who were induced to take stock in the concern. He attributes the failure of the company to reckless extravagance and believes that if the stockholders will liquidate the indebtedness of $200,000 more the concern can be put on a sound footing.

—A decided cut in prices has been made at Lederer's, 9 West Front street, where the great bargains in millinery are attracting all the women.

—Great meetings may be expected at the Salvation Army barracks to-morrow. Capt. Tickner will be in town to assist Capt. March and Lieut. Russell.

—It is not often that you have the opportunity to buy for 29 cents neckwear that is worth 50 cents and 75 cents. Hallock & Davis offer you that opportunity to-day.

—A class in French is now being formed at the summer school of languages at Harned academy, 187 Park avenue, where private lessons also are given in French and German.

—W. H. Rogers says it is a mistaken impression that he furnished the two silver medals for to-day's bicycle race. He furnished only first prize, which is a gold medal; the silver medals are given by the committee.

—The last issue of the Real Estate Review contains an account of a scheme to connect the towns along the Central railroad by electric railway. The Garwood company, of which THE PRESS had something to say the other day, is reported as interested in the project.

—It seems not to have been lack of steam that prevented the blowing of the fire-gong yesterday noon. There was steam enough, but some of the apparatus was being overhauled, and the clock was for a short time disconnected. The long blow in the afternoon was caused by a test.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. Milton Craft will preach at Grace church to-morrow.

The family of H. G. Bunkle are at the Maplewood Hotel, Maplewood, N. H.

Chief clerk George Godown of the post-office, who has been quite ill for a few days, is much better.

Miss Julia E. Bulkley bade farewell to Plainfield to-day. She will sail for Europe soon, after a visit among friends in other places.

Miss Georgie Kelly left Plainfield for her New York home to-day, after enjoying a ten days' visit with Miss Emma Havens, of Plainfield avenue.

Thomas U. Smith, of Westervelt avenue, and his friend Charles Rice, are spending their vacation at Glen Cove, L. I. The Misses Mabel and Elsie Smith left this morning for the same place.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Colfot, of Centreville, Ia., arrived last evening on a B. & O. train, and are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George L. VanEmburgh of East Second street. Mr. Colfat is Mrs. VanEmburgh's brother.

George W. Demeza, of Jackson & Codington's law-office, sailed from New York this afternoon on the steamship Comal, for an extended visit among Texan wilds. His headquarters will be Graham, Young county, Texas.

Daniel L. Stevens, Charles B. Corwin of this city, and Edward H. Coffey, composing the firm of Stevens, Corwin & Co., exporters and importers of general merchandise and commission merchants at No. 140 Pearl street, New York, have made an assignment without preferences.

On Thursday and Friday past the entry and handicap committees in charge of this afternoon's 20-mile bicycle race, have sent to the papers for publication lists of contestants including the name of M. A. Haven. This has been done through carelessness as the committees know that Mr. Haven is not a competitor being too closely confined in charge of the large business he has built up in this city for the Swift Beef company. Mr. Haven contributed his fee towards the race out of pure generosity because of the interest he takes in the encouragement of bicycling. But he unfortunately has not the time to enjoy it himself.

Cases in Somerset's Court.

The court of common pleas sat in Somerville yesterday morning to dispose of the prisoners who have been filling-up the jail since the spring term. Judges Bartine, Jamison and TenEyck were on the bench. Four accused ones were disposed of, the rest asking that they might wait until the September term.

Prosecutor Steele came into court arrayed in all the glory of a light summer suit. James Duyer, of Bound Brook, was the first man to face the bench. It seems that James, last August, had some difficulty with a Hebrew gentleman by the name of Fogel. An indictment was found against Duyer last fall, but he had skipped. When he came home last week to spend the Fourth, the officers nabbed him and brought him to Somerville. Duyer has a great pull politically in Bound Brook and had no difficulty in getting bail in the person of J. A. Ballantine, an aspirant for congressional honors. The bail was renewed and James will go free until September.

Abraham Crossley, a negro, was accused of stealing a watch, but the story he told was so good that the court suspended sentence.

Daniel Lovering plead not guilty to a charge of assault, and John E. Smith of Benards township, did likewise upon a charge of assault and rape. Smith broke down and wept when he found that his lawyers were not ready to proceed in his behalf. He firmly expected to be released. His accuser, Emma Dortman, was in court and most anxious to send poor Smith up for the full term—fifteen years. She is said to be only sixteen years old, but looks very large for her age. Smith wants to marry the girl, but she won't have him. She asks for five hundred dollars damages.

EXTRA!

THE BICYCLE ROAD RACE.

PIKE'S TIME THE BEST.

But Burns, Stover and Gotthell Are First Three to Cross the Line.

A great crowd of people witnessed the Plainfield bicycle race from the Richmond street starting-point this afternoon.

There was intense excitement. Owing to falls, punctured tires, and other accidents, a number did not enter or dropped out soon after starting.

A. C. Wyckoff's leg gave out on the road and he had to lie down by the roadside and send for assistance.

Wm. Ralston's tire burst, and he lost 12 minutes returning and having a borrowed wheel adjusted.

James E. Murray ran over a dog, had a terrible fall, and was so painfully injured as to be forced to drop out.

Harry Yarnall rode a good gaining race.

Pike saved himself for the homestretch, and then fairly flew over the course, passing many competitors.

Each man's handicap was given to him at the start, so as to avoid complicated calculation at the finish.

Curt Gotthell, 1, and A. E. Stover, 3, started at 2:16.

S. C. Crane, 4, A. C. Wyckoff, 6, and Thomas Burns, 7, started at 2:17.

C. H. Burt, 8, Charles Vandeever, 9, (colored), and John Rafferty, 10, started at 2:10.

W. W. Nicholson, 11, William Ralston, 12, V. H. Yarnall, 13, and James E. Murray, 14, started at 2:20.

A. Titsworth, 16, and Wm. Ahlgreen, 17, started at 2:21.

N. R. Titsworth, 18, and Charles R. Maltby, 19, started at 2:22.

J. S. Pike, 21, and Warren A. Clapp, 23, started at 2:24.

Geo. Mahon, 24, and A. T. Hinrichs, 26, scratch men, started at 2:26.

Those who held out to the end finished as follows:

	Time of finish	Actual time
7—Thos. Burns	3:26:45	1.9.45
3—A. E. Stover	3:27:11	1.11.11

Burns, Stover and Gotthell get the medals for place.

Pike gets the time medal by a margin of 2 seconds.

THE SCHOOL-BOY PRIZES.

THE DAILY PRESS medal for the best time by a school-boy goes to Hinrichs. Crane gets the second school-boy prize.

The race was 20 miles. It was over at 3:45.

TROUBLE OVER DOG ACCOUNTS.

Only One Exciting Feature in a Tedious Council Session.

The Plainfield common council was in session from 8:20 to 9:50, last evening, but did nothing of great importance. Those present were Messrs. Bird, Case, Freezee, Gallup, Ginna, Johnston, See and Weber. A large number of bills were ordered paid, but the bills of the dog-catcher and pound-master were left unsettled for investigation. The dog-catcher reported 47 dogs impounded for the month, and the pound-master had 67 reported. Then, too, the dog-catcher asked for $38 for killing 19 dogs not taken to the pound, which the councilmen contended he had no right to do. The whole account was very much muddled.

Wm. Kitchen was made pound-master, vice Edward Apgar, resigned.

A letter was received from Craig A. Marsh, announcing his departure on his annual vacation, and stating that Charles A. Reed would serve as corporation counsel in his absence. The borrowing of $3,000 in anticipation of taxes, for general purposes, was authorized.

An ordinance to change the name of North Richmond street to Norwood avenue was introduced and tabled.

The Peace street project was laid over till August.

A MADMAN FIGHTS TWO WOMEN.

Special Marshal Lewis Sprague Twice Arrested for Murderous Assault on His Wife and Daughter.

Lewis Sprague, a special marshal over the brook, will be tried before justice Grosley at 8 this evening, on the charge of attempting to murder his wife and daughter.

Sprague was arrested Thursday for alleged wife-beating, was released on bail, and was to have been tried on that charge last night, but before the hour for trial he was again a prisoner for a second offense.

Yesterday afternoon he drove his wife and daughter out of the house and chased them into a vacant lot, threatening with every breath to kill them. He caught up with the fleeing women, knocked them down, and was beating them unmercifully when Jeremiah Rowe, a stalwart butcher, appeared. Rowe had been working in a neighboring slaughter-house, and came forth in response to the women's shrieks. After a sharp tussle he overpowered Sprague, who was later taken charge of by marshal Pangborn and locked up. The women were painfully but not seriously injured, and will be able to appear against the prisoner to-night. Sprague is believed to be insane.

New Bridge for Putnam Avenue.

The committee on the Putnam avenue bridge, Plainfield, reported to the board of freeholders, Thursday, that the waterway is too narrow to carry off the water, and recommended that an iron beam bridge be built of sufficient capacity at a cost not to exceed $2,500. The recommendation was adopted.

SAID THEY WERE OLD SINNERS.

Plainfield Delegates Have a Good Laugh Over Chauncey Depew's Humor.

[FROM OUR OWN SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, July 9.—The delegates at the big Christian Endeavor convention were still more numerous yesterday than Thursday, and although much fatigueing work was imposed upon many of them, they all seemed to be on hand as vigorous as ever, and as bright as though they had just arrived from a long rest. The delegation from New Jersey seemed to have increased largely, as their allotted space was filled long before the time for public admission was granted, and in the evening no opportunity at all was given to outsiders; in fact, the chief of police was obliged to protest against the crowded aisles, and threatened to close the garden unless some means were taken to seat those standing in the passage-ways.

The programme was of a similar character to that of the previous day, and was as follows:

6:30 a. m.—Prayer meeting conducted by C. L. Stevens, Ypsilanti, Mich., corresponding secretary of the Michigan Christian Endeavor Union.

7:15—Adjournment.

9—Prayer and Bible reading.

9:10—Pastor's Hour conducted by the Rev. Benjamin B. Taylor, D. D., pastor of the Church of Disciples of Christ New York city, in which the following representative pastors took part: The Revs. H. O. Breeden, LL. D., of DesMoines, Ia., Levi Rees, of Indianapolis, Ind., L. F. John, of Johnstown, Pa., R. M. Somerville, of New York city, Alpha G. Kynett, Philadelphia, Pa., J. E. Clark, of Nashville, Tenn., J. F. Cowan, of Pittsburgh, Pa., J. B. Thomas, of Topeka, Kan., J. H. Weber, D. D., of Sunbury, Pa., Anderson Rogers, of Windsor, N. S., A. M. Phillips, of Toronto, Ont., C. E. Dawman, D. D., of Savannah, Ga., and many others, including Southern Presbyterian, African Methodist Episcopal, etc.

At 10:10 there was singing, after which came the roll-call of states, territories and provincial unions, conducted by secretary J. W. Bear. After further singing, an able address was deliver by Joseph Cook, of Boston, on "Watch-Words of the Twentieth Century". The meeting was then adjourned until 2, when the session was opened by prayer and Bible reading. At 2:10 the Rev. W. C. Bitting, pastor of the Mount Morris Baptist church New York, took charge, and conducted "Free Parliament." At 3 a paper on Junior Christian Endeavor was read by Mrs. Francis E. Clark, Auburndale, Mass. At 3:20 an "open meeting" was enjoyed, conducted by Miss Kate H. Haus, of St. Louis, Mo.

At about 4 the announcement by the chairman that the Rev. Sumantrao Vishner Karmakar, of Bombay, India, would address the great congregation on Christian Endeavor for India", caused much applause; after the address, Jue Hawk, of St. Louis, Mo., spoke on "Christian Endeavor for China". Next Thomas E. Besolow of Bendoo Liberia, W. Africa, gave a very able address on "Christian Endeavor for Africa", which very much impressed the audience.

The evening service opened as usual with prayer and praise, conducted by L. F. Lindsay, of St. Louis, Mo., after which the vast audience read the 103rd Psalm, led by the Rev. Dr. Blank, of Marshall, Mo.

A number of telegrams of congratulations to the society were read, among which was one from Mrs. Margaret Maltone, from the order of King's Daughters.

At 8:05 the Hon. John Wanamaker was introduced by the chairman, as a trustee of the United Society. He received great applause; the Pennsylvania quarter in the convention was particularly enthusiastic.

Mr. Wanamaker spoke of the great advance the society had made, and of the grand principles on which it was based, and the great influence it had upon the young. During his address Mr. Wanamaker was applauded many times.

One of the delegates from Missouri arose and said that the representatives from his State requested Ira D. Sankey to sing "The Ninety and Nine". Mr. Force did so with much of his old-time force, to the great delight of the vast congregation.

New Jersey was particularly pleased over this part of the programme, and applauded greatly.

The Hon. John Wanamaker introduced the Rev. Russell H. Conwell, D. D., L.L. D., pastor of the Grace Temple Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Rev. Mr. Conwell made a very able address upon "The Christian Endeavor Society's Place in Modern Religious Life". He presented many very strong arguments, and, although greatly to his distaste, he was loudly applauded.

At this juncture an addition was made to the programme in the shape of a short speech by the Hon. Chauncey Depew. The audience were greatly pleased, and applauded him vociferously. He was inclined to joke in his remarks, and at one time referred to himself and Mr. Wanamaker as "old sinners". He said New York was sweeter and fresher than ever before with so many sweet country girls here. He said it was the means of bringing all the dudes back from the shore.

The last speaker was the Hon. W. C. P. Breckenridge, of Louisville, Ky., who delivered a very able address on "The Age and Its Possibilities".

The New Jersey delegation either got tired of hotel life or were so infatuated with the meeting that they remained away all day. M. M. Dunham, chairman at the New Jersey headquarters, had not been there during the afternoon or evening except to estimate the number as nearly as possible; he would say there were about 75 from Plainfield.

From Dunellen there were A. I. Martine, Mrs. Annie Abbott, Miss Maude Benton, and Miss Annie Titsworth; and Mr. Powlison, of Powlison & Jones, was among the Plainfield delegates.

Painless and Harmless.

The bugbear about getting rid of a troublesome and good-for-nothing tooth has always been the dreadful pain that parting causes, and he is one of man's greatest benefactors who discovered the secret of harmless and painless extraction. That valuable secret is now in the possession of Dr. C. R. Thiers, who, by the use of his famous anæsthetic, extracts teeth absolutely without pain and with no evil or unpleasant after-effects.

THAT COUNTY SEWER PROJECT.

A Main Pipe Line Proposed to Run from Plainfield Along the Jersey Central to Newark Bay.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

A plan for constructing a trunk sewer along the line of the Central railroad from Plainfield to Staten Island sound is talked of again. A committee of the common council and of citizens of Plainfield have for several months past been trying to devise a plan to provide a sewer system for that city; but as yet no definite action has been taken. The question of an outlet seems to be a troublesome one. The suggestion of going to the Raritan river is not favorably received for the reason that such an outlet would not likely be permanent. It is said that a trunk sewer sufficient to dispose of the sewage of Plainfield and of the towns along the line of the Central railroad for several years to come could be constructed at a cost of ten or twelve thousand dollars a mile and that the expense of building it might be divided in some such way as the cost of the county roads was apportioned. Having secured an outlet to tide-water each town could then construct its lateral sewers in its own way. It would be necessary to pump the sewage of Plainfield as far as Fanwood; but sewage collected east of that point would run to tide-water by gravity. It is said that the Central Railroad company and the Land Improvement company, and other parties having large property interests along the line of the railroad favor the plan of constructing such a trunk sewer to aid in the development of the villages as places of residence.

The people of Roselle are very much concerned on the subject, especially since Van Court Inn was closed for the reason that no outlet for drainage could be obtained. At Cranford some forty or fifty private houses drain into the river and notice has recently been served on the owners of the property by the water commissioners of Rahway that the practice must cease, as it pollutes the city's source of water supply.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

A PLAINFIELD WOMAN ACCUSED

DICK WESTON OF ENGLAND SAYS SHE IS A BIGAMIST.

He Claims to Have Followed Her Across Continents and Seas, and Finds Her Married to Another Man, in a Happy and Prosperous Plainfield Home—The Woman Says Weston's a Bad Blackmailing Fraud, and Dares Him to Meet Her Present Husband.

Richard Weston of England has for months been journeying about the globe in search of his runaway wife, and claims to have found her living in Plainfield the bigamous consort of another man.

Weston is a short man of heavy build, with a carelessly-drooping black mustache, ruddy cheeks, a bright eye, and a ready tongue. When he landed in Plainfield, Thursday morning, he was clad in broad-striped coat and vest that fitted him as close and trim as a swallow's feathers cling to the bird, and a loose English coat hanging in wrinkled folds from his shoulders. He was as jolly-looking and stout as a tobacconist's figure of Punch, and he presented an oval, swelling front as rotund and funny as a fat red-breasted robin's, and his legs tapered gradually down like a swallow's tail.

Quite apparent to the keen eye of an American observer was the fact that Mr. Weston was of a convivial nature. There were already evidences that he had sought solace from his griefs in drink, when he had been in Plainfield but an hour, but after a time he resolutely turned his back on the saloons, fished up a short-stemmed black-bowled pipe from the depths of a capacious coat-pocket, crammed it with tobacco, and, smoking vigorously, wandered meditatively about the streets, gradually trending his steps in the direction of the English colony in the neighborhood of the big machine shops in the southwestern section of the city. He had been making sly inquiries among boon companions, and though there was liquor on his brain he was keenly alive to the consciousness of what he was about.

Near Grant avenue, on South Second street, he found a thrifty shoe-shop kept by Adam Young, a sharp-eyed little man, bristling with business.

The shoemaker was hard at work in a small room at the rear of the store, seated on a cushioned box, plying awl and needle rapidly, and pulling away vigorously at waxed threads meant to hold stout leather together.

The Englishman took an easy pose in a convenient doorway, smoked his pipe leisurely, and made casual comments about the weather, the town, and the neighborhood. The shoemaker had been some time alone, and was glad of the chance for a chat.

It was a report that Mrs. Henry Corless, a sister of his erring wife, was living in Plainfield, that had brought him to the Crescent city in hopes of chance tidings of the missing spouse. Therefore the question:

"Meester Yuung, doos thee naow the name awf Corless 'ereaboats?"

"Oh, yes"—said the shoemaker.—There had been a Mrs. Corless living right near by, on Pond place. She had moved to Brooklyn, though, some time ago. He did n't know her present address, but doubtless her sister could furnish it.

"Ho!"—said the foreigner—"so 'er sister lives 'ere: doos she?"

"Oh, yes"—responded the other.—"Her husband works down at Pond's."

Weston's eyes twinkled with an air of malicious triumph.

"Ho! ho!"—he said, making big eyes at the shoemaker, and drawling his words in a manner meant to be impressive—"so 'er 'oosband works doon to Pawnd's: doos 'e?"

The shoemaker reiterated somewhat angrily that her husband did work there, and seemed surprised and vexed at the stranger's manner.

"Would ye be zurprised"—was Weston's next ejaculation—"were I to tell thee 'er 'oosband 'ad never zeen Pawnd's, do n't ye knaw?"

The shoemaker's eyes dilated with astonishment, and he wondered at the strange question.

"I know them well,"—he said, simply and severely—"and her husband, Francis Wheatley, of Prescott place, is a very decent young fellow and a good workman."

Weston chuckled. "'E may be decent, but 'e 's nawt zo yuung. And 'e can tell 'e with 'is hown lips as 'ow 'e 'as never zet hayes on Pawnd's, an' 'e doos tell 'e so, for Hi 'm 'im, do n't ye knaw."

This was astounding news to the scandalized Adam Young, and he was breathless to reply. Weston hugely enjoyed his astonishment for a moment, then went on and told his story, made picturesque by his broad English accent, which sounded somewhat like Yorkshire slightly tempered with Londonese.

He said he was a well-to-do tobacconist of Islington, and that he had been married twenty years last April. He and his wife had occupied a pleasant home where every want of the woman was provided for, and they were happy and prospered. Thus the years passed till last summer, when Mrs. Weston took an ocean voyage to America, to visit her sister, Mrs. Henry Corless. During the voyage, Weston alleges, her affections were alienated by a dashing young officer named Stone, on board the trans-Atlantic steamer. Her infatuation was such, says Weston, that after her return to England she began and maintained a clandestine correspondence and met him as often as he could stop over in London. About this time Mrs. Weston's manner towards her husband underwent a marked change. She displayed aversion rather than affection, and Weston was not long in discovering the cause. He confronted her with proofs of her duplicity, and soon afterwards she left him. Weston had for some time been missing considerable sums of money, and when he found that a still larger sum went astray the day of his wife's flight he was morally certain that she had been robbing him.

The discovery of his wife's dishonesty and faithlessness was of course a great blow to the fond husband, and at the time she was preparing to desert him he was ill with nervous prostration; and, having exposed himself to the elements at the burial of his mother, his illness developed into pneumonia. She scorned his requests for ministration to his sufferings, and went away leaving him to the tender mercies of strangers.

As soon as he recovered his strength, Weston set out in quest of the erring woman. He believed that she had eloped with the handsome Stone, but after vainly chasing false clues to Australia, France and America he began to despair of ever finding trace of his wife's whereabouts. He tried to hunt up Mrs. Henry Corless, but found she had moved from place to place. Finally her last address was given to him as Plainfield, N. J. He was fearful that the woman would shield her misguided sister, but nevertheless he resolved to see her. Therefore his visit to Plainfield and its outcome.

Such was Weston's tale. He added further that his mother-in-law was at the bottom of the whole matter; that she was such a virago he had refused to give her shelter or support, and as a result she had sought to estrange and at last had succeeded in estranging the affections of the wife, and in involving her with another man who would tolerate the mother-in-law.

Weston rehearsed his story to all whom he met, and, claiming to have positively identified Mrs. Wheatley as his wife, and further claiming proof of her bigamous marriage, threatened to prosecute her for bigamy, and expose her shame to all the world. He said he would not begin action for divorce, as that would just suit her and, as the Briton expressed it, "give her her own fling".

Weston says the woman left him last January, that she is forty-eight years of age, two years older than he, and that Wheatley is a young fellow of twenty-five, a machinist at Pond's.

But Mrs. Wheatley's story differs from Weston's.

A PRESS reporter found her at home in her cozy, trim and well-kept cottage at 14 Prescott place. She had a smile of resignation, and was not one whit disconcerted over the news that Richard Weston was in town spreading malicious stories about her.

"'Hi've 'eard hof 'im before"—she said, with a pleasant English accent.—"'E's a bold, bad fellow—that's w'at 'e his; an' 'e's honly hafter my property. 'E follows the sea for a living, and 'is wife lives in New South Wales. 'Is story habout me his hall false. Hi was married to Mr. W'eatley in England, and hafter we came to this country Hi 'eard Weston was in Hamerica claiming that Hi was not legally married. To satisfy gossip Hi went through a second ceremony—so you see we're married good and fast. This story that Hi was ever Weston's wife his honly another base concoction. 'E married into the family, hand his therefore a relative by marriage. 'E's got a grudge against me because Hi told 'is wife of 'is wickedness and she won't recognize 'im hany more, and 'e knows Hi've got money, an' 'e's seeking to blackmail me hout of hit. Just let 'im meet my 'usband with 'is lies, hand 'e'll get hall the satisfaction 'e wants."

Weston is making his headquarters in a New York hotel, and claims to be preparing his evidence for the courts.

QUESTIONS FOR McKINLEY.

Among Other Things the Massachusetts Club Wants to Know, Are Instances Where Wages Have Been Raised as a Result of His Bill.

In view of the situation at Homestead these questions have been sent to Gov. McKinley of Ohio by the United States Question club of Boston:

"To the Hon. William McKinley, Canton, O.:

"The necessity felt by the managers of the Carnegie Steel company (limited) of surrounding their works with loopholed fences and barbed wires has aroused the curiosity of our people. They are anxious to know wherein the promises of the advocates of high protection have been fulfilled. The record of 250 strikes and reductions of wages since Dec. 4, 1890, as compiled by John De Witt Warner of New York, still further excites their curiosity. In behalf of the United Question clubs of Massachusetts, I beg leave to submit to you the following brief questions. I hope you will reply to them in the interest of the doctrines you so firmly believe in. A failure to answer them will cause dangerous inferences to be drawn:

"1. In what way does protection affect wages?

"2. A prominent Pittsburgh manufacturer states that the present reductions in wages are purely questions of business, and that 'the iron trade does n't warrant the payment of existing wages in spite of protection'. Do you agree with the above sentiment?

"3. If you do are we to continue to put unlimited faith in the oft-repeated assertions of high protection that protection raises wages?

"4. Will you, as an offset to the depressing news of reductions and strikes in the greatest of protected industries, name instances where wages have been raised as the result of your bill?

"5. Who have been the principal beneficiaries of your bill?

"Very truly yours,
"SAMUEL W. MENDUM,
"Secretary United Question Clubs of Massachusetts, Woburn, Mass."

Gas stock is a mighty profitable investment in all the cities of this State. The exorbitant rates cannot be stopped until the municipalities own the gas works. Gas is almost as much a necessity as water, and it would be more generally used if sold at cost price or on a small margin of profit.

Gone—all the painful disorders and chronic weaknesses peculiar to the female sex. They go, with the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Periodical pains, weak back, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, all "female complaints" are cured by it. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless—a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, imparting vigor and strength to the whole system. It costs you nothing if it fails to give satisfaction. It's guaranteed to do so, in every case, or the money is refunded. It can be guaranteed—for it does it. No other medicine for women is sold on such terms.

On these terms it's the cheapest. But more than that, it's the best.

That's the way its makers prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

Safe, Sure and Speedy.

No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

Shiloh's Cough Cure

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

PRAISE FOR WARDEN DODD.

Plainfield's ex-Chief Commended for His Efficiency and Good Management.

Immediately after the roll-call at last Thursday's meeting of the Union county board of freeholders, director Halliday handed clerk Cook a letter which he said he neglected to have read at the last meeting of the board.

It was from the officers of the State Charities' Aid society, stating that on May 27 an official inspection of the condition and management of the Union county jail was made by the committee, accompanied by some of the State officers and the members of the Union county branch. The visitors reported that the jail compares in condition and management with any jail in New Jersey; in fact there is only one other jail in the State so well conducted and well kept. That is in Passaic county, the excellent condition of which is due to its efficient warden. The committee found warden Charles W. Dodd of Plainfield to be thoroughly efficient, and they recommended that for the best interests of the county he be retained in office. The committee added that the suggestion and recommendation were made unknown to Mr. Dodd, and without the least solicitation on his part.

The letter was received and placed on file.

Tearing Down the Old Landmark.

The work of tearing down the Central railroad part of the union station at Elizabeth was begun yesterday. The baggage and telegraph rooms were quickly demolished. Baggagemaster Townley and his assistants took possession of the new station on the north side of the tracks, and are temporarily in the United States express room. The Pennsylvania company has begun the erection of a temporary railroad station on West Grand street. This will be ready in about a fortnight. Then the Union station erected in 1854 will be razed. Ground for the new station at the intersection of East Broad street and Railroad avenue will probably be broken early next month.

RUMORS DENIED.

No Pinkertons Coming on the Pan Handle or C. & O. Roads.

CINCINNATI, July 9.—Inquiry at the Pan Handle Railroad depot develops the fact that no arrangements are being made by that company to send men to Homestead.

"There is absolutely no foundation for the rumor," said Captain Breen, "and the only reason I can give for it is that for three days we have been sending a larger number of cars than usual to accommodate excursionists to New York. But that is over, and we are now sending out only the usual trains with the usual number of coaches.

"No additional cars are being fitted up, nor has there been any intimation that any will be needed for such a purpose."

The Chesapeake & Ohio officials deny any knowledge of the intended departure by their line of Pinkerton men for Homestead. This route, being a round-about one, would likely be chosen for such a purpose.

AGAINST THE PINKERTONS.

Illinois Labor Organizations Will Fight the Detective Agency.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The labor organizations have perfected arrangements for proceeding against the managers of the Pinkerton agency here for raising illegal companies in the State.

It is also stated that they have taken steps to prevent any further detachments of Pinkerton men from leaving this city.

All the railroad stations are being watched.

The principal ground upon which the labor organizations hope to succeed is the statute regulating the formation of military bodies.

Resolutions of sympathy with the locked out men have been adopted by both the painters' and carpenters' councils, and the latter will assess its members $5 each to help the locked out men.

Three Railroaders Killed.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 9.—A wall 300 feet long and 30 feet high, south side of the Newport News Railroad yard, toppled and fell from the pressure of earth against it in the morning. The Pullman car Savannah, in which conductors Hogan and a porter named Bell were asleep, were crushed and the three men were killed. Several other cars were also wrecked. The bodies of the three men have not been recovered.

Grain Blockade at Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 9.—A grain blockade exists at this point. The Canadian Pacific elevators are full, and more than 400 cars are standing on the tracks full of wheat. There is no demand for it in England, the people there being apparently too much engaged with the elections to pay much attention to business. It is almost impossible to get replies to cable dispatches.

Butler Committed to Jail.

CHESTER, Pa., July 9.—Samuel Butler, who was arrested in Chicago on Tuesday, charged with embezzling taxes to the amount of $7,000, appeared with his counsel before Squire Pike at Morris in the morning and waived a hearing. In default of $10,000 bail he was committed to the county jail to await trial at the next term of court.

Died at the Age of 131 Years.

MERIDIAN, Miss., July 9.—A remarkable case of longevity is that of Anderson Morse, a venerable colored man, who is dead here. He claimed to be 131 years old. His appearance and conversation on by-gone days gave credence to his claim.

BULLETS AT BUFFALO.

Non-Union Men Use Revolvers Against the Strikers.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 9.—The strike situation among the lumber shovers is not encouraging.

A settlement seems as far away as ever. In the afternoon there was another clash, and bullets flew on the basin.

A lot of non-unionists were at work unloading the barge Jenness in the Ohio basin.

Half a dozen union men asked them to stop work and join their forces.

The reply was a refusal. The strikers then started throwing bricks and stones at the laborers.

Bricks struck John Grocyniski and Martin Lowcuski. Both were armed with revolvers.

The minute they were hit they drew their guns and shot into a crowd of strikers. The bullets went wide of their mark.

It is said all the non-unionists carry revolvers and have been instructed to use them if they are assaulted by the strikers.

TRUE WAY OF LIVING.

One of the Things We May Learn from the Peoples of Europe.

Neurasthenny, without question one of the most terrible afflictions, has within the past decade carried off hundreds of America's brightest professional and business men. Paresis, neurosis and similar diseases are the direct result of an exhausted nervous system. It has been said so often that as a nation we live too fast that the remark has degenerated into a mere platitude. And yet it is full of meaning. Unfortunately, while no one disputes its correctness, those who should heed the warning it contains unctuously apply it to one or the other of their acquaintances whose mode of life may justify criticism.

Although deplorable, it is nevertheless true that the average American will sacrifice health, enjoyment, recreation, everything essential to physical and mental comfort, to the chase for riches. Even in the midst of a summer outing his thoughts are bent on money-making schemes. Boys grow up with the demoralizing idea that the accumulation of wealth is the principal, if not the only, aim of life.

Ours is a progressive nation, but we have not yet learned to make the most of life. We acquire money rapidly, spend it prodigally, but refuse to take the time necessary to enjoy the pleasures for which we pay so dearly. Among the things we can learn from the peoples of Europe is rational enjoyment and wholesome recreation. The English, German and French business men always find leisure to blend labor with recuperation. When they have acquired a competency, they retire from active life and devote the rest of their existence to pet hobbies, travel and observation.

A nation of nervous men may for a time conquer the world, but in the long run the stolid, plodding emigrants from other countries will acquire its possessions. The startling increase of insanity, paralysis and neurosis which is reported from every state of the union, points out the danger which threatens our country. The teachers of ethics and philosophy in our colleges and universities have a grand opportunity to bring about needed reforms in our national life, provided they can concentrate their minds on practical affairs. The rising generation must be taught the true mission of existence, which is nothing less than a high regard for the welfare of our fellowmen and our posterity.—G. W. Weippiert, in Chicago Graphic.

Laborers in Alaska.

The workingman need not complain in Alaska. Three dollars a day, with board and lodging provided by his employers, are miners' wages. Indian workmen in the mines receive two dollars a day, and "find" themselves. The cost of provisions adds a dollar a day for each white employe to the expenses of the mining company, and with these items in the operating expenses, any fractions of dividends sufficiently prove the richness of the mines. Hydraulic mining begins in May and lasts until October; and unless they are situated in snow-choked canyons, difficult of access, the quartz mills can run all the year round. The great Treadwell mill on Douglas island thunders night and day, winter and summer, grinding out in the twelve months ending with last May $769,765.80—sufficient answer to all that has been said against Alaska's being or becoming a great mining country.—Harper's Weekly.

Huge Sailing Vessel.

The sailing ship Maria Bickmers, recently launched at the Russell yards at Port Glasgow, Scotland, is claimed to be the largest sailing ship in the world. It is 375 feet long, with a breadth of beam of 48 feet, draws 25 feet of water, and her net tonnage is 3,823 feet. She is built of steel.

Following Up the Initial.

Trump—Begoba, sir, I've been reduced to one beef stew a day!

Mr. Peptone—The deuce! How many beef stews do you want in one day, anyhow?—Puck.

Spring in the City.

City Mamma—Did you have a nice time in the park?

City Boy—Yes'm.

"What did you do?"

"Oh, lots of things—run on th' walks, an' made faces at th' pleeceman, an' dodged the horses, an' fired stones at the 'keep-off-th' grass' signs, an' everything."—Good News.

A Serious Offense.

Wife—My dear, you ought not to wear such squeaky shoes in church. I heard two or three members of the congregation speak of it this morning.

Husband—What difference does it make to them, anyway?

Wife—They complained that you woke them up.—Judge.

A Precious Ornament.

Mary (during a moving)—The missus is very partic'lar about this bricky-bac mantel clock, an' says we'll have to carry it. I'll take it.

Jane—No, you take th' baby an' I'll carry th' clock. You might let th' clock fall wid your awkwardness.—Good News.

Proof in the Eating.

"Don't eat any green apples," cautioned mamma, as Walter started for his uncle's farm.

"But how am I to know they ain't ripe unless I eat them?" asked Walter; "because some apples are green when they're ripe."—Harper's Young People.

HEARING THE NEWS.

Scenes in the Capitol During Convention Week.

Senators and Representatives Anxious to Hear the Latest Returns—An Ex-Congressman's Collision with an Apple Basket and Its Owner.

(Special Washington Letter.)

The scenes in and around the capitol during the Chicago convention are much the same as those enacted during the previous convention at Minneapolis. The day in the senate is unusually dull, even for that very dull body. Senator Berry is in the chair most of the time, and announces between naps that "the senate will take a recess for half an hour." But this is before the returns begin coming in from Chicago. Each senator seems to be seeking in his own way the most satisfactory method of killing time until the arrival of news from the seat of war. Senator Coke, of Texas, with his huge form sprawled over two chairs, is idly tugging away at his long gray beard and peering anxiously toward the door through which the expected news will come.

Senator George, of Mississippi, is industriously reading his latest article in the North American Review. Senator Bate and his colleague, Senator Harris, of Tennessee, are exchanging chewing tobacco and descanting upon the merits of the different brands. Matt Ransom, the Chesterfield of the democratic side, is sitting very erect and dignified in his seat, looking rather bored, as though wishing the whole thing were over. Jolly Senator Kenna, of West Virginia, is in the cloakroom getting what satisfaction he can out of the lemonade and Apollinaris water, the nearest approach to strong drink of which this cold water congress is guilty. It probably reminds the young statesman from the hill country of the days when he traveled with a circus through the mountains of West Virginia, making speeches at every town where the show stopped and telling funny stories, interspersed with politics, to the honest people of his district. That he was a judge of human nature as well as a good romance is proved by his subsequent election to the senate as a result of these circus speeches.

On the republican side there are a half dozen listless legislators, and the senate presents the general appearance of a school-room in which most of the pupils are being "kept in." Everywhere quiet reigns supreme, and the only noise is the occasional click, click, of the big palm-leaf fans, with the aid of which the nation's representatives are endeavoring to keep cool. But suddenly there is a commotion in this quiet chamber. A page has appeared at the west entrance with the first ballot, and instantly every member of this little band is wide-awake and crowding around Senator Berry in the chair, to whom the page has delivered the first news. In a few minutes other pages come in with duplicate copies of the telegram, and other senators have a chance to examine at their leisure the first votes for president cast by the democratic nominating convention at Chicago.

For awhile the news is discussed in animated little groups, and then the senate settles down into its former lethargy, but ready to rise into interested activity upon the advent of the next telegram.

In one corner of the secretary's office there is a telegraph instrument used for the transmission of the private and departmental messages of the senators, but upon this state occasion connected with the main office of the telegraph company, the senate thus getting the benefit of the ballots as soon as they are received. Here are several officers of the senate with their coats off and their sleeves rolled up, writing the returns upon manifold paper as they are dictated by the telegraph operator. Around the operator so great is the rush of people, officers, employes, lobbyists, and the general class of idle, well-dressed men with no visible means of support who make the capitol their headquarters, that it has been found necessary to place several glass screens around the desk. Behind these he sits, proud in the consciousness that he alone can tell this crowd of anxious information-seekers what they most want to hear. During the interval between the first and second ballots several of the more impatient senators come out to see if they cannot secure the desired intelligence by virtue of their senatorial dignity. In response to their inquiries, the autocrat of the wire drawls out the information that the record of the ballot is not all in, but that the man of destiny is still in the lead. To this everybody in the room murmurs: "I told you so" and "how can they beat him?" It reminds one very forcibly of a scene in a pool room during the running of a big handicap, only there are no tickets to be torn up by disappointed speculators.

Let us leave these peculiar scenes, for a little while and take a look at what is going on at the other end of the building. Through the empty corridor we go, our footsteps echoing with a ghostly sound upon the marble tiles. Not a soul is in sight and the vast rotunda looks like a portion of some deserted village. At the main entrance to the house there is but one doorkeeper stationed, his four or five colleagues usually associated with him in guarding the members from the intrusion of the vulgar herd being at the further end of the corridor waiting for the news. The telegraph instrument which supplies the members of the house with information during the convention is located in a recess by an open window, directly opposite the southeast corner of the hall of the house. Here a scene is being enacted similar to the one we just witnessed in the secretary's office of the senate, only with less dignity. The noise and confusion here are a welcome relief after the monotony of the senate. A low platform from the ground to a door opening into the cloak room for barber shop patrons impatient member an opportunity to reach the telegraph office without going all the way around to one of the regular exits. An old apple woman usually sits on this platform and disposes of her wares to the disciples of George Francis Train who believe in a fruit diet. She has always been a stanch democrat, but the nominee of the convention at Chicago is liable to lose her support, as to-day she suffered her first mishap of the session and that at the hands of a prominent democrat. It was like this: An ex-congressman of Georgia, whose rotund figure is a well-known feature in hotel lobbies, was on the floor of the house when the news came that the first ballot was in. In his haste to hear the result from the operator's own lips, he rushed through the cloak room and, opening the door leading out into the corridor, made a dive for the platform. As it happened a large basket of bright red apples oc cupied the space which should have been vacant, and the substantial boot of the ex-congressman insinuated itself into the midst of the rosy pippins. Talk about the fall of Rome! It was not a circumstance to the descent of the distinguished politician from the sunny south. For awhile there was an indiscriminate mass of basket, apples, legs and Hibernian dialect from the aggrieved old lady. Quiet was finally restored, but it is doubtful if the purveyor of the fruits will ever forget this assault upon her business interests.

This little incident furnished excitement second only to the news from the convention. While the crowd around the telegraph office is thickest, and men are standing on each other's feet to see the bulletin which the operator tacks upon the top of his desk, Father Holman, that faithful watch dog of the treasury, passes along and murmurs something about the uselessness of so many bulletins and what a saving it would be in the matter of telegraph tolls, if only one return, and that the decisive one, were sent in from Chicago. The few newspaper men who remained at the capitol are also gathered about the instrument, and present the unusual spectacle of being served with news instead of serving others with it.

On the floor there is a steady hum of conversation without any pretense of legislation and the house presents a big clubroom with the members sitting around in little groups discussing the situation. The galleries are deserted, save for an occasional rural visitor who drifts in under the impression that he will see enacted some of those stirring scenes of which he reads in his home paper.

THE WIDOW'S MIGHT.

—Jury.

And the Moral of This Is—

He didn't read the papers, for they hadn't any news;
At least they didn't coincide with his especial views,
And when he came to town one day with critical remarks ripe,
He climbed to an electric lamp to light his ancient pipe;
He hadn't read the papers—but he knew just what was best;
He simply touched the wire and—the fluid did the rest.

COTTOLENE

the new vegetable substitute for Lard, poor Piggy's occupation's gone.

The reason for this is threefold. COTTOLENE is cleaner, healthier and much more economical. A trial has convinced thousands as to this. It will convince any "convincable" person. Will you be convinced?

TROOPS ORDERED TO THE SCENE

Gov. Pattison Sends the Pennsylvania National Guard to Quell the Riots at Homestead.

SATISFIED THAT THE SHERIFF IS POWERLESS, HE CALLS OUT THE STATE'S MILITARY FORCE.

NOT THOUGHT THAT THE MEN WILL MAKE ANY RESISTANCE.

An Army of 8,500 Men Ready for Active Service—It is Expected that This Great Force Will Overawe the Strikers—Major-General Snowden in Command—Cannon Being Loaded on Freight Cars—The Troops Will Reach Homestead About Sunset—The News of the Action of the Governor Received at the Scene of the Recent Trouble—It Was Disbelieved at First—The Mills Will Be Surrendered—The Strikers Very Bitter—Say They Have Done Nothing to Warrant the Interference of Troops.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 11.—Governor Pattison last night received a message from Sheriff McCleary of Allegheny county, stating that he could not maintain peace at Homestead, and making a formal demand upon the Governor for troops.

Adjutant General Greenland, Maj.-Gen. Snowden and Quartermaster General O. E. McClellan were hastily summoned, and after a short council of war Pattison, as Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard, ordered Gen. Snowden to place the entire division, consisting of about 8,500 men, under arms to go to Homestead to restore order.

Sheriff McCleary was also notified that the National Guard had been ordered to his support.

Adjutant General Greenland returned from Pittsburg, and in an interview admitted that the sheriff was no longer able to maintain the peace, but he said he didn't believe troops would be ordered out until the sheriff had made another effort to get into Homestead at the cost possibly of more lives.

At 10 o'clock last night Maj.-Gen. Snowden executed the Governor's orders and called out the entire military division of Pennsylvania, consisting of three brigades of infantry, three troops of cavalry and three batteries of artillery—about 8,500 men. By sunset to-day this army will be under canvas at Homestead.

It is believed that the troops will not be resisted, and that order will be quickly restored, as there is no feeling among the workmen against the State soldiery.

Gen. Snowden says the active force of the National Guard is about 8,500, and that he will proceed to Homestead to take command.

At the State arsenal the preparations are going forward for the shipment of munitions of war, and cannon are being loaded on flat cars.

THE NEWS AT HOMESTEAD.

Disbelieved at First—The Mills Will Be Surrendered.

HOMESTEAD, July 10.—The news that Governor Pattison had called out the entire National Guard was received here about midnight, and was disbelieved at first.

The Amalgamated Association leaders refused to credit it.

They have counted all along on the powerlessness of the Sheriff and believed that Governor Pattison would not permit the National Guard to be used against them.

Adjutant General Greenland said here that the State troops would not be turned into policemen.

The Sheriff's final message seems to have altered the mind of the Governor.

The strikers are bitter. They say that since the Governor gave them assurance that he would not send the militia they have not done anything which should make him change his opinion.

Some apprehension seems to exist as to just what the powers and duties of the militia would be.

If they merely take possession of the works there will be comparatively little opposition, and even that opposition would go no further than oral expressions of disgust.

If, however, in the furtherance of their duty, the soldiers are ordered to protect non-union workmen things may assume a distinctively different aspect, and it might be a question just how much of that protection the locked out men would permit to be extended without resorting to violence again to check it.

At a midnight meeting of the Advisory Committee, it was decided to co-operate with the National Guard in maintaining order and to impress upon the workmen the necessity of preserving peace.

HOW THE DAY PASSED.

Peace and Quiet Reigned Supreme at Homestead.

HOMESTEAD, July 10.—Peace and quiet reigns, but it is only the peace and quiet that precedes a storm.

The stillness is forced and bodes trouble.

People remain in doors. If they meet on the street they converse in whispers.

No one doubts that they are on the eve of trouble, and those who understand the situation look for more serious trouble even than that of last week.

The Sheriff is powerless. The Governor does not act. And yet this borough of 12,000 inhabitants is in the hands of a set of determined men who propose to settle their dispute with Carnegie without outside interference.

They make their own laws and regulations and recognize no authority higher than themselves.

The town is under martial law, and that not the law of the land.

Armed guards patrol the streets night and day. Every approach to either the town or to the works of the Carnegie Steel Company is guarded.

Every stranger is compelled to give a satisfactory explanation of himself and business, and if there is any doubt as to his identity he is escorted to the next outgoing train and warned that it will be dangerous to return.

The strikers are drilled and equipped with Winchesters, revolvers and shot guns. Guns are carried generally in the streets.

The organization of 4,000 or more members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers is remarkable.

Every man is determined and word has been passed that they are in the fight of their life. They are desperate, and another force of Pinkerton men need expect no quarter.

The mill men will die or win if there is another battle, and there is every indication that there will be one, and that soon.

The success of the men in capturing the Pinkertons last Wednesday and in holding their ground since has given them an overgrown idea of their own importance.

The local authorities are powerless to restrain the men, even were they so disposed. As a matter of fact they are with the mill men.

The regular police, composed of a chief and two patrolmen, are with them. Twenty additional policemen have been sworn in. They are not only with the mill men, but many of them are mill men themselves, thrown out of work by the lockout.

The burgess of the town, who is the highest officer here is in sympathy with the men.

Some members of the Town Council are leaders of the strikers, men who have served on important committees in the trouble distributed ammunition when the Pinkertons were expected.

One of these men, who is a prominent citizen of Homestead, and who, for obvious reasons, requested that his name be suppressed, said:

"We took care of the Pinkertons the other day pretty well, but that will not be a circumstance to the reception the next lot will receive.

"We were taken by surprise then, but we are ready now and cannot be surprised.

"Our men are well armed and they know how to use their arms. We have plenty of ammunition and our men are desperate.

"Some of them are aching for an encounter. There are plenty of relatives and friends of the boys who fell last Wednesday who are thirsting for revenge.

"If the Pinkertons come or scabs are put in the works they will get it."

The headquarters of the strikers is in a new three-story brick building on high ground overlooking the Carnegie works and within pistol shot of the celebrated fence that surrounds the mills.

From the council room on the third floor the movements of watchmen within the Carnegie grounds can be observed.

At present the strikers permit the few clerks and other employes at the mills to pass in and out unmolested, but the works are surrounded, and are practically in the possession of the strikers.

By refraining from placing guards within the works the strikers claim that there is no excuse for intervention of State troops, and if the militia put in appearance there is no telling what the result will be.

The strikers have sent their committee to see Gov. Pattison and to protest against the presence of troops.

Should their protest be ignored and the troops sent as an escort for non-union men there is little doubt that there will be a battle.

The men know that it is a fight for the life of their organization and that defeat means the loss of there homes and the starvation of their families.

They are prepared for any emergency. They have repeating rifles, cannon and dynamite.

The latter is in the hands of men experienced in its use.

If they decide to blow up the Carnegie bridge from the works to the other side of the Monongahela they will do it, even if a train load of Pinkertons happens to be crossing at the time.

If they decide to demolish the works it is in their power to do it; but there are too many sensible men among the strikers and they have to much interest in the preservation of the works for any such step.

The situation is that the town of Homestead and the great mills of Carnegie, Phipps & Co., are in the absolute power of a body of strikers, held in check by the uncertain authority of a committee of leaders.

Andrew Carnegie, from his safe place in Scotland, declines to interfere, and Superintendent Frick, the man of steel, refuses to recede from his position.

To maintain his position means more bloodshed, and it may come at any moment.

The army of strikers are resting on their arms, flushed with the success of one battle and eagerly waiting a chance to score another.

The press badges issued to the newspaper correspondents by Hugh O'Donnell, after each man's name and the paper he represented had been recorded in the official book of the Amalgamated Association have relieved the press boys of a great deal of hindrence and unnecessary explanation in their work.

Mr. O'Donnell's promise that the badges would pass them through all lines of pickets and permit them to go where they pleased so far as the Amalgamated Association was concerned, has been lived up to in most instances.

PINKERTONS ASSEMBLING.

They Are Closing in on Homestead—The Workmen on the Alert.

HOMESTEAD, July 11.—One of the leaders of the strikers was asked what the outlook is for the advance of the Pinkerton force which is supposed to be assembling over the back of the hills south of the Carnegie mills.

He replied:

"There is no doubt about the presence of armed men just south of the range of hills.

"Our scouts have located them in a dozen places.

"They are in groups and are moving about. They are gradually getting together and will in all probability make a feint upon some point in our lines which they believe weak.

"I do not believe their first attack will be a serious one.

"They are back from two to three miles from the river and are evidently waiting for reinforcements. They are arriving in small detachments so that they will not attract notice.

"Not one of us doubts the presence of these men and that they intend to make an attempt to reach the mill."

THE ARMOR CONTRACTS.

Interesting Facts Regarding Carnegie's Government Work.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—In view of the situation of affairs at Homestead, Pa., the status of the contracts between the Navy Department and Carnegie, Phipps & Company is interesting.

The only contract now existing between the United State and Carnegie, Phipps & Company was entered into on November 20, 1890, and called for 6,000 tons of steel armor plates and appurtenances at an aggregate cost of about $3,000,000. Of the 6,000 tons contracted for, about 500 tons have been delivered.

The contract stipulates that the armor plates shall be delivered as called for, and at present, it is said, the Government has more than enough plate on hand to meet immediate requirements.

The price per ton for the armor plate mentioned in the contract varies from $190 to $575 per ton, depending entirely upon the shape of the armor, and the price, according to shape, is determined by a board of naval officers.

It is explained at the Ordnance Bureau of the Navy Department that a straight piece of armor would cost less than a curved piece, and a curved piece less than an elbow, or in other words, that the shape of the armor almost solely determines its price.

The scale of shapes run in the technical schedule of the Navy Department from the letters A to P, different prices being paid for each shape, and even the Ordnance Bureau is unable to approximate the cost of armor per ton until the drawings specifying the shapes of armor needed are furnished them. The drawings for armor still to be supplied for United States ships have not even yet been completed, so that it is impossible to give the exact price that the 6,000 tons of armor will cost, but it is roughly approximated at $3,000,000 as stated.

HOW LONDON VIEWS THE STRIFE.

Surprise Manifested Over the Indifference of the Authorities.

LONDON, July 11.—Commenting on the action of the Pinkerton men at Homestead the "Chronicle" says: "It is to be hoped that this last outrage will rouse the authorities to a sense of the double impropriety and danger in their midst, and will compel them at length to substitute a State-controlled force for the privately hired bravado."

The "Telegraph" says: "The plea that it occurred in the far west, on this occasion, is not available. It is impossible to avoid the conclusion that Pittsburg has been disgraced by a series of atrocities to which the annals of modern times of the Old World afford no parallel. What must impress Englishmen the most is the apparent supineness of the Federal Government. It is probable that on the eve of an election both political parties are reluctant to incur the risk of losing workmen's votes."

The "Telegraph," in the same article, adds that the riots at Homestead are on a par with the New Orleans lynchings.

"Both incidents, in common with a hundred others of a similar kind which have occurred in America, says the "Telegraph," must suggest a serious doubt whether after all Home Rule in America works satisfactorily in practice, as it is the fashion to assert.

WOULD BE ANNIHILATED.

Chances of the Pennsylvania Militia in a Fight With the Strikers.

NEW YORK, July 11.—A prominent officer in the New York National Guard says that if the militia of Pennsylvania were sent to Homestead they would probably be annihilated.

"The Pennsylvania militia," he said, "are armed with Springfield rifles of very old pattern. They will hardly carry 600 yards, and the empty shells have to be taken out by hand after each shot before reloading.

"The strikers have the latest model Winchester rifles, which are magazine guns. The magazines will hold from eight to seventeen cartridges, and the gun can be fired about five times while a Springfield is being loaded. The militiamen would not have any show at all. They would be mowed down like a lot of sheep.

"The same thing would be true of the militia of this State, which is armed with the Remington rifle of the model of 1873, a gun about on a par with the Springfield.

"If the States expect their militia to quell riots of this sort they ought, at least, to arm them with proper weapons, and not leave them at the mercy of a bet-

No Confidence in Frick.

PITTSBURG, July 11.—Superintendent Frick was seen by a reporter to-day and asked to state what steps will be taken by the company in the future. He replied that the Pinkertons have been tried without success, and the company will depend upon the sheriff and county authorities to protect the works. The men do not place much credence in Mr. Frick's statements and are increasing their watchfulness.

ST. JOHNS IN RUINS

The Great Fire Causes a Loss of $25,000,000.

20,000 PEOPLE ARE HOMELESS.

Most of Them Entirely Destitute and in Danger of Death From Starvation—Fourteen Lives Lost Certainly—Ships With Provisions Sent to Relieve the Unfortunates.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 11.—It is now estimated that the great fire has created a loss of property aggregating $25,000,000, and has rendered 20,000 persons homeless.

Many vessels in port had to cut their anchor cables and hastily run out to places of safety.

Several had their sails and rigging burnt and two vessels loaded with coal were destroyed.

The ruins are still burning and the town is impassible.

The government has taken measures to house the destitute in such few buildings as remain.

The Colonial buildings the government house and Catholic cathedral convents are crowded, and workmen are erecting temporary buildings on the open spaces.

Many of the homeless are still encamped on the fields, but the government hopes to house them all by to-night.

Messages of sympathy and promised relief are numerous and come from all parts of the world.

England comes bravely to the assistance, and President Harrison has telegraphed, promising help.

The Catholics met in the morning and were organized by Bishop Power. They will render all possble help.

The Episcopalians and Methodists met in the afternoon, and all creeds are doing their best toward the relief of the unfortunates.

St. Johns is built upon a steep hillside; the harbor running east and west. The heart of the city extends from Beeks Cove to Signal Hill, a distance of about a mile and a half. Along this stretch were the chief business houses; higher up the hillside, extending probably a mile, were the residences and public buildings. A strong southwest wind was raging when, owing to the careless use of a match, fire broke out in a stable on Long Hill.

The first outburst of the fire swept the northern part of the city, and finally began to die out for the lack of fuel.

Later a fresh fire broke out and the South side was rapidly burned away.

In this portion of the town were located the oil factories and oil tanks, and the result in this section is worse than appalling. The entire year's oil product was stored in these tanks.

At night, the lurid flames leaping upward toward the sky, the dense overhanging smoke and the cries and sobs of the thousands of homeless presented a heart-rending scene.

This is the fourth great fire that has crippled St. Johns. The first occurred in February, 1816, and occasioned a loss of about $500,000. Fifteen hundred people were homeless. The second was in November, 1817, the loss aggregating $200,000. The third was on the 9th of June, 1846. The following streets were completely wiped out: Military road, Duckworth street, Prescott street, Queen's Road, Gower street, Ring's Road, Cathedral Hill and Long's Hill.

The fire which started Friday night burned two-thirds of the city, destroying 650 buildings and causing the loss of fourteen lives. The fire which broke out Saturday in the southern part of the city almost completed the destruction of the city.

A despatch from Heart's Content said that the railway station at St. Johns, where a temporary telegraph office had been fitted up, had been destroyed and the operators driven off. Later despatches said that the fire was raging in the forest around St. Johns and all telegraph lines had been completely destroyed and railway communication broken. The last words transmitted by the operator were that only by wire could the fate of the people be made known, and desperate efforts would be made to establish a connection, a feat, he feared, that would require several days.

Most serious alarm is felt here, and great crowds surround the telegraph office and wait for news. The steamer Ulunda sailed with provisions for the destitute. H. M. S. Admiral and the warship Blake also sailed with provisions and tents and canvas to cover the homeless. Halifax will send another steamer tomorrow with supplies.

It is reported that the British government will give 25,000 pounds and the city of London 6,000 pounds to the sufferers.

The Queen Insurance company, it is said, will lose $300,000 and the Phœnix $200,000. The total insurance losses will be fully $2,500,000.

All the government records have been burned and many lives have doubtlessly been lost, as members of many families are missing. All the stores and provisions are destroyed.

Unless succor comes in plenty and at once many must die of starvation. No conception of the disaster that has overwhelmed the colony can be conveyed by message reports.

A message from Cat's Cove, seven miles from Brigus, says that the village, consisting of twenty-six houses, has been entirely wiped out of existence. The fire there caught from the woods, which were set on fire by ashes on railway track.

Fires are raging all around St. Johns, and people are so completely terror-stricken and demoralized that no fight is being made against the flames.

Towns fully twenty-two miles distant were burned and the smoke from the fires enveloped the island for miles.

Another message from St. Johns city to Halifax city says that St. Johns is completely crushed and wrecked and only generous aid can save the people from annihilation by starvation.

It is made of pure cream of tartar and soda, no ammonia, no alum. A like quantity goes farther and does better work. It is therefore cheaper.

CHICAGO WORKMEN AFFECTED.

The Trouble at Homestead Throws 200 Out of Employment.

CHICAGO, July 11.—The trouble at Homestead has thrown 200 men out of employment at the North Chicago Rolling Mills.

The men are heaters, rollers and helpers.

Their contract or scale expired July 1, and the Illinois Steel Company, which owns the mills, decided to make no arrangements for a future scale until the result of the Eastern strike became known.

May Extend to the Other Mills.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 11.—The prospects now are that the fight between the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers and the Carnegie Steel Company at Homestead will extend to the other union mills of the company, unless the company agrees to re-open negotiations with the Homestead steel workers.

EDWARD JAMES'S ROMANCE.

The Sad Story of a Well-Known Sporting Editor.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The removal of Ed James, the old sporting editor, to Bellevue Hospital, suffering from insanity, was a sad shock to his many friends.

To those whose recollection of affairs in this city go back about 30 years, the name of Ed. James is connected with the erratic life of Adah Isaacs Menken, the actress.

Ed James is believed to be the first man that made the writing of pugilistic events and matter a specialty. He contributed to the "Clipper" long before he became, in 1859, the sporting editor of that paper, and it was through Frank Queen, the proprietor of the sheet, that he became acquainted with Adah Isaacs Menken.

The actress was at that time the talk of New York. Handsome in form and figure, dashing, vivacious, talented with both pen and pencil, it was little wonder that she had almost every man who had ever met her, at her feet.

Originally her name had been Adah Isaacs. Then she married a Captain Menken, of New Orleans; James Barclay, a prominent gambler; John Heenan, the prize fighter, and "Orpheus C. Kerr" (Robert C. Newell) the writer. With none of her husbands did she live happily for any length of time, and the formalities of a divorce were dispensed with when she had tired of them.

It was while she was in the height of her New York success, when her performances, of "Mazeppa," well calculated to show off her splendid proportions to the best advantage, was being given nightly to crowded houses, that James made her acquaintance, and became infatuated with her.

He followed her all over the continent, it is said, saw how the crowned heads bowed before her, and then when she was in the height of success, he caught cold in his eyes and had to remain behind to have them attended to. He visited the most prominent oculists in Europe, but they could do nothing for him.

In the meanwhile after a long series of splendid triumphs, Adah Isaacs Menken had died in poverty in Paris. James heard of her death when far away.

He hurried to the French capital, sought out the grave, unmarked and uncared for, in Pere La Chaise Cemetery, and over it erected a handsome monument. Then, heart-broken and almost blind, he returned to America.

In the year 1865, he held his position as sporting editor of the "Clipper." His eyes became somewhat better, but at last the constant strain upon them became too much, and he was forced to turn his attention from writing to the sale of sporting goods.

He occupied a small office in the "Clipper" building and did a prosperous business. Three months ago he sold out, and a week or two thereafter broke down with nervous prostration, which has resulted in the loss of his reason.

THE PRESS Medal Won Under Adverse Circumstances.

S. C. Crane, who won the PRESS gold medal in Saturday's twenty-mile bicycle race, deserves great credit. Just before the start he had the misfortune to puncture in some way his pneumatic tire, and was without the services of the wheel he had trained on. Rather than give up, however, he took a brand new "Majestic" out of his father's stock and started in the race. It was geared to 56 inch instead of 62, which was a great handicap against him, and it was a cushion tire, the only one in the race. But the plucky lad won.

Summer Specialties in Hardware.

There is fashion in hardware goods as well as in dress materials, and the things just now in style and season are ice-cream freezers, refrigerators, hammocks, and lawn-mowers. The lawn-mower that generates the least heat and tired feeling in the operator is to be found at the store of Zimmerman & Rumpf, where may also be found the most frigid refrigerators and quickest freezing ice-cream freezers. Having mowed the lawn and refreshed yourself with ice-cream or with exhilarating mineral waters from the ice-box, you 'll want a hammock to laze around in, and Zimmerman & Rumpf will furnish the most restful one in the market.

Her Board Booked for July.

Sarah Keach only recently served 30 days at Elizabeth for drunkenness, and this morning she was in the toils again. Judge Codington said "I thought you'd drunk your last drop, Sarah", and she responded, with a lisp, "If you call drinking one glath of beer drunk, I s'poth I'll have to plead guilty". The proof of her guilt was clear, and she was fined $6. If she can't raise it, she goes to jail for 20 days.

RALLY AT PLAINFIELD.

Christian Endeavor Delegates Have a Joyous Time Among Their Seventh-Day Baptist Friends.

The programme of the International Convention of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, just closed, allotted the afternoon of the 9th inst., to "Denominational Rallies", and the Seventh-Day Baptist delegates, of whom there were about seventy in attendance, outside of the local churches, spent the Sabbath in this city, by invitation of the Young People's society of the Plainfield church.

At the morning service the Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., delivered an able and eloquent address to the young people on the inauguration and marvelous growth of the society, and the benefits already realized, and those yet to be secured to the church of God, through the instrumentality of the Endeavor society.

In the afternoon the "Rally" proper was held, when large delegations from the New York city and New Market churches were added to the numbers in attendance, so that the church was completely filled. After a service of song, led by a choir of male voices, devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. William C. Daland, of Westerly, R. I., and the Rev. Henry B. Lewis, of Brookfield, N. Y. Brief addresses on various phases of the work followed, the Rev. C. A. Burdick, of Farina, Ill., speaking of the benefits of the society to the churches in the West, and the Rev. L. E. Livermore, of New Market, N. J., on the benefits to the church in the East.

Miss Agnes Babcock, of Leonardsville, N. Y., general secretary of the Young People's Permanent committee of the Denominational conference, told of the very general adoption of the principles of the society throughout the denomination, there being a Young People's society of Christian Endeavor in every church that contained enough young people to perfect an organization.

Miss Alice Maxson, of Westerly, R. I., treated the subject of "Junior Work", and Mrs. O. U. Whitford, of Milton, Wis., the "Pledge".

The "non-sectarian" and inter-denominational" features of the organization were presented respectively by Prof. Corliss F. Randolph, of East Orange, and David E. Titsworth of this city. These speakers were followed by the Rev. J. Allison Platts, of Leonardsville, N. Y., son of L. A. Platts, D. D., editor of The Sabbath Recorder, in an address on the requirements of a complete equipment for the work, and the best methods of accomplishing the work. A short time was then given to a "free parliament", when many testimonies were given, which, like the addresses of the hour, were unanimous in testifying to the power for good that is exerted by the society, not only upon the life of the individual, but also upon the life of the church at large, whose future now seems assured, through the fidelity and loyalty of the societies to the pledge, to the local church, to the denomination, and above all to the great Captain under whose banner this noble army of young people numbering over one million and a quarter is marshalled.

The members of the local society entertained the delegates at their homes for the mid-day and evening meals, and escorted them to the North avenue station, for the 6:54 p. m. train, upon which they returned to New York city.

The best wishes of their Plainfield friends were expressed in the beautiful strains of "God be with you till we meet again", as the train departed.

RUNAWAY GIRLS GRIEVED HIM.

Mr. Roughtenhausen Finds It an Expensive Luxury to Drown His Sorrows in Drink.

Charles and Jane Roughtenhausen stood before the bar of the city court this morning. They have often stood before; but to-day the court and spectators experienced the novelty of seeing them both weep.

Charles has been working hard of late, and has been drinking but little. On th Fourth, however, he and his wife celebrated his 59th birthday anniversary, and have been drinking more or less ever since. Saturday night they were so much under the influence that they said bad things and otherwise misbehaved, on the street, and had to be locked up. This morning Charles told the court that he had been drinking to drown his troubles. His two daughters, he said, kept bringing sorrow upon him. A week ago they had run away with Mollie Stevenson and he feared were in fast company in a strange city. He had spent all his savings of $40 in vain efforts to find them, and was nearly driven insane by worriment. He broke down and wept, and Jane grew scarlet in the face and wept also.

But the flood of tears did n't melt the stern hearted justice. Each of the sobbers was fined $6. Charles sent to his employer for the money, and regretfully paid the bill.

Westfield's Wheelmen Win.

The second trial heat of the Union county wheeling championship took place Saturday. The competitors were the Westfield Athletic club team and the Union County roadsters. About two thousand persons witnessed the race, which was to Cranford and return, a distance of ten miles. James Blake, of the Union County roadsters, finished first in 30.50, R. B. Whitehead, Westfield, was second in 30.50½, and A. H. Barnett, Westfield, third, in 30.50½. The Westfield A. C. team won the heat, scoring 49 points to the Roadsters' 29. The final trial heat will be run July 30.

PLAINFIELD'S PRESS IN SYRIA.

It Was Given by the Crescent Avenue Presbyterians, and Is the Chief Distributor of Christian Literature Throughout the Arabic-Speaking World.

Herewith is published a most interesting letter from Dr. Jessup in Syria, concerning the safe arrival of the printing press sent from Plainfield. The Presbyterian Mission Press in Beirut is the chief distributor of Christian literature through the entire Arabic-speaking world. One of their machines broke down from old age last fall; and as was told in these columns at the time the members of the Crescent Avenue congregation of this city, hearing of the calamity, cheerfully subscribed enough to furnish them another. The press was built at the Scott works, at exceedingly liberal terms offered by Mr. Scott; and has now safely reached its destination. The Plainfield church had no special interest in the Beirut Mission above other missions of the Presbyterian Board; but there seemed to the members a fitness in having a printing press given from Plainfield.

SYRIA MISSION OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS OF U. S. A.
BEIRUT, Syria, June 7, 1892.

The Rev. W. R. Richards, D. D.,

DEAR BROTHER:—In fulfilment of my promise in a brief note written April 27, I now write to thank the good people who have sent us the Walter Scott printing machine. It is a noble addition to the plant of the American Mission Publishing House in Beirut, and will for many years send out its leaves for the healing of the Eastern Nations.

When I wrote you it had just arrived, and had been extricated from the devious mazes of the Turkish Custom House by the exercise of patient endurance and payment of the eight per cent. duty. We had also to pay the heathen porters, inspectors, appraisers, clerks, scribes, copyists, overseers, door keepers, watchmen, etc., each his usual trifling fee for facilitating the express of the great "MaKina" from the Sultan's Custom House the huge boxes were loaded upon a cart, and drawn up to the door of the Press. About twenty men were then called out, and in the course of two or three hours that afternoon and the next morning all were safely moved inside the building. Mr. Somerville, the Scotch engineer, was then sent for, and by means of jack-screws and tackle-blocks the ponderous framework and the cylinder were hoisted into position. The band wheels had then to be secured to the ceiling and the partition wall strengthened before all could be made ready. The week before it arrived we had the old cement floor taken out and a stone pavement laid down. At length the old dilapidated steam engine was fired up and the machine began to revolve. I enclose one of the first sheets printed on it. It is from Dr. W. W. Eddy's Commentary on the Acts, Chapter XXVI: 23-32 and Chapter XXVII: 1-14, being from page 337 to 344 of the book.

Two other presses, a Hoe and Adams, stand not far from this new one, and seem proud of the advent of their towering companion.

We employ about 45 native workers, men, boys and girls. They are compositors, pressmen, engineers, type casters, electrotypers, lithographers, stereotypers, sewers, folders, binders, packers, clerks, errand boys and book-keepers. Last year we printed 65,300 volumes and 23,000,000 pages. Almost all of our printing is in the Arabic language, and 13,000,000 pages last year were of Arabic Scriptures. We have now in the Press 517,000 printed books and tracts, ready for the market. A great part are unbound, and we bind them as orders come in.

Your people would I doubt not be interested to look over the shipping books of our Press. Here are consignments by mule and donkey to the Lebanon villages and the cities of Syria and Palestine: By caravan to Aleppo Mardin, Mosul and Baghdad; by post to Hamadan, Ispahan and Tabriz in Persia and to Constantinople; then by sea to Mogador, Tangier, Algiers, Tunis and Egypt. Egypt is our best customer and our books go there in thousands. Then we send to Aden in Southern Arabia, to Zanzibar, Lahore, Lucknow and other parts of India, and to Bussorah and Bushire on the Persian gulf, and even to New York and Chicago.

Our materials come from the Beirut paper mill and from Italy, France, England, Scotland, and the United States.

The additional facility afforded by your beautiful Scott machine will greatly help our work, and we hope next week to set up the new 20-horse-power steam engine, which will give new life to our machinery.

Please thank all the good people, old and young, who have contributed to the purchase of the new press. If any of them ever visit Syria, we shall be glad to show them the whole process of book-making in Arabic.

The labor is ours; the results are God's. It is a blessed privilege to preach the Gospel and to print and scatter the Gospel throughout the world. May the Holy Spirit attend our teaching, our printing and our preaching with His own mighty power from on High. The Lord raise up missionaries from your churches in Plainfield and send them forth to the whitening harvest field! I can testify after 36 years of service in Syria that the missionary work is a blessed work indeed. I can commend it to your young Christians as a happy and glorious work. It is instituted by the command and crowned with the promised blessing of the Son of God. Yours sincerely,

HENRY H. JESSUP.

HUSBAND AND WIFE AT ODDS.

The Woman a Prisoner for Habitual Drunkenness and Abuse of Her Children.

Joseph J. Johnson is a hard-working moulder at Cartaret, so he is n't home at his cottage, 10 Prescott place, except Saturday nights and Sundays. And when he comes home, he says, he is given no welcome at all, for his wife is a slave to liquor; and her consequent treatment of his four children, and the condition of the house, are disheartening. Johnson has had his wife put in reformatory institutions in Providence and New York, when their home was in those cities, but in spite of promises, he alleges, she has gone back to her old habits. Of late affairs have become so bad that special officer Scheimer has been called in to interfere. Last Saturday evening he attempted to arrest the woman, but she was ugly with drink, and not until assistance came in the shape of policeman Kiely and a wagon could she be transferred to the police station.

Mrs. Johnson spent Sunday in jail, reflecting, and this morning promised to leave her husband and work for her own living if the court would release her.

Judge Codington set her case down for hearing to-morrow morning at 9. Her husband will be the complaining witness. He says he prosecutes for his children's sake. She claims that he is anxious to get rid of her because he has another woman "in tow".

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

LOSING THEIR GRIP.

The Crescent League's Ball Team Grows Weaker as the Other Nines Are Made Stronger.

There is little to say about last Saturday's ball game of the Central League series, in this city. The result only showed a continuance of the Crescent team's slide down the incline of defeat for the past month. As the other nines have been strengthened the Crescent's has been made weaker. Sometimes there have been eight players in Plainfield's team and many times only seven. When pitchers were needed in the league teams, the other clubs got Anderson or Clare while the Crescents got Knouff or Powers. When fielders or hitters were needed, the other clubs secured Sharrott or Carlin while Plainfield took Galligan or O'Rourke. In the whole month past the Crescents have won but one game for the pennant and that by a chance hit made by a man who has struck out most of the times he has been at the bat since.

But Saturday's game was won by six clean hits in succession by Westfield in the sixth inning. McIndoe was first to the bat and hit the first ball pitched; Lever followed and hit the third; Smith the third; Howe the second; O'Neil the first, and Kenzie the first. Then Warner and Sharrott went out, Bonner to Jones; and Clare went out Turner to Jones. The inning netted Westfield five earned runs and won the game easily although Plainfield's total of hits was but one less than the visitors.

Murphy made the worst muff of a fly ever witnessed, and Jones failed to hold the first ball that came to him. But Turner had to throw the latter so high to clear umpire Hopkins's head that the sun got behind it and Freddie could n't see; and Murphy afterwards caught the man he let go to first, by the quick fielding of the ball to third.

Sneeden had one bad inning, but outside of that there were only three scattered hits. Clare proved himself a good man to depend on, and a great "stayer". In the last inning although Leidy, Jones and Hofford got on the bases by means of a hit, four bad balls and an error of Howe's, yet they died there for Clare struck out Bonner, Sneeden and Daley. The score:

A FATAL ERROR;

Dr. How's Bad Throw Tied Somerville With Plainfield for First Place in the League Race—Umpire Berriman Says Good-Bye.

When the West Ends went to Elizabeth, last Saturday, it was the second time this season they had played there. The first time the game went against them; on that occasion the weather was cooler, and that troublesome bird of prey known as the New Jersey vulture did not bother them; but Saturday the mosquitoes came over from the salt marshes in the meadows and settled down in droves on both players and spectators. They seemed to rise out of the ground; the air was verily black with them. Would not the heat of the sultry afternoon have been sufficient without the aforesaid spear-pointed little demons? Either of these would have been unbearable had the West Ends lost, but they did not lose; and in the glory of winning, the whole Somerville crowd forgot everything. The departing glory of those ball-tossers who represent Williamstown was saddening. When the game was over, the crowd made a rush for the station and the telegraph office to find out the earliest news from Plainfield, so as to know just how matters stood. After fingering his key for two or three minutes, which seemed hours, the operator looked up and calmly said that Westfield had won at Plainfield by the score of 7 to 2. Could it be possible? Glory of glories: tied with Crescents for first place! For an instant the little crowd stood speechless, and then as from one man a war-whoop arose that cracked the timbers in the Port station.

Berriman, who has done a great deal of good work, and some poor work, for the League, was slated to umpire, but he did not show up. He sent Hudson in his stead, saying that he was hired to umpire the New Jersey-Staten Island game. He verily made himself solid with the New Jerseys when two weeks ago they played and won against the Crescents in Plainfield. Wash also says that he cannot get along with the players in the Jersey Central Base-ball league; hence the change.

The tale of victory by the very small margin can be told in a few brief sentences. In the first inning both sides drew blanks, although Murray made a hit and was left at second. In the second half for the West Ends, with one man out, Kennedy hit a little one to Murray, which rolled along easily towards him. Murray picked it up, and prepared to throw hard to Bowes, making an easy put out; just here Murray's arm sprung out of its socket; the ball went twenty feet above Bowes's head, and lost itself in the grass. While the whole team chased over to hunt for the ball, Kennedy was careening around the bases like an ice wagon, and finally, just as Coogan picked up the ball with a yell of triumph, Doc crossed the plate with the first run. Then in the next Carby waited and walked to first, stole second, and kept right on when Rafferty threw to the centre fielder instead of Berry, and scored on Carlin's sacrifice to right. The fly was a short one, and was scarcely squeezed by Coogan ere Carby came like the wind for the plate. Coogan threw like an arrow, Carby slid for the rubber, and the only thing seen in the cloud of dust around the plate was umpire Hudson nodding his head safe. That was all the circuits the West Enders made, and for a little while the margin looked small enough. In the fourth inning Elizabeth had three men on base with no one out, but Bobby Miller kept his head, and no one scored. At the beginning of the fifth Miller retired and Anderson stepped into the box. Jack has most tremendous speed, and when he poses on one foot before he hurls the ball he reminds one of the Statue of Liberty. The first ball he sped towards Coogan nearly broke his wrist and after trotting to first Coogan went out of the game. It was in the sixth that Berry made the only circuit that is credited on the Elizabeth side of the score book. He singled, then stole second, and never slowed up when "Doc" threw over Farrell's head. Then Tierney hit safely, and Berry scored. After that it was one, two, three until the end. Although the Elizabeths hit safely nine times, still the hits were not bunched, the two West End pitchers keeping them well scattered. It was in the sixth inning that Tierney by the prettiest kind of a running catch robbed Ryman out of a clean base hit. After the fourth inning the West Ends did not get a man to first base, but went out in rotation.

The score:

WANT THE OPEN BRETHREN BACK.

The Plymouth Brethren So Decide in the Plainfield Conference.

The regular annual conference of the Plymouth Brethren is being held in this city, having begun its sessions early in the past week. Between five and six hundred delegates are present. The convention is held in three large tents on the grounds of Paul J. Loizeaux, the New York publisher, who lives in North Plainfield, along Green Brook, near Westervelt avenue. He is one of the most prominent members of the sect, which arose in England many years ago among religious people of all denominations who were opposed to church government.

The sect has no pastors, nor officers of any sort. In the convention there is no chairman, no secretary, apparently no head, and yet the deliberations have been careful and dignified.

The question of again admitting to their communion the open brethren who split off from the sect many years ago in England came up and was decided. It was this that attracted delegates here from all over the world. After many days of hot discussion it was decided yesterday that the two branches of the sect be reunited and that the open brethren and Plymouth brethren be hereafter one in communion.

The discussion began Tuesday and lasted all the week, and has been the only important matter taken up. The convention remains in session until Thursday.

Among the prominent preachers present are: F. W. Grant, Plainfield; J. S. Pierson, Key West, Fla.; Charles Holden, Georgia; Lewis Eneper and B. C. Greeman, Nova Scotia; C. E. Haskett, Fitchburg, Mass.; S. A. White, Trenton; A. F. Coles, Williamsport, Pa.; George Berrity, England; John McClarre, Canada; J. B. McCaffren, Syracuse; C. Crane, S. Kidout and J. B. Jackson, Boston; Dr. Boynton, Long Island; Thomas Somerville, Ontario; Geo. Atchison, Albany; George McCandless, Elizabeth; J. B. Jeffries, Indianapolis; J. S. Marigue, Lowell, Mass.; A. M. Scott, David Littell, and Charles VanHorn, Minneapolis; J. H. Booth, North Carolina.

THE NEW TOWN OF GARWOOD.

Large Manufactories to be Erected There at Once and Probable Connection With the Plainfield Electric Railway.

As already told in THE PRESS, a large tract of unimproved land, between Westfield and Cranford, through which the county road runs, has been purchased, and will be known as Garwood. Four manufactories, with stores and dwelling houses, for at least 10,000 operators will be at once constructed. The industries to be operated are steel and iron car-wheel works, signal appliances, and electrical railroad appliances. The erection of a station and shops with sidetracks, etc., have been begun. Frank Morse, formerly of this city, and whose wife is the daughter of Morgan Bird, is business manager and a large stockholder in the Garwood Improvement company.

Two of the industries will be the Boston Car Wheel company, of which Major J. C. Paul of East Fifth street, Plainfield, is president, and the Hall Block Signal Manufacturing company.

The locating of this manufacturing town has made necessary the building of an electric railroad along the line of the improved road between these two places. The project has been extended, however, and now it is stated that an electric railway will be built from this city to Elizabeth. This road will run through Cranford, Garwood and Westfield. The Central railroad encourages its construction as it will facilitate traffic to and fro from the various stations on its line.

This road, however, will not be built unless the owners of the vast stretch of property along the line that will at once increase in value millions of dollars, "do something" towards it. The little piece of electric road in this city alone with only five cars, will cost $75,000. President Nevins and the other capitalists interested with him are ready to extend the road to other towns from here to Elizabeth and wait a few years for dividends, but they of course justly demand that those who will at once reap large financial profit should share the cost.

The influx of the new manufacturing population to Garwood, most of which will be Roman Catholics, will, it is said, cause the building of a large Roman Catholic church at Westfield, the present one being now too small for its own congregation.

Held for the Grand Jury.

Lewis Sprague, arrested for assault on his wife and daughter, was held for the action of the grand jury Saturday night. A friend furnished $200 bail.

BACK TO THEIR HOMES.

Marvelous Development of the Homing Instinct in Insects.

Exactly how insects, especially bees and ants, find their way back after having flown or been taken some miles from the home hive or ant hill, is one of the mysteries of animated nature.

A young naturalist who lived fourteen miles from a large city, frequently made it a point to test this "homing" instinct in the common Italian bee. He would carefully color their wings with red, blue or violet ink, pack them snugly in a box and carry them to the very heart of the city before releasing them, says the Philadelphia Press.

With few exceptions they were at home working away unconcernedly when the experimenter returned in the evening. On one occasion, according to a prearranged plan, he turned six bees loose in the city at 6 o'clock in the morning. He had previously colored the wings of each with red ink, so that his confederate and co-experimenter, a sister who also had an entomological taste, could not possibly be mistaken as to the exact time of their arrival.

The first one reached the home hive at twenty-two minutes past two. Before five three more of them had safely arrived, but, seemingly, were much fatigued.

At nightfall the fifth and sixth of the home-loving little insects had put in an appearance. Bright and early on the following morning, however, the young scientists were overjoyed to find all the red-winged honey gatherers humming merrily about their work.

Experiments with large black ants were equally satisfactory. The same scientist tied yellow silk about the "waists" of three large-sized specimens that lived in a hollow tree in the heart of a large wood. These were carried distances varying from one to five miles from their home, but invariably returned within a surprisingly short time.

Three peas (P. P. P.) represent Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are not like the old-fashioned pills. Bad to take, and bad to have taken. Inefficient, too. Try something better. With Pleasant Pellets the benefit is lasting. They cleanse and regulate the liver, stomach and bowels. Taken in time, they prevent trouble. In any case, they cure it. And they cure it easily; they're mild and gentle, but thorough and effective. There's no disturbance to the system, diet or occupation. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic. Sick and Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

They're purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, the smallest, and the easiest to take—but besides that, they're the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get. This is true only of Dr. Pierce's medicines.

IT WAS A GREAT GATHERING.

New Yorkers Now Know the Extent of the Christain Endeavor.

NEW YORK, July 11.—New Yorkers now understand that the Christian Endeavor is really something.

Madison Square Garden was unable to hold more than a third of the forty odd thousand delegates at a time; the remaining two-thirds explored every nook of the city and visited the suburban summer resorts. Every building of interest in New York was besieged by the untiring host and the elevator men and hall boys were kept busy answering numberless questions plied to them by the visitors.

At the Battery the same crowd of eager sightseers was to be seen and the boats to Liberty Island were loaded to their utmost capacity, and boat load after boat load of strangers visited the famous statue.

The Coney Island and South Beach boats escaped none the less from the raid, Ellis Island also came in for share and the officers at the Barge Offices are sporting mementoes presented to them by some of the fair members of the Kansas delegation.

Yesterday a large party from the Illinois delegation chartered the steamer Cepheus and sailed around the harbor visiting Governors Island, the Navy Yard, Liberty Island and points of interest in general.

The final meeting of the Christian Endeavor Association was held in the Madison Square Garden, and was addressed by several speakers.

The next Convention will be held in 1893 in Montreal, and not in Cleveland, as previously stated. The Conventian will be held in the latter place in 1894.

FRIGHTFUL EXPLOSION.

Twenty-Six Killed and a Number Injured on Lake Geneva.

BERNE, July 11.—A frightful explosion explosion occurred yesterday on Lake Geneva.

The steamer Mont Blanc was carrying a considerable load of passengers, including a number of tourists, on the lake, when the boiler exploded, killing many and wounding a number of others.

The scene is said to have been the most horrible ever witnessed on Lake Geneva.

The excursionists were quietly enjoying the beauties of the scene, the weather being delightful, and the water placid, when the explosion occurred, and in an instant the scene of quiet pleasure was converted into a spectacle of horror and death.

Not less than 96 persons were killed instantly by the jagged iron, pieces of which swept the boat like grape and canister.

About 30 were injured, and their screams and cries of agony could be heard across the Lake.

Other vessels went to the rescue and the injured and those who had escaped injury were saved from drowning.

No Americans, it appears, were among the dead or injured.

TO ABANDON NEW YORK.

The Central Railroad Has a New Station Scheme.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 11.—It is reported that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has decided to abandon their terminal station in New York, the Grand Central depot, and propose building a handsome new station in Harlem as soon as the tracking of the road between this city and New York is completed.

President Clark, before leaving for Europe, declared that the work on the remaining sections would be pushed with all possible speed.

This work will be finished in about a year, when the new terminal station will be built.

The passengers will then be transported from Harlem via the Second avenue elevated railroad.

More Smallpox.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—A telegram has been received at the Treasury Department from Assistant-Surgeon Magruder of the United States Marine Hospital Service stationed at Victoria, B. C., stating that smallpox is epidemic at that place, 25 deaths having occurred there from the disease to date.

TO PRISON FOR LIFE.

John Gleason's Sentence for Shooting James Daly.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 9.—John Gleason, the war veteran, who was convicted of murder in the second degree, in having shot James Daly, a grocer of Portchester, was sentenced by Judge Dykman this morning to life imprisonment in Sing Sing Prison.

When he was asked if he had anything to say, he told the court that he did not think he had a fair trial.

Judge Dykman told the prisoner that he was lucky in escaping with a sentence of imprisonment for life, instead of being sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Gleason was immediately taken to Sing Sing by Under Sheriff Pugsley.

Mrs. Parnell Wants Her Son's Property.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Mrs. Delia Parnell has applied for letters of administration upon the estate of her son. It appears that the widow has taken up letters, but has taken no measures to obtain possession of his property in this country. The mother says he owned no real estate, but that he has about $15,000 in securities. She wants her counsel, Lawyer Byrd, appointed administrator of the estate.

Imports and Exports of Specie.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The exports of specie from the port of New York last week amounted to $1,752,472, of which $1,808,331 was gold and $44,955 silver. Of the total exports $1,300,000 in gold and $487,141 in silver went to Europe and $8,921 gold and $13,410 silver to South America. The imports of specie during the week were $291,681, of which $243,186 was gold and $48,475 silver.

Postoffice Statistics.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—From the records of the Postoffice Department it appears that there were 67,105 postoffices in the United States on June 30, 1892, which is an increase of 2,776 over the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891. During the past year 1,228 postoffices were discontinued for various causes. There were 233 resignations from the service and 33 removals.

FRICK PARTLY RIGHT.

Hugh O'Donnell Concedes the Truth of One of His Statements.

HOMESTEAD, July 11. — Hugh O'Donnell, the strikers' leader, was seen by a reporter. When asked what he had to say regarding the assertion of Mr. Frick that only 315 of the 3,800 men were directly affected by the reduction, he replied:

"I frankly admit the truth of that assertion, but the situation, as it now stands, is this:—If the men were to concede this point it would open the way for a general reduction in all departments. It is a matter of strict principle with the Amalgamated to stand firmly by its men. One and all are banded together for mutual support, and the cause of one member is the cause of all. If the men went back to work and consented to a reduction of the wages of 325 of their number, eventually the wages of all the others would be reduced.

"The men will, under no consideration, yield to the expiration of the scale in December. The output at that season is much less, and they could ill afford to lay idle at that time of the year, as there would surely be suffering among the poorer classes. No sir, the final adjustment must be made now."

Killed in a Powder Explosion.

LOUDON THE HORSE.

His Owner Tells How He Cleared $54,000 in One Race.

A Disappointment in His Early Career—Knocked Down for Less Than $200—It Was a Great Race on Coney Island.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

The Story of Richard Loudon, Written by Himself.

The story that I am now to relate is about Richard Loudon, a horse; also about myself, Richard Loudon, the man. Not that I combined the attributes of a biped and quadruped, centaur-like, but there were in reality two distinct individualities, Richard Loudon, the horse, and Richard Loudon, the man, otherwise the humble narrator.

From the very first that I can remember of my boyhood I always had a passionate fondness for the high-mettled thoroughbred. Not your cold-blooded, prosaic, slow-go of the farm, but the fiery, almost unbroken descendants of Diomed, Hiarchy, Boston, Lexington and the other famous progenitors of our American racing families. I was never so happy as from the time I was deemed equal to the task of throwing a leg over a frisky yearling or a bolting two-year-old and showing that youngster the way he or she should go in track gallop and track trials. Did I get tumbled? Yes, many a time.

My uncle was a Kentucky stock-breeder, and he had a few thoroughbreds reared in a modest way. But the first real good one he ever owned was Lida Stanton, by Weaver, out of Ada Stanton.

A year worked wonderful developments in the filly. My uncle named her Lida Stanton, and later on ran her with great success all over the country.

So as I attained man's estate I bethought me that I, a green country lad, would keep a watchful lookout for some such bargain in the race horse line as my uncle's great mare had proved to be, and make a start for myself. The opportunity came sooner than I looked for.

Over at the neighboring Endorf stud farm there was held annually the spring sale of yearling, at which some great bargains were often obtained, after the equine swells, so called on account of their relationship to winners, had been knocked down to millionaires or their representatives.

Among the lot to be sold the spring which proved an auspicious one to me was a bay colt by Lawyer, out of Optime. As the sire was a son of Lexington and the great mare Levity, and the dam by that famous imported son of Irish Birdcatcher, Knight of St. George, I was prepared to see the colt fetch a high price. But perhaps because he was a bit "buckshinned" and had just the suspicion of an "osselet" on his off hind leg I got him dirt cheap for something under a couple of hundred dollars.

I never shall forget my feelings as the auctioneer, Col. Brewster, after knocking the colt down to me, asked: "What name?" and I proudly answered him: "Dick Loudon, sir," and pulled out my slender bank roll, paid for the youngster on the spot, and led him away amid the approving nods of many of my seniors in the business.

Well, for a long time I thought that I was badly "stuck" in the Lawyer colt. After I had him bridle-wise, and got him to galloping a bit, the fall after he became my property he developed a propensity for bolting that nearly cost him his legs and me my neck. One day when I was riding him myself, trying to teach him to "break" from a "drum tap," he broke with a vengeance. Like a shot out of a gun, he ran a couple of hundred yards, and then, espying a break in the fence, made for it. Essaying to get over, he only succeeded in "straddling" the obstacle, after dumping me on the other side on my head. When I scrambled up rubbing my cranium there was my world beater there was to be hanging over the rails struggling for dear life and apparently impaled.

But after some of the help had let down the rails and the colt, too, I found that the youngster was not impaled, although he had cuts and bruises all over his legs and the inside of his thighs, and he hobbled off so lame that we could hardly get him to the barn.

Well, I did no more with the colt that fall. I turned him out, and, fortunately, when I took him up the next spring, he was apparently as sound as ever. Before beginning to work him, however, I took my uncle's advice and had him added to the list.

My uncle was not a believer in running two-year-olds to death, however, and, again taking his advice, I did not start the youngster many times as a two-year-old. For all that, he ran a fair race in good company, and then I named him after my uncle, Richard Loudon. As I was also named after my uncle, there were then three Richard Loudons—Loudon, Sr., Loudon, Jr., and Loudon, the horse. Which of the trio did the most service to the house of Loudon in the period covering the narrative I am about to relate I will leave to myreaders, however, to judge.

The following spring, after resting up there a bit, I shipped the horses direct to Saratoga, via the Chesapeake & Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads to New York, and I arrived with my small string of three in good shape at the Springs after a rapid trip.

As it was some weeks yet before racing began at the springs, I had little trouble in securing stable room at Horse Haven, and, after a confab with Secretary Whaley of the association, selected one of those immediately behind the old grandstand in the famous pine grove. Here I had the old three-quarter-mile sandy track to gallop my horses on, as well as the regular course just across the avenue.

My life at Saratoga during these preliminary weeks was very pleasant. The unsurpassed water and fine-laden atmosphere of Horse Haven did wonders for my horses as well as for myself, and by the time the last weeks of July arrived my little party was in good shape for business. An interested spectator of my horses' progress during these pleasant summer mornings was Secretary Whaley, the Nestor of American racing officials. Partly was this due to a natural sentiment on his part, as he had himself bred Optime, the dam of my colt Richard Loudon, and afterward sold her to the Endorf farm stud. Prior to foaling my colt, Optime had thrown that good race mare Peruvian to the English horse Glengar, and her breeder was naturally anxious to see how the Lawyer cross, as exemplified by my colt, would turn out. I believe he had no reason to feel ashamed of the result of the union, judged by subsequent developments.

Well, the Saratoga meeting that summer was a good one. The usual meeting of the best of the horses from the western meetings with those from eastern and intermediate tracks produced some exciting sport.

Among the acquaintances I had formed at Saratoga was a young man who had enjoyed a phenomenal run of luck in two racing seasons. From an employe at the race track there James McDonough had progressed, with the aid of a lucky $1,000 winning on a combination bet, to the ownership of a few horses and a fair amount of cash as well. This latter I had helped him to increase by a hint from me to back my colt in his 10-to-1 at Saratoga, and he looked to me to be the man I wanted for my partner.

He was not at the track that day, so I went up to the city in the evening and found my man at his hotel. He was most enthusiastic over the scheme, and offered to advance the whole amount of the money, and if we lost I could repay him my half when convenient. This was better than I had expected, for the money I intended to put in would, if lost, make me pretty short for a time.

So McDonough agreed to be on hand at the Bay the second day after with $10,000 in cash to put on my colt. I had also arranged with two friends in whom I had implicit confidence to assist in "placing" the money, but did not tell them it was to go on my colt until the last moment.

The eventful day broke clear and pleasant. A typical September afternoon brought down great crowds to the track, boats, trains and roads being crowded by expectant racegoers. Our race was the first on the programme, so our little party of four were on hand early, having some important business in view.

There were ten 3-year-olds in the race, including Woodbrook, whose great races west had caused him to be made a hot favorite; Shannon, the California crack; Tattle, the pride of the beachers from Brighton; Vintner from West Virginia, Leonine and Stoner from the stables of two of our millionaire turfmen, and three others beside my gelding.

The latter opened at 10 to 1 in the betting ring, and my friends wanted to jump in, but I said: "No, wait awhile, he will go higher," and as the money came rushing in on Woodbrook, the favorite, "20 to 1 Richard Loudon" was soon heard in merry refrain amid the babel of sounds that echoed through the famous betting ring at the Bay that eventful September afternoon.

Now was our time, and each of us four taking opposite ends of the hollow square of bookmakers, started ahead down the line to put on the money. My side was nearest the mutual boxes, and as I passed them I purchased twenty tickets on the horse, an investment of a hundred dollars. Starting on down the bookmaking line the first stand I came to was that of Wheeler, the very successful western peneiler who was backed up by the California capital of "Lucky" Boden.

He had 30 to 1 up against my colt. I bet him a hundred at that price and was passing on, when he banteringly called after me: "I say, Dick, do you want any more?" I quickly answered: "I'll go you another hundred," and, like a flash, Wheeler answered: "All right, any more?" Now his badinage caused me to bet him three hundred more, and I would have gone on, but he weakened amidst the laughter of the nearest spectators of the occurrence.

However, I was more than pleased, as I had got $500 on against $15,000, and the next bookmaker, Appleton, had only 25 to 1 up. I hit him a couple of hundred, and was passing on when the sonorous voice of the "shouters" rose on each side of the ring: "Take Baylor off Richard Loudon," and for a moment business came to a standstill, many people, no doubt, expecting to see all bets declared off.

Well, I almost dropped in my tracks at the announcement. Hurrying to greet my three friends, I told them to stop betting and come along with me. As we started for the paddock the shouters were calling out: "Baylor rides Woodbrook," and then I knew I had been "done" by an offer to the jockey from the owner of Woodbrook of more money to ride his colt.

Almost on a run, for the second bell had sounded, and I had to either get a jockey or scratch, I reached the paddock, and, as good luck would have it, ran across John Cadell, a jockey of fair ability, but rather shady reputation. But it was he or scratch, and, considering the terms as I had offered the Canadian scamp, I got him the colors and saw him weighed.

Then we four friends held a consultation. We found that outside of my twenty mutuals we had invested about $2,000 between us, on which, the prospective winnings were something over $40,000! My partner wanted to go ahead and place the other $8,000, as there was still 15 to 1 to be had against the colt, in spite of the money we had got on.

But I, much disturbed by the rascally trick played me by Baylor, the jockey, demurred. I had little confidence in our substituted Jockey Cadell, although I knew my colt was an easy one to ride. So I said to McDonough: "Go ahead and put more if you like, but I'm only in with what is already up." So we stood and watched the horses go to the post and never went near the ring again, viewing the race from the paddock.

At the post just above the paddock, the field of ten horses was marshaled, and the usual collection of trainers, spectators, touts and stable help were collected inside the infield to see the send off.

The gray-haired starter, since celebrated as the foremost wielder of the flag in this country and perhaps the world, had considerable trouble with his field. The jockeys were, if anything, more fractious than the animals, and while Shandon, the Pacific coaster, hung back in the rear of the bunch, Woodbrook and his jockey, Baylor, strove in every break to "beat the flag," or, in plainer terms, to get the best of the start and the starter as well.

Fortunately for us our colt had got away in the front rank, and making the turn for the backstretch—there was no chute then as now—Vintner, ridden by the famous Jockey McLaren, was piloting the way, lapped by Richard Loudon, who had Tattle at his girth. The others were well bunched at their heels, all but the favorite, Woodbrook, who was over fifty yards behind the rearguard almost hidden in the dust that blew from the flying heels as smoke from a battlefield.

But the real struggle was only just begun. A furlong was covered and they are on the straight work of the backstretch, Vintner, Richard and Tattle now on nearly even terms. I looked at my watch and as the quarter clicked 26 seconds, I said to McDonough: "They are not setting a very strong pace, and if they keep that up Richard will outfinish them sure in the last quarter."

The run to the last furlong, time 1:16¼ for the three-quarters, showed Vintner lost in the shuffle which ensued between the four, and just as the people were shouting "Shandon wins!" our boy, Cadell, dug his heels into Richard's flanks, swung his whip at him without landing on his shining hide, and the game colt came away like a good one amid the roar of the crowd, winning pulled up by three open lengths.

"What a wonderful thing electric light is."

"Yes, it is wonderful. I expect after while it will be used to make the crops grow instead of the sun."

if it is made with Cottolene, the new pure substitute for lard. Cottolene is simply pure cottonseed oil and pure beef suet, two of the healthiest foods known.

Properly combined they are better than lard for all kinds of shortening, and everyone can eat, digest, and enjoy food cooked with it. Food that was indigestible when cooked with lard is easily digested when cooked with Cottolene, and many of the leading housekeepers of the land say they can make nicer bread, rolls, biscuit, cakes, cookies, ginger bread, pies, patties, tarts, griddle cakes, croquettes with Cottolene than with either lard or butter. Get it of your grocer and try it. Beware of imitations.

WITH MILITARY POMP AND CEREMONY

How Pennsylvania's National Guard Will Make Their Entrance Into Homestead To-Day.

THEY WILL BE RECEIVED BY THE WORKERS WITH CHEERS INSTEAD OF BULLETS.

STRIKERS AND CITIZENS TO MARCH OUT TO MEET THEM.

Comment Upon the Fact that Troops from the Eastern Part of the State are Hundreds of Miles Away, While Those from the Western Part Are to be at Homestead Where They Have Friends. One Train Passes Through the Town and the Strikers Shook Hands With the Soldiers—The Color Question May Be Injected Into the Trouble—The Matter of Returning the Pinkertons' Arms Causes Some Uneasiness—Scenes at the Departure of the Troops from Philadelphia Recall the Sights of the Sixties.

HOMESTEAD, July 12.—It is difficult to reduce the feeling of the people of Homestead to words.

From daybreak the town has been in a state bordering on that doubt beneath which smolders a flame that only needs some reckless one to fan it into a conflagration.

The troops are not here yet.

They are expected about noon.

Acting under the counsel of their leaders and on the strength of pledges made the military will be received by the people with banners flying and bands playing. This action is a concession by the workmen who disclaimed most vehemently the idea that it is in any sense a submission.

The feeling is so deep here since the battle of Wednesday that no temporary truce is safe. Arbitration or war seems to be the only natural heir to the situation.

Numbers may cower and quiet for the moment, but an adjustment of the differences in some way seems to be imperatively demanded by the circumstances.

This is not the case of a strike in a large city, where the disaffected may seek other scenes, and where, in the multiplicity of events crowding one fast upon another their woes or their grievances meet with a passing comment.

This is the case of a whole town being on strike, of men whose all is treasured up on this hillside, of fathers of families, who have put the savings of a lifetime into comfortable little cottages.

They have cast their lot here for good or for ill, and it is for themselves and for their homes they are fighting.

That is what makes the case so pitiable to one who comes here, and which seems to appeal so strongly to the moral influences of the larger world outside for arbitration.

The men are naturally law-abiding, thrifty, honest, skillful and industrious.

According to the latest reports received here there are forty carloads of troops at Fort Parry, a couple of miles up the river, and the others are assembling at Blairsville intersection.

Two carloads of guns and ammunition are at Brinton and the first brigade is under arms at Mt. Gretna.

There is some comment here upon the fact that the troops from the eastern part of the State are ordered in reserve 250 miles away and the troops coming here are from the western part of the State and many of them from towns so near here that the militiamen are friends of the strikers.

A train on the Pittsburg, McKeesport & Youghiogheny road passed through here last night with a number of National Guardsmen.

The strikers surrounded the cars and addressed the soldiers familiarly and shook hands with them.

Latest advices are that the entry of the soldiers will be made with much ceremony and pomp about noon.

A committee of citizens will escort them to the township limits, and then they will be met by the procession.

NOT WANTED IN THE BOROUGH.

The Men Take a Peculiar Attitude in Regard to the Militia.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 12.—The locked-out workmen of the Carnegie mills and the citizens of Homestead who sympathize with them, have taken a peculiar attitude in regard to the militia. They raise the point that the Carnegie mills are in Allegheny county, outside of the borough of Homestead, and claim that the borough is in a peaceable condition which does not call for the intervention of the armed forces of the State.

Chief Byrne of the Fire Department, who is also a member of the borough council, said to a press representative to-day that the troops are not wanted in the borough, and that while there will be no resistance on the part of the residents the officers have been informed that the town is in the hands of its civil authorities, and that interference by State troops is neither desired nor necessary.

Anxiety is written on the face of the town's people. Relief stands prominently on those of strangers.

Conservative men welcome the arrival of State troops. The hotheaded ones resent the invasion.

The leaders counsel co-operation with State authority but angry mutterings show that their view is not shared by these under their authority.

There is no thought that the troops will be molested but danger lies in the desire for retaliation, or whatever it may be called, on the Carnegie Company for attempting to bring in Pinkerton men.

Those who have gone openly about with loaded weapons in their hands are not in a mood to have this privilege restricted. Men who have witnessed scenes of bloodshed, who have seen their fellows weltering in their blood and who have waged warfare against a force of well equipped and disciplined mercenaries, have imbibed too strong a taste for warfare to give it up under compulsion.

A State bordering on anarchy cannot be changed to one of recognized law and order without great danger.

The thought is in the mind of every workman that the assumption of authority by the State, backed by 8,000 armed soldiers, is the preliminary step to the introduction of non-union laborers in the Carnegie mills.

"Non-union is second only to Pinkerton" is the feeling that arises in the minds of those whose bread and butter depend on the result of the present trouble. The growth of this feeling may give birth to disastrous consequences. Forced to its fruition one cry of revenge may place thousands of excited men in a frenzy and "to the works," and "to the bastile" would be synonymous.

While the correspondence between Sheriff McCleary and Gov. Pattison apparently shows the reason that induced the Governor in ordering out the troops, another view is had by some of the leaders.

They think that the rumors from many points of the active recruiting of the men for the Pinkerton service and the belief among the strikers that the Pinkerton men were assembling near Homestead induced the Governor to take action.

LEADER BY COMMON CONSENT.

Hugh O'Donnell's Remarkable Influence Over the Workmen.

HOMESTEAD, July 12.—The central figure among the locked-out workmen at Homestead ever since the trouble at the Carnegie mills began has been Hugh O'Donnell. He is the recognized leader among the iron-workers here, and exerts a most remarkable influence over them.

He is cool headed and brave and had it not been for his efforts it is probable that not one of the imprisoned Pinkertons would have escaped alive from the barges when they were besieged on the first day of the rioting.

O'Donnell is a man of medium height and slender build, and in no way presents a striking appearance. His features are clear-cut and regular, and he has a high, intelligent looking forehead. His heavy black mustache and strongly marked dark eyebrows give him an expression of fierceness and determination.

He is a native-born American and lives here with his family in a house which he built out of his own savings.

The men look to him for advice in everything, and obey him implicitly. No one else in Homestead commands the confidence of the mill hands so completely.

O'Donnell is a good talker and argues intelligently and clearly, and it was because of this that he first became a leader in the meeting of the powerful organization, the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, which he represents in the present clash between the Carnegies and their employes.

He occupies this position by common consent, for he is not an officer of the Association, although he has long been a member.

THE COLOR QUESTION.

It May be Injected Into the Trouble at Homestead.

HOMESTEAD, July 12.—The statement of Secretary Lovejoy of the Carnegie Company that he looked for a large number of the locked-out men returning to work at the company's scale is not the feeling that pervades the atmosphere of Homestead.

Rumors of an attempt on the part of the Carnegie Company to secure non-union workmen in Richmond and other places in Virginia have caused many mutterings of a vindictive character and these assume open threats when it is mentioned that the majority of the men secured to take the places of the locked-out men are negroes.

The color question is likely to be injected into the Homestead difficulty in a very forcible manner if the attempt is made. Non-union workmen of Caucasian extraction would be made to feel their position very keenly, but negroes would fare far worse.

TO AID THE STRIKERS.

Miners Arming to Fight by the Side of the Homesteaders.

HOMESTEAD, July 12.—A mounted miner rode into town from Six Mile Ferry and reported that 4,000 miners from the Allegheny Valley were gathering and intend to come here and aid the strikers.

The man reported that 2,000 of them were armed with Springfield rifles and that they would come here at once to fight the militia or any other body of men that might attempt to down the Homestead men.

He said that the miners believed that if the mill men here are crushed into submission it would be a severe blow to all organized labor men and the miners are willing to go to any extreme to assist the Homestead men.

The story was not fully credited here, for, although it is known that the miners are in sympathy with Carnegie's men, it is not believed that they could assemble and arm 2,000 men without it leaking out.

Decision of the Mass Meeting.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 12.—At the mass meeting of strikers it was decided unanimously to receive the National Guard with open arms. All the workingmen's lodges were directed to assemble when the troops arrived and escort them with bands of music to the rendezvous. The greatest enthusiasm marked the meeting and the name of Governor, Pattison was frequently cheered.

Substantial Aid for Strikers.

CHICAGO, July 12.—A check for $5,000 has been sent to the strikers at the Homestead Mills by the iron and steel workers at the South Chicago Steel Works. Other checks from industrial organizations are to be forwarded in a few days. It is stated at least $15,000 will be collected for the strikers from the workingmen of this city.

M'LUCKIE'S PROCLAMATION.

The Burgess Warns Strangers to Keep Away from the Town.

HOMESTEAD, July 12.—John McLuckie, the burgess or mayor of Homestead borough, has issued the following proclamation:

Whereas, many strangers are coming to Homestead with no other purpose in view than to gratify a curiosity aroused by the pending wage question, and, inasmuch as the presence of these idle strangers only tends to further complicate the adjustment of the difficulties and the maintenance of order,

"Therefore, I, the Burgess of Homestead, do earnestly request and warn all persons not having important business in Homestead at this time, to remain away from the town, and further notice is hereby given that all strangers will be held accountable for their conduct and be dealt with in a manner warranted by the gravity of the situation.

"I further request and demand that the citizens of the borough assist to maintain order and quiet by themselves, refraining from violent talking and unnecessarily assembling in public places and by restraining all others to obey the officers of the borough.

"I also enjoin the women and children to remain off the streets and especially during the prevalence of unusual excitement.

"I hereby order and direct that all the saloons in the borough close and remain closed until further orders. I deem this of the first importance owing to the number of strangers and unemployed persons now in the town and request an immediate and cheerful compliance with this order."

WARLIKE SCENES.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—At and around the armories of the National Guard in the morning the scenes was warlike. Officers and men in full uniform were bustling around, and on every side the active preparations to go to the front were to be seen.

From 5 o'clock on, the boys in blue were constantly reporting at the armories in response to the summons they had received in the early morning hours.

By 7 o'clock the armories of the First, Second and Third regiments and the State Fencibles were surrounded by a crowd of the friends and relatives of the guardsmen and the usual throng of people curious and anxious to see the boys off for the scene of the trouble at Homestead.

Although the officers and men of the National Guard expected to be called out, the order, when it came, was at an unexpected time and fell upon many like a thunder clap.

Col. Wendell P. Bowman's regiment, the First, had the post of honor. It was the first to leave its armory at Broad and Callow Hill streets, 578 men strong.

The second regiment, under command of Col. Bosbyshell, marched at 10 o'clock from the armory. There were 287 men in line out of the 251. They followed the first regiment in their march down Broad street and out Market to the old Pennsylvania railroad depot at 23d and Market streets.

The officers have been drilling the men every night for several weeks past in anticipation of going into camp, and they are thoroughly disciplined, well versed in the tactics, thoroughly drilled in methods of handling armed or unarmed mobs, and, as the officers declare, in the very best possible shape.

TROOPS WILL NOT BE MOLESTED.

Homestead's Burgess Thinks There Will Be No Trouble.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 12.—John McLuckie, Burgess of the Borough of Homestead, speaking of Gov. Pattison's action in ordering out troops, said that while he could not speak authoritatively for the people of the town yet from what he knew of them he was certain that the State troops would not be molested if they took up quarters at the mills.

He said, as Burgess of Homestead, he could say that the dignity and honor of the State is just as dear to them as to any community in the Union. He said that the people have conducted their affairs quietly and intelligently and can be relied upon to offer no resistence to the State troops.

One of the strikers who was standing near said:

"What! Not if they come in here to shoot us down like dogs."

The Burgess assured him that that was not their intention, but the man persisted in saying that if the militia interferes with the mill men's affairs there will be trouble.

NEW CARNEGIE MOVE.

The Men Will Be Charged With Firing On a Government Vessel.

PITTSBURG, July 12.—When the Carnegie Steel Company goes before the Congressional Investigating Committee an attempt will be made to make the assault upon the steamer Little Bill at Homestead by the mill hands an offense against the government of the United States.

The Carnegie people assert that the boat towing the barges carried the American flag and was engaged in the United States service in towing various government barges. She was on a navigable stream at the time of the fight.

The object of this move on the part of the steel company is not known, unless it be to get United States troops ordered to the scene of the trouble.

Mr. Powell is still detained in the House of Detention as a witness.

W. W. ASTOR DEAD

His Death in London Concealed for Many Hours.

IT OCCURRED AFTER A RELAPSE.

The News in New York—Notice of His Death Posted on the Door of the Astor Estate Building and the Office Closed—Mysterious Reticence.

LONDON, July 12.—William Waldorf Astor of New York died here of pneumonia at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The greatest secrecy has been maintained by the family about the event. A reporter was sent to Lansdowne House and the man in charge of the gate refused him admission, as he did also to a number of other visitors who called while the reporter was there.

In answer to the inquiries of every one the gatekeeper said that Mr. Astor was improving. A note sent in to the family was returned with the answer that there was nothing to be said. Dr. MacLagen was equally uncommunicative.

About midnight a member of the family came out of the house and walked rapidly down the street. The reporter spoke to him and asked whether Mr. Astor was still alive, and he answered that Mr. Astor had died during the evening, but refused to say anything more.

The News in New York.

NEW YORK, July 13.—A notice posted on the door of the office of the Astor estate, No. 23 West 26th street, last night, authoritatively announced the death of William Waldorf Astor as follows:

"House closed on account of death of Mr. Astor."

The news was received by cable at Mr. Astor's office yesterday afternoon.

A grand hunt is proposed in the province of Kastroma, Russia, to destroy the wolves which in phenomenal numbers and with great boldness and savagery have attacked the cattle and even men in the region.

Information received concerning the defalcation of Treasurer Fuller, of Logan county, Ark., develops a shortage of $10,000, with further investigation to be made. Fuller has made over all his property to his bondsmen.

THE PINKERTONS' ARMS.

Question of Returning the Guns and Ammunition Causes Uneasiness.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 12.—The question of returning the guns and ammunition taken from the boats of the captured Pinkerton men at Homestead last Wednesday is at present giving the citizens of that borough some little uneasiness since it is a matter of history that the boats were pillaged by a crowd the moment the detectives were taken ashore.

One of the leaders and a member of the Advisory Committee said to reporter:

"Of course the Pinkerton agency will make a demand for their guns, revolvers and ammunition and we will do our best for them, but you will understand that we are in a peculiar position.

"The terms of surrender were that the guns should all be boxed up and sent back to Pinkerton headquarters with the ammunition, and God knows when that promise was given we intended that it should be kept, but the mob was too much for us.

"Those guns I suppose are distributed in every town in the county, and one long-headed fellow from McKeesport got away with seven of those Winchesters.

"He hired a skiff to carry himself and guns to Port Perry where he disposed of them at $7.50 a piece, and when we went after him the next day he had not one of the captured guns."

GEN. SNOWDEN'S ORDER.

How the Troops Will Act When in Action.

PITTSBURG, July 12.—The following is an extract from an order issued by Maj.-Gen. Snowden referring to the government of the troops when in action:

"The movement of the troops will only be in compact bodies. No firing will be permitted except by order the officer in command.

"When all other means of quieting riot and restoring order having first been exhausted the commanding officer shall notify the rioters that they will be fired upon unless they promptly disperse.

"Should they not disperse the order to fire will be deliberately given, and every soldier will be expected to fire with effect and continue firing until the mob disperses.

DEPARTURE OF THE TROOPS.

The Scenes at Philadelphia Recalled the Sights of the Sixties.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—The scene around the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Market and Thirty-second streets reminded many of the stirring sights in the sixties.

Great crowds witnessed the departure of the soldiers, and cheer after cheer was sent up as the trains left the depot.

Many groups of sweethearts and mothers were shedding tears outside the gates, and many impressive scenes were seen.

One old, gray-headed woman fervently blessed a number of soldiers, who stood bareheaded while the old lady poured forth her words.

Mining Trouble in Washington.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 12.—A special from Spokane, Washington, says that a repetition of the Homestead slaughter has begun in the Couer d'Alene mining region. The report comes that three non-union miners had been killed by union men. A report comes that the Frisco mine has been blown up by dynamite. The union men are resolved to drive every non-union man out of this mining district. The women and children have been moved from the mining camps to places of safety.

Unbalanced His Mind.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Michael Slater, one of the Pinkerton men who was in the recent battle at Homestead Pa., was arrested on a charge of attempted murder. He entered the house at 805 Fifth avenue and began shooting at everybody in sight. In Court the case was dismissed on the ground that the experience at Homestead had unbalanced Slater's mind.

Admonished the Men.

HOMESTEAD, July 12.—At a meeting of the Advisory Committee of the workmen, at which were present President-elect Garland and Secretary-elect Kilgamon, of the Amalgamated Aoccociation, a committee was appointed to go among the workmen and advise them to make no demonstration of hostility or even disapproval when the troops arrived.

THE BURNED CITY.

Relief Measures for the Stricken People of St. Johns.

HALIFAX, July 12.—The Citizens' Committee forwarded seven hundred barrels of food supplies on the steamer Ulunda last night, also 35,000 feet of lumber. Archbishop O'Brien, General Ross and others, promptly headed the relief subscription list. All the men in the garrison give one day's pay.

While the Citizens' Provisional Committee were hard at work getting off supplies on the Ulunda, the naval authorities were not inactive. Gen. Sir John Ross had also forwarded, by the Alaska, tents and merquees to shelter some 15,000 people, as well as a quantity of blankets. The general also started a garrison subscription list.

Admiral Hopkins, although out of the city, gave telegraphic orders for the Blake to proceed to the scene of desolation and to forward such stores of provisions and canvas for tents as could be spared.

The Emerald, now on the coast of Newfoundland, having on board six months' supplies of food for three warships, was also ordered to St. Johns.

Half an hour after the Ulunda steamed down the harbor, the lines were cast off from the Blake and that magnificent cruiser sailed for St. Johns, carrying a large quantity of flour, pork, beef, chocolate, split peas, sugar, biscuit, etc., 500 blankets and twenty-five large new sails for erection into tents, and capable of sheltering 2,000 to 2,500 people.

The Blake has reached St. Johns.

Preparing to Keep Out Cholera.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The rapid spread of the cholera in Europe has attracted the attention of Mr. Chandler of New Hampshire, who has offered an amendment to the Sundry bill increasing the appropriation for the suppression of epidemic diseases to $550,000, so as to meet any contingency which might arise during the recess of Congress.

ABANDONED HER BABE.

A HOUSEWIFE FINDS A FOUNDLING ON THE DOORSTEP.

Pinched with Hunger and Poorly Dressed, the Infant Is Pitied for Its Helplessness, and Tenderly Cared for—A Brief Note Tells of Husband-Desertion and Poverty.

Aaron Baker is a respectable, hard-working tinsmith employed by Schorb & Dakin, at Somerville. He lives in apartments over Major's grocery store, at the east end of town, one door west of the West End club-house. A small alley runs between the club-house and the store. The entrance to Baker's apartments is in the rear of the store, about thirty feet down the alley.

Saturday night at about 10, Baker and his wife were preparing to go to bed, when a noise at their side door attracted their attention. Although noises are not uncommon in that vicinity, owing to the proximity of the West Enders, still this was a different kind of racket, and Mrs. Baker went down stairs to the door, and to her surprise found on the stone step a market basket with the cover tightly fastened down. As she lifted the basket she was startled to hear a muffled cry issuing therefrom. She dropped the basket and called to her husband. He came down stairs, and then made an investigation.

Upon the cover being removed, a baby was found, wrapped up in a small blanket. The Bakers took the child up stairs, and began to look carefully to find out who the child belonged to. The baby was very poorly and thinly dressed, having but one shoe and stocking, the other leg being entirely bare, one little dress, and the blanket. This was the only apparel except a bandage which went around the child's body next the skin. Upon removing this, and looking carefully, the letter S in indelible ink was discovered in one corner. This was the only thing about the child or basket by which any identification could be made. A note in the basket told the age of the child, 2 months, and said that the mother was compelled to abandon the babe; that the father had deserted her, and that she could not support the child; therefore she would leave it with the prayer that it might fall into good hands.

The basket was a common cheap affair, and could be bought anywhere for fifteen cents. Mr. and Mrs. Baker were delighted with their find, and say they intend bringing the child up and adopting it.

Mr. Baker told a PRESS reporter in the Brick Hotel, this morning, that the child was very thin and pinched, and had been sadly neglected. The babe has black eyes, light flaxen hair, and a fair skin. It is a very pretty child. Mr. Baker seems delighted that the baby should have been left with him, as he has no youngsters of his own.

But the babe's mother may yet be discovered. Hank Walcott is conductor of the train which reaches Somerville at 10:05 in the evening, and which leaves there for New York at 11:05. On Saturday evening, after getting his supper at the Brick Hotel, he was accompanied to the station by landlord Schenck. Just before the train started Walcott pointed to a woman who came rapidly down the street and got aboard his train, and said: "That woman just came up on my train with a baby. I wonder where the kid is. What could she have done with it?" When seen on the train coming to Somerville she had been dressed in dark clothes, with a black straw hat of sailor shape. She was slight and light haired, and had a pained expression on her face. She spoke to no one, but got off the train with the child in her arms, and walked quickly away.

The villagers are greatly mystified about the case, which has occasioned much talk. The local police are trying to trace the woman, but have as yet been unsuccessful.

A SABBATH-BREAKER DROWNED.

He Worked in a Gaudy-Picture Shop Where Boys and Girls Are Not Schooled in the Paths of Virtue.

James Gallager, a lad of fourteen years, who worked for Hill Bros., the photograph manufacturers, at Neshanic, was drowned in the Neshanic river Sunday afternoon. In company with a dozen other boys, employed by the same firm, he went in wading where he thought the river was shallow. He had gone but a few steps when down he went into one of the sink-holes which makes this river so dangerous, and before help could reach him he had sunk to rise no more. The other boys attempted to save him, but as they could not swim their efforts were fruitless. The alarm was at once given, and a searching party began to drag the river with nets. After four hours, the body was brought to the surface, and was taken to the local undertaker's. An inquest was held immediately, and a verdict of accidental drowning was given. The body was sent to New York, where the dead boy's parents live. Hill Bros. employ about thirty boys and fifty girls in their business of making loud pictures for cigarette firms, and none of their employes has any too good a reputation for Sabbath-observance. They spend Sundays in fishing and swiming, and are not inclined towards church attendance. The Hill Bros. have a large building where they keep both the boys and girls; the only curb on them is that they must be in by 10 at night.

A Watchful Officer on Guard.

The Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut, learning from THE PRESS that the doors of his house had been found open, made a flying visit to Plainfield Sunday and investigated. He found nothing missing, and has set officer S. R. Hope to guard the place during the remainder of the season.

Painful Injuries of a Fall.

A son of Thomas Marley, of 125 Richmond street, had a bad fall from the trestle in the coal yard of L. A. Rheaume on Broadway last evening, and fractured an arm and received severe scalp wounds.

LOST MONEY ON THE SALE.

A Hebrew Stranger Finds Plainfield a Poor Place to Do Business in.

Peter Rothmaker, a black-bearded Hebrew, peddler of cheap neckties, arrived in town this morning and was warned by sergeant Lynch not to sell without a license. Detective Frisbee, however, of the Fourth ward precinct staff, did some sharp watching of the fellow, and soon had him locked up. The prisoner took it as a hardship because the sergeant refused to let him smoke cigarettes in his cell. Detective Frisbee gave judge Codington convincing proof of his guilt, and Rothmaker was fined $2 and told to get out of town or else secure license. He said he was a poor man, and had to hunt up a Hebrew friend in town and borrow the money to save him from going to jail for 10 days. Though he had approached several people and urged them to buy his goods, he had sold only one tie, and that to Frisbee, who paid 5 cents for it. Rothmaker said that in asking others to buy he had only used the question as an introduction, preliminary to asking the shortest route out of town. Frisbee wears his new tie proudly.

SELLS SEVEN DAYS A WEEK.

That's the Charge Against This Over-Eager Merchant.

Sigmund Frucht is professedly a Hebrew, and takes advantage of the privileges of his creed to sell goods on Sunday from his old curiosity shop on Front street. But the law provides that when a man sells on Sundays he shall observe some other day religiously. But it is alleged that Frucht is so anxious not to miss a trade that he keeps his store open every day in the week, and therefore captain Grant has lodged a complaint against him. Walter L. Hetfield is his counsel, and pleaded not guilty in his behalf this morning. Judge Codington set next Tuesday morning at 9, as the date of trial, which will probably be by jury.

A START ON THE DOWNWARD ROAD.

A Blear Eyed Young Man in Court for Transgressing Against the Police.

David Vail was so intoxicated last night that he had n't much recollection this morning of what he did during the night, but it was pretty clear from the reports of the two policemen who arrested him that he was very disorderly and fought his captors and threatened to knock their heads off with their own clubs. He was very sick in his cell during the night, and was a distressing-looking object at the bar this morning. Judge Codington wanted to hear the verbal testimony of the policemen making the arrest, and deferred sentence till to-morrow morning at 10.

SQUABBLE AMONG WOMEN.

Mary Accuses Nora of Spreading Harsh and Untrue Tales About Her.

A tearful child accompanied Nora Edmunson into judge Codington's court this morning. Nora was under arrest for saying ugly things against the character of her neighbor, Mrs. Mary J. Tharp. Nora denied the charge, and said she had all she could attend to taking care of her sick husband, who had been on his back for six months, her sickly eighteen-months-old baby, and her other children, and earning enough to provide them all with the necessities of life, without gadding about, drinking and spiting her neighbors as was alleged.

Nora will have a hearing Saturday morning at 9, when Mrs. Tharp will appear against her.

No Connection Whatever!

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Is there any connection between these facts and circumstances? Thursday evening, according to THE PRESS, the mayor refused to permit a high-class circus to come to Plainfield; Friday evening the council had to borrow $3,000; Saturday evening the mayor gave a Pawnee-Bill-Wild-West show permission to come to this city, and welcome, for $25.

PEACE STREET, NOT PARK AVENUE!

The Electric Railway Has Secured Consents for the Proper Right of Way to the Station.

The Plainfield Street Railway company has obtained sufficient consents of property owners along the line to secure the right of way from where its tracks now stop at Front and Somerset streets, through East Front and Peace streets to the station.

Consequently a special meeting of the council will be called for Thursday evening, probably, to act upon the petition of the company for a franchise to extend its road in that direction. This will be a great disappointment to the merchants on Park avenue who hoped to induce the railway to come their way. But Park avenue is not a wide enough thoroughfare for street car tracks, and the public on its way to the trains would not be so well served in a street where there would be blocks and delays. Besides, there are a number of the councilmen—including such level-headed men as Mr. Fisk—who would sensibly and justly refuse to vote permission to lay tracks and run cars on Park avenue from Front street to North avenue. Peace street is the proper way.

ON THE WAR-PATH.

Two Young Salvationists Try to Knock Their Doctrines Into Abraham's Head.

Trouble has invaded the ranks of the Salvation Army. Last night an inoffensive young man named Abraham Dyas was set upon by two young fellows belong to the order, and knocked down and beaten, because he had refused to move away from the front of the barracks at their insolent command. Detective Frisbie saw the whole occurrence, and the belligerent warriors will be given a hearing before judge Codington to-morrow morning.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, With the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

HO FOR MIZZEN PEAK.

THE SUMMIT OF MAN'S HAPPINESS IS A WATCHUNG MOUNTAIN HOME.

Delights of Dwelling Among the Heights, With the Incomparable Panorama of Jersey's Far-Reaching and Fruitful Plains Stretching Away for Miles at One's Feet—Only One Garden-Spot Where All the Delights Are Concentrated, and Mizzen Peak is Its Name.

The paradise for the home-seeker has been found in Mizzen Peak, the topmost summit of the Watchung Mountains. For centuries this range of graceful wooded heights has been famed for the view of the broad plains it affords. When the red man roved the forest free and unmolested, he loved to pause upon the lofty elevation and drink in the beauty and poesy of the scene. When Washington's army was encamped in the valley beyond the range, the great commander loved the solitude and inspiration of that mountain-top; there he communed with Nature, kept a vigilant eye on the movements of the enemy who threatened his country's prosperity, and by his presence made the already hallowed ground historic.

To-day the Watchung heights need no elaborate eulogy, for they and the rare view they command are famous all the country round.

But Mizzen Peak leads all the range in the charm and superb magnificence of its residence sites. A home built on that summit would be a veritable castle in the clouds, a paradise among the heavens. It is the most commanding spot of all the range, the choicest of the choice.

Mizzen Peak takes in the mountain for half a mile, midway between Bound Brook and Washington Rock. Here the mountain-top is broad and flat, and from each end of this half-mile stretch the range curves backward, leaving Mizzen Peak jutting out to the front, and giving the eye of the observer on the Peak a vast outlook, a prospect of exhaustless attraction.

The extent to which the vision reaches is limited only by the curve of the earth's surface at the far-off horizon. One stands at the edge of the high plateau, and gazes for hours, drinking in the delights of this matchless panorama. It is a witching scene. Skirting the woodland of the mountain range as the waves of a pacific sea gently lap the sloping strand, is the boundless plain. It stretches away as level as a dancing-floor, till lost in the dim haze of distance. Fertile fields are these—meadows rich in waving grasses or golden grain, or green with thrifty corn or fruitful orchards. Well-kept farmhouses and capacious barns dot the green of the rural landscape. County roads wind from hamlet to village, to town. Yonder are larger settlements, residence and business growths of magnitude—Plainfield, Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Elizabeth. New Brunswick is miles away, yet one can distinguish prominent buildings, and can trace the silvery windings of the picturesque Raritan past the busy Sayreville brickyards. In the distance is Raritan Bay, met by the Raritan at the Amboys. The waters glisten in the sunshine, and the light craft scudding before the breeze give forth a jaunty gleam from their white sails. The bluffs of Staten Island loom up beyond the Sound, and afar off is New York Harbor, with the shipping easily discernible, and the Statue of Liberty and the East River bridge piers distinguishable through a field-glass. There is no end to the beauteous sights of this immense painting—Nature's masterpiece; and as one inhales the loveliness of it all his heart throbs with exultant bound, for the serenity and delight of such a scene as this is an oasis of bliss in the dusty and wearisome land that shuts in the toil-burdened creature of the workaday world.

When one ascends to the crest of Mizzen Peak, his vision is fairly astounded by the sweeping view across the plains to the Highlands of the Navesink, and in other directions. The country is rich in tree-embowered towns and villages of the level land, which stretches out at one's feet for a distance of twenty-five miles each way. The cares and worriments of life's humdrum existence drop from the pilgrim's shoulders and go bounding down the steep. Here one is free, unfettered, in body and mind. There is an exhilaration in the balmy atmosphere. The breeze never ceases blowing, but cools the heated brow, and fans into healthful flame the fair blush-rose that the stifling city was robbing from that lovely cheek. A place for the gods is this, and the gods are good to have revealed their garden to human sight, and to have granted to mortals its privileges.

While one has been reveling in the natural beauties and evidences of mankind's thrift and the advance of civilization at the front of the mountain, he has been turning his back on other delights in the valley stretching from Mizzen Peak to the second range. Mizzen Peak is the only spot on the entire range from which may be had this double view, this insight into the witching bloom and comeliness of the country on both sides of the mountain. It is as if one were perched upon a floating cloud of fairy-land, with a prosperous and radiant plain on one hand and a most luxuriant and peaceful valley on the other. And beyond the valley are the endless emerald hills, undulating far away towards the north.

The superb, the matchless view is not the only attraction of Mizzen Peak, though it is sufficient, since travelers who have visited every famous spot on the globe are enthusiastic in pronouncing this the finest pastoral panorama they have ever seen in any country. But to him who builds his home here, the joys are countless.

There are neatly-kept and prolific vineyards, kept by thrifty Frenchmen on the sunny southern slopes. Conveniently near to Mizzen Peak is the famous camping-ground of Washington. At the base of the mountain, reached by an easy path, are restful nooks along Green brook, which makes a detour from the distance, and skirts the rising ground here and here only. There is a very pretty little lake for boating and fishing, formed by the brook at Sebring's mills; and the stream is broad and deep enough for rowing for a considerable distance. At Bound Brook, nearby, there are even better facilities for piscatorial and aquatic sport, for here is the river Raritan, to tempt the dwellers down from the slopes of Watchung and the heights of Mizzen Peak. The water from the wells of the Peak is sweet and pure, clear as crystal, and cool and refreshing. Stone and timber for building are at hand. The erection of a fine dwelling is an easy task. The site is one to attract both the substantial citizen and the man of modest means.

The drive from the summit to Bound Brook is a broad, hard, smooth roadway, sloping easily and gradually down the mountain-side, shaded by graceful giant trees, and giving a fine view of the country all the way. It is a descent that with good horses is accomplished in fifteen minutes, and if one is provokingly slow the drive to the station is only twenty-five. The Jersey Central and Lehigh Valley roads combine here to give the place the finest suburban train service in the world. So many trains pull in and out each day that it is a most important railroad centre. From here the fast Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington expresses dash southward over the Philadelphia and Reading tracks, and on their return rush towards New York at a rate of speed which brings Bound Brook within 45 minutes of the city. The sumptuous Royal Blue trains are the joy of the commuter, and with Mizzen Peak only an hour or an hour and a quarter from his place of business the New Yorker has no excuse for not being superbly happy in his choice of a home.

The advantages of Mizzen Peak are acknowledged by all who have visited the summit and gazed down from the overlook tower erected there by the public-spirited owner, and perched loftily up beneath the dome of blue sky; but no one recognizes those advantages more than does Joseph T. Vail, the proprietor, of 49 North avenue, Plainfield, N. J. He is enthusiastic over the brilliant future of the place, and will gladly interest those seeking for a perfect building-site. There is bound to be a fine hotel, surrounded by charming villas, on Mizzen Peak, before long, and in the evening the driveways and dwellings will be lighted by electricity from the power-house of the Dunellen Electric Light company, already in operation at the foot of the mountain. The top of the Peak is but an hour's drive from Plainfield, and there is a delightful road to it by way of the Notch, easy of ascent, and charming in its scenery.

Plainfield Wins Again at Cricket.

On Saturday, July 9, the Plainfield cricketers journeyed to Central Park, New York, to play a game against the Harlemites, and obtained an easy victory over them.

The Plainfielders went to the bat first, and had made 82 runs at the fall of the fourth wicket when it was decided to close the innings as the Harlemites did not seem "in it". The home team were all put out for 37 runs, thus losing the match by 6 wickets and 45 runs. John Ogden, F. Wharton and J. Arden contributed 35, 12 and 17 runs respectively for the Plainfielders.

The following is the result of the innings:

An Army of Strangers at the Famous Resort.

A striking illustration of the popularity of the clean and legitimate form of entertainment at the Eden Musee was shown during the sessions of the Christian Endeavor society convention in New York. The Musee was visited by the enormous total of 50,000 strangers, who heard of its unique character and unrivalled attractions in every State of the Union. They came in droves, and were one and all delighted with the programme. The admiration of the visitors was particularly aroused by the new American Historical gallery. This history of the country in wax was at once perceived and appreciated, and the gallery was a Mecca for the Endeavor delegates, who will carry its fame to all sections of the United States and Canada. To add to their satisfaction, 10,000 toy balloons and an equal number of beautiful souvenirs were distributed by the management. The expressions of pleasure were universal. Powell, the clever magician, continues to produce new tricks, with a rapidity that knows no end. The funny doings of the agile Majilton show him to be a born comedian. Cool enjoyment can be had in the concert garden, where the Hungarian orchestra plays afternoon and evenings.

It's a sign that you need help, when pimples, blotches, and eruptions begin to appear. Your blood needs looking after. You'll have graver matters than pimples to deal with, if you neglect it. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery prevents and cures all diseases and disorders caused by impure blood. It invigorates the liver, purifies the blood, and promotes all the bodily functions. For all forms of scrofulous, skin and scalp disease, and even Consumption (which is really lung-scrofula) in all its earlier stages, it is a certain remedy. It's the only one that's guaranteed, in every case, to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded. It's a matter of confidence in one's medicine.

It's the cheapest blood-purifier sold, through druggists, because you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

The "Discovery" acts equally well all the year round.

WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR.

The Report of His Death Incorrect—His Condition Not Dangerous.

LONDON, July 12.—The report that William Waldorf Astor died here yesterday afternoon is not true.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the correspondent of the United Press who called at Lansdowne House to inquire about Mr. Astor's condition was informed by a member of the family that Mr. Astor was doing splendidly.

The family was shocked to learn that a report of Mr. Astor's death had been current in New York.

NEW YORK, July 12.—A reporter called at the office of the Astor estate, in West Twenty-sixth street, this morning. It was closed, and a notice of Mr. Astor's death was posted on the door. Entrance was gained by ringing the bell.

Abner Bartlett, the manager of the estate, was not in, but his representative, C. W. Baldwin, was there and was very much surprised when informed that a cable stating that Mr. Astor was still alive had been received.

[The announcement of Mr. Astor's death was received by cable early this morning, and was considered official. All of the New York papers contained the story of the death to-day. The first page of THE PRESS, giving news of the supposed death, was printed this morning before the receipt of the cablegram of denial.]

TROOPS IN HOMESTEAD.

The Mills in Possession of the Military—No Signs of Opposition.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 12.—At 9 this morning the National Guard began to arrive at Munhall station.

As soon as they had formed in line, with the Second Brigade in advance, the troops started for the hills which overlook the town. The band played, and as the men proceeded to get into position everything was quiet and there was no indication of an outbreak on the part of the strikers or opposition to the soldiers.

At 9:45 the first detachment of troops entered the town.

The troops at once surrounded the mills and mounted guard. Their reception by the strikers was of a very friendly character.

CYRUS W. FIELD DEAD.

The End Came at 9:55 o'Clock This Morning.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

DOBBS FERRY, July 12.—Cyrus W. Field died at 9:55 o'clock this morning at his country home in Ardsley Park. He was attacked early this morning by one of the violent delirium spells which have occurred so frequently during his recent illness. Dr. Coutant was at once summoned from Tarrytown and administered some anodyne, with the hopes of getting his patient to sleep. The medicine, however, proved of no avail, and in less than three hours the aged financier was dead.

The Victor Cycler Rode the Victor Wheel.

Harry J. Milligan and Compton T. Vail have long been friendly rivals on the wheel, and yesterday afternoon rode a ten-mile race, to Westfield and return. Dick Stevens was starter, and M. A. Haven time-keeper. The racers started from Rogers's headquarters, Fifth street and Central avenues. Milligan is an ex-carrier of THE DAILY PRESS, and is true to his training. He therefore won easily in 34½ minutes. Vail was 39 minutes in covering the distance. Milligan rode a Victor pneumatic, and Vail a Columbia. The wind of Vail's tire gave out on the road, and he had to stop to inflate. After the race the participants enjoyed a watermelon feast, and the victor was awarded the fine silver medal offered as an incentive by W. H. Rogers.

A Kind Act.

Yesterday morning as a small boy was passing a West Front street store, with his mind on the Wild-West show as pictured in bills displayed, he accidentally fell and broke some of the merchant's ware. At this the merchant informed the child that he must pay the damage. The boy did not have any money to pay with, and insisted that it was an accident, when a kind-hearted woman stepped up and paid the loss. It is such actions as these—commented a bystander—that make men think of a higher sphere, and give them more faith in their fellow-creatures.

Safe, Sure and Speedy.

No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

CAUGHT!

A Gang of Men, Well Armed with Tools, Discovered at the Bank.

Two of Plainfield's alert policemen were traversing the streets at daybreak this morning, when four shadowy forms were seen stealing in towards the rear of the First National bank. The men procured a ladder, placed it against the building, and soon gained the roof.

"We are just in time to prevent a great bank robbery and cover ourselves with glory"—spoke one officer to the other.

They saw that the men had sachels evidently containing burglars' tools, and they hastened to anticipate and prevent their raid on the treasury in the safety vaults.

Stealthily creeping up the ladder, the policemen reached the roof, and with drawn clubs stole softly up to the would-be burglars, who were stooping as though about to cut a hole in the roof to lower themselves through.

Unfortunately, the tin of the roof suddenly gave a rattling sound under the footsteps of the officers, and the plunderers turned in alarm.

A fierce and dangerous hand-to-hand encounter seemed inevitable. The officers realized their peril, but sprang bravely forward, resolved to do their duty to the bitter end. Would they be overpowered by the ruffianly robbers? Would their senseless bodies be hurled from the roof-top to the cruel pavement below? No: they are saved: for a peal of merry laughter breaks the stillness of the morning air, and the plumbers from the shops of Carney Bros. explain that they had the job of repairing the tin roof, and took this early hour for the work to avoid the intense heat of the summer day.

BASE-BALL CHATTER.

Hammill Finally Released to Plainfield—A Great Game To-Morrow.

Hammill will be seen in right field in all Saturday games hereafter. Manager Coding released him from Westfield Saturday night.

Bond, of Swartmouth college, who is visiting in this city, will probably play right field in to-morrow's great game against Staten Island, on the home grounds.

The Crescents on Saturday made only one hit less than the Westfields, and with two exceptions played an errorless game, yet the base-ball editor ("I don't think") of the Courier says it was a "disheartening game"!

The batting order of the Staten Island Athletic club to-morrow will be: VanZant, 3b; Kraus, c; Brill, 1b; Brush, ss; Mackenzie, lf; Collins, cf; DeGumonies, 2b; Vroom, rf; Clare, p; Carter and Moore, extra.

—Excursionists are invited to call at Doane & VanArsdale's this week and see their line of summer shoes. Everyone is buying them.

STILL LINGERING IN NEW YORK.

Many of the Christian Endeavor Delegates Will Remain Until August 15.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Proprietors of hotels and restaurants and places of amusement, who had calculated that the Christian Endeavor delegates would leave town at once on account of the close of the convention, have been agreeably surprised. The expected exodus of the delegates has not yet taken place.

On Saturday more than 10,000 tickets were exchanged at the office in the Madison Square Garden, and to-day word was received by the managers of the convention that the authorities at the Albemarle had been obliged to establish a branch office on Broadway in order to accommodate the great crowds of Endeavorers who were desirious of remaining in town.

Mr. Hurst, who has had much to do with the excellent arrangements for the convention, said this morning that, in his opinion, not more than 50 per cent. of the delegates would leave the city to-day and to-morrow. The others, he said, had decided to extend their visit. Most of these latter will remain with us, or in places in the neighborhood until Aug. 15.

At the big amphitheatre of the Garden nearly every trace of the convention has been cleared away.

Those who had charge of the details of the Convention are congratulating themselves on the success of their efforts. There certainly has not been a flaw in any of the arrangements.

Methodist Advisory Board Meeting.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The meeting of the Methodist Advisory Board at the Fifth Avenue hotel, which was announced from the platform of the Christian Endeavor Convention, has been indefinitely postponed, as a majority of the members of the board were out of town, having left on Saturday to preach at different churches on Sunday. The object of the meeting was to effect a settlement, if possible, of the existing strained relations between the Epworth League of the M. E. Church and the Society of Christian Endeavor.

"Any situation vacant on this paper?" asked the caller, a slender, wiry pilgrim with an intellectual face and a witted collar.

"What kind of situation?" said the editor.

"Heavy editorial."

"None vacant."

"Literary criticism—any chance in that department?"

"No, sir."

"I can write intelligently on art. Do you need an art critic?"

"I am sorry to say I have no vacancy in that department either."

The caller hesitated a moment and then rose with dignity.

"I have had considerable experience," he said, "in other branches of newspaper work. Do you need a man to run the elevator?"—Chicago Tribune.

Summer Resort Selfishness.

For studying human nature in its most selfish forms, go to the summer resorts. Miss Goldbag's chief ambition is to get the best room at the hotel, the best seat at the table and the coolest chair on the piazza. And how sweetly she smiles upon those who are one round higher in the social ladder! While those who are one round lower—well, she fears them as she would a tramp. A curious institution, this phenomenon that people call society. It is always on the lookout for Number One. Can't there be a change, though? Suppose the great army of summer pleasure seekers just turned over a new leaf, each looking out for the other and being totally oblivious to their own comforts. Would not the recreation be better and the pleasure greater? Try it and see.—Drake's Magazine.

Gowns Worn by Royalties.

At the golden wedding festival recently the empress of Russia wore a dress of gold brocade, with a long train trimmed with velvet stripes, which were nearly covered with Russian embroidery and pearls. The bodice was edged at the top with velvet and pearls interwined. The queen of Denmark also wore gold brocade, trimmed with ostrich feathers, with high sleeves, held together by diamonds of great size. Her majesty's train was nine feet in length, and her veil was ornamented with gold ears of corn. Princess Waldemar wore a dress of water-blue silk, trimmed with Alencon lace. The duchess of Cumberland looked well in white, embroidered with gold, and she wore some magnificent diamonds.—London World.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

The Eton Jacket Growing in Popular Favor.

A House Corsage Which Is as Neat as It Is Striking—Summer Millinery—The Russet Shoe Again in Favor.

[Special New York Letter.]

The adaptation of the Eton jacket for ladies may be classed as one of the most popular fashions of the season, and on a youthful slender figure the effect is charmingly chic.

The model shown here is dark blue cloth lined with blue silk with a fine white line in it. The broad collar and revers are stitched upon a narrow band of white cloth at the edge. A white silk shirt waist with a frilled edge and stiffened collar is worn with this jacket and buckled in with a wide ribbon belt. If preferred, a Corsair sash may be substituted for the belt. For useful summer wear the corselet with suspenders is very popular. This fashion is also only appropriate for slender young women. Made up in dark blue storm serge with a bell skirt and open-fronted jacket one can get plenty of variety with little cost by making up several shirt waists of gingham, wash silk and batiste for very warm days.

For dressy house wear I can recommend the novel corsage illustrated here. The model I have in mind was dark willow-green bengaline. The back is plain while the front opens with curved revers over an under body of India silk a few shades lighter. The triple sleeve of bengaline has the edge of each bell bordered with a passementerie of willow-green and silver, which also forms the straight collar and waistband. A full sleeve of the India silk come to the wrist in a frill.

The summer material par excellence is crepon. Every shade is represented and some of the fine embroidered ones are beautiful beyond description.

For street wear the light shades of gray beige and tan are appropriate, while for house and evening wear the delicate shades make up very becomingly with the new guipure and point de gene laces. Even the cotton crepons are effective in their first freshness.

Among the new washing materials the palm must be given to the fine dotted Swiss with delicate pompadour patterns printed in soft dainty shades.

There is a great demand for heavy laces this season for all purposes. Lace undersleeves, and epaulets, lace corselets and yokes. Deep full pelerines are seen on dresses and mantles, and much of the heavy white and cream lace is seen on millinery. When it comes to black lace we see the other extreme—nothing is too fine and gauzy for hat trimmings.

The new French grenadines are particularly handsome and durable. There are few patterns with the tatting figures of seasons past. The effect is dull or merely lustrous like bengaline.

The lace patterns are new and very durable and have the merit of not getting "fuzzy," but they are expensive in good quality.

Colored grenadines are made up very effectively over a contrasting shade of silk, and the black ones look well over a shot silk—say blue and black or red and black—with velvet ribbon trimmings.

There is one point of resemblance between hats and bonnets this season. No matter how small the crown and flat the brim, there is sure to be one grand towering point where the flowers feathers and ribbons, or perhaps all three, rise to what is sometimes a ridiculous height.

For shade hats, the broad Alsatian bow with a large buckle, is a good trimming.

The tiny tea-cup crown and large brim is very popular, to which a dressy effect is given by adding strings.

The model drawn here is fine black chip, with an open work brim, and a full wreath of pansies going all around the small crown. An aigrette of tiny feathers stands up in front, and black and purple velvet strings are fastened with a rosette, and ends a little to the left.

There is a fad for splitting open the crown of fancy straw hats to show flowers, velvet or ribbons through the aperture. This, when well done, is rather stylish, but I can imagine nothing more grotesque than a clumsy, amateur-slit crown.

A deep shade of pink seems to be the most popular color for flowers, and has the merit of being generally becoming.

Parasols are for the most part plain in character. Shot taffetta is in general use and is particularly pretty in the fine, soft-toned stripes so general this season. The handles are moderately long and plain, though the market is flooded with cheap Dresden and porcelain handles that one soon wearies of.

It is considered bad form to carry lace, chiffon or net parasols on the street. They are very properly relegated to lawn parties and carriage use.

The russet shoe is again the feature of summer foot gear and now we can get smooth Russia leather (or a good imitation of it) at a moderate price, which is a great improvement on the ordinary russet shoe, as they get darker and richer in color and polish with wear. A prepared cream for keeping them in good condition can be obtained at a reliable shoe shop.

STARS AND STRIPES.

An Official History of the American Flag.

Established by Congress in June, 1777—Its First Salute by a Foreign Naval Vessel—How the Stars Are Arranged.

The quartermaster general of the army has been so bothered with questions regarding the American flag that he has issued a bulletin which is intended to meet the numerous and diversified queries that come to his office from the patriotic curious. The statements are the result of research on the part of the clerks of the department, and may be accepted as accurate, or, at least, as official. The bulletin, which will soon be issued, bears the stirring title "The Stars and Stripes," and is as follows:

The American congress, in session at Philadelphia, established by its resolution of June 14, 1777, a national flag for the United States of America. The resolution was as follows:

Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation.

Although nearly a year previous, July 4, 1776, these thirteen United States had been declared independent, this resolution is the first legislative action recorded relating to a national flag for the new sovereignty.

The use of thirteen stripes was not a new feature, as they had been introduced (in alternate white and blue) on the upper left-hand corner of a standard presented to the Philadelphia Light Horse by its captain in the early part of 1775, and moreover the union flag of the thirteen united colonies raised at Washington's headquarters, at Cambridge, Jan. 2, 1776, had the thirteen stripes just as they are this day, but it also had the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew on a blue ground in the corner. There is no satisfactory evidence, however, that any flag bearing the union of the stars had been in public use before the resolution of June, 1777.

It is not known to whom the credit of designing the stars and stripes is due. It is claimed that a Mrs. John Ross, an upholsterer who resided on Arch street, Philadelphia, was the maker of the first flag combining the stars and stripes. Her descendants assert that a committee of congress, accompanied by Gen. Washington, who was in Philadelphia in June, 1776, called upon Mrs. Ross and engaged her to make the flag from a rough drawing, which, at her suggestion, was redrawn by Gen. Washington with pencil in her back parlor, and the flag thus designed was adopted by congress.

Although the resolution establishing the flag was not officially promulgated by the secretary of congress until September 3, 1777, it seems well authenticated that the stars and stripes were carried at the battle of the Brandywine September 11, 1777, and thenceforward during all the battles of the revolution.

Soon after its adoption the new flag was hoisted on the naval vessels of the United States. The ship ranger, bearing the stars and stripes, and commanded by Capt. Paul Jones, arrived at a French port about December 1, 1777, and her flag received on February 14, 1778, the first salute ever paid to the American flag by foreign naval vessels.

The flag remained unchanged for about eighteen years after its adoption. By this time two more states (Vermont and Kentucky) had been admitted to the union, and on January 13, 1794, congress enacted that from and after the 1st day of May, 1795, the flag of the United States be fifteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be fifteen stars, white in a blue field.

This flag was the national banner from 1795 to 1818, during which period occurred the war of 1812 with Great Britain. By 1818 five additional states (Tennessee, Ohio, Louisiana, Indiana and Mississippi) had been admitted into the union, and therefore a further change in the flag seemed to be required. After considerable discussion in congress on the subject, the act of April 4, 1818, was passed, which provided:

First—"That from and after the 4th day of July next the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union have twenty stars, white in a blue field."

Second—"That on the admission of every new state into the union one star be added to the union of the flag, and that such addition shall take effect on the 4th day of July next succeeding such admission."

The return to the thirteen stripes of the 1777 flag was due, in a measure, to a reverence for the standard of the revolution, but was also due to the fact that a further increase of the number of stripes would have made the width of the flag out of proportion to its length unless the stripes were narrowed, and this would have impaired their distinctness when seen from a distance. A newspaper of the time said:

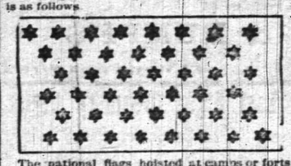
"By this regulation the thirteen stripes will represent the number of states whose valor and resources originally effected American independence, and the additional stars will mark the increase of the states since the present constitution."

No act has since been passed by congress altering this feature of the flag, and it is the same as originally adopted, except as to the number of stars in its union. In the war with Mexico the national flag bore twenty-nine stars in its union, during the late civil war thirty-five, and since July 4, 1891, forty-four stars. In none of the acts of congress relating to the flag has the matter of arranging the stars been prescribed and in consequence there has been a lack of uniformity in the union. The flags in use of the public generally may be seen with the stars ar-

The early custom was to insert the stars in parallel rows across the blue field, and this custom has, it is believed, been observed, in the navy at least, since 1818, at which time the president ordered the stars to be arranged in such manner on the national flag used in the navy. In the army, too, it is believed the stars have always been arranged in horizontal rows across the blue field, but not always in vertical rows; the effect, however, being about the same as in the naval flag.

Hereafter there will be no difference in the arrangement between the army and the navy, as an agreement has been arrived at between the war and navy departments on the subject.

Since July 4, 1891, the arrangement of stars in the flag of the army and ensigns in the navy is as follows:



The national flags hoisted at camps or forts are made of bunting of American manufacture. They are of the following three sizes: The storm or recruiting flag, 9 feet in length by 4 feet 2 inches in width; the post flag, measuring 20 feet in length by 10 feet in width; the garrison flag, measuring 35 feet in length by 20 feet in width (this flag is hoisted only on holidays and great occasions). The union is one-third of the length of the flag, and extends to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top.

The national colors carried by regiments of infantry and artillery and the battalion of engineers, on parade or in battle, are made of silk, and are 6 feet 6 inches long and 6 feet wide and mounted on staffs. The field of the colors is 31 inches in length and extends to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top. The sizes of the flags used in the army and navy are not fixed by law, but are prescribed by army and navy regulations.

LAW AND ORDER REIGN

No Resistance Offered the Military By the Strikers.

FRATERNAL FEELING PREVAILING.

Workmen and Bluecoats Join Hands and Drink Together—Gen. Snowden's Summary Disposition of the Advisory Committee—Carnegie Men in Pittsburg to Strike To-Morrow if President Frick Persists in Refusing to Treat With the Amalgamated Association—The Congressional Investigating Committee.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 13.—Law and order have been once more established in Homestead. It is martial law, and Maj.-Gen. Snowden is Dictator. Armed men, in blue coats adorned with brass buttons, have succeeded other armed men who had no authority of law.

A review of events shows a change so radical that few who have been here since the bloody repulse of the Pinkertons can scarcely realize its full meaning. With the first tap of the pioneer drum corps came the death-knell of the authority of the Advisory Committee of the workmen. Regiment after regiment marched along the dusty roads and impressed the people by their solid ranks, their superb discipline. All day long they continued to arrive—infantry, cavalry and artillery—until the town became fairly flooded with blue uniforms.

The Advisory Committee of the Amalgamated Association called on Major Snowden at Brinton during the night and told him of the decision reached at the mass meeting of the strikers to receive the militia with band and hossanahs. Gen. Snowden said that he did not want any demonstration.

He refused information as to the time his division would arrive in Homestead. Then he sent the committee back. The committee could do nothing. It had no information on which to arrange the proposed reception, and furthermore it knew Gen. Snowden would be offended if it carried out the objects of the mass meeting.

The lodges of workingmen that expected to form in bodies and give formal welcome to the military were not called into service.

Between 9 and 10 o'clock a boy rushed down the main street in Homestead towards the railroad station and shouted to the people that the soldiers had arrived.

The day was clear and while the sun was a trifle hot, a finer day for the entry of the troops could not have been selected. Business in the town was at a standstill and everything assumed a holiday appearance. Notwithstanding the proclamation of the Burgess numbers of women and children were on the streets. Young girls in their best gowns were seeking places from which to view the boys in blue as they marched into town.

The troops arrived unexpectedly from the East via special trains on the Pittsburg, McKeesport and Youghiogheny railroad, and left the cars at the station near the fence of the steel works.

Maj.-Gen. Snowden and Adjutant Greenland were in command.

The 18th Regiment was the first to arrive. There were two trains containing the 5th, 10th, 12th and 18th regiments, a number of freight trains with sixth horses and two gondola cars with three Gatling guns and two cannon.

Several companies were at once placed on guard, and Eighth avenue from City Farm lane to Munhall is closed to civilians.

The Advisory Committee of the locked-out men met at once and decided to wait upon the officers in charge of the troops, in order to ascertain what restrictions will be placed upon private citizens.

There were few people at the station when the train arrived. They were nearly all locked-out men. They watched the soldiers sullenly while they unloaded their arms and cannon.

In a few minutes the news spread and thousands of people flocked to the streets around the station, and remained there while the troops moved into camp.

The camp of the National Guard is on a plateau at the top of a high hill directly south of the Carnegie Mill property and the city farm mills and overlooks not only the Carnegie plant but the borough of Homestead and many miles of surrounding country.

The camp is about 300 yards distant from the celebrated high fence which incloses the mills and the city farm.

Guards are stationed along Eighth avenue, upon which street the mills front. The troops suffered considerably from the heat as they marched from the railroad up the steep hill to their camp.

When the different regiments had taken their positions the men threw themselves upon the ground and stretching their rubber blankets from the bayonets of four muskets formed a screen from the rays of the sun.

The camp ground is a meadow from which the grass had not been cut and it made a very comfortable resting place for the men, most of whom were tired out after their all night's experience in the cars.

It took several hours to unload the men and move them to their stations on the hill.

That the troops did not come to Homestead upon any idle errand is shown by the fact that each man has ten rounds of ammunition and is equipped for active service.

Passes were issued to the militiamen with very little discretion as to the number, and within an hour of the arrival at the camping ground the streets of Homestead were filled with a dusty, tired lot of soldiers. They mingled with the locked-out Carnegie mill men and drowned all differences in beer at the many saloons, which were wide open.

There were 200 special policemen on duty, but they made no attempt to maintain order so long as no actual disturbance occurred. Numbers of militiamen were under the influence of liquor by noon and some of the strikers kept them company.

For some unknown reason John McLuckie, the Burgess of the borough, turned his authority over to Assistant Burgess Byrne. The latter did his best to preserve order. Shortly after noon he went to the brewery upon the hill back of Homestead and finding about 500 soldiers there in various stages of intoxication, he ordered the place closed.

The militiamen became quite boisterous and rows with strikers were narrowly avoided. One man in the uniform of the State after drinking freely expressed himself in uncomplimentary terms in regard to the strikers. Two men broke for him, but a number of militiamen closed in around him and he made a hurried return to camp.

At 3 o'clock a company of soldiers marched down the main street of Homestead. This was the first entry of troops on duty into the town. The sidewalks were packed with citizens, mill hands, strangers attracted to town by the unusual proceedings, and militiamen off duty. The soldiers were placed on duty where the supplies were being unloaded.

The Council of the borough after discussing the situation adopted resolutions requesting the officers in charge of the State troops to keep their men out of the saloons of the town and thus prevent them from becoming intoxicated and causing trouble. The Council informed the officers that the town is at peace and quiet, and when the local authorities failed to preserve the peace they would call upon the troops for assistance. Until that time they asked that the troops be kept out of the town for the good of all concerned.

The Investigating Committee.

HOMESTEAD, July 13.—The committee of Congress appointed to investigate the causes which led to the recent riots arrived here in the afternoon on a special car. The members of the Congressional Committee are W. C. Oates, of Alabama, chairman; W. D. Bynum, of Indiana; C. L. Boatner, of Louisiana; Judge E. B. Taylor of Ohio, and Case Broderick, of Kansas. Mr. Frick, of the Carnegie Company, was given a hearing, after which the committee adjourned until to-day.

It Will Cost $22,000 a Day.

PITTSBURG, July 13.—It is estimated that it will cost the State at least $22,000 a day to maintain the present army at Homestead. There are now fully 8,000 men in the neighborhood of Homestead who responded to the Governor's call. It is the sum total of the National Guard of Pennsylvania with the exception of 470 men.

More of Carnegie's Men to Strike.

PITTSBURG, July 13.—At a meeting of Carnegie's employes at the 29th and 33d streets and Beaver Falls Union mills, yesterday afternoon, it was decided that should Mr. Frick again decline to reopen negotiations with the Amalgamated Association at Homestead, every man in these mills will strike to-morrow.

TROOPS ORDERED OUT.

Now on Their Way to the Scene of the Idaho Riots.

WALLACE, Idaho, July 13.—It is now reported that twenty non-union men were killed in the explosion of the mill in the 'Frisco mine in the Coeur d'Alene Monday.

The renewal of the struggle between the union miners and the mine owners of the region has caused great excitement in out the territory.

The Governor and the United States Marshal at Boise City have been thoroughly posted on the situation.

Gov. Willy became satisfied that it would be impossible for the militia to deal with a determined mob. He therefore sent a message to President Harrison requesting that troops be sent to the scene of the riots, and Government troops are now on their way to the mines.

The Governor has also ordered the militia companies at Weiser, at Moscow and at Hailly to hold themselves in readiness to march.

The strike in the Coeur d' Alene began about nine months ago and came to a head Monday, when the fight between the union and non-union men occurred at the 'Frisco and Gem mines, in the town of Gem.

According to the only definite and confirmed report received from the scene six men were killed and seven wounded during the fight.

The union men have declared their intention to clear the region of non-union men.

The Coeur d'Alene strike started about nine months ago, when the Mine Owners' Association organized to resist the demands of the Miners' Union. The wages of miners and shovellers were reduced from $3.50 to $3 a day.

The streets are crowded with miners who are determined to stand firm and further trouble is expected.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Senators Shoup and Dubois of Idaho received the following telegram last evening from Attorney-General George H. Roberts, dated Boise City: "One thousand armed miners have possession of Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mine. Inspector-General Curtis, now at Wallace, wires the Governor that a full regiment of regulars will be required. In my opinion, additional troops should be sent from Walla Walla or Fort Spokane. Heilburn concurs in this. Cannot this at once be done? The mob must be crushed by overwhelming force; we cannot retreat now. Please explain situation to President. Answer."

COAL TO GO HIGHER.

An Advance of Fifty Cents Said to Have Been Determined Upon.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Philadelphia dispatches say that it has been decided by the Reading combine to advance anthracite coal prices 25 cents a ton August 1, thus establishing a basis of $4.75 for stove coal.

The programme is said to be to make the highest price of the year $5, and if things work right another and final advance of 25 cents will be made on September 1.

Much depends on how the August advance is taken. Some of the New York interests think $4.75 high enough. The July price is 25 cents above the highest price of last year, and every advance of 25 cents now means $1,000,000 net to the Reading Coal & Iron Company.

Claims Will be Paid in Full.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 13.—A. D. Lynch, receiver of the defunct Asbury Park National Park, has notified the depositors that their claims would be paid in full. The claims aggregate $60,000. The stockholders will not receive anything. The capital of the bank was $50,000. The assets of the bank, such as notes, protested checks, etc., were recently purchased by a Philadelphia syndicate for $22,000.

CYRUS W. FIELD'S DEATH.

The Announcement No Surprise—Sketch of the Financier's Life.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The announcement yesterday of the death of Cyrus W. Field at his country home in Ardsley Park, near Dobbs Ferry, was no surprise, as his demise had been momentarily expected for some time. He passed away during one of the violent spells of delerium from which he has suffered during his illness.

At the time of his death there were present at the bedside Mr. Field's three brothers, David Dudley Field, the Rev. Henry M. Field and Justice Stephen J. Field; his daughter, Mrs. Isabella Judson, and her two sons, Cyrus Field Judson and Frank Judson.

Mr. Field had been suffering from physical and mental exhaustion brought on by the many troubles which have overtaken him during the past year.

The obsequies will be of the most simple character, and take place at Ardsley to-morrow afternoon. From Ardsley a special train will convey the body and the funeral party to Stockbridge, Mass., where the interment will be made by the side of Mrs. Field, who was buried last Thanksgiving.

Cyrus W. Field was born in Stockbridge, Mass., December 30, 1819. At the age of fifteen he came to New York city. He went to A. T. Stewart for employment and got it. At the age of twenty-one he began the manufacture of paper.

After twenty-five years of hard work Mr. Field decided to drop the paper business and look elsewhere for the fortune he determined to win.

Visiting Europe, he became convinced that a telegraphic cable could be laid and successfully operated across the Atlantic. He interested such men as Peter Cooper, Marshall O. Roberts, Moses Taylor and Chancellor White and they joined him in the investment of $1,000,000 as the American end of the proposed company.

CYRUS W. FIELD.

The laying of the first cable in 1858 was a noble historic event, an English and American frigate parting in mid-ocean, each carrying one-half of the cable and laying it as they proceeded homeward.

When messages were exchanged between President Buchanan and Queen Victoria cannon were fired in almost every city in the Union, and a grand procession and display of fireworks took place in New York. But the cable broke, and though efforts were made to repair it, the enterprise proved a temporary failure.

The Civil war rendered it impossible for Mr. Field to procure sufficient capital for another and improved cable. He did not, however, lose heart, for in 1865 the huge steamship Great Eastern was sent across the Atlantic with the second cable.

After 1,200 miles had been laid the line parted, and it was not until July 27, 1866, that telegraphic communication was perfected between the two continents. So successful was the company that Mr. Field became a millionaire. Congress voted him a gold medal, and he received many honors from European governments.

In 1876 Mr. Field turned his attention to rapid transit in New York, and obtained control of the New York Elevated Railway Company. In this enterprise he was joined by Samuel J. Tilden and other capitalists. They proceeded to extend the West side route and built the Third Avenue road. Other capitalists established the Sixth and Second avenue lines. Then there came a consolidation under the name of the Manhattan.

Later Mr. Field attempted to fight the Wall street octopus, which effort resulted in his losing control of his elevated railroad interests, at a cost estimated all the way from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Of late years Mr. Field has devoted himself to the care of his real estate property, his advanced age and failing health compelling him to husband his strength.

Personally Mr. Field was a very genial man, and he had many friends in all parts of the world, for he was an extensive traveller.

Flint Glass Workers' Convention.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 13.—The second day's session of the International Convention of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union was occupied with the reports of officers and general committee work. Committees on the various branches of the trade were appointed to decide upon a wage scale to be submitted to the manufacturers and workers at the annual wage conference. The various reports showed a surplus of over $128,000 in the treasury. There are 7,300 members in the union, and during the past year they earned $4,000,420.

Madame Reymond Acquitted.

PARIS, July 13.—The jury has acquitted Madame Reymond, who murdered Madame Lassimonne, while the latter was in a room with M. Reymond, husband of the murderess. The jury took the view, urged by Madame Reymond's counsel, that she was not responsible for what she did, and that her brain was affected by the evidence of her husband's infidelity with Madame Lassimonne.

SILVER FIGHT TO-DAY

General Opinion That the Bill Will Be Defeated.

BOTH FACTIONS FIRM, HOWEVER.

Uncertainty As to How the Republicans Will Vote—Depression Among Some Silver Men on Account of the Decision to Amend—Senator Stewart's Views.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The great silver battle commences to-day, and both factions are just as confident now as ever. It is probable that the fate of the Stewart free coinage bill will be settled by to-morrow at the latest.

The advocates and opponents of the measure have been laboring industriously for their respective causes, but the result of the fight is still problematical. The action of Monday night's caucus in deciding to amend the bill, the silver men claim, is favorable to them, as the amendments cure the defects upon which the opposition of certain members had been based. This is not admitted by the anti-silver men, who claim that the men who opposed the measure will continue to do so on principle and not on technicalities.

The probable attitude of the Republicans has become an important factor in the matter, and both factions have evinced a great deal of anxiety upon this point.

It was reported last evening that the Republicans had a decided disposition to join the antis and bury the bill at the first opportunity. A greater unanimity exists among them now, it is said, than when the Bland bill was before the House.

The concensus of opinion, owing to the belief that the Republicans will oppose the bill at all stages, is to the effect that the measure will be defeated. The most ardent silver men appear depressed by the decision to amend the bill, for even in the event of its passage in the House they are aware that the Senate is dangerous ground, and the course of the bill in that body will be very uncertain.

"What do you think of the decision to amend the Silver bill in the House?" was asked Senator Stewart last night.

"It looks dark for the people," was his response. "There is a movement looking for the defeat of the bill. The men who voted for it, I know, say they are silver men, but they are not its true friends. It is ridiculous to say that the repeal of a law vitiates a contract made under the provisions of that law. I fear that we shall see sad times unless the basis of our circulating medium is broadened, and that can only be done by making silver a full money metal. The area of the gold base is constantly decreasing, both relatively and actually."

EDUCATORS AT SARATOGA.

Thousands Assemble to Hear President Harrison's Address.

SARATOGA, July 13.—Hundreds of educators arose early in the hope of seeing President Harrison. The red and white badges of the members of the National Education Association were more prevalent than race track badges in August. At 7 o'clock the President was ready to receive the officers of the association.

At 7:45 o'clock the escort, consisting of the Saratoga citizens' corps and a delegation from Post Wheeler, G. A. R., with President Cook and the committee from the association, arrived at the car, and in a few minutes the president appeared and was greeted with applause. Seated in a carriage he was driven to Congress Hall, where he breakfasted with the officers of the association. After breakfast he was escorted to Congress Spring Park. There 3,000 people had gathered.

As the President stepped upon the platform there was a burst of applause, which he acknowledged with a bow.

President Cook of the National Educational Association welcomed the President on behalf of the National Educational Association. In his address of welcome he referred to the importance of proper education. Mr. Cook then presented the Hon. A. S. Draper, ex-State Superintendent of Instruction of New York, who spoke more fully on their high appreciation of the recognition of the work of education by the Chief Magistrate of the nation.

President Harrison replied to Mr. Draper's welcome, and was greeted with a hearty burst of applause.

Fessenden Would Not Accept.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 13.—In regard to the report that he had been offered the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee, Hon. Samuel Fessenden, who is a member of that committee, said: "I have not been offered the chairmanship, but some of my friends on the committee and others have been good enough to suggest my name in connection with the place. It is well known that I am so situated that I could not under any circumstances accept such a position, and I had no idea that my friends or others considered the matter seriously enough to bring it to the consideration of the Executive Committee."

An Old Man Suspected of Murder.

HAMPTON, N. H., July 13.—An autopsy was held on the body of Josiah Wason, who was found in the river on Thursday last, and it was discovered that death was not due to drowning but to a stab wound in the eye which caused concussion of the brain. Josiah Garland, 80 years of age, is suspected of having done the stabbing. Garland and Wason lived with the former's sister, who had willed her property to Wason.

Baltimore Carpenters Resume Work.

BALTIMORE, July 13.—After a determined fight of sixteen weeks' duration the members of the Carpenter's Union decided, at a meeting last night, to resume work. The men struck for $2.50 a day of eight hours, and compromised on $2.25 for a day of eight hours, and $2.50 for nine hours. It is estimated that the men lost $45,000 in wages. About 400 were involved.

The Work to Be Done Here.

BALTIMORE, July 13.—President J. B. Haggin, of the Anaconda Mining Company, has decided to have the entire output of his mine refined in America instead of in Europe, and it has been arranged to have the product of the mine undergo the electrolytic treatment at Baltimore.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 13.—President Diaz was re-elected yesterday. The Senate and Chamber of Deputies will be composed of a superior element, introducing new and young blood. President Diaz announces that has policy will be the same as heretofore.

Cleveland's Baking Powder

"Absolutely the Best."

It is made of pure cream of tartar and soda, no ammonia, no alum. A like quantity goes farther and does better work. It is therefore cheaper.

Cleveland's is the baking powder used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of cookery. It never varies, and always gives perfect satisfaction. Try a can.

VICTORY FOR THE LIBERALS.

Their Gains Are Sufficient to Wipe Out the Government's Majority.

LONDON, July 13.—The results of the elections show sufficient Liberal gains to wipe out the government's majority and assure Mr. Gladstone's return to power.

The net Liberal gain thus far is 37. This gives a majority of 5 against the Conservatives on division.

The report of Mr. Gladstone's having been taken seriously ill after his speech at Penicuck is unfounded. Mr. Gladstone is in his usual health.

LONDON, July 13.—The election in Midlothian occurred yesterday. For some reason best known to themselves the Tories are curiously sanguine of defeating Mr. Gladstone. The result will not be known until officially declared, which will be this afternoon. The vote was heavy. It is estimated that not less than 85 per cent of the voting list was polled, and there is reason to fear that Mr. Gladstone's majority is somewhat reduced. Col. Wanchope was the Liberal-Unionist candidate against Gladstone.

The Battle of the Boyne.

TORONTO, July 13.—The 12th of July was celebrated throughout the province of Ontario with unusual enthusiasm. Large district demonstrations were held at Sarnia, Barrie, Kingston and other places. Several of the meetings passed resolutions sympathizing with Ulster Loyalists in their struggle against Home Rule.

Commencing a New Railroad.

BANGOR, Me., July 13.—Work has been begun for the construction of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad. The road will be over 200 miles in length. The contract has been awarded for the whole line to C. P. Treat of Chicago.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The New York State Press Association is in session at Buffalo.

Ex-Congressman Joseph A. Scranton was nominated yesterday for Congress by the Republicans of the Eleventh district at Scranton.

The employes of the Marshall Construction company at Pittsburg struck for nine hours' work a day yesterday. About 200 men went out.

The eighth annual convention of the United Glass Blowers is in session in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Delegates from Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Frankfort, Pa., and Canada, and from the Western States are in attendance.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

H. Simmonds's family, of 120 Broadway, have gone to Asbury Park.

Mrs. Richard Trewin, who has been visiting friends in Rahway, is at home again.

Miss M. L. Hotchkiss of LaGrande avenue is spending the summer at Waterbury, Conn.

George Dean, of Potter's Press works, has returned to this city from a very enjoyable trip East, and received a hearty welcome from his fellowworkmen.

Another brave young fireman came to town last night. Robert Wood, driver for Gazelle Engine company, is the happy father, and the youngster weighs 12 pounds.

The many friends of Mrs. W. H. Moore will be pleased to learn of her arrival in Plainfield from St. Paul. Mrs. Moore will remain until August with her sister, Miss Rocap, of Central avenue.

A Minister Deposed.

The trial of the Rev. Nathaniel Nicolai, the former pastor of the German Presbyterian church, before the Presbytery at Elizabeth, resulted Monday in his being deposed from the ministry and excommunicated from the Presbyterian church. The Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of Plainfield, opened the session with prayer. To assist the Rev. John T. Kerr, the recording secretary, elder John M. Bettman of Plainfield, was selected to take down the testimony of the several witnesses.

Officer Krisey's Assailants.

The case of one of the young men accused of assaulting special officer Jacob Krisey at the recent Evona picnic was this morning set down for trial at the city court-room, Monday morning, July 25, at 10. The two other alleged assailants have pleaded guilty and will be sentenced next Saturday morning at 11:30, in judge Codington's office. The trial of the 25th will be conducted by counselor Charles A. Reed for the city and lawyers Moffett & Powers for the defense.

The Only Theatrical Attraction in New York.

It was decided yesterday by the management of Hoyt's Madison Square theater, with the sanction of Charles Frohman, to continue "A Trip to Chinatown" indefinitely. People were turned away from the doors last night unable to get seats. It looks now as if the piece might make a run there similar to the run "Adonis" made at the Bijou.

For the Saturday afternoon matinees, however, Plainfield parties may secure desirable seats by applying a few days in advance.

A Salvation Warrior Rebuked.

A considerable detachment of the Salvation Army visited the police station court room this morning to ascertain the fate of Orrie Holmes, one of the warriors, who had been arrested the night before. Holmes is the Salvationist who, as told exclusively by THE PRESS yesterday, made a football of Abraham L. Dais because that inoffensive youth had been sitting on the front steps of the barracks. For presuming to take the law into his own hands, Holmes was fined $6 by judge Codington. The Salvation brethren and sisters made up a purse for the amount.

Apprehensive of To-Day's Game.

[New York Telegram.]

There is considerable apprehension among the players of the Staten Island Athletic club over the outcome of to-morrow's game with the Plainfields, of the Crescent League, at Plainfield. These two clubs have played a series of three games, two of which were won by the Staten Islanders. At the last meeting of these two clubs, when it was evident that the Plainfields were in danger of defeat, a number of their followers became very unruly and were removed by force from the Staten Island grounds by order of Captain Moore. This the Plainfielders looked upon as an insult, and they threatened to reciprocate when the two clubs met again. To-morrow the meeting will occur, and some of the Staten Islanders are afraid the New Jersey team will not offer them sufficient protection; nevertheless they intend to face the storm boldly.

$100 FOR THE BLIND GIRL.

Mrs. Williams's Fair at the Netherwood for Her Benefit, Again a Very Great Success.

The largest of The Netherwood's reading rooms, draped and decorated, brilliantly lighted, and set around with petit booths and little tables, was filled last evening from 7:30 till 10 with noble women working earnestly for charity's sake and liberal patrons contributing towards the success of their efforts. The occasion was a fair conceived for a most worthy cause by Mrs. H. W. Williams, and carried forward to prosperous results by her with the assistance of Mrs. J. E. Spencer, Mrs E. J. Haney, Mrs. Oliver Bridgman, Mrs. A. L. Gondran, Miss McCall, Miss Jordan and Messrs. Jordan, Ranney and Harold Waddell.

Among the contributors of the varied goods that were offered, from a French clock to a slice of cake, were J. E. Spencer, William Waddell, F. E. Miller and every good woman among the guests of the house. Mr. Waddell not only donated innumerable pounds of Huyler's finest bon-bons and chocolates, but labored faithfully the whole evening through in disposing of them. The gems of fancy work that came from the hands of the guests were all spoken for before completion, and many of the knitted goods did double duty for charity as they were first bought from poor women and then sold for the benefit of Mrs. Williams's protege, Cecilia McNamara, the blind girl. The net profit of the fair was $100, about the same as last year.

Among the most generous buyers were Mrs. William J. Roome and Mrs. Henry D. Brewster of North Plainfield.

FIREMEN'S ACCOUNTS MIXED UP.

Curious Muddle Between Two Westfield Companies, Over an Old Note Supposed to Be Paid.

The Firemen's Relief association at Westfield notified Empire Engine No. 2 that it holds a note of $700 against that company, and unless the money is paid at once legal proceedings will be taken to recover. This action is the culmination of a much-mixed-up trouble which for several years has existed between two of the local fire companies.

About ten years ago Empire Engine company owned a small chemical engine which did well enough for a few years, but as the town grew the firemen became proud. They wanted a newer and larger engine. The old chemical was accordingly sold to the city of Newark, which gave gave them a larger engine in exchange. The Westfield company also allowed a lump of hard cash to go with the old engine. The firemen were so anxious to get their new machine that they forgot all about a mortgage which the Firemen's Relief association held on the old engine.

The relief association offered no objection to their taking it out of the town, and as the firemen had never been obliged to consult the local authorities as to their movements, no objections were made in that quarter.

The members of Empire company say that Hook and Ladder company No. 1 had agreed at the time the money was borrowed from the relief association to assist them in paying off the mortgage. The original amount borrowed was $800, $100 of which has since been paid off. With interest, the debt now amounts to $1,200. The mortgage is outlawed by the statute of limitation, but the relief association holds a note given by Empire company four years ago and signed by the company's officers. The engine and the hook and ladder companies have referred the question to the township committee. The authorities have awakened to the fact that the firemen have never consulted them before, neither have they returned any annual statements of their expenditures, and the firemen are greatly perturbed over the trouble.

SAD DISRUPTION OF A HOME.

A Degraded Mother Sent to Jail on Her Tearful Daughter's Testimony.

The pitiful sight of a bright-eyed fair young girl forced to testify that her mother was a drunkard and habitually ill-used the little one and neglected her home, brought moisture to the eyes of the spectators in the city court yesterday. There was told in these columns Monday evening how Joseph J. Johnson was compelled, for the sake of his children, to make complaint against his wife, and yesterday Mrs. Johnson was placed on trial. The evidence was all against her, and judge Codington had no other recourse but to send her to jail for thirty days. She has been a fine-looking woman, and still bears traces of her former self, but strong drink has sadly degraded her. The tale of her husband and little daughter, and of the other witnesses, was most pathetic.

Mr. Johnson will have his children taken care of at the home of his parents. Judge Codington hopes that Mrs. Johnson's imprisonment will accomplish the result of getting the alcohol out of her system and secure her reformation.

On the 16th of this month, the day of the last quartering of the moon, Jupiter and Luna are in conjunction, and as they are separated by only one diameter of the latter, the meeting has every quality but one to recommend it to our earnest attention, and that exception lies in the fact of the two being below the horizon at the exact time of meeting. However, in the few hours before dawn on the 17th, next Sunday morning, there will be a picture of rare celestial beauty, and the two bodies above mentioned will form its most striking features.

SCARED THE HORSE AND RODE AWAY

But Mr. Stevens of Somerville Chased Mr. Sloan of Lebanon Till He Caught Him, and Then Had Him Arrested.

Sunday morning at 8, Elijah Stevens, accompanied by his wife, started to drive from Somerville to White House, about eight miles distant, to visit friends. The horse which took them was a gentle, safe animal which Stevens's wife had been in the habit of driving. It was hitched to a light wood, top-buggy.

When just approaching Mechanicsville, nearly three miles and a half above North Branch, Stevens saw a solitary wheelman appearing over the brow of the hill, coming towards him. The road at that point is very wide, and in order to give the rider of the silent steed plenty of room, Stevens pulled way out to the right as near the ditch as possible, leaving beside half of the road fully four feet more in which the man could pass.

As they neared one another no accident was looked for. But the wheelman swerved to the left and rode so close to the buggy that the handle-bar just touched the spokes of the front wheel. The noise caused the horse to suddenly plunge forward, overturning the carriage and pinioning Mrs. Stevens in the wrecked top. Although the animal was going at a high rate of speed, Stevens managed to hold on to the reins and with his disengaged arm loosen his wife and push her out in the road where she fell in a heap. Then walking along the shaft he caught the excited beast by the head and brought him to a stand-still.

Looking back he saw his wife just struggling to her feet, and the bicyclist fully half a mile away riding for dear life. Mr. Stevens was so enraged at this act of a man who by sheer carelessness had caused an accident that might have resulted in loss of life, that without speaking to his wife he unbuckled the breast-strap—the only bit of harness not broken—and leaping upon the horse's back he started in pursuit. For fully three miles he chased the unknown rider, gaining on him at every stride of the horse. Half a mile from North Branch he caught the man who was really compelled to stop from sheer exhaustion. He gave his name as John Sloan, of Lebanon, and said he was sorry but that he was on the right track. A Mr. Stiner who lives at North Branch was called upon to decide who was to blame and upon going to the scene said that Sloan was at fault he being fully four feet out of his way. Thereupon Mr. Stevens went to justice Fields and swore out a warrant for young Sloan's arrest. The justice held him in $500 bail and Mr. Stiner drove the Stevenses home. Since that time Mrs. Stevens has been completely prostrated, both of her legs being badly bruised, while the shock to her nervous system was very great.

Sloan is a grandson of Nathan Hoffman, of Lebanon, and also of Samuel Sloan, of North Branch. He was very anxious to settle the matter and told Mr. Stevens that he would see him yesterday with his guardian and pay all damages. What enraged Stevens was the fact that the young man ran away like a coward, when by jumping off his wheel and catching the horse by the head the accident would have been avoided.

THE BROAD TIRE'S THE THING.

Common-sense in Wheels Will Help Preserve Our Excellent County Roads.

The day of broad tires is coming slowly, but apparently with a reasonable degree of certainty. And it is not coming by compulsory action so much as through common-sense legislation and the good common-sense of the people. Says The Engineering Record:

Michigan has for five years past had upon its statute books a provision designed to promote the use of wide tires upon the wagons used upon its highways. In place of compulsory enactment it was deemed wise to make it for the pecuniary interest of the users of the roads to use wide instead of narrow tires, and a premium was accordingly put upon such use in the remission of a part of the highway tax. The law provides that all persons who shall use only lumber wagons on the public highways of the State with rims not less than three inches in width, for hauling loads exceeding 800 pounds in weight, shall annually receive a rebate of one-fourth of their assessed highway tax, provided, however, that such rebate shall not exceed in any one year three days' road tax to any one person. Citizens are required to make affidavit before an overseer of highways to the use of such wagons as specified, upon which affidavit they are credited with the amount of rebate of their highway tax. The Department of State of Michigan reports that this legislation has been found satisfactory to the people and beneficial in its results.

In such counties as Union—comments the Elizabeth Journal—where telford roads have been built at great cost, wide tires would act in the same manner as steam rollers, packing down and smoothing the roadway. But the narrow tires now in use cut into it, grind the road metal to powder and wear ruts. The broad tire ought to come here soon.

TO COMPETE FOR THE PENNANT.

Elizabeth Strengthening Her Team for the Supreme Struggle Next Saturday.

The Y. M. C. L. A. of Elizabeth will meet the Crescent League of Plainfield on the Third street grounds, at Elizabeth, next Saturday, and whoever wins the game will be, for a time at least, on top of the heap in the race for the pennant. Coogan and Egan have been released by Elizabeth. Collins of the Jaspers of Manhattan college, and who has been playing with Staten Island Athletic club, will play hereafter with the Elizabethan strivers for the pennant. In the game of the Staten Island Athletic club against the Schuylkill Navy Athletic club, July 4, Collins by timely hitting won the game for the Islanders. He repeated the same performance last Wednesday in the game between the Islanders and Plainfield. The management of the Elizabeth team have another strong hitter and fielder under consideration, and will probably secure him for Saturday's game against the Crescents.

GOT OFF EASY.

Tried to Club an Officer, But by Mistake Was Lightly Fined.

David Vail, whose arrest for intoxication and resisting an officer was told of in these columns yesterday, may consider himself very fortunate in getting off with the light fine of $2. Yesterday judge Codington postponed sentence till this morning, when policeman Giese was to be on hand to testify to the extent of the prisoner's guilt. Through some misunderstanding, the officer did not arrive until 10, though the hour set for sentence was 9. In the rush and confusion of business, and recollecting Vail only as having pleaded guilty to drunkenness, the court imposed a fine of only $2. Vail having stated that it was his first offense. Captain Grant was visibly annoyed at the leniency of the sentence, and when Giese came in censured him for being late. Giese retorted that he had been told by the captain to be on hand at 10. The court was evidently disposed, on learning the facts of the case, to regret the lightness of the sentence, but it was too late; it could not be changed. Giese showed ugly sores on his hands, inflicted by Vail when he sought to arrest the young fellow, and told how when making the arrest Vail had wrenched his club away from him and was about to beat him with it when a citizen interfered.

How the Harkinstown Folks Took It.

News of the West Ends' victory in Elizabeth on Saturday afternoon reached Somerville a very few moments after the game was over, and closely following came the welcome despatch over the wires that Westfield had beaten Plainfield. The latter piece of intelligence was hailed with much more delight by the Somervillians than was the former, for the reason that while the West Ends were expected to win, no one thought that Westfield could by any possible chance do anything with the Crescents' mighty ball tossers. The train which arrived in Somerville at 7 brought the small contingent that saw the game in Elizabeth. They reported that when they reached Plainfield the platform was thronged with passengers waiting for trains. About a dozen of the West Enders, crazy with delight, leaped from the cars and made the air tremble with the club slogan.

Bulletin boards were displayed in front of the Harkinstown newspaper offices early in the evening with the results of both games and the record of the clubs showing that Plainfield and Somerville were tied for first place. This announcement caused the greatest amount of enthusiasm and knots of excited men stood for hours on the street corners discussing the big luck of the West Ends in rising from the bottom of the ladder to the top rung in five weeks. The only regret was that Plainfield still stood side by side with the Somervillians at the top. There is not a man, woman or child in the town whose allegiance to the West End club is not now iron bound. Westfield is playing good ball, though, and next Saturday's game at Somerville may be a tale of woe.

The Woman Was Young and Pretty.

The two-months-old baby boy that was left on Aaron Baker's stoop at Somerville, Saturday night, as exclusively detailed in these columns last evening, is still causing no little talk among the people of Harkinstown. All day yesterday Baker was walking about the streets carrying the child and showing it to all his friends. Where the mother got the basket is not yet known, but it is now an assured fact that she came from New York and went back there the same night.

When conductor Henry Walcott arrived at Somerville, last night, at 10, he was interviewed in regard to the matter, and said that the woman was young and pretty, that she took the train at Jersey City and returned there. When going back, he added, she fell asleep, and he was compelled to awaken her when the train arrived at Jersey City.

The Bicycle Trophy Races.

"How very quiet"—remarks the Elizabeth Journal—"the Plainfielders are keeping about the time made by their flyers! Rumors are heard, nevertheless, that they will push the other clubs very hard in the Journal trophy races. It is said that the E. A. C. team is already in training for the finals in these races, and from all accounts they hope to cover the ten-mile course in better time than has been made in this county."

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I used Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. PLAINFIELD THE WORST OFF.

But She Has Plenty of Company, in the Need of a County Sewer.

[C. C. McBride in Elizabeth Journal.]

Mayor Gilbert, of Plainfield, has touched on a subject that will yet be of large importance and necessity to all that section of Union county lying between this city and Plainfield. The same subject was briefly alluded to in a Cranford article in yesterday's Journal, and the time is not far distant when it will become the matter of leading interest throughout the central sections of Union county. This subject is the construction of a sewage system that will accommodate Plainfield, Fanwood, Scotch Plains, Westfield, Cranford and Roselle. At present not one of these places has a proper sewer system. Cranford has the best, but its sewage is turned into the Rahway river, two miles from the Rahway water pumping-station, and this condition cannot last much longer. The other places have no outlet for sewage. Plainfield is worst off of the lot, for it is the largest city, but all are growing and will soon be driven to construct sewer systems. It is, under all the circumstances, plainly impracticable for each to have a system of its own and independent of the other but the whole situation is marvelously simplified by the construction of a large sewer line running from Plainfield to the Staten Island Sound, and capable of carrying all the sewage of all the towns along the line. This need not be a costly system, for it need not be constructed so as to carry surface drainage; in fact the best systems of city sewers are not now made to carry surface water. When such a system is constructed it will insure the continuance of the present healthful condition of these beautiful towns, and will be an added inducement to people from the great cities to come to this county and reside in one of the most beautiful and most enterprising sections of country within a radius of one hundred miles of New York. All this part of Union county now has magnificent roads, electric lights, pure water, schools, churches, railroads, new style dwelling houses and all the most desirable and popular of modern improvements, and with the addition of a sewer it will be the most thoroughly improved section in the State.

—The burglar alarm at the residence of James T. Closson was sounded early this morning, the household was aroused, and the police and watchmen of the neighborhood looked everywhere for the burglar, but none was found. Evidently the intruder attempted to raise a window, started the alarm, and took flight and ran.

A Promising Genius.

The boy had been sitting for three hours watching the bob on his fishline when the man came along.

"What are you doing there?" said the man.

"Fishin'," said the boy.

"Got anything?" said the man.

"Yep," said the boy.

"What?" said the man.

"Patience," said the boy, and the man offered him four dollars a week to come down to the railroad office and answer questions.—Detroit Free Press.

The end of woman's peculiar troubles and ailments comes with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures them. For all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that afflict womankind, it is a certain remedy. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, soothing cordial and bracing nervine—purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and perfectly harmless.

In the cure of periodical pains, prolapsus and other displacements, bearing-down sensations, and all "female complaints" and irregularities, "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine that's guaranteed. If it doesn't give satisfaction in every case, you have your money back.

THE ST. GERVAIS HORROR

Over 200 People Drowned or Buried.

RAIN THE CAUSE OF THE LANDSLIDE.

One Hundred and Eighty Bodies Already Recovered—No Chance for the Inhabitants to Escape—The famous Health Resort of the Alps a Total Ruin.

PARIS, July 13.—The details that have now been received concerning an appalling disaster in Switzerland show that it is one of the most terrible that has ever occurred in this district.

St. Gervais les Bains is a small watering place not far from Chamounix, and the catastrophe has interrupted communication to such an extent that it will probably be several days before the full loss can be made known.

The calamity occurred Monday night. Rain fell in torrents, and the enormous quantity of water precipitated caused the river Arve to rise suddenly to a great height. The swelling of the mountain streams led to the inundation of the country along the banks, and great damage was done at many places.

The village was practically swept away, and it is reported that two hundred residents and visitors were drowned. The celebrated baths were destroyed, and at least half the buildings in the place demolished. The Arve is full of floating debris, mingled with which are many corpses of men, women and children, besides hundreds of carcasses of cattle, goats and other animals.

Over 180 bodies have already been found, either in the ruins of the demolished houses or in the River Arve. There are probably many more corpses yet to be recovered, and it is yet impossible to set the probable limit to the loss of life.

As soon as they recovered from the first shock of the frightful disaster, all the men and youths in the village volunteered their services in clearing away the wreckage and in rescuing those who were still alive.

Many were rescued from the masses of debris frightfully bruised and maimed, but yet alive. The downpour of rain was so heavy that all fires were speedily extinguished, and the unfortunate victims who were not killed outright escaped the horrible fate of being roasted to death.

The landslide started above the celebrated Bionnassay glaciers, which extend from the northwest side of Mount Blanc, and they became detached and swept down the side of the mountain, carrying the baths and the hamlet of Le Favet into the river.

Among the buildings crushed was the Thermal establishment. This structure was completely destroyed by huge masses of rock that were swept against it. The whole Chamounix Valley was swept by the storm that caused the disaster, and the countless small streams feeding the Arve soon became torrents and swelled that river to an almost unprecedented height.

THE ASTOR CANARD.

His Family Greatly Shocked When They Heard the Unfounded Report.

LONDON, July 13.—The erroneous report in America of the death of William Waldorf Astor, has caused a great shock to Mr. Astor's family, and they are sorely perplexed that such a report should have been made. They were also much annoyed because of the number of inquiries which the rumor had caused to pour in upon them, and the many visits made to the house on the same account.

Mrs. Astor dined out last evening, and has arranged to attend a theater to-night. These facts are sufficient to indicate that Mr. Astor's condition is not regarded by his family as at all serious.

At 1 o'clock the correspondent of the "International Telegram Company" who called at the Lansdome Hotel to inquire as to the condition of Mr. William Waldorf Astor, was informed by a member of the family that Mr. Astor was doing splendidly. After leaving the Lansdome Hotel the correspondent met Secretary White of the American Legation, who said:

"I met Mrs. Astor out driving at fifteen minutes past noon, and inquired as to her husband's health.

"Mrs. Astor informed me that he was very much better, and that he had not been seriously ill at any time; he had only been suffering from a bad cold, and the family had not been at all anxious about him."

There were numerous callers at the Lansdome Hotel, and the family received many congratulations upon the improvement in Mr. Astor's condition, general alarm having been caused in the American colony by the false rumors concerning the patient.

Lottie Collins Alive and Well.

LONDON, July 13.—The report printed in New York of the death of Lottie Collins, the soubrette, is unfounded. A correspondent of the International Telegram Company called at Miss Collins's lodgings in Canonbary and saw the lady herself. She was well and chipper and expressed much surprise on hearing that her death had been reported. She said she was never better in her life, and laughingly added that this was a good chance to advertise the fact that she was going to America.

Campbell Calls a Meeting.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Chairman Campbell of the Republican National Committee has issued a call for a meeting of the Executive Committee, to be held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Gored to Death by a Bull.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., July 13.—Samuel Martin, 19 years old, was gored to death by a vicious bull. One lunge of the animal completely disembowled the unfortunate youth. The bull was put to death by shooting, but it required 46 shots before he would succumb.

Mrs. Harrison Improving.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., July 13.—Mrs. Harrison continues to improve in health and spirits, but she has not, as yet, left the cottage. Meals are served her there, while the remainder of the party take theirs at the hotel near-by.

No One to Blame.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—The coroner's inquest in the case of the victims of the explosions at the giant powder works resulted without comment as to the cause of the explosion.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

ELIZA'S BOAT RIDE.

It Was Not as Pleasant as She Thought It Would Be.

Back of grandma's house is a big pond, with an old skiff tied with a long rope to the shore.

Eliza and Tillie went to the water's edge, and Eliza jumped into the boat and wanted Tillie to follow, but could not persuade her to do so, for she was afraid.

Eliza jumped up and down in high glee, then whirled all around, and taking an old paddle from the boat splashed the water all over Tillie's white dress. This made Tillie cry, and Eliza was sorry; but she kept in the boat, sat down and paddled out as far as the rope would let her. A bad boy with a knife came along and cut the rope loose from the stake where it was tied and then ran off.

ELIZA CUT ADRIFT.

What a very naughty act!

See Eliza now, standing in the boat, her hat blown off into the water, her curls flying wildly about her chubby face, screaming at the top of her voice. She holds with both hands the paddle, standing in the bottom of the boat. Her blue gingham dress is streaked with mud from the old boat, and altogether she is a sorry-looking sight.

On the shore, running to and fro, waving her hat and her handkerchief, Tillie is calling loudly for help.

Two men passing by saw the plight, and hastened to get a long pole with a grappling-hook at the end, which happened to be near. With this they brought the boat to land, and lifted out a very glad, as well as repentant, little girl.

Eliza said she never wanted to get into that boat again, and she never did, for grandpa had it cut up and used as firewood.—M. W. Bell Blake, in Our Little Ones.

HE SAW THE KING.

How a Boston Boy Made the Acquaintance of Oscar I.

Emerson's saying, that a boy is the true democrat, was illustrated by the adventure of a Maine sailor lad. He was at Christiania, and made up his mind that he would see the celebrated Swedish king, Oscar. Accompanied by another boy from the same ship, Jack Branscombe, he walked to the palace, and found it surrounded by a moat that looked impassable. But the boy, whose perseverance and courage merit commendation, however his assurance may seem to deserve rebuke, would not be balked. After some search he discovered under the moat a narrow tunnel, leading into the royal gardens.

The mouth of the tunnel was choked with rubbish, but the young sailors made their way through, and into the gardens. Here they were at once surrounded by guards, who could not understand their explanation, but tried to conceal them from the view of an approaching party.

The party were the king and his retinue. Seeing the disturbance, a gentleman stepped forward and asked what was the matter. The Maine boy, acting as spokesman—his companion was by this time shaking with fear—answered that they had come to see his majesty, Oscar I.; they were from Boston, and on their return home would like to tell their friends that they had been face to face with the king.

"Well," answered the gentleman, in perfect English, "you have seen him. I am the king." He gave each boy several coins as souvenirs of the visit.

Thirty years afterward the sailor lad, George C. Perkins, became governor of California. One day he was on board a pilot boat, bound for Monterey, and noticed that one of the sailors was eyeing him intently.

"Who is the governor? What state does he come from?" asked the sailor of an officer.

"From Maine," was the reply.

"I thought I knew him. You ask him if he ever met with a boy by the name of Jack Branscombe, who served on board the Lena."

The governor at once came forward and greeted his old shipmate, who thirty years before had trembled in the presence of royalty.

Humorous Snake.

In Marianne North's "Recollections of a Happy Life" is a short description of a tame snake which deserves remembrance as a being fond of a joke.

Its mistress would sometimes twist the pretty bronze creature in the great plait of hair she wore round her head, and once threatened to go down thus decorated to a dinner-party of rather stiff people.

But one of the snake's own eccentricities serves to distinguish it among all other reptiles of a similar nature which have served as pets.

It was as fond of glittering things as its mistress herself, and when she took off her many rings and placed them on different parts of the table, it would go about collecting them, and stringing them on its lithe body. Then it would tie itself into a knot so that the rings could not be taken off until it was pleased to untie itself again.

Where Charity Is Suspected.

In Burmah it is rather a suspicious thing to give money for a charitable object. It is supposed to mean that the donor has been very wicked and is desirous to make amends.

THE DAY THAT NEVER COMES.

I'm tired of waiting for "some day."
Oh, when will it ever be here?
I'm sure I have waited and waited
A good deal more than a year.

Saturday, Sunday and Monday,
And all the rest of the week,
Keep coming, and coming, and coming;
But at "some day" I don't get a peek.

I've looked all the almanac over,
And showed every page to my doll;
And we're sure (how I hope we're mistaken!)
"Some day" is not in it at all.

The things I'm to have on "some day"
I couldn't half tell in an age;
A tricycle, pony, a parrot,
A birdy that sings in a cage.

A cute little smutty-nosed pug dog,
The prettiest tortoise shell cat;
And papa says, maybe, the measles—
I'm sure I don't care about that.

And mamma is going to take me
To see lots of beautiful things;
And big brother Jack and Kitty
Will give me two lovely gold rings.

And "some day" I'll find out the reason
Of things I can't now understand;
And "some day" I'll have a big dolly
That can walk and hold on by my hand.

Oh, I'm tired of waiting for "some day"—
It makes me just cross, I declare.
I'm afraid, when it really does get here,
I'll be a big girl and won't care.
—Charles H. Lugrin, in St. Nicholas.

THE MEAN LITTLE BEAR.

How He Was Taught a Lesson in Decency and Fair Play.

In big cities there are parks where children go to get fresh air and to see green fields and trees. In some parks there are animals. The monkeys and birds and lions are in cages, but the bears are kept in pits built of stone.

In one such place lived four bears, two big ones and two little ones. In the middle of the pit was a pole with steps nailed to it. The bears would climb up to the top of the pole, and then boys and girls would take buns or bits of cake and hand them to the bears at the end of a stick or cane.

One of the little bears was named "Martin," and he was a greedy little fellow. He always tried to keep near the pole, so that he could climb up before any of the others when there was cake to be had. But the boys and girls soon saw that he took more than his share, so they would wait until he was tired of sitting on the pole and had to go down, and then they would give their cake to one of the other bears.

One day a boy came to the side of the pit and leaned over to look at the bears.

MARTIN ON TOP OF THE POLE.

One of the big bears named "Brain," was near the pole and tried to climb up. But Martin ran against him very rudely and knocked Bruin over. Poor Bruin sat down for a moment to recover his breath, and, before he could get up again, Martin was at the top of the pole. The boy put the bun on the end of a stick, and held it out to Martin. But just as Martin opened his mouth for it, a little girl who was standing near by, said: "Harry, that little bear was mean. He pushed the big one over and climbed up the pole in his place. I would give the bun to the other bear."

"Well, I will," said Harry; and he took the bun from the stick and threw it down to the big bear, who caught it in his mouth, just as a boy catches a ball, and swallowed it.

Martin growled a little crossly, but the boys and girls only laughed at him. So, after waiting until he was tired, he climbed down the pole, without having had anything to eat.

After a long while Martin saw that the children would not give their cakes to him if he was mean, and so he learned to let the other bears go up the pole in their turn. At first he did this because he was lazy and did not care to climb the pole for nothing; but before long Martin found that he was better liked by the other bears when he let them have a fair share, and that they took care to give him a fair share, too. And he also found that he was no longer called the "mean little bear," but was fed as often as Bruin or any of the others.—St. Nicholas.

Wonderful Insect Vitality.

It is a standing puzzle to the entomologists how frail little insects of the mosquito and butterfly order can brave the cold of an Arctic winter and yet retain their vitality. The larvæ of the milkweed butterfly has been exposed to an artificial blast sixty-three degrees below zero. Taken out of range of this artificial blizzard and gradually "thawed out" this same worm was able to creep in less than half an hour afterwards. Butterflies have been found flitting joyously about in the highest latitude man has ever penetrated, and the mosquitoes of Alaska and Greenland are known to be the healthiest specimens of that race of little pests.

How to See Under Water.

A lens for seeing under water is described as producing an effect which is both astonishing and delightful. It gives distinct vision to objects from twenty to thirty feet below the surface, and which are usually out of ordinary eye-range. The eye's loss of extended vision when under water is owing to the fact that an entirely different focus is required. The spectacles which can adjust this focus are made by putting two watch crystals back to back or with the concavities outward. Try it and be surprised.

Afraid of Knowing Too Much.

Attempts at educating the English yeoman do not always meet the encouragement and success they deserve.

"The conservatives are going to give us more free education, Jones," says an enthusiastic young member of the Primrose league to her father's estate carpenter. "There is to be a carving class, and you must go and learn to make all sorts of beautiful things, and then if you are laid up in the winter at any time you can amuse yourself and earn money by your carving." Jones promises reluctantly and as if he was doing the young lady a great favor.

"How did you get on last night?" asks the girl a few days later. "Well, miss, I didn't go. I thought it over well and made out if I went I might get to know too much, and that ain't good for any body."—Chicago Tribune.

A Model Malay Village.

A dispatch from Singapore says that the Sultan of Johore, one of the most prosperous states in the east, situated in the western part of the Malay peninsula, is causing to be prepared for the Chicago Columbian exposition a model Malay village in which the trades and industries peculiar to the Malays will be carried on by natives. It is highly probable, the dispatch adds, that the sultan himself will visit Chicago during the exhibition.

Free and Easy Social Relations.

Owing to the fact that the state of California was settled almost exclusively by men it became the practice of the sterner sex to consult nobody's wishes but their own in making sales and purchases of real estate, so that, unlike most states, the right of dower has never been established there. This legal independence of men and women has not been without its effect on society, and things that would shock the bon ton here are looked upon with calm indifference there. A well-known Cincinnatian who has traveled extensively in the west related to the delegate this morning that he was a few months ago seated at a swell banquet in San Francisco by the side of a young lady whose divorced father was a leader in high-class society. The monotonous flow of small talk was suddenly startled by her exclaiming: "Oh, Mr. B., did you know papa had been sued for breach of promise by two women at once?" Our Cincinnatian confessed ignorance, and she continued: "Oh, it's just too lovely for anything! One is an old lady and the other is a young one. But he settled it in a funny way. He paid one money and married the other." "And which did he marry?" queried Mr. B. "Why, the young one, of course," came the smiling reply.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

A DRUMMER.

I'm only a drummer; I've nothing to do
But to beat my brave drum and make music for you.

I'm only a drummer, not quite twelve years old,
But I hope that my heart is full twenty years bold.

I do not give orders; I've just to obey,
As quick as a flash, what my officers say.

There are fellows who think that my task must be light,
Just beating a drum with a merry boy's might

Yet drummers no taller than I am are found
In low little beds in the land's holy ground.

They followed the flag, in the days long ago,
When it waved its defiance, whoever was the foe.

They timed to the bugles, so shrill and so sweet,
And they faltered alone when the call was retreat.

Oh, brave drummer-boys, though you lived or you died,
I look at your record, and stand by your side,

And beat my brave drum with the gladness of love
For the flag of our union that's flying above!

A COLUMN OF ICE.

Queer Freaks Played by Frozen Water Confined in a Bottle.

A lady in Rochester, N. Y., gave an empty cologne bottle to her little boy to play with on a recent cold day in winter. The bottle was of colorless glass, six inches high and three inches across at the bottom. About midway it began to taper, and was about half an inch in diameter at the top. Toward evening the child filled the bottle with water, inserted a cork, and left it on a shelf in the pantry.

In the morning a curious sight met the mother's eyes. The night had been cold and the water was frozen solid. Strange to say, the bottle was not broken, but out of the top rose a column of ice four inches tall, and exactly corresponding in diameter with the mouth of the bottle. The column of ice was as round and straight and true as a lead pencil. To its summit the cork was frozen tight. This phenomenon was viewed by the whole family, and all agreed that it was something unusual. To account for it, the following theory was suggested:

It is well known that by a law of nature all substances contract with cold. Water is thus affected until the freezing point is reached, when crystallization takes place. The particles of ice then arrange themselves in such a manner that there is expansion instead of contraction in the entire bulk. That is to say, a cubic foot of water will make more than a cubic foot of ice.

Putting the case another way, a pound of ice takes up more room than a pound of water; therefore, a given bulk of ice is lighter than the same bulk of water. It is because of this provision of nature that ice floats instead of sinking.

If the ice should sink to the bottom of a lake or stream, new ice would form at the top and sink in its turn, and so on until the entire body of water became frozen.

No summer heat could thaw it through, and it may easily be imagined that the results would be disastrous to mankind.

The bottle of water which has been described was on a shelf near a window, and a little lower than the sill. It is probable that the cold first attacked the water immediately beneath the cork. The crystallized particles took the direction of least resistance, and made their way upwards. As they emerged from the bottle the particles immediately under them next became frozen, and were forced upward by expansion. This process was continued until the column of ice, as described, was formed.

Does this theory cover the case? If not, can some scientist account for the phenomenon? — Willis Kenyon, in Youth's Companion.

Little Ned's Queer Pet.

Ned is just six, and is an authority on pets. He has had any number of dogs, cats, a pet pony, and a family of turtles have helped to destroy the domestic peace at Ned's home, but now he is very indifferent to all his pets but one—and such a one! He is a companion and confidant for his small master, and such a very dignified companion—so different from romping Carlo or frisky Fido. This new pet is a tall and stately rooster, with the most "boo'ful red chin." Did you ever hear of the pride of the barnyard as a pet? Well, that is exactly what Ned's rooster is. He walks stiffly down the street with his young master to the door of the schoolhouse; then, when the door is shut on him, turns with a troubled little chuckle and walks home.—N. Y. Advertiser.

Suez Canal Two Thousand Years Ago.

The idea of a canal along the present route of the great Suez was considered practicable and excavations were actually commenced upwards of 2,500 years ago, and in the time of the reign of Ptolemy Philadelphus, 273 years before Christ, the union of the two seas was perfected. The canal was a small affair, of course, compared with the present waterway, but was sufficient for the war galleys of the time. It is a historical fact that Cleopatra, after Actium, tried to escape by that route, but was prevented by the fierce Arabs.

SIMPLE EXPERIMENTS.

Boiling Water in a Paper Bag and Melting Lead on a Card.

When we lay our hands upon a piece of metal on a table, we say it is "cold;" on a piece of flannel, that it is "warm." They are both at exactly the same temperature—neither is colder or warmer than the other. They are both at the same temperature as everything else in the room.

We felt the metal "cold" because it is a good conductor and rapidly carries away the heat of our hands. The flannel does not, so we call it "warm;" it does not withdraw warmth from us.

Paper is a bad conductor; water is a better one. Or, to speak according to the card, water is not a good conductor, but by a process, which goes on in heated water, known as convection, it acts in the experiment, we shall discover, as well as if it were good.

If we fold a piece of paper so that it will contain water, we may boil the water in the paper. The water greedily uses up all the heat; there is none left for the paper. The water cannot get hotter than boiling point—nor will it let the paper get hotter—and this is not hot enough for combustion.

MELTING LEAD ON A PLAYING CARD.

This experiment has the same explanation as that of boiling water in a paper bag. The temperature required for melting lead is higher than that required for boiling water, but even that temperature is short of what is required to set fire to the card.—Once a Week.

FIVE BUSINESS LAWS.

Something About the Legal Validity of Commercial Paper.

Every boy in this country, who has a spark of ambition, expects to earn his living as a man, and therefore requires a business education. In this branch nothing is more essential than a knowledge of money matters, and the most important of these relates to the legal validity of a negotiable draft, note or check.

There are five essential elements which may be classed as follows:

1. It must be payable in money—that is, gold, silver or greenbacks, possibly also in United States currency, not in any kind of merchandise. Thus a note "payable in one hundred calves" has been decided to to be invalid.

2. It must be payable without any contingency or uncertainty. A note promising to pay "$1,000 out of the proceeds of ore to be raised and sold from any mine" is invalid. But a particular friend may be designated as "I promise to pay out of the estate of B., deceased."

3. It must be payable at a certain specified time—a time certain to arrive. A note payable to A. B. "when he is twenty-one years of age," is not good, for he may not live to be twenty-one, and so the time is not certain to arrive. But a note payable "on demand" is held to be good, for demand is in the nature of things certain to be made at some time. The owner of such a note would not possess common sense if he never demanded payment.

4. It must be payable to the order of a certain party therein named, or else payable to bearer. Otherwise it is not negotiable, although as a simple written contract it is good as between the maker and the person to whom it is payable. But it is not capable of indorsement unless the words "order" or "bearer" appear.

5. The amount payable must be specified and certain. A note for $100 "with interest" is good, because the interest can be calculated and thus certainly ascertained, but a note reading "pay $100 or $200" is not good.—Golden Days.

Shetland Ponies.

The smallest pony in the world is to be found at the well-known Shetland pony farm of the marquis of Londonderry, on the island of Bressay. It is a little colt foal that weighed but sixteen pounds and was only nineteen and a half inches high at its birth. It is a perfectly healthy, well-formed animal. The great object of the breeders of Shetland ponies is to keep down the size of the animals. The price increases in inverse ratio to size. This is partly from fancy and fashion, and partly because the smaller the ponies the better fitted for working in the seams of coal in the mines where they find their chief usefulness.—N. Y. Sun.

Teddy's Promise.

I've got a little sister now;
She's really pretty fine.
It makes me mighty proud to think
That she is truly mine.
And when she's grown as big as me,
I'll let her have my toys,
That is, I mean, the ones that are Not suitable for boys.
—Harper's Young People.

A Decided Disadvantage.

Arnold—I'm going to learn to play on the violin.

Bert—Well, I'm going to have a cornet, and people can hear me twice as far as they can you.—Harper's Young People.

His Success There.

There is a maiden within the limits of greater Boston who blushes furiously at the mention of one little word of three letters—S-i-r. It is a short story. There was a little entertainment at the academy where Alice graduated. She attended, of course, and was introduced to a charming young man—an undergraduate. "He suggested that we stroll in the corridors," she said afterwards to her most intimate friend, "and we talked about dances, the professors and the same old things. Then he tried—Oh, he must have forgotten himself, and I won't tell you what he tried to do. I wanted to bring him to his senses. 'Sir!' I said sternly, drawing myself up to my full height. — Gotham Town Talk.

A Wild Yearning for Pockets.

European papers have had a great deal to say about Miss Mary Poe, who recently died in Vienna and whose eccentricities caused even the Austrians to hold up their hands. It seems that Miss Pope's most noticable "eccentricity" was a wild yearning for pockets. She had them all around the hem of her dress and used them for various and startling purposes. In one she carried her lunch and in another her dinner, the third secreted a salt cellar, while knives, forks, towels and medicine bottles found convenient resting places. Men may think that all this is funny, but women who wear bell skirts will have nothing but words of praise for the departed. Moreover something has to be done for them, and it is very possible that they will be forced to follow Miss Poe's example.

Not to Be Bluffed.

A young saleswoman in a dry goods store who had just sold a quantity of goods to a lady, asked:

"Will you have the goods sent, or take them with you?"

"Do you expect that I am going to carry a bundle like that?" asked the shopper indignantly.

"Oh, no, madam," answered the saleswoman, mistress of herself. "I supposed your carriage was at the door, and that you might prefer to take your purchase with you."

And she scored one on the victorious side.—Detroit Free Press.

The Industrious Boy.

Mrs. Suburb—Mercy me! It's time to get supper, and no fire in the kitchen, and I can't find the matches anywhere.

Small Son—I put the matches in that big vase on the mantel—six boxes of 'em.

"But those matches won't ignite except on the box. What did you do with the boxes?"

"I was making kite sticks, an' I used 'em for sand paper."—Good News.

The Politician.

"The greatest good to the greatest number!"
He cries, his statesmanship begun:
But later, what's the greatest number?
Number one!
—Leslie's Weekly.

A Great Go.

"How does your new errand boy go Johnson?"

"The long way, apparently, every time."—N. Y. Truth.

That's what the human race is doing — particularly the American part of it.

There are a few left who are satisfied with ancient history. COTTOLENE

There was once a prejudice against Cottonseed oil. But people who are alive, who investigate, who have no bigotry in their composition, have found that pure, refined cottonseed oil combined with selected beef suet is a better article in every conceivable way than hog's lard. And so they wisely use it for cooking—and are correspondingly healthy and happy. The sales of COTTOLENE are enormous and constantly increasing; a proof that it is appreciated by appreciative persons.

TO OPERATE THE MILL

Said That Four Hundred Non-Union Men Will Come to Homestead To-Day.

STRIKERS DECLARE THEY WILL NOT ALLOW THEM TO WORK.

GENERAL SNOWDEN IS WRATHFUL.

Some of the Workmen Obtained Cartridges from the Soldiers as Mementos—A Dynamite Scare—Reported That Enough of It is Stored Away in a House to Blow Up the Whole Town—The Commander Threatens to Court-Martial Some of the Offending Militiamen—The Investigating Committee—Idaho Miners Blowing Up Bridges.

HOMESTEAD, July 14.—A dispatch received at General Snowden's headquarters late last evening stated that 400 non-union men are to be brought into the Carnegie mill sometime to-day.

Nothing can be learned as to the direction from which the men will come and where they have been engaged.

The National Guardsmen woke up in the morning in the best of humor. They felt that their trip would be a summer picnic to a large extent. Not so the officers. General Snowden and staff had scarcely missed when a man presented himself who said he was one of the locked out Homesteaders. He told a story of startling interest. It was that in a certain red building on a side street of the town was stored dynamite enough to not only blow up the mills, but the entire place.

Just what action the militia may take in the matter, if any, it is impossible to learn. Thus far they are simply a sheriff's posse, and are careful not to make any display that may subject them to the criticism of being unduly suspicious of the people. Nevertheless it is highly probable that the building will be most closely watched, and in the event of any display of hostility will be seized.

A council of the officers revealed the fact that many of the guardsmen had been plainly asked by the Homesteaders if they, who were mainly workingmen themselves, would shoot down other workingmen, and that a good many of the troops had said they would not. In quite a few instances, too, when the boys had been mixing friendship and beers together, they had been asked by citizens for cartridges as souvenirs of their visit, and had given them up. In consequence of these interesting little informal ceremonies there are more cartridges and ammunition in Homestead than were paid for, and they are in the hands of the very people to disarm whom and render powerless the militia came here.

The revelation of these things stirred Gen. Snowden into unwonted wrath. He read the riot act in divers tongues, illuminating it with allusions to the picturesque situation in which some captains and privates would find themselves on a repetition of the offenses. He declared that if he could locate the men who had been verdant enough to give up ammunition as souvenirs he would court martial them.

The townspeople declared that they had no ulterior motives in coaxing away the cartridges, that they meant to use them as ornaments for their mantels and mementoes of the guardsmen. But nevertheless the air is filled with an expansive smile at the expense of the youthful soldiers. A consequence of this is that to-day there are fewer troops let outside the camp, and those who are have no cartridges with them that may be lured away.

The townspeople are not talking much about the presence of the soldiers. They show no resentment in their manner and personal conflicts are not likely to occur.

The friction between the military and the citizens caused by the refusal of Gen. Snowden to co-operate with the townspeople in maintaining order, and in declining a reception by them, will probably amount to nothing, although the leaders are very sore over their treatment.

Sheriff McCleary has hinted that he will arrest several of the leaders in the battle against the Pinkertons. In such action as this lies the greatest danger of bloodshed. The bulk of the workmen realize this, but there is no telling how radical will be the change of feeling if half a dozen leaders are placed in durance.

Matters have quieted down to-day and the spirit of peace seems to be in the air. No fear of trouble is entertained unless Mr. H. C. Frick places non-union men in his works.

It is the general belief here that Mr. Frick will man the mill with new workmen as soon as possible. He has practically admitted that such was his intention.

The news that the men employed in the Carnegie's upper and lower Union mills at Pittsburg had met and notified the management that unless negotiations looking to the settlement of the trouble at Homestead were opened by Thursday the men in all departments would walk out at the conclusion of that day's work, caused much rejoicing among the locked-out Carnegie men here.

Major-General Snowden has located his headquarters in the Carnegie school house, a two-story frame building on the brow of the hill. A line of pickets was established around the building and when a reporter attempted to visit the commanding officer late last night, he was startled by hearing "Halt, who goes there! Stand back there."

A musket with fixed bayonet thrust under the reporter's nose induced him to fall back.

One of the guards then escorted him to Guard No. 1, where an officer was found who examined his pass and admitted him within the lines.

The passes are issued to newspaper men having credentials from the papers and Press Associations which they represent and admit them within all lines from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The expense of the sojourn of the troops at Homestead will be paid out of an appropriation for suppressing riots and there will be no summer camp this year.

Already there is a scheme on foot to use the money which is appropriated for the summer encampment to give the militiamen a trip to the World's Fair next year. No less a person than a staff officer expressed himself as favoring the project.

Contrary to the request of the town authorities one battalion of the militia has begun picket duty in Homestead. This is the first step towards martial law, and it is hinted that a seizure of arms and dynamite is to be made.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE STRIKERS ENCOURAGED.

They Reiterate That Non-Union Men Will Not be Allowed in the Mill.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 14.—A delegation of workmen from the Duquesne Mills of the Carnegie Company visited Homestead in the afternoon and had a conference with members of the Advisory Committee of the workmen. The strikers were assured that the Duquesne men were ready to go out at any time and only awaited the word of the Homestead Advisory Committee. This offer, coupled with the report of proposed strikes of men in the 29th and 33d street mills in Pittsburg and those at Braddock, gave encouragement to the workmen.

In conversation with a prominent member of the Advisory Committee in the afternoon a "United Press" reporter called attention to the intimation by Mr. Lovejoy of the Carnegie Company that non-union men would be placed in the Homestead Mills.

"Oh, he won't do that; people have heard him talk before," said the Advisory Committeeman.

"But nearly everybody thinks he will," said the reporter.

"Well, if he attempts that," was the answer, "there will be lots of news for you. We are determined not to allow non-union men in the mill, and will keep to our determination without regard to the consequences."

The Investigating Committee.

PITTSBURG, July 14.—The committee of Congress appointed to investigate the causes of the Homestead strike did a great deal of work here yesterday, being in session almost continuously from 9 to 6. Among those examined were manager Frick, Captain Rogers and Sheriff McCleary, for the Carnegie Company, and President Weihe, of the Amalgamated Association, Hugh O'Donnell and Burgess John McLuckie, for the iron workers. The investigation will be continued to-day.

WILL FIGHT THE TROOPS.

Striking Idaho Miners Becoming Desperate—Blowing Up Bridges.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 14.—The strikers have possession of the telegraph and telephone offices at Wardner and other Couer d'Alene points. They have blown up railroad bridges and are prepared to fight the United States troops, who should be near Wardner now. Last night a gang of armed strikers overtook 70 unarmed non-union men at Old Mission, about 20 miles this side of Wardner, robbed them of their wages and fired on them while running away. Two non-union men were killed; others escaped to the woods and swamps. Seven caught the steamer and arrived in Spokane this morning. A relief party is going after the others.

A telephone message from Wolf Lodge, near Old Mission, states that a relief party has found the dead bodies of 2 non-union men in the bushes and swamp. The party is looking for more.

Gov. Wiley has issued a proclamation placing Shoshone county under martial law. Word has been received that three companies of Federal troops from Missoula have arrived at Mullane. The other troops have not been heard from. Adjt.-Gen. Curtis, who is in command of the State troops and who went in advance of the outbreak, had not been heard from this morning, and it is feared that he has fallen into the hands of the strikers.

Strikers Blew Up a Bridge.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 14.—A special from Spokane says that the strikers blew up the railroad bridge at Mullane early in the morning to prevent the troops from Missoula effecting an entrance. It is reported that all the Cœur d'Alene mines are filled with explosives preparatory to a general destruction of the property. The strikers will have trouble if they do this and plan to escape, as the State and Federal troops hold practically all the passages of egress.

Boston Winders on Strike.

BOSTON, July 14.—Yesterday 40 winders at the works of the Wakefield Rattan factory quit work because the company refused to comply with their demand for an increase of prices. The men say the Wakefield Company pays less than is paid for similar work in other places, and that under the present prices they cannot earn more than $7 to $9 a week. They want the prices increased so that they can earn from $1.75 to $2 a day.

Spinners Will Also Strike.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 14.—The Spinners Union last night voted to stand by the striking doffers and back boys, it being the general feeling that if Fall River manufacturers could afford to pay 60 hours wages for 58 hours work it could also be done in New Bedford. This further complicates the situation, and unless some settlement is effected some of the mills will be obliged to shut down entirely this week.

Michigan Steel Workers Out.

WYANDOTTE, Mich., July 14.—The 400 employes of the Eureka Iron and Steel Company have struck. They are members of the Amalgamated Association. No outbreak has yet occurred, but trouble is feared if the company should attempt to introduce non-union employes. The wildest rumors are afloat about the introduction of Pinkerton men, but there are none here yet.

Oil Excitement at Bellefonte, Pa.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., July 14.—Bellefonters were greatly excited yesterday over a discovery of oil. It oozed out of the hill just west of the town, and flowed down Spring Creek, being plainly distinguishable on top of the water. Fully 1,000 people visited the spot of the discovery within two hours after it was made. A company is being formed to prospect and test the extent of the discovery. Oil and natural gas rights are also being brought up all around the town and fabulous prices are being paid.

NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSEMBLY.

Proceedings of the Teachers' Convention at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, July 14.—The Councilors of the American Institute of Civics, and the members of the Department of Civics of the Business Educators' Association of America, an auxiliary of the Institute representing every State in the Union, held a largely attended meeting at Bethesda Parish House, in the afternoon.

Edward Brooks, P.H.D., Superintendent of Public Schools at Philadelphia, and Dean of the Public School Department of the Institute, presided, and the subject: "How may instruction in civics be made more efficient as a preparation for integrity, intelligence and faithfulness in the discharge of civic obligations," was discussed in able addresses by Dr. J. Hulme Canfield, Chancellor of the University of Nebraska; Robert C. Spencer, President of the Spencerian College, Milwaukee, and others.

The keynote of the addresses was the betterment of political and social conditions by means of more attention to school instruction in civics, special attention being demanded for instruction promotive of character building and the right use of the privileges of citizenship and the machinery of government.

The most important work of the National Education Assembly yesterday was the adoption of the report on the World's Educational Congress by the special committee headed by Hon. W. T. Harris, National Commissioner of Education, appointed at the annual meeting held at St. Paul and empowered by the National Association to make provision for holding an International Congress of Education at Chicago in the summer of 1893, in cooperation with a local organization in that city, organized under an act of Congress under the name of the World's Congress Auxiliary of the World's Columbian Exposition.

At last evening's session the first break from the original programme occurred. It was announced that Mrs. Livermore, who had been scheduled to speak was ill, and that President Johnston of Tulare University, who was to have filled her place, had also been unable to speak. Mrs. F. W. Leiter of Mansfield, O., was introduced, and took for her subject "Educational Equipoise."

KILLED BY A FREIGHT TRAIN.

Four Summer Boarders From New York Run Down at a Crossing.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 14.—A freight train on the Ontario & Western Railroad struck a wagon containing ten persons about 2:30 a. m., killing four of its occupants and injuring three others.

The killed are:

GEORGE WALSH, New York city.

MISS CASSIE MCCOY, New York city.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK, New York city.

In the wagon, besides the driver, were Miss Frank, Mrs. J. F. Sheton, A. F. Fuller, Mrs. Doppan, Clara Case and Miss Brown.

All were from New York city and were boarding at Dell Case's, Bloomingburg, for the summer.

The party went to Wurtsboro to attend a picnic, and were returning home when the accident happened. The wagon road as it climbs the mountain at Wurtsboro runs parallel with the railroad tracks for some distance before reaching the crossing.

The driver, when near the crossing, saw the engine and train as his supposed pass. Just as his horses had passed safely over the tracks he saw several cars bearing down towards them on a heavy down grade. They proved to be part of the train which had but a few minutes previously passed, and which had broken from the forward part. The wagon was struck squarely in the center, killing the four who were seated on the rear seats.

International Regatta at Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—An international regatta will be held on the Potomac River July 23 and 24, which will attract considerable attention in the aquatic world of sports. Edward Hanlan, William O'Connor, Jake Gaudaur, George Hosmer and Wallace Ross will contest for the liberal purses offered by Capt. E. S. Randall.

Worry May Have Hastened Death.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., July 14.—Michael Horton, the saloon-keeper who was indicted for defrauding the West Shore road by conspiring with the conductors to use bogus tickets, is dead from typhoid fever. It is thought that the trouble he has had with the railroad company caused him a great deal of worry and hastened his death.

Cyclone at Springfield, O.

COLUMBUS, O., July 14.—A dispatch from Springfield, O., says that the southern part of that city was visited by a cyclone at 11:30 a. m., doing terrible damage. One hundred and twenty houses were demolished. A number of persons were injured, but no one was killed.

KILLED IN THE HOUSE

Free Silver Bill Will Not Come Up This Session.

ONLY ONE ROLL CALL NECESSARY.

The Fight Not So Hotly Contested as Had Been Anticipated—The Vote 134 to 126 Not to Consider the Bill—Views of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The free silver men were decisively beaten in the House yesterday, and the Stewart bill reposes at the end of the list of dead bills on the House calendar.

Half an hour before the House met the attendance was larger than it has been for many days.

There was much talk and consultation and excitement. The leaders on each side were marshaling their forces and all was made ready for the big silver battle.

The silver men suddenly changed their programme and resolved to force the fighting and make the engagement short, sharp and finally decisive of the silver question.

Promptly at 12 o'clock Mr. Catchings introduced a report from the Committee on Rules, making the free coinage bill (Senate 51) the special order for Wednesday and Thursday.

When it was read at the desk Mr. Reed moved to lay the resolution on the table. Speaker Crisp ruled that Mr. Catchings had the floor and could not be taken off.

Mr. Reed argued that the House ought to have the right to determine whether or not it shall dispose of the question without argument.

Mr. Reed urged the right of the House to determine whether or not this question should be disposed of without an hour's debate. "We are ready on this side," he said in conclusion, "to dispose of it now without debate."

Under the ruling of the Speaker, Mr. Catchings yielded 15 minutes of the hour at his disposal to Mr. Bland.

Mr. Bland sent to the desk and had read an amendment he proposed to offer to the bill, to cure the deficit caused by the repeal of the Act of 1890 by which it has been asserted that the silver certificates issued under it should lose their legal tender quality. He also announced that in case the House refused to second the demand for the consideration of the resolution, he would move to amend the resolution so as to provide that after 2 o'clock Thursday, no dilatory motion shall be entertained (a cloture rule.)

Speaking of the latter, Mr. Bland said that certain gentlemen on the Democratic side had a delicacy upon the subject of a cloture rule which he could not understand. It had been the rule of the House for fifty years (applause on Republican side.)

Mr. Bland said that he wanted to put every one on record and he announced that every one who voted against consideration registered a vote against the bill.

Mr. Bartine (Rep., Nev.,) said that he considered the success of free coinage paramount to any party success, and he would vote against seconding the previous question on this rule, believing that under it a vote on the bill could not be reached, and, that was what he wanted.

Messrs. Clark, of Alabama, and Forman, of Illinois, argued against the passage of the Silver Bill.

Mr. Catchings—I now yield to the gentleman from Maine, Mr. Reed.

Mr. Reed—I wish the gentleman would postpone his yielding until some one has shown us why he should do this thing.

Mr. Catchings—Do I understand that the gentleman does not wish to occupy the time?

Mr. Reed—I do wish to say a few words to the House.

As he proceeded to speak, a calm, in striking contrast to the noise that had previously raged, was noticeable, and he was listened to with earnest attention.

Mr. Reed said that he congratulated the Democrats upon the attitude of repentance which they occupied. All the time that the gentlemen were proclaiming how sorry they were for the views they recently entertained, his mind, he said, was occupied by a picture of the Democratic party as a minority of this House in the last session, when all the leaders had announced that they yearned for free silver, and the declaration was followed in the "Record" by the statement.

The Democratic party really seemed to have reached the level which might be called a level of principle. But the gentleman from Tennessee has explained that away, and asserted that the Democratic party was organized to hold public office.

"When it comes to actual business," continued Mr. Reed, "the Republican party must come to the front as it has done to-day. I am not complaining that the Democratic party has not the courage of its bad principles, but that it is ready to profess every principle founded in a want of knowledge on the party of the people, and sell themselves that they may wield office and vote. I am glad that they have seen the error of their ways. And I am not criticising the trembling voices in which the repentant sinners are returning home. (Laughter.)

Mr. Culberson, of Texas, closed the hour's debate in an impassioned speech of ten or twelve minutes. He said the significance of the contest, that which filled the galleries with spectators, and put "printers" all over the floor, was the fact that it was the people's protest against monopoly.

Mr. Culberson's speech, next to that of Mr. Reed, was the feature of the discussion, and at its close he was greeted with the greatest applause bestowed upon any speaker.

Mr. Catchings then moved the previous question on the resolution reported from the committee, upon which motion Mr. Tracy (Dem., N. Y.,) demanded the yeas and nays.

The vote was announced—yeas, 163; nays, 129—a defeat for the free silver men who wanted the rule amended, if it were to be adopted at all.

The vote was not, however, a strict and absolute test, some silver men being against the cloture or amendments of the bill.

Mr. Catchings was again recognized, and moved the adoption of the resolution. This time the silver men voted aye, as the defeat of Catchings's motion meant the death of free coinage for the present session.

The silver men were less than ten votes stronger on the direct proposition, and the resolution reported by the Committee on Rules was defeated by a vote of 126 yeas against 154 nays, or a majority against consideration of the Stewart Silver bill of 16.

This vote is the death of silver legislation at this session.

Mr. Tracy of New York made the formal parliamentary motion to reconsider the vote and to table that motion, and then the House proceeded to other and minor business.

Ex-Speaker Reed gave the following as his views on the defeat of the resolution: "This vote of the House under Republican lead settles the silver question until the decisive vote of the people. In fact, in my judgment, it is the last fight there will be on the subject. The elections will settle the agitation. The hollowness of the Democratic support of free silver shows the insincerity of those who have been entering to a temporary opinion."

Representative Bland took a philosophical view of his defeat, and said that there was nothing that could have been done by the Committee on Rules or by any friends of the measure to save it. He remarked that the silver men were beaten this session, but the fight would be resumed later. He thought the Republicans would try to force sectional issues and the Force bill on them, which they would bury deep, and then the Democratic party would try to do something else.

Mr. Breckenridge of Kentucky said that he regarded the result of the contest as fortunate, and said he was confident that it would result in the election of Mr. Cleveland as President and in the retention of a number of Democratic members of the House from the East, who would otherwise have lost their seats.

THOUGHT THAT 18 ARE DEAD.

Details of the Overturning of the Frankie Folsom at Peoria, Ill.

PEORIA, Ill., July 14.—The waves of the Illinois river now roll over the forms of a score of people, who, only a short time ago, were enjoying themselves to the fullest extent. Wednesday evening was one of the prettiest ever seen, and the river and lake were fairly alive with boats of every description.

At 10 o'clock a cyclone swept over the city, leaving death and destruction in its wake.

The most serious and appalling disaster of the night was caused by the capsizing of the pleasure steamer Frankie Folsom at the foot of Caroline street.

The following is a list of the unfortunates who are known to have lost their lives by the swamping of the steamer:

THE DEAD.

AHRENS, JOHN, Pekin.
DUESENBERG, MRS., Pekin.
FISHER, CORA, Pekin.
FISHER, MRS., Pekin.
PLATH, MARY, Pekin.
POHREL, ANNA, Pekin.
POHREL, MARY, Pekin.
REPENBERG, WILLIAM, Pekin.
UNKNOWN—Two young girls.

At Lake View Park, a mile above the city, a representation of Pompeii was given. For this occasion the Folsom, a Pekin boat, came up with forty people. A landing was made here and two or three couples joined the party. Fifteen others also got aboard the boat at the Park, so that the passenger list reached fully sixty.

As the boat came out of the landing and started down to the city it was struck by the cyclone and turned over. It was a little midway in the river and sank rapidly.

There are eighteen dead in the Folsom, according to the latest account.

Only about one-half of these will be found in the cabin of the boat, for the others were swept off the rail into the river.

GLADSTONE RE-ELECTED.

His Escape From Defeat a Narrow One—Great Excitement Caused.

LONDON, July 14.—Mr. Gladstone has been re-elected in Midlothian, receiving 5,730 votes to 5,077 for Col. Wauchope, the Liberal-Unionist candidate.

The narrow escape of Mr. Gladstone from defeat has caused much excitement. His Conservative opponent is a soldier with a gallant record, a C. B. and C. M. G., and personally beyond reproach, either as to his civil or military career.

Col. Wauchope presented no obstacle to drawing out the full Conservative and Liberal vote of Midlothian, and the story told by the figures shows how thoroughly the vote was drawn out.

Col. Wauchope is overwhelmed with congratulations by his Tory friends, as much as if he was the victor, while from all parts of Scotland telegrams have poured in to the Colonel, who is said to be astonished at the fame thrust upon him.

Up to the declaration of the result the Conservatives seemed to believe that Gladstone was beaten, and this confidence on their part naturally added to the anxiety of the Liberals.

The excitement in London has not been so intense since the beginning of the elections. Fleet street was crammed from Ludgate Circus to Chancery Lane with an anxious multitude, both of Unionists and Liberals. The moment the figures were bulletined a great volume of shouts, of groans and of cheers went up from the people. For fully a quarter of an hour the deafening and discordant din prevailed.

Mr. Gladstone received the news with calmness. Whatever his feelings may have been, he gave no expression to them.

Inter-State Commerce Inquiry.

CHICAGO, July 14. — The Inter-State Commerce Commission has commenced here a sweeping investigation into a large number of alleged infractions of the law, numerous shippers, it is alleged, having had advantages, while others have been discriminated against. Most of these shippers are dealers in grain, and are located throughout the Northwest.

Connecticut and the Fair.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 14.—Executive Commissioner Woods has made a report to the World's Fair Managers showing that 125 Connecticut firms have already applied directly for space; 27 others have applied from other States, and 105 others have applications on the way. Major Woods is confident that the State will make a very creditable exhibit.

Gale at Corning, N. Y.

CORNING, N. Y., July 14.—A terrific gale, accompanied by rain and hail, swept over this place in the afternoon. Several houses and shops were unroofed and trees and shrubbery destroyed. Two dwelling houses were struck by lightning, but no one was reported injured. The tobacco crop in this vicinity was damaged somewhat by the hail.

A White Murderer Lynched.

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 14.—John Redfern, the white man who shot and killed Mr. P. Dunn and dangerously injured John Hobdy, a negro, Wednesday morning, was taken from the jail by a mob at midnight and hanged.

The Cadet Firemen Hang Up the Crepe.

There is more trouble in the Somerville fire department. This time it is occasioned by the "Cadets", a hose company formed some time ago by young lads under the direction of engine Co., No. 1. The boys, captained by William Cawley, jr., have lately become discontented with their lot, and because the engine company would not give them half of the money received from the citizens of Clinton, they have disbanded. They held their meetings in the engine company's rooms and upon retiring hung the room in crepe thinking that the older firemen would be angered. But hearing that the board of commissioners would meet before the engine company they took down the somber drapery and made application for recognition as an independent company.

Seeks Satisfaction for Protested Checks.

A retail liquor dealer named Raub, doing business at West and Liberty streets, New York, is on the warpath against John M. Schorb, jr. His charge is that Schorb got him to cash two checks which proved to be worthless. He asked justice Nash to issue a warrant for forgery, but that official showed that if there was any crime it was not forgery, since the checks bore Schorb's own signature, but rather obtaining money under false pretenses. He told Raub he must get certain evidence bearing on the case before he could issue a warrant. Raub went in search of the evidence, and has n't yet returned. He says "I'll make Schorb sweat if it costs me $1,000".

SETTLING A CHURCH DISPUTE

ARBITRATION ADJUSTS THE BAPTISTS' DIFFICULTIES.

No Legal Nor Moral Indebtedness to the Contractors Who Built the Park Avenue House of Worship, But as a Matter of Christian Equity the Investigation Committee Recommend Congregational Reimbursement for the Builders' Loss.

The Park Avenue Baptists feel that they have been fully exonerated from the charge that they have long owed and refused to pay a just debt to the builders of their new church edifice; and point to the developments of a church meeting held last night as complete vindication of their Christian probity.

The unpleasant accusations against the church were set afloat at the time of the resignation of the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts from the pastorate, several months ago, when it was claimed that the church owed a debt of honor to contractors Stimson & Stewart, and that pastor Dilts's resignation was because the church refused to discharge that obligation.

So notorious did the church become as the result of the stories in circulation, that it was deemed wise to take decisive steps towards settling the matter beyond all dispute. Consequently, at a regular church meeting on March 9, a committee of investigation was appointed, consisting of mayor Alexander Gilbert, representing the building committee; Henry B. Newhall, representing the carpenter contractors; and Martin I. Cooley, Morgan S. Taylor and Chas. W. McCutchen, representing the Park Avenue church.

That committee organized with Mr. Gilbert as chairman and Mr. McCutchen as secretary, and made a most rigid investigation. The result of its labors was contained in a sealed report submitted to the Park avenue congregation last night. The report was considered at a special business meeting of the church, held at the close of the regular Wednesday evening prayer meeting.

After fully reviewing the details of the investigation, the committee declare their unanimous judgment to be:

First—That the Park Avenue church, as a corporate body, has discharged in full its obligations under the contract in question with Stimson & Stewart (bearing date August 27, 1879) and that the said Stimson & Stewart have no legal claim on said church for any amount whatsoever in connection with said contract.

Second—That in the adjustment of the differences (preliminary to the final settlement) between the church and the carpenter contractors named, as to amounts charged for extra work and deductions for work not done, and like matters, no unfair advantage was sought to be taken by either party of the other. That the chairman of the building committee [Henry Smith], having the interests and funds of the church in his hands, in trust, acted solely in defence of those interests, while, on the other hand, the contractors sought properly what they considered a full equivalent for labor and material furnished, and that concessions were made by both parties. That the mutually-agreed-on amount paid by the building committee to and accepted by the contractors was all that they could claim as due from the church in equity, and the final settlement thus made and entered into by the parties was just and fair.

Third—That the Park Avenue Baptist church, as a corporate body, has discharged in full all the moral obligations belonging to it in connection with and under the contract in question with Stimson & Stewart.

Concerning the personal questions involved, the committee heartily approve the work of both church officials and contractors, and conclude with the following statement and recommendation:

It is in evidence that the carpenter contractors sustained some pecuniary loss in the erection of the church edifice under their contract. It was, perhaps, an enterprise of greater magnitude than they at first conceived it to be when they entered their estimate in competition with other bidders. At any rate, it proved to them an unprofitable transaction. It is also in evidence that when this fact became known to them (after their agreement for final settlement with the building committee), and was mentioned by them to others, fellow-members of the church, they received expressions of sympathy and assurances from these individuals enough to justify them in expecting their loss would be made good, in part or in whole. These assurances were unquestionably made in good faith, but they could not form a ground for claim against anyone, much less against the church which had not authorized them. Perhaps the disappointment which resulted from the non-action of their brethren in respect to these alleged promises of co-operation may have been the cause in a measure of the grievance which the carpenters have entertained.

In view of these facts, and of the peculiar circumstances of the relations of these builders to the church, the committee's suggestion is that the few hundred dollars' loss sustained by Messrs. Stimson and Stewart (say not exceeding five hundred dollars) be made good to them by the voluntary contributions of their brethren in the church, not on the ground of discharging an obligation, but on the broader basis of Christian fellowship, and in recognition of the claim which a brother member of the church has upon his brethren for consideration and co-operation, conformably with the lofty precept of our holy religion laid down by St. Paul in his words to the church at Galatia: "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ."

The report was ordered spread in full on the minutes, and after some discussion the recommendation of the committee concerning the proposed reimbursement of the contractors was referred to the board of trustees of the church for action.

Alfred W. Day, T. I. Runyon and Fred Fish were appointed a committee to prepare a memorial thanking the investigating committee for its work.

After saying a number of unkind things about newspapers in general, and in particular denouncing as utterly false the story that appeared in the Somerset street sheet concerning the church trouble, the brethren and sisters decided that it would be a very nice thing to have the horrid newspapers say something kind about them, and ordered the church clerk to furnish each of the Plainfield papers with a copy of the investigating committee's report together with the action of the church concerning it. This proposition was discussed earnestly and at considerable length. A number urged that the matter of publication be left to the board of trustees, but the majority finally decided to ask the newspapers to print in full just what the clerk was authorized to furnish. All seemed to be agreed that the church should not pay anything for the great extent of valuable space that would thus be occupied, but all appeared earnestly anxious to have the papers say a good word for them, though they had anything but good words for the papers.

Whatever of temper, whatever of heat and ungenerous ill-feeling, was developed during the spirited debate of the evening, THE PRESS forbears to publish, out of charity and kindly feeling for the good people of the church.

A CREDITABLE VICTORY.

Plainfield's Pets Prove Themselves Capable of Defeating the Strongest Comers.

If the Crescents only continue to put up the kind of base-ball they played yesterday, that pennant will yet be theirs. The game was the nicest kind that their ardent admirers could desire, and the Staten Islanders were defeated with ease.

The team of the visitors was a strong one. At first base they had Carter, the crack catcher of Yale, who was so tall that Brownie man Hofford could stand under the archway of his legs to catch, when the giant was at the bat. The left fielder was the famous Princeton player, McKinsie, and the entire nine was made up of men of just that stamp. But they were all out played by the Crescents at every point. Daley played a great third base, Beener was the usual marvel at short, Turner's wonderful pick-ups called forth the plaudits of the crowd, and Jones was the acme of ablity and accuracy at first. That infield of the Crescents can't be beat, and Murphy and Leidy and Bond have n't their superiors as an outfield. Sneeden pitched a great game and fielded his position in great shape, and old reliable Hofford gave steadiness and dignity to the team.

The heavy hitting of the Crescents wearied Clare, and he retired at the ending of the fifth inning. Wight, who took his place, pitched a good three innings in the game against Plainfield, May 25, under the name of Warren, on the Acmes. Clare took Vroom's place in right field in the eighth inning. The Staten Islanders fought nobly for victory, but the Crescents game was in every way superior. The score:

TWO SIDES TO THE STORY.

Mr. Martin Tells His Version of the Addis Case.

Counter-suit is about to be brought against Wm. Addis, by Fred H. Martin, as the outcome of the trouble caused between these two former friends by a disputed account. Mr. Martin says that at their last meeting Mr. Addis was the first to show anger, that he was first assaulted by Mr. Addis, being struck under the ribs in the left side, and that it was in warding off a blow aimed at his (Martin's) face that he (Martin) threw up his hand and it came in contact with Addis's eye and eyeglasses. Mr. Martin is a very slight-built man, and never has enjoyed robust health. He has been under a physician's care ever since the unfortunate occurrence. He inteods in a few days to begin prosecution of Mr. Addis for assault. He keenly feels the position he has been placed in, and asks a suspension of public opinion until the matter has been ventilated by the courts.

Rather risky—the offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Risky for them. For you, if you have Catarrh, it's a certainty. You're certain to be cured of it, or to be paid $500. That's what they offer, and in good faith—they cure you, or pay you, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing.

But—is it so much of a risk? They have a medicine that cures Catarrh, not for a time, but for all time. They've watched it for years, curing the most hopeless cases. They know that in your case there's every chance of success, almost no chance of failure.

Wouldn't any one take such a risk with such a medicine?

The only question is—are you willing to make the test, if the makers are willing to take the risk?

If so, the rest is easy. You pay your druggist fifty cents and the trial begins.

Can you ask more?

Plain Enough for Even a Stupid Metropolitan Base-ball Editor to See.

Some dishonest Staten Islander has been making the New York Telegram ridiculous by the bare-faced fakes in the way of base-ball news he has succeeded in injecting into its columns. In speaking of the Plainfield-Staten Island games, Tuesday's Telegram said: "These two clubs have played a series of three games, two of which were won by the Staten Islanders", when the fact is the latter won but one game, and that in the ninth inning after they had started a fight for the purpose and set their policeman to work throwing the Plainfield people out of the grand-stand. The same befooled paper said further that at the last game "It was evident that the Plainfields were in danger of defeat", when the fact is that the score stood 7 to 1 for Plainfield when the last half of the ninth inning began.

As the Plainfield team has now defeated the Staten Islanders three games by the scores of 8 to 1, 5 to 2 and 5 to 1—a total of 18 to 4—and as manager Arthur Moore of the Staten Islanders said yesterday to manager Keller of the Crescents, "I don't see how anyone ever beats you", even the sporting editor of the New York Telegram must see that there is no comparison between the teams and no question as to which is superior.

A Sewerage System for Plainfield in View.

The members of the common council committee on sewers will meet this evening and listen to the views of those from the towns concerned and interested in the matter of a trunk-line sewer through Fanwood, Westfield, Cranford, etc., to Staten Island sound.

Mayor Gilbert, who is taking the most intense interest in the question of how to dispose of Plainfield's sewage, is convinced, as are others, that such plan is not practicable for this city. The entire sewage of the city would first have to be drawn to one point by gravity, which point would probably of necessity be at least 90 feet below the top of the Fanwood hills and the carrying of it over such elevation would be very expensive if not impossible.

The mayor and the Plainfield committee, however, have a plan proper and available for this city, all ready to recommend at an early meeting of the council.

The City Hotel Sold.

The City hotel property was sold yesterday in the sheriff's office at Elizabeth to George H. Burgess and E. C. Maltby of this city for $6,090 over and above the mortgage of $15,000 Some unpaid taxes and other liens will bring the cost up to $23,000, which is a low figure. One of the changes the new owners will make in the building, will be a row of stores along Park avenue. There were a number of bidders, including Mr. Staats, the father-in-law of the present lessee, who offered within five dollars of the price given.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. UNDER MARTIAL LAW.

The Borough of Homestead Deprived of Civil Rights.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 14.—The borough of Homestead was this morning placed under marshal law, the outcome of the unwarranted arrest of strangers yesterday, when the representatives of the Amalgamated Association arrested a number of persons without any authority. The greatest excitement was caused by this step.

Gen. Snowden stated yesterday that the action of the advisory committee in arresting citizens, making rules and issuing passes for those in the town was treason, and if persisted in would be punished at once.

Word came this morning that the men at the Carnegie union mills, Lawrenceville, and the Beaver Falls mills, were preparing last night to quit work to-day, in accordance with their resolution.

It was stated last night that not less than 18,000 men would go out on strike today out of sympathy with the men at Homestead.

The men said they could raise $1,000,000 or more to support them in their present struggle.

THE BEAU-IDEAL OF SUMMER RESORTS.

Features of All Other Places Combined, With Perfect Management and Unequalled Service, at Normandie-by-the-Sea.

Normandie-by-the-Sea, as in all seasons of the past, is again the beau-ideal of summer resorts, and in fact the only one of its kind in many ways in the world. Its breadth of attractiveness, so to speak, is beyond the possibility of any other resort to even approach. At Normandie are offered every feature available at the seashore, mountain, lake, valley and river. Besides this, there really need be nothing more said than that it is owned by Gen'l Earle, the prince of hotel proprietors.

There is surf bathing in the mighty ocean on the finest beach along the coast, and also swimming in still water within a few hundred yards of one another. There are drives along the famous Rumson road that reminds one at times of Catskill rides and again of Newport boulevards. There is trolling from the pier for the gamey blue fish, or crabbing in the Barnegat. There is yachting or surf-boating; trips to the races, and all other means of varied enjoyment presented at all other resorts combined.

Then there is the hotel itself under the management of that thoughtful, watchful and careful host, P. B. Wright. The guests want for nothing and everything belongs to the guests. The hotel has its own ice and electric light plants, owns its own beach and river front, and in fact owns Normandie entire. Nobody is permitted about the place or even to use the railroad station, except the guests and attaches of the hotel.

Head-waiter James T. McGovern, whose popularity is the envy of all other head-waiters, and whose possession all other hotels are longing for, is in control of the dining room as usual. The menu and service are perfect. Miss J. A. Guerrene, the new housekeeper, cannot be excelled in her offices. The care of the rooms and the attention of the maids, are beyond criticism. The trip to and from Normandie either by rail or by boat is delightful.

A Good Show Coming.

Pawnee Bill's combined R. R. show, Historical Wild West, Indian museum, Grand Mexican hippodrome and exposition of Trained Animals, and Congress of Noted Chiefs and Cow Boys, Vaqueros and a limitless number of special features, will pay Plainfield a visit next Wednesday. It is under a management which has in the past eight years gained a most enviable reputation for dealing honestly and liberally with the public, and of presenting many features new and startling, and many feats which delight, amaze and amuse. The papers speak in the highest terms of both the exceptional merit and high character of this combination, and it is the kind of show to which the people will extend a hearty welcome. Genuine novelties and something new at reasonable prices, in place of empty bombast and brazen extortion, are what people want now, and will liberally patronize.

Jay Gould's Son Joins the New Jersey Militia.

Edwin Gould, of New York, a son of Jay Gould, was made an honorary member of company H 3d Regt., of New Jersey, Tuesday evening, at Sea Girt. Mr Gould wanted to qualify as a marksman at the State range but was prevented from doing so by not being a member of the New Jersey Militia. Col. John T. Van-Cleef, of Somerville, one of Governor Abbett's trusted staff officers, overcame this obstacle by having Mr. Gould made a member as stated. Company H is the crack company of the 3d regiment, and is stationed at Somerville. G. Snoden Cook is captain, and prosecutor William V. Steele, whose office is in THE PRESS building, is first lieutenant.

Another Offering to the Fresh Air Fund.

Edna French, Maude French, Bertha Thorn, May Ryerson, Stella Swain, Bessie Valiant, Florence Valiant, Nellie Valiant, Addie Carney, Edna Smith, Sadie Howell, Emma Sterling, Marjorie Sterling.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

THE BEANEATERS WIN

Close of the First Season in the National League.

WARD'S WONDERS ARE SECOND.

Standing of the Clubs at the Finish—Good Showing of the Philadelphias—The Misfit "Giants" a Tie With St. Louis for Ninth Place—Games Yesterday.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The first season of the National League championship closed yesterday. The Bostons won with comparative ease, although up to the last two weeks either Brooklyn or Philadelphia had a possible chance of beating the Beaneaters out. The lively players from the Hub, while not making any phenomenal record of consecutive victories, as did the Phillies and Chicagoes, played a steady, consistent game throughout. They have won many games by a single run and pulled off many a hot contest in the last inning.

The Brooklyn team deserves fully as much honor as the champions. Manager Ward did not have the benefit of a club as experienced as the Bostons, and started with somewhat of an experimental team. His success is little short of wonderful, and his players are entitled to hold the name of Ward's Wonders.

The "Giants" have made a disgraceful showing, and are, in fact, the most gigantic failure of the season.

The clubs finished in the following order:

	Won	Lost	Per Ct's		Won	Lost	Per Ct's
Boston	52	22	.703	Washington	25	43	.461

A GREAT OCEAN RACE.

Exciting Struggle Between Two Ships to Reach San Francisco First.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—The American ship Tam O'Shanter, Capt. Murphy, and the Shenandoah, Capt. Peabody, have arrived after a race from the Atlantic seaboard.

On the 25th of March the Tam O'Shanter sailed from Baltimore, and on the same day the Shenandoah took her departure from New York, the vessels therefore occupying 111 days to make the trip. This does not break the record, but, under the circumstances, is considered an unusually good passage.

Capt. Murphy was successful in bringing the Tam O'Shanter into port two hours ahead of the Shenandoah.

The most exciting portion of the race was sailed off Cape Horn. For five days the vessels were wing and wing out of sight of land. Every strip of canvas that could be used was spread, and every endeavor was made to get ahead. During this period there was the greatest excitement on board the vessels. The Tam O'Shanter, however, gradually forged ahead, and despite every effort of the officers and crew of the Shenandoah, kept her lead to the end of the voyage.

LOUD TALK FROM CHICAGO.

Urged that the World's Fair Directors Should Not Accept the Appropriation.

CHICAGO, July 14.—The "Herald" says editorially, this morning:

"The directors of the World's Fair should peremptorily announce that they will not accept the appropriation that was passed yesterday by the United States Senate. It is a dishonest, a sneaking and a contemptible measure.

"Led by the saintly Matt Quay, of Pennsylvania, a majority of the Senators added to the bill a proviso that the Fair should be closed on Sundays. Captained by Peffer, the product of Kansas crankism, a majority added a proviso that no liquor should be sold on the ground. These amendments were imposed by demagogues, hypocrites and skinflints for the purpose of shirking a manifest duty. They knew that an appropriation coupled with such unusual and unnecessary conditions would not be accepted."

Justice Schimmilpfenig, of Houston, is a German and his English is a little broken. Sam Johnsing was brought before him on the charge of assault with intent to kill.

The Street Commissioner Lost His Hat.

The Trinity excursion to Asbury Park yesterday was a most enjoyable event. The only accident of the day was Robert Meeker's loss of his hat. He was smoking on a car platform, on the going trip, near Westfield, and the wind took the hat off towards the Ripley hill school-house. Though the church took all its Sunday-school teachers and scholars free, it was still a financial success.

A number of the excursionists found the Belvidere house at Ocean Grove a most delightful place to stop at. The house is kept by Miss G. H. See, sister of councilman Wm. G. E. See of this city. Anyone wishing a pleasant home-like resort, or a good dinner on excursion days, should visit the Belvidere. Among those who stopped there yesterday were: The Rev. Cornelius S. Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cooley, councilman and Mrs. E. H. Bird, Mrs. F. F. Staats, Frank Woodruff, Mrs. Phebe Mills, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Meeker, Master Robin W. Meeker, Mrs. M. Meeker, G. A. Hallock and son, and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Jenkins of Norwalk, Ohio, cousins of Dr. O. L. Jenkins. Mrs. Wm. M. Stout and Mrs. J. F. MacDonald are also registered there.

A PLAUSIBLE THEORY.

Human Feet Evidently Made for Tree Climbing.

The Sole of a New-Born Baby's Foot Shows This Clearly—Other Facts in Support of the Claim—Feet of an Infant.

In the Nineteenth Century Dr. Louis Robinson, in an article on "The Meaning of a Baby's Footprint," says: "If we were to endeavor to prove design from the study of the various parts of the elaborate machinery of bones, muscles and tendons revealed by dissection, our investigations might well end in a conclusion that some sort of design was indicated, but it would be design which plainly had in view the purpose of climbing trees rather than of walking or running on terra firma."

It is probable, it appears, that scientific investigators of the dim future will conclude from the structure of the human foot that the man of the present epoch lived among the branches of trees, though well able to progress on the ground.

While the bones of the foot and their arrangement indicate a fitness to bear weight from above, the muscles and tendons entirely bear out the view that men were designed for tree life. These could not, it is said, have been made for anything but arboreal climbing, as many of them are unnecessary for terrestrial motion, and nature does nothing that is unnecessary. This, of course, is only another proof that we are related to the great apes. Horses, camels, and other non-arboreal animals, most of which are hoofed, have feet of a robust mechanism, without fine tendinous cords and small muscles, such as those of men and the arboreal quadrumana possess. The bulk of the apes, as would that of men, renders necessary a different apparatus from that which enables a cat to run up a tree.

In respect of feet a new-born child exhibits many more points of resemblance to the quadrumana than the adult human being. An accompanying illustration shows the sole of such a foot covered with lines nearly identical to those of the hand. When the toes are bent downward these become deep creases, which goes to prove that they are the places where the skin folds to facilitate the act of grasping.

The toes are much more mobile than those of adults. The four outer toes can be bent downward so as to show a distinct knuckle. The great toe can be turned inward across the sole, and the foot then looks very much like a clinched fist. Many children can almost make the great toe (or thumb) touch the little toe. An irritation of the skin of the sole causes an instant response of the grasping mechanism, exactly as a tickling of the palm causes the fingers to close upon it.

The cut printed here was originally obtained by an ingenious device. Dr. Robinson covered a tender infant's foot with a mixture of lampblack, soap, sirup and blue-black ink. Then he wiped it gently and applied a sheet of moderately flexible paper supported by a soft pad to the sole. The act of wiping caused the foot to assume the grasping action, and the creases were made plainer.

This is surely a pretty idea which mothers may avail themselves of. They can preserve an impression of their babies' feet when they were quadrumanous animals.

The creases began to disappear at the age of fourteen months and in adults they are barely visible. The deep crease, which corresponds to that on the hand which palmists call the line of the heart, is the only one that remains distinct.

The lumbricals are the strongest evidence of the handlike origin of the foot. These are short strips of flesh about three inches in length, which arise from the four divisions of the long flexor muscle of the toes and pass forward to the inner sides of the four outer toes, where they are inserted in the part of the toe nearest the foot. These are useless for anything but tree-climbing, and they are very highly developed in gorillas. Those animals, too, have the soles of their hind arms creased after the manner of newborn children.

It is interesting to note that the complicated design of the foot for arboreal purposes has remained perfect through so many hundred generations of disuse. It is probable that a proper training would enable a child to live among the branches of a forest as comfortably as a gorilla. We encase our feet in thick shoes, thereby supplying artificially what nature has given to the hoofed or truly terrestrial animals.

Peculiarly Afflicted.

One family in Utica is peculiarly affected. They have hay fever in the house six months of every year, says the Utica Observer. When the trees bud the wife comes down with it, and for two months wheezes, sneezes and coughs night and day. At the end of the two months she lends the disease to her husband, who keeps it until the grass is ripe and haying begins, at which time he transmits it to his sister, who is also a member of the family. For two or three years the family has been regularly visited by the disease, and now the coming of summer is hailed with anything but pleasure, for it brings misery with it.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-15-y

Twenty Years' Experience.

C. D. Fredricks, the well-known photographer, 70 Broadway, New York, says: "I have been using ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS for 20 years, and found them one of the best of family medicines. Briefly summing up my experience, I say that when placed on the small of the back ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS fill the body with nervous energy, and thus cure fatigue, brain exhaustion debility and kidney difficulties. For women and children I have found them invaluable. They never irritate the skin or cause the slightest pain, but cure sore throat, coughs, colds, pains in side, back or chest, indigestion and bowel complaints."

A TRAGEDY OF THE SEA.

A Midnight Experience Off the Coast of Brazil.

The Heroic Effort of a French Convict to Escape from Sainte Island and Board an American Man of War.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL REMEY, of the United States navy, has a handsome office on the east side of the great war and navy department building. Gen. Remey is the highest officer charged with the records of the court martial trials of naval officers. He also passes upon contracts and questions of legal interest. His position is that of a judge of a court of the highest appeal in the service of the navy.

He is a gentleman in the neighborhood of forty years of age. One day, several years ago, when I was in his office, he turned from the perusal of some papers on the desk before him and told me a most remarkable story. The story was suggested by a map of South America attached to the papers which he was examining.

Pointing to a little spot upon the map to the northeast of the coast of Brazil he said: "That is Salute island. It is a French convict station. It is a barren strip of sandy desert, bare absolutely of vegetation. It lies very low and is wholly unprotected from the glare of the tropical sun. Life there has not one attractive feature. Only convicts of the most unfortunate character are sent to the island. Fevers are common. In the despair and discomfort of this hideous life the prisoners die like sheep. To be sent to this island is almost equivalent to being sentenced to death. The sisters of charity go there and by their devotion show the unselfish spirit that animates them. They go there and share the miseries and discomforts and deaths which are common to all on the island.

PLEADING FOR LIBERTY.

"I was attached a number of years ago to the fleet in the South Atlantic, and during the course of our journeying we anchored off Salute island. One night I sat upon the deck in the company of another officer. We had just finished dinner below. It was a soft moonlight night, with occasional scurries of clouds which made the night light at times uncertain and dim. We were lazily smoking our after dinner cigars, when I heard a cry of 'Help!' from the water below, followed by a splash.

"I ran immediately to the rail, as I thought it was a case of man overboard. But there was a sailor ahead of me, who tossed a rope to a man who was swimming in the water below. In a moment he was drawn upon deck, and at once he began an explanation of his appearance.

"THE MAN BEGAN TO TELL HIS STORY."

"He was a convict from the dread station on the island. He had seen our flag, and he had swam out to the ship. 'Would we take him aboard and enable him to escape?'

"I did not listen to another word of his explanation. It was altogether too serious a matter for me. The admiral of the fleet was then dining on board the very ship where I was. I sent an officer to him asking him if he could come on deck.

"I shall never forget the picture presented when the admiral appeared. He was in the full dress of his rank as the dinner was one of ceremony. He was a handsome officer with snowy white hair and short white beard. In striking contrast was the attitude and the appearance of the prisoner. The latter was tall, gaunt and haggard. He stood dripping in his convict dress in an attitude of intense entreaty.

"The admiral said: 'Well, sir,' and then the man began to tell his story in the clear, well modulated French of an educated person. According to his story he had committed no crime. He had been exiled for his political opinions. He had a wife and family at home. He had come out to the ship at great peril in the hope that he would find here freedom. He swam out to the flag of the country the emblem of which meant liberty. Had he made his appeal in vain?

BACK TO THE ISLAND.

"The character of the man was most impressive. The admiral believed that he was listening to the words of a man of truth and honor. He was deeply moved, but his face was stern as he said: 'I am sorry, sir, but I can do nothing for you. It is not your life or mine that would be at stake. If I were to take you away I would be guilty of interfering with the police regulations of a friendly foreign nation, and that would be sufficient cause for a war, in which many innocent lives would be lost. I am sorry, but you must go back.'

"The prisoner's attitude was now one of intense dejection. He said, without further argument: 'Sir, you have just condemned me to death.'

"'How is that?' asked the admiral.

"'According to the regulations of the island, which is governed by military law,' replied the prisoner, 'any prisoner who attempts to escape is shot. At nine o'clock the rounds of the cells are made. If a prisoner is found absent at that hour his absence is considered as proof of an attempt to get away.'

"Our American admiral started as if he had heard the crack of a shot.

"'My God, man,' said he, 'what time is it now?'

"He pulled out his watch as he spoke with a nervous wrench.

"'It is only twenty minutes to nine! I will get you back.'

"Without a second's delay the admiral turned to the side of the ship opposite the island. A few hurried orders were given in a low tone. A boat was dropped. The oars were promptly muffled and a boat's crew clambered down like monkeys. The prisoner was hidden in the bottom of the boat and within four minutes from the time the order was given the boat shot out on its errand of mercy toward the island.

"A little black cloud came across the moon just as the boat started, as if the elements were lending a kindly hand in concealing the return of the unhappy man. The officers who had heard the story all swarmed to the rail with their glasses. We watched in the darkness for the appearance of lights or some signal of alarm. The boat moved without a single sign of disturbance. The prisoner was back at a few minutes before nine, in ample time to return to his cell. A sigh of relief was breathed by us all when we saw the boat coming back and nowhere any evidence of anything unusual in the appearance of the island.

DOUBTS AND MISGIVINGS.

"But still we felt very uneasy. The admiral walked up and down talking about the poor man. Some way we felt that it was not all right. We could not feel certain of his escape. We sat up nearly all night studying the island through our glasses.

"The next morning we felt that we must satisfy in some way our doubts. The admiral decided to pay a visit of ceremony to the French military commander of the island. The officers on board our ship were invited to accompany him. We thought surely in a visit of this kind we would hear if any unusual event like an attempt at an escape or an execution had taken place.

"We all put on full dress uniforms for a visit of ceremony. The admiral's gig was lowered and we set out for the island about ten o'clock. We were received with great politeness. The French commandant invited us to remain for a midday breakfast. We accepted his invitation. We chatted with the officers of the station, but during the wait and during the long breakfast there was not a word said upon any subject which gave us the slightest information concerning what we wished to know. Naturally we did not dare to ask any questions. Yet this lack of information, this absence of any reference to anything unusual, did not some way satisfy us that everything was all right. At the close of the breakfast the commandant selected a young officer of his staff and directed him to turn out with a guard of honor to accompany us back to our boat. The commandant in giving his instructions added: 'When these gentlemen are ready to depart give them my message.' This phrase sent a cold chill through our company. We felt then that everything was not all right.

SHOT AT FOUR O'CLOCK.

"We marched back in silence to our boat. When every one was in position and the oars were apeak ready to let fall and pull away the young French officer said, with his hand at his head in an attitude of military salute:

"THE BOAT SHOT OUT ON ITS ERRAND OF MERCY."

"'This is the message of the commandant of this post. He wishes me first to present to you his compliments. You are brave and honorable men. You have attempted to do a merciful act. Last night a prisoner escaped from this island. He was seen by a sentry as he entered the water. He was seen to swim out in the direction of your ship. We all saw that he was taken on board. Every gun in the battery on this island was brought to bear on your ship awaiting your decision. We saw you when you let fall the boat to bring the prisoner back. We watched the boat advance to the island through our night glasses. We received the prisoner as soon as you landed him. Gentlemen, the prisoner was shot at four o'clock this morning.'"

This remarkable story, remarkable from its dramatic and pathetic qualities, made a deep impression upon my mind. Several months afterward I was a guest in the house of Miss Mary Anderson, the celebrated actress, at her home at Hampstead, near London. Miss Anderson spoke of the dramas of real life and as an illustration of her thought I related to her Gen. Remey's story. She asked me to write it out for her just as he told it. She said that she had never heard a story which had so deeply moved her, and which presented in such a simple fashion such a cruelly vivid picture of unhappiness and misery.

Two years later I met Miss Anderson in Marseilles. She was then on her way with her mother to the Riviera in search of rest and health. She said that one day in Paris she was a guest of Lord Lytton, the British ambassador. After the dinner Miss Anderson was asked if she would recite something. She complied and recited the story of Salute island. Miss Anderson said that she had never in her life made any dramatic recitation which had produced a greater effect. It was at a reception after the dinner that the recitation was made. The room was filled with distinguished guests. During the recitation there was an absolute silence. The brutal climax of the story came upon the audience with a shock like a blow in the face.

Lord Lytton's son, then fifteen years of age, was present. He had inherited the literary qualities of his distinguished grandfather and father. The lad was so deeply moved by the story that he took up his pen a day or two afterward and embodied the story in a poem. This poem has since been published in England. T. C. CRAWFORD.

What is It?

A substitute for lard? Upsetting the customs, habits, and prejudices of centuries? Yes, all this and more. Cottolene is a new cooking product—it is better than lard or butter for cooking, so say such noted housekeepers as

Marion Harland,
Catharine Owen,
Christine Terhune Herrick,
Emma P. Ewing,
Mrs. S. T. Rorer,
Mrs. F. A. Benson,
Amy Barnes,
Margaret Winter,

and many others; it is healthier—so says every thoughtful physician; and it is cheaper as every housekeeper knows when she finds that one-half the quantity answers every purpose.

COTTOLENE

is the purest clarified cottonseed oil mixed with pure beef fat. It is the best cooking material ever devised for frying anything and everything—easily digested and highly nutritious.

Beware of imitations. Ask your grocer for the genuine Cottolene.

GUARDS WERE DOUBLED

The Mysterious Night Alarm at Homestead.

CARNEGIE'S PITTSBURG MEN OUT.

Their Move Was In Sympathy With the Workers at Homestead, and Independent of the Amalgamated Association—Foremen and Superintendents Decide Not to Work Under an Armed Guard—The House Investigation Finished—Sympathy from London for the Strikers.

HOMESTEAD, July 15.—Three hundred men were discovered assembled in the rear of the buildings on Eighth avenue, just below Strikers' Headquarters, by the patrol shortly after dark last evening. There were other gatherings in out-of-the-way places about town.

The guards at important points were doubled immediately, and orders issued which placed the soldiers in readiness for any emergency that might arise. A picket line one mile in length was thrown out between the town and the Carnegie mill. Twenty picked men were placed across Eighth avenue, at the corner of the Poor Farm property, and every person who attempted to cross down the street was halted at the points of half a dozen bayonets. People who lived down Eighth avenue were allowed to pass the line, but no others were admitted.

Similar lines of guards were thrown out on all sides. Colonel Green, Provost Marshal, was on duty at his headquarters near the southwest corner of the mill property. The Second Battalion was held in reserve in their tents close by. All these preparations were made quietly, and few of the citizens of the borough knew that any extra precautions were being taken.

No reason could be learned for the sudden activity of the troops further than the fact that men were seen gathering in groups about the town and at several of the saloons there was more drinking and more loud talk than usual.

HOMESTEAD, July 15.—A meeting of foremen, superintendents of the departments and boss mechanics of the Carnegie mill was held last evening and action was taken which will have an important bearing on the situation. These men are not on strike, and they have not until now taken any action favorable to the workers. Now they have resolved that they will not operate the works under an armed guard. This decision practically means that the mills will not be run with non-union labor, and the Carnegie Company must settle with its Homestead men before resuming operations.

Several members of the Advisory Committee confirm the report of the action of the heads of departments. One prominent leader said that it would be utterly impossible for work to be resumed without the co-operation of the foremen, as no men can be found to take their places even if non-union workers are obtained. He also said that there is little probability of any number of the latter being induced to come to Homestead.

He added that not a boarding-house or hotel in town will feed one of these men, and skilled mechanics cannot be induced to live in tents or shanties inside of the mill. His conclusion is that the only alternative left to the Carnegie people is a settlement with their old men.

The leaders of the strikers are very indignant at the publication of an alleged interview with one of their number in a Pittsburg afternoon paper, which stated the Homestead men did not want the employes of Carnegie's Thirty-third and Twenty-ninth street mills at Pittsburg to go out. Their position is just the reverse of this. They want every employe of a mill in which Carnegie is interested to quit work, and to remain out until the trouble at Homestead is settled in a way satisfactory to the Amalgamated Association.

THE INVESTIGATION CONCLUDED.

The Carnegie Co.'s Manager Again Before the Congressional Committee.

PITTSBURG, July 15.—W. D. Bynum, of Indiana, was the only prompt member of the Congressional committee investigating the causes of the Homestead strike and riot.

The labor element was particularly well represented.

H. C. Frick, chairman of the steel company, and his attorneys were early on hand. Mr. Frick carried a huge bundle of data.

Chairman Oates announced at the opening that the commission so far had searched only for facts and were not ready to make a report. He declared it likely that there would be no minority report.

After several men had testified Mr. Frick was recalled. He said that some of the workmen had testified that the poorest paid men and those who had the hardest work suffered most under the reduction. He selected the wages during the month of May, just before the trouble, admitting though that those wages were a little large. Out of 800 men employed in the 119-inch plate mill, only 82 were reduced.

In 1882, 296 men were employed in the same department and by the change in the scale then, 196 were affected and 100 were not. More men were affected by the sliding scale than any other.

In the armor plate mill out of 157 employees, 51 are reduced. He said that Burgess McLukie had stated yesterday that the company purchased the Allegheny steel plant, so as to control the price of billets and cut down the wages of the workmen. This was absurd.

The pay roll at Duquesne is $200,000. Only 40 per cent. of the workmen were affected by the sliding scale. These men produced 200,000 tons of billets monthly. If billets were reduced $1 a ton this would mean a loss of $20,000 and this would be offset only by a gain of $3,300 in the Homestead mill.

Mr. Frick said Mr. McLukie was a poor financier.

He was asked why he proposed a reduction of wages. He stated that the first reason was reduced prices received for the product, and, second, the increased tonnage by reason of improved machinery, which increased the pay of the men, they being paid according to tonnage.

"What proportion of steel billets do you produce?" asked Mr. Oates.

"About 12 per cent. of the total output in the United States. We do not control the market by any means."

"Will you state the approximate cost of producing steel billets?"

"I declined to answer that question the other night. I do so now. I do not care to go into the question of cost."

"What is the cost of the entire plant at Homestead?"

"About $5,000,000, possibly $6,000,000."

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Mr. Frick said one roller in the 26-inch mill earned in 24 days $385.05 and another in 28 days $347. The six heaters in the same mill averaged $180 per month. There will be no change in the wages of these men.

As to the mortgages held on property of employes at Homestead, Mr. Frick said these papers were issued only to aid the workmen in building homes. Never once has a mortgage been foreclosed. The interest charged is 6 per cent. The men are allowed the same rate on moneys deposited with the firm. These sums amount to $140,000. The mortgages amount to $42,000. The witness refused to answer definitely what basis was taken in averaging the sliding scale, but said it was about $24.

"You are inclined, then, to give us no idea of your profits?"

"I think I have gone far enough in cost."

The examination of Mr. Frick was closely pressed by all members of the Committee. It was unsatisfactory to Messrs. Gates and Bynum, who endeavored to break through Mr. Frick's reserve and learn something of the expenses and profits of the Carnegie concern. While the latter was extremely nervous, he did not commit himself on this point.

The House Committee returned to Washington last night.

One of the committee said, at the conclusion of the investigation, that the work would greatly assist the passage of a compulsory arbitration law and also an anti-Pinkerton law. Bills for both of these objects have been introduced into Congress. This member said the committee was unanimous in favor of such bills.

HOMESTEAD UNDER MARTIAL LAW.

The New Order Causes No Excitement and All is Quiet.

HOMESTEAD, July 15.—The proclaiming of martial law in Homestead has caused no particular excitement. Hugh O'Donnell, the young leader of the workmen, when informed of the fact said he was glad of it, because the city is full of strangers, and there is need of good police supervision. He said:

"Our police will not now be held responsible for the action of these strangers, who do not appear to be workmen, but idlers, camp followers and general rascals. They have not come here to take the places of our men, but to rob and pillage."

Mr. O'Donnell continued; "Be assured that the protestations of our men of friendliness for the soldiers are sincere. They are not the disingenuous protests of men with treacherous hearts, as some of the officers seem to think they are. We do not intend to fight or to make any trouble, but all hands are willing to obey the law."

Mr. O'Donnell declared that there would be no address issued to the men concerning the proclaiming of martial law, as it was not needed. The men, he was confident, would be moderate in all their actions and strictly observe the rules and regulations established by the military authorities.

The new order of things appears to be looked at by many of the workmen as a sort of huge joke, and there has been much laughter and jesting about the martial law. There is little or no bad feeling about it, and all hands have begun to submit to the changed condition of affairs with a good grace, which is really astonishing under the circumstances.

MORE MEN OUT.

The Workers in Carnegie's Pittsburg Mills Also on Strike.

PITTSBURG, July 15.—Yesterday afternoon the members of the Amalgamated Association employed in Carnegie's Union iron mills at 29th street and at 33d street carried out their threat to stop work unless a conference was opened by Chairman H. C. Frick with the Homestead workmen. Shortly after, about 2 o'clock, as their heats were run, the men began leaving the works in squads.

By 5 o'clock the mills were practically deserted. The move was in sympathy with the locked-out men at Homestead, and independent of the Amalgamated Association, the strikers voluntarily forfeiting any claim upon the Association's treasury in the nature of strike benefits or financial assistance. The men do not fear that their places in these mills will be filled with "black sheep," and have no idea when they will be ready to return to work.

This is the busiest season of the year in these mills, and builders will be especially affected by this strike. Superintendent Dillon shook hands with many of the men as they left, expressing regret at the course they had adopted. He could give no information as to the course the company would pursue. The laborers will be kept at work a few days longer.

TO RETURN CARNEGIE'S GIFT.

Labor Leaders Want Pittsburg to Surrender the Free Library.

PITTSBURG, July 15.—Thirty-seven master workmen, thirty-five senior delegates and many other members met at the hall of District No. 3, Knights of Labor, on Third avenue last evening. The representatives present pledged temporal and financial support of their various locals to the Amalgamated Association in their present struggle.

Every representative was instructed to advise its locals to send a committee to the councilmen of their respective wards and districts urging them to return the money given for the Carnegie Free Library. A resolution was passed to be handed to the City Council, calling on that body to recall the acceptance of the gift.

Flint Glass Workers Fix Prices.

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., July 15.—In the convention of American Flint Glass Workers yesterday prices for the Eastern States were fixed at the same rates as last year. Many were present from New York and Brooklyn, including James Smith, the oldest glassblower in the United States, representing the latter city.

WHITNEY WON'T TAKE IT

He Positively Declines the Democratic Chairmanship.

HARRITY PROBABLY THE MAN.

He Will Not Say, However, Whether He Would Accept—Whitney's Views in Regard to the Way the National Committee Should Be Organized.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Ex-Secretary Whitney was asked this morning if he had seen the alleged interview with Mr. Cleveland, in which he is reported to have said that it had become imperative that Mr. Whitney should take the Chairmanship of the National Committee.

Mr. Whitney said: "Yes, I have seen it. I think Mr. Cleveland has been misunderstood. I have talked the matter over with him and have expressed to him my views with regard to the way in which the committee ought to be organized in the interests of the party. I feel complimented, of course, by the wish which has been generally expressed that I should take the Chairmanship. It is a most important office and one that brings great rewards in the way of influence and valuable acquaintance to any one who holds it. Mr. Tilden was Chairman of our State Committee for a great many years. It was the only office he would take until he became Governor. These positions are of great influence, and for men who are fitted for them very desirable. I understand, of course, what the feeling comes from with regard to myself. It comes from our Chicago campaign. But I know myself to be entirely unfitted for the place and shall not take it. My decision is final. In fact, I have never entertained it for a moment. It is not from any disposition to shirk. I expect to stand by the Chairman in every way possible.

"The truth is, the National Committee has never been properly organized on our side. The organization has never been broad enough for the work. One man has always undertaken too much. Senator Gorman in 1884 and Senator Brice in 1888 did each the work of a dozen men. Senator Brice's work was never half appreciated, in my opinion. The criticism I would make is that it was individual. As the day of election approaches the work becomes overwhelming and necessarily gets neglected. This year it ought to be different. I am ready to take my share, but, unfortunately, I have to work in my own way in order to be of any service. I know my limitations and shortcomings better than anybody else, and I don't propose to have anything done with my consent that I consider to the disadvantage of this campaign.

"What sort of an organization would you make?"

"Mind you, I am not anticipating the action of the National Committee. I am not on the committee. Still, if you want my opinion I'll express it. A proper Chairman is a hard man to find. He should be a man with a good head for politics, a worker, and, most important of all, patient with details, approachable, accessible at all times and able to keep the field in his mind. This is a hard man to find, but there are two or three in the Democratic party who have already shown these qualities."

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—It is regarded in political circles as certain that Secretary of the Commonwealth William F. Harrity will be Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. When questioned upon this subject to-day, Mr. Harrity said:

"It would be premature for me to say whether or not I would accept or decline the Chairmanship. The selection of a Chairman is a matter for the Democratic National Committee and that body will not meet until Wednesday next. It is fair to state, however, that I have been urged to permit my name to be considered in connection with the Chairmanship. Although I do not desire the position, the matter has been presented to me in such a way that it may be difficult for me to decline if the committee in its wisdom should see fit to elect me."

THE ASTOR HOAX.

Efforts Making to Discover the Instigators of the Plot.

LONDON, July 15.—Sir James Fergusson, the Postmaster-General, has given the Astor people authority to inspect all the cable despatches that have been filed in London recently. The investigation thus far points unmistakably to the fact that the originators of the plot were in New York with confederates here, who have been acting under frequent cable instructions.

Mr. Astor's representatives have seen the original dispatch that was filed here. It is belived they will be able to identify all concerned in the plot very soon. They will make nothing public further in the matter until they are compelled to. It is said that Mr. Adams has intimated that a public prosecution is imminent.

Cyrus Field's Funeral.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The funeral of the late Cyrus W. Field was held at 4 p. m. from his late residence in Ardsley Park. The services were conducted by Bishop Potter. The interment will be in the churchyard, where are buried the father and mother of Cyrus and also his wife.

ALL QUIET IN IDAHO.

The Mine Trouble Said to Be at an End—Union Men Victorious.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 15.—The following despatch has been received in this city from Wallace, Idaho:

"All trouble is over at Wardner. The miners have left and are on their way to Wallace.

"Two hundred men have just arrived from Wardner. Those interviewed say the trouble is over, and all miners not belonging at Wardner will be in Wallace before 6 o'clock.

"No bridge was burned between here and Wardner. Trains are moving and mail trains from Spokane will arrive in an hour."

This shows that communication is re-established between Wallace and western points.

The miners are completely worn out, many having had no sleep since Saturday night. One wounded man was brought up from Mission on the train.

He was shot early yesterday morning. He was one of the non-union men going out.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, July 14.—Great excitement prevails in Boise. All day messages from Coeur d' Alene were received, all tending to keep people in a state of intense excitement. Business is all but suspended on account of the terrible affair.

Four companies of United States troops and 314 Idaho militia arrived yesterday at Cataldo, seventeen miles west of Wardner. Three companies of colored troops from Missoula also arrived at Mullan. They will wait to be reinforced by troops from Vancouver, Wash., before they attack the miners.

W. B. Hayburn of Spokane, yesterday sent the following despatch to Gov. Willey:

"SPOKANE, July 14.

"Last night strikers took 187 of our unarmed miners to the mouth of Fourth of July Canyon, and, after robbing them, fired on them. To-day the bodies of twelve non-union men were found in the canyon, riddled with bullets. A number of the wounded were carried away by their comrades. This afternoon 200 more non-union men were sent out of Wardner on the train under guard of strikers, who left the train after having escorted them twenty miles. Last night after starting the 187 men out of the canyon they shot them down like dogs.

W. P. HEYBURN."

A later despatch said it was believed that the trouble was over, that the union men had left, worn out from loss of sleep. The non-union men are gone, and the union men have achieved victory.

ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS.

It Will Probably Be Next Week — The Anti-Option Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—It is the opinion of Mr. McMillin, acting chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, and other Democratic leaders in the House, that an adjournment of Congress can be reached by the latter part of next week.

In the Senate there is the same feeling regarding speedy dissolution, and Mr. Aldrich thinks the 25th will bring with it the adjournment of Congress.

The last appropriation bill, the General Deficiency, was Wednesday reported to the Senate with a few amendments, and will be taken up immediately after the Sundry Civil bill is disposed of. It is not expected that the appropriation bills will lead to much delay, except for the World's Fair clause in the Sundry Civil bill. This item when it reaches the House with its appropriation, is likely to cause debate.

It is true that the anti-Option bill hovers with something of a shadow over the situation.

Senator Washburn has announced his intention of again calling up the bill at the earliest opportunity. This would not occur, he thought, until the General Deficiency bill was disposed of.

When asked if the anti-option measure was likely to delay adjournment, he said: "Personally I would be willing to stay here until December in order to see the bill passed, but I do not suppose its other friends are quite as enthusiastic.

"The bill ought to be passed now, so that the growers of crops can secure its benefits for this year's harvest. I shall certainly press it with all sincerity and earnestness. I think that it will not delay adjournment."

As a matter of fact, the opponents of the bill say that they want to debate it for six weeks. If it should only be debated for one week, it could undoubtedly be amended, and this would require a conference with the House. Altogether nearly a month would be occupied by the bill, and it is doubtful whether either House desires at this juncture to devote much time to it.

Canadians Deserting the Dominion.

MONTREAL, July 15.—Within a few months the exodus of French Canadians from this province to the United States has been so great that public attention has been called to it. The principal cause of the exodus is the difficulty experienced by the Canadians finding a market for their products. So enormous is the exodus that there is a movement in progress to devise, if possible, some plan to check it.

Cleveland's Baking Powder

"Absolutely the Best."

It is made of pure cream of tartar and soda, no ammonia, no alum. A like quantity goes farther and does better work. It is therefore cheaper.

Cleveland's is the baking powder used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of cookery. It never varies, and always gives perfect satisfaction. Try a can.

CHOLERA RIOT IN RUSSIA.

The Masses Had Heard That Patients Were Buried Alive.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 15.—Owing to a report that the doctors were causing cholera patients to be buried alive, the lower classes of the city of Saratoff rose in revolt against the authorities and the doctors on the 10th inst.

The excited populace wrecked and plundered the police station, cholera hospitals and the residences of the Chief of Police and physicians.

Several patients were dragged out of one hospital to save them, as the ignorant mob thought, from being buried alive. The medical assistants were attacked, and two of them were killed.

The rioters threatened to take full possession of the city, and would undoubtedly have done so had it not been for the opportune arrival of the troops who had been summoned.

The mob resisted the soldiers, and the latter were ordered to fire upon them. A volley was poured into the mob, killing three of them and wounding four others. The rioters then dispersed.

WRETCHED TRAIN SERVICE.

Passengers Complain of Their Treatment By the Northern R. R. of New Jersey.

PIERMONT, N. J., July 15.—Considerable amusement is caused here nearly every afternoon by the trains of the Northern Railroad of New Jersey getting stuck. The station is situated on a double curve, and there is a slight grade, rendering the worn-out engines in use by the company about useless.

Some trains are delayed from five to fifteen minutes nearly every day. This time is spent by the poor dilapidated locomotive in making frantic efforts to do something, while the train passengers fume and fret and call the management names.

The Northern is making money enough out of the upper end of its line to fix up and regrade its tracks, build new stations and give better train service.

Englewood, as everybody knows, with about a quarter of the travel, has everything that the commuter's heart can desire in the way of elegant stations, etc., because, forsooth, the owners of the road live there.

PLAINFIELD'S NEW PASTOR.

He Sees a Great Future Before His Church—Incidents of His Career.

The Rev. Henry T. Miller, whose acceptance of the call to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Plainfield has already been published in these columns, will be heartily welcomed by the people of New Jersey's Crescent city to his new field of labor. He told a reporter of the Chicago Herald, the day he received the Plainfield call, that he was very happy over the church's kindly expression of confidence and trust.

"A short time ago"—he said—"a call was extended to me from South Evanston, Ill., but I declined it on account of my wife's health. The sea breeze, I think, would benefit her greatly, and for that reason I shall in all probability go to Plainfield, which is only a short distance from the Atlantic coast. The church at Plainfield has a fine future before it. It is one of the most desirable fields in that section of the country. They have a beautiful building, and the congregation is united. I am greatly pleased with the outlook.

The Herald, in announcing the news of the call, said:

"Mr. Miller preached at Plainfield June 5 and 26. The congregation of the First Presbyterian church was so delighted with him that a meeting was called at once to consider the matter of extending a call to him. At 3 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Miller received a telegram from the trustees of the church offering him the pastorate at a salary much in excess of that which he at present receives.

"The Rev. Mr. Miller came to Chicago nearly fifteen years ago from Lockport, N. Y. He took charge of the Sixth Presbyterian church when it was only a chapel and the membership was less than 100. In seven years he had rallied a congregation of 500 and built one of the prettiest churches in the city. His health failed and he was compelled to go abroad. He spent a year in Europe, and upon his return he supplied the Fort Street church at Detroit, Mich., for one year. A call was extended him by that church, but on account of his health he could not accept it. He then went to California and one year's residence there restored to him his old-time vigor.

"Upon his return to Chicago four years ago he accepted a call from the Fifth Presbyterian church, and has been its pastor ever since. By his indefatigable labors the membership has increased greatly and in addition to this he has built a handsome new church. A delightful state of harmony exists in the congregation, and there will be genuine sorrow at Mr. Miller's departure."

Pastor Miller is a graduate of the University of Rochester, and of Auburn Theological seminary. His parents were Methodists, he was graduated from a Baptist institution, and turned out a Presbyterian. This he happily speaks of as a case of the survival of the fittest. He is a preacher of power, and a pastor whose rare qualities of head and heart will endear himself to the entire people.

Dr. Pierson, now of Spurgeon's Tabernacle in London, was the pastor whose place Mr. Miller was to take at the Fort Street church in Detroit.

STREET RAILWAY EXTENSION.

The Matter to be Pushed at a Special Council Meeting.

The Plainfield Street Railway company is very anxious to begin the work of extending its line through Broadway and Fourth street to Netherwood, and the details of the project were explained to the street committee last night. The contractors were censured by the committee for not having put Front street into the condition promised. They explained that they had not yet had time, but would attend to perfecting the roadway without delay. They were given to understand that if they fulfilled their promises for restoring Front street to its proper condition the councilmen would offer no objection to extension of the route. A special meeting of the council will be called for next Tuesday evening for consideration of the matter.

THAT COUNTY SEWER.

Impracticable for Plainfield, But the Towns Beyond the Fanwood Hill Approve It.

A joint session of the sewer committees of Plainfield, Fanwood, Westfield and Elizabeth was held in this city last night. The out-of-town representatives favored the county sewer project. Plainfield was opposed to the scheme on account of its difficulties, which amount almost to impossibilities so far as this city is concerned, on account of the hill over which the sewage would have to be forced. Nothing definite was arrived at, but various plans were informally discussed. One of the councilmen interested said that Plainfield would soon develop a practicable plan for itself which would be heartily approved by all. The citizens' committee is constantly at work on the matter, and is progressing as rapidly as such a weighty problem permits.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS.

Chatty Personalities from the Heights of Ridgeville.

Charles D. Reese is ill with intermittent fever.

The Rev. Charles E. Hoyt, of Lysander, N. Y., will preach in the Presbyterian church August 14.

John Stewart, son of the Rev. Dr. J. S. Stewart, of Towanda, Pa., is a guest at the Presbyterian Manse.

Robert Fowler and family, of New York, will spend the summer at their old homestead, Branch Mills.

The Rev. J. B. Jennings, pastor of Grace Episcopal church, will take a yachting trip on Long Island Sound, the first week in August.

Quite a laugh was indulged in on the Fourth of July by the friends of the Westfield man who, in speaking of the weather, said seriously that it was "the finest Fourth of July he had known in six months".

THE QUESTION OF SUNDAY SHOPS.

The City May Find It a Knotty Problem How to Punish a Seventh-Day Believer for Selling Goods on Saturday—A Defective Law that Grants Seventh-Day People Sunday-Selling Privileges, But Fails to Say They Shan't Sell Saturdays.

The out-of-town papers are devoting considerable space to the news that the authorities of Plainfield are in a quandary over the Sabbath question. 'For years" —says one of them—"the local ordinances have been very strict against the sale of even such harmless goods as soda-water and cigars on Sunday. Newspapers have been the only exception. The inability to procure even drug-store beverages in a city without a public fountain was considered a great hardship, and an enterprising Seventh-Day Baptist took advantage of an exception in the law and opened a shop where desired goods might be obtained on the day when other shops were closed. The Seventh-Day Baptists are numerous in Plainfield, having a leading church of their denomination in that city and another at New Market, three miles away; and for their sakes a clause was inserted in the law providing that every place of business should be closed on Sunday, excepting those where religious belief led the owners to observe the seventh day, Saturday, as the Sabbath.

"Of late the growth of Seventh-Day stores has been large, and a number of Hebrews have also taken advantage of the law's exception. The police found that some were inclined to abuse their privileges, and that several of the Jewish tradesmen who nominally observed Saturday as their Sabbath and thus secured generous Sunday trade were gradually extending their hours until they kept open all the week.

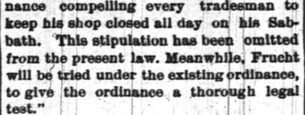
"Police Capt. Grant was of the opinion that the Seventh-Day or Hebrew who kept open his store seven days in the week could be punished the same as a first-day believer, and he determined to make an example of the chief offender. Therefore he arrested Sigmund Frucht, a Jewish merchant said to be doing a thriving trade both Saturday and Sunday, and took him before judge Codington. But even Charles A. Reed, acting corporation counsel, is not certain that the city has a good case against Frucht under the present law; and the prisoner's counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, says that even if his client is convicted in the city court his acquittal in the higher courts is certain. The complaint against Frucht is for Sunday-selling. He believes in Saturday as the Sabbath, and therefore the law grants him the privilege of selling on Sunday. But it is argued that no action can be brought against him for selling on Saturday, because the law does not prohibit even seventh-day people from doing business on that day.

"The lawyers have by this case had their attention drawn to a defect in the law which will probably permit the seven-day sellers to escape. An effort will now be made to secure the passage of an ordinance compelling every tradesman to keep his shop closed all day on his Sabbath. This stipulation has been omitted from the present law. Meanwhile, Frucht will be tried under the existing ordinance, to give the ordinance a thorough legal test."

AN INTERNATIONAL CONFLICT.

The Jewish Colony at War Against Ireland's Representatives.

Cyrus Field was a defendant in the Plainfield police court this morning—not, of course, the lamented Cyrus Field of New York, but a local namesake. Attending him were a number of friends of Irish nationality, and opposed to the representatives of the Emerald Isle was a gang of Hebrews. Julius Wachofsky was the indignant accuser of Field and of another defendant named Martin. Wachofsky said that Field had been skylarking about in the sheds in the rear of Blimm's hotel, and that he had taken a glass from Wachofsky's apartments. A fight over the glass resulted, in which Martin went to Field's aid, while Morris Zimboma assisted Wachofsky. The testimony of all parties was conflicting, but it appeared that there had been considerable of a muss, and more or less hard language and calling of impolite names. Frank Hand, a brawny, black-bearded, good-natured fellow who has a blacksmith shop in front of the scene of the fracas, was counsel for Ireland, and sewing-machine Tom Lyness was his able lieutenant and chief witness. Becky Stormouth and two other vivacious Jewesses were on hand, decked out in gaudy finery, to help their friends through. After the evidence was all in, the blacksmith counselor sprang a coup de maître in the argument that judge Codington had no jurisdiction, as the scene of the alleged offense was in Somerset county, the sheds and yard being just over the brook. The court therefore adjourned the case until Saturday morning at 10, by which time the question of locality and consequent jurisdiction will have been investigated. At that time also, Frank Hand will be tried on the charge of intoxication and fast driving. The blacksmith counselor thanked judge Codington affably and valuably for his courteous and fair treatment of the cases in which he was interested.



Beware of imitations, dilutions, and substitutes of Dr. Pierce's genuine medicines, offered at what pretend to be "cut prices." For the genuine, there's one price, and only one price—but, they're guaranteed. They're the cheapest medicines you can buy at any price, for if they fail to benefit or cure, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

To prevent fraud and imposition by unprincipled dealers, these genuine guaranteed remedies are now sold only through druggists authorized as agents, and always at these long-established prices:

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (for the Liver, Blood and Lungs), $1.00. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription (for woman's weaknesses and ailments), $1.00. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets (for the liver, stomach and bowels), 25 cents.

Refuse all medicines purporting to be Dr. Pierce's offered at any other prices. Suspicion naturally and rightfully attaches to them.

Mayor Saunders's Company to Move to Easton.

A despatch from Easton, Pa., recently said that the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill company, of 10 Park place, New York, was about to move its works from that city to Easton. Robert W. Chapin, president of the company, said to a reporter that the announcement was premature, although he admitted that such a step had been contemplated for two years, and that it was probable that the offer made by the board of trade of Easton would be accepted. The directors of the company are Robert W. & H. B. Chapin, William L. Saunders, Mayor of North Plainfield, William B. Grace, John H. Moss and Henry C. Sergeant.

The Princeton Century Run.

Over three hundred wheelmen are expected to take part the Princeton century run on July 23, and the committee has completed all arrangements for making the affair a great success. As has been told in these columns before, the wheelmen will leave their headquarters, the Continental hotel, Newark, at 4 a. m., and proceed to Princeton via Orange, South Orange, Milburn, Springfield, Plainfield, Dunellen, New Brunswick and Kingston. The return trip will be through Plainville, Somerville, Bound Brook, Plainfield, Westfield and Elizabeth. Several local wheelmen have been over the course, and report the roads in fine condition.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. A NEW PARISH ORGANIZED.

All Saints' Episcopal Church at Scotch Plains Now Has Wardens and Vestrymen—Plans for Paying Off the Debt.

The Rev. Mr. True, of the Episcopal church of All Angels, New York, who has been officiating for some time past at All Saints' church, Scotch Plains, has proved so acceptable to the congregation worshiping there that his services have been secured for the remainder of the season. It is considered likely that when arrangements now pending are completed he will receive a permanent call.

In his address from the chancel last Sunday, before beginning his sermon, Mr. True congratulated the people on the formation of the new parish of All Saints. He said that everything had been most happily conducted and brought to a successful issue, and he trusted that a new era of peace and prosperity was opening up before them.

The meeting at which the parish was organized was held in the church last Friday evening. George Bates occupied the chair, and A. K. Gardiner was appointed secretary. It was announced that the requisite canonical consent had been obtained from the bishop and the executive committee, and all that was now necessary to complete the organization of the parish was to elect two churchwardens and not less than five vestrymen.

Charles Kyte and A. K. Gardiner were then nominated for senior and junior wardens respectively, and were unanimously elected.

Several nominations were made for vestrymen, and Messrs. Robinson and Sayre were appointed tellers. Among those named for office was George Bates, but he positively declared that he was not a candidate, and urgently requested that no vote be cast for him.

Balloting was then proceeded with, and when the tellers handed in their report the chair announced that the following candidates had received the highest number of votes, in the order named: F. W. Quereau, Harry Robinson, Paul Tuzo, Wright Babcock, David A. Sayre. The latter absolutely declined to serve, and L. J. Briggs, who was next in order, was unanimously chosen in his place. The chair then declared the five vestrymen named, duly elected, and the meeting adjourned.

The new parish starts out under flourishing auspices, and the services, which are hearty and impressive, are increasingly attended. The musical portion is rendered by a volunteer choir under the direction of Mr. Gardiner, who has the valuable aid of Miss Lulu Bates at the organ.

Negotiations are now in progress to pay off the present bondholders of the church debt and issue a new mortgage for a somewhat smaller amount, so that the present board of trustees can turn over the church property to the wardens and vestrymen free and clar of all indebtedness except the mortgage.

FANWOOD AT THE CONGRESS.

Delegates Elected to Participate in the Sessions of the American Whist League.

The second congress of the American Whist league will be held in New York next week, beginning on Tuesday, July 19, in the handsome building of the Manhattan Athletic club on Madison avenue. All the leading players of the country are expected to take part, and representative clubs from every State in the Union will send their crack players. New Jersey will of course be at the congress by proxy, and Union county will have the honor of sending the representatives. The only club from New Jersey having the distinction of speaking and voting for this State at the congress will be that of Fanwood, whose whist club has been making such steady progress of late. At a recent meeting of the club held at the residence of George Bates it was decided to send eight delegates to the congress, four of whom will be the players competing for the Hamilton prize trophy, and the other four alternates. The following delegates were elected: George Bates, captain of the team; Buz Kempshall, John A. Simpson, F. W. Quereau, Alley Worth, Irving Quereau, Harry Kyte and A. P. Downer. A. K. Gardiner, president of the club, and Wm. H. Lawrence, secretary, are ex-officio members of the team. The sessions of the congress are expected to be most interesting, and all concerned are looking forward to having a royal good time.

The Portrait Editor's Libel.

The following conversation was reported to THE PRESS yesterday morning as having actually occurred in a certain Republican residence in North Plainfield the previous evening:

Little girl of nine to her father—"Papa, is Mr. Gladstone a colored man?"

Papa—"No, child; certainly not."

She was thoughtful and silent, until her mother said:

"The mistake was natural. She saw the picture of a chimpanzee in to-night's Courier, which by some mistake of the printer, I suppose, had the name of W. E. Gladstone under it."

The father looked at the picture and said: "I have been a Gladstone admirer for a quarter of a century, but if this is his likeness I vow enmity to him and his cause forever. Why, he's not even human!"

Manning and Milligan Win the Medals.

Harry Milligan came near being the winner of the ten-mile race to Westfield and return, last night. He led his competitors all the way, and at the finish, thinking he had a dead-sure thing, slowed up to stop on the line. But Walter Manning was closer behind him than he thought, and when Milligan was three feet from the scratch Manning shot past him and won. The time was 34 minutes and four seconds. Will Havens was third, and C. T. Vail fourth. The start and finish were at W. H. Rogers's bicycle emporium. Mr. Rogers was starter, and G. S. Whitlock timer. Two silver medals were the prizes.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

A "FLYER", INDEED.

The Fastest Scheduled Train in America Runs From Philadelphia to the Sea via the Reading's Royal Route.

That there is a streak of "sporting blood" in the veins of the most sedate among us is evidenced by the universal interest manifested in railway speeds and the delight with which the average man hails each successive triumph of the locomotive over the combined elements of time and distance.

The much-vaunted "Flying Scotchman" express train between London and Edinburgh, in Great Britain, is still regarded by many persons as the fastest regularly scheduled train in the world. This, however, is a mistake, the speed of the "Scotchman" having been excelled by several railroads in this country, notably by the New York Central, whose "Empire State Express" between New York and Buffalo has, until within a few days, claimed the title of the fastest regular train in the world. This celebrated train runs from New York to Buffalo, a distance of 440 miles, in eight hours and forty minutes, which is at the rate of seventy-one seconds to each mile, or fifty and two-thirds miles per hour. Deducting all stops the average running time of this train is fifty-two and twelve one-hundredths miles per hour.

Now, however, comes a new claimant for high speed honors. It has been discovered that the Reading railroad's 3:30 p. m. train from Philadelphia to Atlantic City, known as the "Seventy-Minute Flyer", is actually the fastest regularly scheduled passenger train in the world. The distance from Chestnut street wharf to the Camden terminus of the railroad is about a mile and a half, and the ferryboat trip and transfer of the passengers from the boat to the cars occupies ten minutes. This leaves sixty minutes for the rail ride, and that is precisely the time allowed by the schedule to cover the fifty-five and a half miles which intervene between the Camden depot and the station in Atlantic City. A little figuring will show that this is a speed of sixty-five seconds to the mile, or a rate of fifty-five and a half miles per hour, beating the former record six seconds per mile and almost five miles per hour.

It should be understood that this refers to the speed of regularly scheduled trains over the entire length of their scheduled runs, and not to mere phenomenal bursts of speed or stretches of fast running to make up for lost time or delays. The rate of fifty-five and a half miles per hour is exceeded every day on the Reading Railroad, and possibly on some other lines, but on no railroad in the world, so far as known, is there a train run from end to end of its route at so great an average speed as that of the "Seventy-Minute Flyer".

When the latter was established it was not with the purpose of breaking a record, but the officials were confident of their ability to run a train safely and promptly in the specified time, or less if required. It was determined, however, to limit the train to six cars in order to insure quickness. This was found to be impracticable, and for more than a week the train has been carrying eight cars, including one or more heavy Pullmans, and making schedule time on every trip.

President McLeod can now congratulate himself that his road holds the "world's record" for the fastest mile (39 4-5 seconds, as timed Aug. 27, 1891, by President McLeod, William M. Singerly, of the Philadelphia Record, and others), and also has upon its time-table the fastest regular train in the world.—Philadelphia Times.

EACH TO EARN ONE DOLLAR.

Plainfield Women Adopt a Novel Scheme to Swell the Temperance Treasury.

A meeting of women was held at Evanston, Ill., a few days ago, for the purpose of replenishing the treasury of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of that town. The Chicago Times relates some of the methods which each member employed to earn a dollar for the cause. One woman, Anna J. Rudd, told a story of self-denial:

Walked to the station six times	.20
Carried my own express package	.25
Went without lunch one day in Chicago	.25
Postponed buying gloves till old ones were all out at the fingers	.20
Total	$1.00

Another sold an old pair of gold-rimmed glasses; a third sold autographs; still another made molasses candy and peddled it on the streets. Miss Willard earned her dollar by selling at 5 cents each some very fat doughnuts made by her mother. Miss Anna Gordon, a missionary in Spain, earned part of her dollar by shovelling snow. In all, over $80 was thus contributed.

This idea of earning a dollar for the cause is to be adopted by the members of the Plainfield union, the annual meeting of which will be held as an all-day session in the rooms, September 12. A picnic lunch will be served at noon. Members of the union and well wishers are invited to be present and report their experience in earning or saving an extra dollar for the union.

Plainfield's Polished Journalism.

(Westfield Leader.)

The Plainfield Press has enlarged its sheet, and is now one of the largest dailies in the State. The city editor, Walter Irving Clarke, was raised where they always polish their journalism, and his paper shows the effect of his training.

This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

THE DOG STOLE HER DINNER.

And When She Upbraided the Canine's Owner Arrest Was the Result.

Aged Ann Sullivan made a pitiful picture in the city court this morning. Her wrinkled cheeks were moist with tears, her thin gray locks hung disheveled, her feeble bony hands twitched and trembled, as she stood before the bar. She actually seemed to shiver, though the room was stifling and she had a faded shawl wrapped about her shoulders.

"Not guilty" she piped shrilly, in response to the reading of the charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct against her. The complaint showed that she had been very abusive to her neighbors, but her story was that she had only upbraided them because they would not repay her for damage done by their dog. The quadruped, it seems, had intruded himself into her house, seized the package of meat she had bought with hard-earned money for her dinner, and made away with it. She was so discouraged by this incident that she had had to take a glass of beer to brace up. That one glass was all she had. [Strange how many prisoners charged with intoxication have never had but the one glass.] Ann was remanded to her cell, to be heard further at 5:30 this afternoon.

BOLOGNAS OF HORSE MEAT.

That's What the People Back of the Mountains Think They Have Been Eating.

The bologna-eating people of Summit were thrown into mental and internal agonies yesterday when some one told them that they had been eating horseflesh. Steps are being taken by the authorities there to bring to justice all parties concerned in palming off upon the hungry townspeople such an abhorred substitute for the genuine article of food. In one case it has resulted in illness.

Conrad Miller, of New Providence, purchased some bolognas about two weeks ago. Shortly after the members of his family partook of the same they became suddenly ill. A physician was sent for, who attributed the sickness to the bolognas. He called upon justice Kelley and informed him of his suspicions. On Saturday Conrad was sent to purchase more bolognas, which he did, and handed them over to justice Kelly. The latter, together with the physician; went to New York and had the stuffed roll analyzed. The bologna was found to be made of horseflesh.

Envious of Union County.

[New Brunswick Home News.]

A substantial start has been made by the board of freeholders in the movement towards getting better roads for the county, committees having been appointed Wednesday to arrange for the macadamizing of a road in Piscataway township, from Park avenue to Holly's Corner, and another in East Brunswick from Old Bridge to Matawan. These roads, however, are both on the outskirts of the county, and the benefit to be derived from their improvement will not be as noticeable to our people as would that secured by the building of new roads from important points in the county towards this city. New Brunswick pays 40 per cent. of the county tax and should come in for some of the benefits of a county government. Middlesex, in establishing a road system, should establish one that will benefit the largest possible number of residents, and while regard should be had for continuing the system established by other counties, our own system should not be made subordinate to theirs. We have no doubt, however, that the two proposed roads will benefit many residents at two extremes of the county, and we trust that before long Middlesex will have a series of roads that will connect all its larger towns, just as the Union county system now knits together Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Summit and other places.

Pastor Dilts Upheld.

[New York World.]

In the report submitted last night they completely exonerate both the church and the builders, while they practically uphold pastor Dilts by recommending that the church pay a certain amount to the builders to reimburse them for their losses on the contract for building the new church.

[Newark Evening News.]

While the report exonerates the church from technical debt, it puts the matter in exactly the same light as that urged by the late pastor.

—The North Plainfield electric lights were out a portion of last night, owing to an accident to the boiler.

THE MAN OF FASHION.

He is Having Much of His Wearing Apparel Made at Home.

Patterns for Leggins and Overgaiters; for Commodore Caps and Outing Jackets.—Knitted Articles That Can Be Made at Home.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

"Never spend money for anything that you can have made at home better and cheaper than you can buy it."

This remark from a well-known man of fashion, who I believed, had never stopped even to price the thing he wanted, struck me as singular. I plied him for an explanation.

"Well, to begin with, I can have prettier and better ties made right at home than I can buy from a haberdasher. Furthermore, I can have my skullcaps made at home, and I do so. I have a half a dozen bathing suits made at home, all my lounging, smoking and outing jackets, all my underwear and many a pretty trifle that one usually goes to a haberdasher to purchase."

Here was an idea at any rate, and I followed it up. I went to the leading pattern houses and found that the demand for "gentlemen's wear" patterns had grown to such an extent within the past year or so that designs are now in stock for everything in the way of wearing apparel except a dress suit, a frock or a sack suit, derby or a silk hat.

One of the neatest things to be made at home is the sash vest or Gordon sash. The materials favored for the vest are serge, satin, silk, cloth and Bedford cord. The sash may be made of corded silk, surah or faille. The five pieces shown in the cut are reduced patterns for both the Gordon sash and the sash vest. The two belt sections are the same for both, and the Gordon sash is put on the lining in folds, as shown by the notches on the ends; the plaits should be turned upward at one end and downward at the other, to give a soft and pretty effect. It is well to cut the belt sections from a tennis belt.

The sash vest has a tuck at the center, and a whalebone should be inserted to stiffen it. Buttons and pseudo but'onholes ornament the belt at the left side of the tuck. Vest pockets, finished with a welt, are inserted in each side of the belt. The small rings on the pattern show the positions of pockets, plain buttons, etc.

When you begin to figure on the cost of the material for one of these vests, its cheapness strikes home at once. A quarter of a yard of material with a width of twenty-seven inches, a tennis belt and three buttons completes all you will need. For the Gordon sash you need three-quarters of a yard of material, twenty inches wide, a quarter of a yard of lining material and a yard of tennis belt.

In looking over the maze of patterns for home work of this kind I found a very prettily designed men's leggins and overgaiter; things no man of fashion is without.

The straps should always be cut from leather and the other parts from cloth. The pattern is in nine pieces—five for the leggins, marked L, and the remainder for the overgaiter, marked G. The patterns as shown can be very easily followed; the notches show the joinings, and the rings the positions for buttons, straps, etc. As to material one yard of strong cloth twenty-seven inches wide, four buckles, twelve buttons and a piece of leather two and a half by eight and a half inches completes the outfit for a pair of leggins. For the overgaiter you will need only three-eighths of a yard of material, two buckles, ten buttons and a piece of leather measuring two by six inches.

And then I turned to the young lady who had given me all this information and asked her if there wasn't something in the way of knitted work that could be patterned and prepared at home.

"Why," she said, "you can knit anything from a pair of suspenders to a sweater." And then she went on to give me all the intricate details of knitting a pair of suspenders. "The suspender should be knitted with the very best knitting silk, used double and in coarse steel needles. The beginning should always be at the crossed ends, and fourteen stitches should be cast for each suspender. Now divide the stitches into halves to form the button hole, and knit back and forth on each division, or half a sufficient distance to make a buttonhole of the size usually seen in suspenders. Then slip the stitches all on to one needle again and knit back and forth for about an inch and a half. Divide the stitches once more and make a second buttonhole like the first one. Now put the stitches again on to one needle and knit back and forth six times, increasing one stitch at the end of each row, which will make the number of stitches twenty."

But, reverting to other styles aside from these knit goods, which are as a rule a great test of patience and perseverance, I was struck with a pretty design for a negligee shirt, which can be made at home with ease. It is developed in white India silk and has a full bosom arranged in soft folds that result from gathers at the top and bottom, and the back is slightly gathered at the center and is joined to a shallow, square yoke. The shirt sleeves are finished with wristbands, and a narrow band completes the neck. The closing is made with studs, and a Piccadilly collar and Madras four-in-hand scarf are worn.

White flannel is chosen for the blazer. The fronts roll back in soft lapels that meet the rolling collar in notches, and they round gracefully toward the back, which is shaped by a curving center seam. The coat sleeves are each finished at the wrist with a row of stitching. A patch pocket with rounding lower corners is stitched upon the lower part of each front, and a pocket is applied to the left breast. A double row of stitching finishes all the free edges of the blazer.

White cloth is represented in the commodore cap, which has a circular crown joined to the top of a curved side that is in four sections. A straight band stiffened with canvas is joined to the loose edge of the side, and a sweatband is added.

Then there are some very pretty designs in flannel shirts. A pretty effect is developed in two varieties of flannels. The garment is shaped by shoulder and under-arm seams and the front is slashed to a desirable depth at the center; the opening is finished at the right side with an underlap or button stand and at the left side with a wide overlap pointed at the lower end, and the front may be closed with buttons and buttonholes or with studs. To the front are applied patch pockets, which have pointed lower edges and are finished at the top with laps that are also pointed at the lower edges. The back is but slightly full and is gathered at each side of the center and sewed to a yoke, which is pointed at the center of the lower edge. Each of the shirt sleeves has an opening at the back of the arm that is finished with facings, the overlapping facing being pointed at the top; and the lower edge is gathered and joined to a wristband, which may be closed with a button and buttonhole or with a stud. At the neck is a rolling collar which turns from the top of a fitted band, and machine stitching finishes all the edges of the garment.

Plain, striped, spotted or figured wash silk, Oxford cloth, outing flannel, serge and checked, striped or plain flannel will develop attractively in the shirt, which is appropriate for outdoor sports of all kinds and may be worn with a blazer. Machine stitching will provide an attractive completion, but a perfectly plain finish is always in good taste. All the seams are finished in fell fashion.

In scarfs the latest four-in-hands are a little smaller, with the ends usually pointed. Sometimes the ends are tied so as to stand out wide, forming a flaring apron effect. A plain full-dress bow and a pretty fancy hand bow, both of which are very easily tied, are also shown in the cut.

ALBERT EDWARD TYRRELL

Lynch Law Among Rats.

In the neighborhood of Burley, England the other day a gentleman, looking over a wall, saw a dead hen in the field. Presently a rat ran up, sniffed at the defunct fowl with much satisfaction, and went away in some haste. The onlooker, who is a student of natural history, knew what that meant and removed the hen from the spot. In a minute or two the rat came back with half a dozen friends, with the evident intention of removing the carcass for future use. Arrived at the spot where the fowl had lain the rat raised a loud squeak of astonishment at its absence. In a trice the other rats fell upon him so savagely that they left him dead on the field as a warning not to play practical jokes with his friends.

NON-UNION MEN IN THE MILLS

A Small Force Now at Work in the Carnegie Shops at Homestead.

MORE WILL BE BROUGHT IN IMMEDIATELY.

AN ULTIMATUM TO THE STRIKERS.

If They Do Not Apply by Next Thursday Their Positions Will be Given to New Men—Manager Frick Determined to Run the Mills With Non-Union Help—The Men Confident as Ever—Gen. Snowden and His Staff Unable to Obtain Meals at the Hotel Because of a Strike in the Kitchen—Powderly's Letter to Governor Pattison and President Harrison.

HOMESTEAD, July 16.—There is no doubt that non-union workmen are now inside the gates of the Carnegie plant, but their number is so small that they are practically a dead letter in connection with the operation of the mills. These men entered the works quietly at an hour when suspicion was stilled, and arrangements for their comfort until a larger force comes to join them have been made. Five furnacer are running and about fifty men are at work.

Some of them are believed to have entered by the river front, while others came by train to Homestead and mingled with the people without exciting suspicion. Their number cannot be ascertained, but it is certain that no great body of men such as would be required to run the works could have entered the mills without being seen.

Smoke seen issuing from the chimneys of two of the Carnegie mills for a short time caused the suspicion to become prevalent that non-union men were in the works. This suspicion was later confirmed.

A circular has been posted at all the mill entrances. The circular is headed: "The Carnegie Steel Company, Limited," and in poster type under the heading is the word "Notice" in startling black caps, with an exclamation point. The body of the circular reads:

"Individual applications for employment at the Homestead Steel Works will be received by the general superintendent in person or by letter, until 6 p. m. Thursday, July 31, 1893. It is our desire to retain in our service all of our old employes whose past record is satisfactory, and who did not take part in the attempts which have been made to interfere with our rights to manage our business. Such of our old employes as do not apply by the time above named will be considered as having no desire to re-enter our employment, and the positions which they have held will be given to other men, and those first applying will have the choice of the unfilled positions for which they are suitable."

How this notice will be received by the strikers is a question. It is not likely that at first there will be any desertions from the ranks, notwithstanding the undoubted fact that there are many men among them who would like to go back to work at the company's terms. Six days are given in which they may consider.

Information on the subject is not obtainable from the mill officers. When the smoke began to issue from the mills some workingmen who saw it made a dash for one of the gates and were kept back at the point of the bayonets of the military guard.

The leaders of the strikers wear an air of supreme confidence. They say that they have won the fight and that the Carnegie Company realize this, or will realize it when they have tried the experiment of running the works for a few weeks with green hands. All interest centers in the probable introduction of enough non-union men to start the mills and the strikers spend their time discussing this phase of the situation.

Some are inclined to think the Carnegie Company will win, but there does not appear to be any indication of acquiescence in the statement of Mr. Lovejoy, secretary to Mr. Frick, that fully two-thirds of the Homestead workers will go back to their vacant posts when the mills are started.

Preparations for placing non-union men in the Carnegie mills are going forward. The Tide came up the river this morning from Pittsburg and proceeded direct to the landing place of the works. A gang of men were waiting for her and her freight, consisting of cots, blankets, canvass and camp utensils, was unloaded and placed inside the mill property.

The Poor Farm property, which is inside the big fence, and is now the property of the Carnegie Company, contains a big level field, which will make a good camping ground for the workmen, and the large building which has been used for the county poor will hold a number. It is evidently the intention of the Carnegie people to utilize this portion of the plant, which is located so admirably for the purpose, as to suggest the possibility that the present emergency was expected and carefully prepared for long in advance.

A number of incidents tending to encourage the locked-out men in their position have happened. Allen Hubbard, the foreman of the armor plate shop of the Carnegie mills, has quit work. He refused to work under police protection and declared that if the militia were to be used for police duty in order to operate the mills he would not work there, but would seek employment elsewhere.

The entire force of the civil engineering department of the mills has also quit work out of sympathy with the locked-out men.

An amusing incident bearing on the strike and the presence of the militia here is the refusal of the cooks and waitresses of the Club House here to prepare or serve meals while Gen. Snowden and his officers took their meals there. The Club House is a sort of hotel for the convenience of employes of the Homestead plant, and during the occupancy of the town by the militia, Gen. Snowden and a number of his officers have been taking their meals there. The cooks and waitresses sympathize with the locked-out men, and they expressed their sympathy this morning by not reporting for duty and sending a message that they would not work at the hotel while Gen. Snowden and his officers were there.

The leaders are evidently in earnest in regard to their instructions concerning non-resistance to any attempt of the company to put non-union men in the works, but they find their efforts in this connection seriously hampered by the disposition of some of the workers.

The advisors and leaders of the men told them that the troops were coming as their friends, and when the boys in blue mingled with the townspeople, drank beer with the steel workers and gave them cartridges in exchange for relics of the fight with the Pinkertons, this feeling prevailed. But after the first day the lines have gradually been tightened and strict discipline prevails in the camp and in the town.

The soldiers are under orders not to talk with the mill men, and those who cannot show a twenty rounds of cartridges have been reprimanded and disciplined.

The desire of the leaders for peace is shown by their instructions to the men to collect Winchester rifles, captured from the Pinkerton men, preparatory to turning them over to the proper authorities.

They claim that a peaceful and legitimate fight has always been counselled by them, and that the assault on the Pinkertons was merely an incident that could not be checked in time. With all danger of more trouble of a serious character removed, it is contended that the people of the country will understand the real issue involved in the struggle and that victory will ultimately come to the Amalgamated Association.

AN EX-EMPLOYE CALLED.

Indications That the Carnegie Company is Preparing to Resume Work.

YOUNGSTOWN, July 16.—David Kennedy, an ex-employe of the Carnegie Mills at Homestead, has received a message from the Carnegie Company requesting him to report to the mills at once as they wish to resume operations. It is said that W. I. Abbott, representing the Carnegie Company, has been in this city for several days, looking for men to go to Homestead, promising to put them to work next Monday.

Non-Union Men Sent from Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, July 16.—An afternoon paper says: "Since Sunday there have been collected in this city, by a certain well-known dectective agency 270 or 280 men. They were gathered one by one from the habitues of various down-town saloons and street corners by agents who held out to them the flattering prospect of $3, $4 and $5 per day should they go to Homestead. The gang thus selected has been sent to the Carnegie mills in sections. So quietly has the work been carried on that scarcely an intimation of the proceeding has come to the surface. The men were shipped to take the places of the strikers."

Powderly Writes Two Letters.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 16.—General Master Workman Powderly of the Knights of Labor has written to President Harrison and Gov. Pattison, directing their attention to the fact that the landing of an armed force of Pinkerton mercenaries at Homestead on the 6th of July was an invasion of the State, an act of treason against the United States, and should, therefore, be punished as such unwarranted assumption of authority deserves.

The Races This Year Will Not Be Over a Straightaway Course.

TROY, N. Y., July 16.—The entry list for the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, to be held on Saratoga Lake July 26 and 27, shows that their will be 16 senior singles, 12 junior singles, 5 pairs, 11 doubles, 4 eights, 7 senior fours, 6 junior fours.

One sculler comes from Texas.

There will be 8 races—senior singles, junior singles, doubles, pair oared, senior four-oared, junior four-oared and eights. All the races except the eights will be one mile and a half, with one turn, giving the spectators an opportunity to witness both start and finish.

This is a radical departure from the established custom of the Association, which has been for straightaway races. The eight-oared races will be one mile and a half straightaway.

Many of the oarsmen are already quartered at the lake.

More Typhus in New York.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Two cases of typhus fever were discovered on board the Guion line steamship Nevada while the vessel lay at the company's pier, No. 38, North river. Hundreds of people were on the dock yesterday and the day before, while thousands of others who went to the river front to breathe in the fresh air may have swallowed some of the germs of the dreaded malady. Dr. Jenkins, fearing that there might be another outbreak of the scourge, has removed 91 of the passengers to the lower bay. The steamship has been disinfected and all efforts are being made to check the progress of the disease.

Creditors Mourn a Missing Grocer.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 16.—Andrew J. Francis, a well-known grocer of this city, has disappeared, leaving unpaid bills in large numbers. Attachments were placed on his stock by some of his creditors to the amount of $1,600, but at auction it sold for only $420. Francis' partner is one of the heavy creditors, having lost all the capital he put into the business. A young girl to whom Francis has been paying attention has disappeared also. Before leaving Francis collected about $1,500 due him from customers. He is a childless widower and about 40 years old.

His Head in Death's Jaw.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., July 16.—John Fahouchs was killed in the afternoon at Enterprise Mines. While riding out from the slope bottom he raised his head too high and it was caught between two rocks projecting from the roof. The wagon passed on from under him, at the same time catching his foot and dragging him so that his skull was crushed. He was found dead hanging from the roof.

EYE WITNESSES FROM ST. JOHN'S.

"A Veritable Graveyard"—Arrival of the Miranda at Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 15.—"The place has the appearance of a veritable graveyard," was the remark made by an officer of the steamer Miranda, which has arrived here from the fire-stricken city of St. John's, N. F. The steamer, at the time of the fire, was at Pilley's Island, getting a cargo of ore, and when she arrived back at St. John's on Monday the principal part of the city, or about two-thirds of it, was a mass of smouldering ruins. The people were wandering about the streets homeless, and in many cases with but scant clothing.

Everybody, however, was waiting anxiously for the help promised from the outside world. The portion over which the flames swept had been principally wood, but the few stone or brick houses in the locality crumbled away almost as rapidly as those built of wood. One of the Miranda's crew, a resident of St. John's, found that his little house was gone and his family of five had lost everything, including his month's wages, which he had only been paid when the ship first reached there, and which he had given to his wife for safe keeping. The homeless ones now, thanks to the military and naval authorities of Halifax, are comfortably housed under canvas.

When the steamer left, the place was clouded in dense black smoke from the burning coal in the sheds along the water front. Those who witnessed the fire say the sight was a grand and awful one and in many cases heartrending. Little children who had got astray from their parents were running about in the excited crowds crying, and in many cases the little things were not recovered till next morning. The most extraordinary thing about the disaster was the small number of lives lost—about seven, so far as is known.

BOSTON, July 16.—Mayor Matthews has issued an appeal to the citizens of Boston to contribute to the relief of the St. John's, N. F., sufferers. He offers to receive subscriptions, to be used through the agency of the relief committee appointed by the citizens of Boston.

THE ERUPTION OF ETNA.

A Grand Spectacle—People Moving Away —Vesuvius Also Active.

ROME, July 16.—The eruptions of lava from Mt. Etna are increasing. The volcano is now ejecting huge boulders, and streams of lava are pouring down the mountain side. The violence of the volcanic disturbance surpasses anything seen since the beginning of the present outbreak.

Enormous rocks, glowing and steaming, are shot 1,000 feet in the air. Two hills have been upheaved and are emptying streams of glowing lava toward the village of Nicolosi.

People living near the base of the mountain are very apprehensive, and many are moving away. At Nicolosi the whole population pass the greater part of the nights on the housetops watching the remarkable phenomena. Hundred of tourists have gone out from Catania and Syracuse to see the eruptions.

Dispatches from Naples say that Vesuvius is unusually active and is throwing up lava abundantly.

MURDERED AND BURNED.

The Horrible Fate of Mrs. Michael Clemens of Pleasureville, Pa.

YORK, Pa., July 16.—Mrs. Michael Clemens, aged 32, was found dead last night in Small's Woods, near Pleasureville, this county. Her dress over the breast was burning and the body had two bullet holes in the neck and cuts on the neck, arms and hands.

She left the home of Franklin Hayes about four o'clock in the afternoon to gather huckleberries and not returning search was made for her. The body was discovered by Rev. J. P. Koontz, and the deceased was on her hands and knees.

A man's hat and suspenders were found near by and there were indications of a struggle. It is generally supposed that the woman was outraged and then murdered.

Baltimore Will Stay in the League.

BALTIMORE, July 16.—Replying to an Indianapolis despatch received here stating that President Brush was negotiating for the purchase of the Baltimores and for the removal of the club to Indianapolis, President Von der Horst said: "Under no circumstances will the Baltimore franchise be disposed of to any other city. The story is a lie out of whole cloth. Baltimore is in the League to stay for the whole ten years. I never will sell out to another town. The franchise will not leave Baltimore."

The Vesuvius Aground.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The United States dynamite cruiser Vesuvius ran aground at an early morning hour on the sunken meadows in the East river. She was on her way to Gardiner's Bay, where she was to take part in some naval manœuvres. A heavy fog prevailed when she struck. She now lies on the sandy beach and is almost entirely out of water. She has not sustained any serious injury, and may be floated at high tide.

Death of an Ex-Slave at the Age of 116.

ADRIAN, Mich., July 16.—George Gazelle, colored, died at the home of his son here at the age of 116 years. He was born a slave in 1776. He ran away and was captured as a fugitive in Detroit. Gen. Cass, becoming interested in his case, enabled him to buy his liberty, and he acted as the General's body-servant for many years. He was an industrious man and retained his faculties remarkably.

CHAIRMAN OATES' VIEWS

He Thinks More Blood Will Be Shed at Homestead.

BEYOND FEDERAL LEGISLATION.

That is What the Committee Will Likely Report—The Investigation to be Continued in Washington With Regard to the Pinkerton Agency.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Col. Oates, chairman of the House Committee which investigated the riot at Homestead, says it is probable that the committee will report that the case is out of the reach of Federal legislation. When interviewed, the Colonel talked freely.

"I think," he said, "that we got all the facts of the case and went down to the bottom of the matter. It will not take long to prepare the report. The greatest delay will be in getting the stenographer's notes out, there being so much testimony.

"We examined Mr. Frick and his superintendent and Mr. O'Donnell and a number of the workmen, as you have seen. Frick is a remarkably cunning fellow and a great manager. He has one of the brightest lawyers I have met to advise him. The leaders of the workmen are men of intelligence and capacity, and take the workmen as a body, they are the best set of workmen I have ever come across. The contention is not one between ignorance and power. It is a conflict of strong men, the workmen being keen, intelligent and always wide awake.

"The man who goes to Homestead with an idea that he is going to find a lot of ragged, half starved and ignorant strikers, will have a great surprise before him. It is a revelation in the way of a community of workingmen. They are men of thought and action and of independence. They have their homes, and the skilled workmen earn from $65 to $275 per month. The laborers get from $1 to $1.50 per day. It is not a poverty-stricken community by any means. But for this unfortunate disagreement between the workmen and employers the situation at Homestead would be very good. Mr. Frick insists that the reduction of wages is made necessary because of the reduction in the price of steel billets, etc. The workmen declare that the reduction is unnecessary and that the purpose of it is to put more money into the pockets of the company.

"Mr. Frick declined to tell the committee what it costs per ton to produce the steel billets. In this contest neither side is acting on impulse. They are deliberate and guided by intelligence, and it is the meeting of two great forces."

"How do you think it will end?"

"You know how these things generally end. Law and order must be vindicated in the long run, even if there is a conflict between the statutes and the equities of the case."

"Do you think there will be any further trouble?"

"Yes, yes, I do. I think there is bound to be more blood shed, and probably a great deal of it. The workmen know what they are doing and are acting upon their calm judgment as far as the leadership is concerned, but they are the most determined men you ever saw.

"They do not claim to have the right of law with them, but insist that they are morally right and will hold to their positions.

"I think the Carnegie people intend to open their works with non-union men. They will do this under the protection of the militia and will, I suppose, arm their men. As soon as the troops have been withdrawn the strikers will, I believe, attempt to prevent the mills being run by non-union men. There will then be a fight, I believe, a desperate fight, and a great deal of bloodshed.

"This seems to me to be inevitable in view of the sentiment there."

Mr. Bynum, a member of the committee, gives it as his opinion that the fighting was done by a few hot-heads and not by organized labor. The cannon used by the strikers of which there has been much said, he stated, was an old-time affair and could not be trained so as make it effective. It was an article of intimidation and not one of danger.

Mr. Bynum says that the Pinkerton men had a perfect right to go into Homestead, armed or unarmed, as they were simply citizens employed to protect the property of the Carnegie Company, and from what he heard from the people at Homestead he was of the opinion that the Pinkerton men could have landed without being harmed in the least, if they had gone in the day time instead of night, or that they could have landed after the first volley was fired if they had been men of nerve.

The investigation will be continued in Washington with regard to the Pinkerton agency, and the committee hope to be able to make a report on the Homestead portion of it before Congress adjourns for this session.

Defaulter Dann Closely Watched.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 16.—"Dann will never go to prison to serve out a sentence," said one of the banker's friends. "You remember he was in a very stupid and apparently dazed condition when he was found at his old housekeeper's house the night of his arrest. He had taken morphine at that time. He took a handful of pills and it was an overdose. The stomach threw off all the poison. The overdose saved his life." Ex-Treasurer Dann is said to be in a very desperate state of mind and is being closely watched to prevent another attempt at suicide.

Non-Union Men Driven Out.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, July 16.—The riotous strikers have been causing trouble here. A number of non-union men came here yesterday from the Granite Mine to be paid off, but they were hustled out of the bank by the strikers and ordered to leave town, which they did. This action on the part of the strikers caused much excitement and troops were sent for by Mayor Dunn. When the troops arrived the town was placed under martial law. Since then all has been quiet.

Mrs. Harrison Still Improving.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., July 16.—Mrs. Benjamin Harrison continues to improve in health. Lieut. Parker has returned from Washington. He says the President will return to the mountains as soon as Congress adjourns.

A Fatal Sleep.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 16.—William Walker, living near Archbald, was run over and killed by a train in the morning. He had lain down on the track and went to sleep.

Cleveland's Baking Powder
"Absolutely the Best."

It is made of pure cream of tartar and soda, no ammonia, no alum. A like quantity goes farther and does better work. It is therefore cheaper.

Cleveland's is the baking powder used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of cookery. It never varies, and always gives perfect satisfaction. Try a can.

THE WAR OF THE WOMEN.

The Young Widow Wins the Day, and Nora Foots the Costs.

Mary J. Tharp secured her revenge upon Nora Edmunson this morning, when Nora was convicted of the charges made against her by Mary and was fined $5 in punishment of the offense. The story of the trouble between the two women was told in these columns exclusively, last Tuesday, and that story was rehearsed at the trial of the case to-day. Mrs. Tharp, an attractive young widow, repeated all the shameful things Nora had said of her and other women, neighbors of the parties at war, corroborated her. Nora and a ladifriend said that Mary had started the row by vile abuse of Nora. The court decided that Nora had used language that ought never to be used by anyone, no matter what the provocation, and told Nora that she must pay the fine or go to jail for 10 days. She said she would raise the money.

The Blacksmith Counselor at the Bar.

Frank Hand, as urbane and smiling as ever, had a hearing before judge Codington this morning on the charge of intoxication and fast driving. The evidence was clear that Frank had driven dangerously through the streets, but there was doubt as to whether it was his fault or that of his horse, which he claimed had been harnessed improperly and was frightened almost into running away by striking his heels against the cart to which he was fastened. The evidence showed that Hand had been drinking, but it was not certain he was intoxicated. In view of the difficulties of the case, judge Codington reserved his decision till Wednesday morning at 10.

ROW IN THE NEGRO QUARTER.

The Ebony Tribe Disgruntled Over Domestic Controversies.

The negro population of Cottage row was in a ferment last night, and to-day various of the residents are seeking legal advice to adjust the complicated difficulties that have arisen. Hill Connett seems to have been the central figure of the racket. He says that the darkies all were full, having opened a big keg of beer in the hopes of knocking out the heat. So muddled did they all become, that Connett's wife would n't own him any more, and declared that she was not his wife but was going to live with another man, who in a similar way took to disowning the woman he married. This morning the troubled darkies were so mixed up that they almost drove each other insane, trying to decide the question "Who's who?" Connett enlisted the sympathies of detective Frisbie of the dog-pound staff, and wanted his wife arrested for desertion. Contrariwise, Connett's wife said she'd have him arrested for beating her in the course of the evening's racket. Frisbie said he knew the woman was Connett's wife, for he himself had "stood up" at the wedding. He advised Connett to let the woman go if she wanted to, saying that if she said she was n't his wife he was n't responsible for her board and keep, and could save the expense. Frisbie further said that Connett was the hardest-working man in the Pond Tool Works. Peacemaker sergeant Lynch advised all the parties to the squabble to go home and kiss and make up, which was done.

SENT ON HER MOTHER'S COMPLAINT.

Incorrigible Mollie Stevens Goes to Jail for the Summer.

Mollie Stevens is only fifteen years of age, but she has long been known to the police as a lively kind of a girl, and some time ago served a sentence of 10 days in jail. She has given her mother considerable trouble from time to time, by her waywardness, and has been in the habit of going to strange cities for a week or two whenever she pleases.

Last night she returned from one of her perennial absences, in company with the Roughtenhausen girls. Her greeting at home was cordial, but she proceeded to give evidence of her filial devotion by calling her mother wicked names and heaving teacups and other crockery at her head. The overburdened mother resented this conduct, and decided that the only way to curb this frolicsome disposition in the girl was to put her in the hands of the police. Therefore Mollie was arrested, and spent the night on the narrow cot of a cell in the women's department of the luxurious local lockup. She was very brazen and defiant in judge Codington's presence this morning, and was speedily committed to the county jail for 40 days. A large number of young men about town called on Mollie in the corridor and expressed their sympathy in familiar and endearing terms.

The Jewish Complainant Still Unavenged.

The international conflict between the Hebrew residents and the representatives of Ireland, described exclusively in yesterday's PRESS, is not yet settled. Judge Codington announced this morning that he had not yet had an opportunity to examine into the case and decide the question of jurisdiction; therefore he adjourned decision till Wednesday morning at 10

A Good Show Coming.

Pawnee Bill's combined R. R. show, Historical Wild West, Indian museum, Grand Mexican hippodrome and exposition of Trained Animals, and Congress of Noted Chiefs and Cow Boys, Vaqueros and a limitless number of special features, will pay Plainfield a visit next Wednesday. It is under a management which has in the past eight years gained a most enviable reputation for dealing honestly and liberally with the public, and of presenting many features new and startling, and many feats which delight, amaze and amuse. The papers speak in the highest terms of both the exceptional merit and high character of this combination, and it is the kind of show to which the people will extend a hearty welcome. Genuine novelties and something new at reasonable prices, in place of empty bombast and brazen extortion, are what people want now, and will liberally patronize.

Do n't Be Too Late

"Be wise to-day, 'tis madness to defer." That remark is as true to-day as it was when Mr. Young uttered it. The headache that's worried you for months doubtless arises from some defect of the eye, and yet you defer doing what will bring you sure relief. Be wise! Call in at Collier's and learn the way to this relief.

All the organs of the body are roused to healthy, vigorous action by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. More than all, the liver—and that's the key to the whole system. You have pure blood or poisonous blood, just as your liver chooses. The blood controls the health, the liver controls the blood; the "Discovery" controls the liver.

Take this remedy in time, when you feel dull, languid, and "out of sorts," and you can prevent disease from coming. Take it in any disease that depends on the liver or the blood, and you'll have a positive cure.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness; Bronchial, Throat, and Lung affections; every form of Scrofula, even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages; and for the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases, the only remedy so unfailing and effective that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

EXTENDING THE WATER SERVICE.

Plainfield's Supply Company Perfecting Its Work in the County.

The section of the Union Water company's main between El Mora and the station of the Central Railroad company at Roselle has been completed, and the contractors have resumed work in Cranford at a point a short distance east of Oakland. The main will be laid from its present terminus at Oakland to the station at Cranford, within ten days, and filled with water from the pumping station at Netherwood. This will leave only the section between the Cranford and Roselle stations to be laid. The company expects to be able to supply water to parties residing along the line of its main between Netherwood and El Mora within a month. It is said that the pressure will be sufficient to throw water at Cranford more than a hundred feet high, merely from the stand-pipe, and without pumping directly into the mains. Numerous applications for water have already been made to the company. With a fine telford road, electric lights and plenty of wholesome water, Cranford and neighboring towns require nothing but drainage in order to be equipped with all the conveniences and luxuries of cities. All of these great public improvements have so far been obtained without running into debt, except for a small portion of the cost of the county roads.

MAY PLAINFIELD GET IT!

A Magnificent Silver Trophy Is the Championship Prize for the Fastest Cyclers.

The Elizabeth Journal trophy, for which all of the bicycle clubs of Union county are competing, is now on exhibition in the window of H. J. Bauer, jeweler, 130 Broad street, Elizabeth.

As soon as it was in position and properly placarded it drew a crowd of interested spectators, and many were the complimentary expressions heard from all sides.

The trophy is of silver, gold lined. It is in the form of a large vase, with cover, and heavy antique handles. On the top of the cover stands a bicycler, just ready to mount the wheel in front of him, and on a burnished panel in the front is a wheelman on a pneumatic safety, spinning along at the top of his speed. The vase is largely of what is known as "satin finish", but is rich in scroll work and tasteful decoration.

On the base beneath the body of the bowl is the following inscription:

Elizabeth Journal Trophy for the Bicycle Championship of
Union County, New Jersey.
Team Road Races.

The vase rests on a hard wood base, and stands in all twenty-two inches in height.

The trophy will be exhibited at Mr. Bauer's for some little time, and will then be exhibited in other places in Elizabeth, and probably in Westfield, Rahway and Plainfield, so that all who are interested in the bicycle races and the bicycle racers may have an opportunity to see the beautiful emblem of the championship of Union county.

"When the boys see this"—said an enthusiastic team rider yesterday—"they will all be inspired to ride faster than ever before so as to capture it."

And it is sincerely hoped that this may be the effect on all who will compete for the championship.

JAY GOULD ROUGHING IT.

Camping in a County Where Martial Law Prevails.

SHOSHONE, Idaho, July 16.—Jay Gould and his party are roughing it in the Wood River country. They are located in a county that is under martial law, owing to the mining troubles in the Cœur d'Alene district, but the whole party are popular with the trainmen and ranchers near the camp, and have had no occasion to feel apprehension during the exciting events of this week.

Mr. Gould and his party are pronounced a jolly crowd. The Money King spends much of his time fishing. He is extremely fond of the sport, and handles the rod quite skilfully. As in everything else he undertakes, the great manipulator has so far been the most successful angler in the party.

George Gould says his father has greatly improved in health during his trip and that he is now enjoying better health than for some time past.

Some of the party occasionally make a trip to Shoshone for supplies, and when George Gould and several of the ladies rode down on the pilot of an engine the other day their arrival excited much interest.

Valuable Housatonic Property Stolen.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 16.—There is a rumor afloat that between the time of the election of the new officers of the Housatonic road and the time they took possession valuable property, the amount of which is not given out, was abstracted from the officers in this city. When the new board of directors was elected there was an agreement made with the old officers that the property should remain intact, and the discovery that this had been violated has made the new board very indignant. It is said legal proceedings will be begun if the guilty parties can be located.

UNION MEN ARRESTED

Vigorous Measures in the Cœur d'Alene District.

STRIKERS HUNTED BY THE MILITARY.

The Non-Union Men Escorted to Wardner Under a Strong Guard—Operations in the Mines Soon to be Resumed—Leaders in Jail—Martial Law Prevails.

WARDNER, Idaho, July 16.—Three passenger coaches loaded with the non-union men who were recently sent out of the county returned here in the afternoon. They were escorted by a special train loaded with regular troops. The trip to Wardner was uneventful. Gen. Carlin had 400 troops drawn up around the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mills and the railroad depot.

The strictest martial law was enforced, and there was not the slightest sign of disturbance while the non-union men were being unloaded. The returning non-union men were armed with Winchesters. At the station they gave up their rifles and marched unarmed to their destination. The men who were escorted up to the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine, one and a half miles up the gulch through the camp of Wardner, were heavily guarded.

Gen. Carlin issued a proclamation calling upon all the members of the Miners' Union to surrender. He later issued another order commanding all the strikers to be arrested wherever found and disarmed and imprisoned. He also dispatched searching squads to Fourth of July Canyon to hunt for dead bodies. He thinks that the men who were killed were thrown into the river.

When the arrival of the troops became known, the last twenty men of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine force, who did not surrender at the time of the exodus of the other men of the mine, had taken to the brush, armed, and had been hiding ever since. They were greatly exhausted. The troops found them fortified in the mine. They were relieved by a company of soldiers, who permitted them to rest and sleep. The entire working force of the mine will pick up tools at once and begin operations in the mine.

The troops began scouring Wardner, bringing union men and placing them in confinement in the guard-house in the camp on the ball grounds. Fred E. Sean, secretary of the union, was among the first arrested. President O'Brien was another. At Wallace also it is reported arrests are being made. The Cœur d'Alene is virtually in the hands of the hands of the military. Unless the union men commit some act of violence soon the time for such conduct will be past. The men at the mine will be supplied with Winchesters by the owners to protect the property.

Had No Opportunity.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

FOR LITTLE CHILDREN'S SAKE.

Interesting Review of a Year's Work in the Cause of Humanity, by the Cruelty-Prevention Society.

Among the beneficent institutions of this city, none has more worthy purposes, none accomplishes more genuine good in the community, than the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and the general public will be greatly interested in the following annual report of Charles Place, President:

To the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children:

Probably no community is so free from abuses of children as in this city, the borough and surrounding country. Whether the fact that this society has an existence conduces to this good order, may be an open question. But it is a fact that but few cases each year come to the society's notice. Our community is growing each year, and with that growth, as with the growth of any city, there come those who naturally would become subjects of this society's protection. And yet we do not see any considerable growth of the work of our society, which is a good omen, and one that our people can be thankful for. During the last year we have had six cases, which have been disposed of by the society as follows:

July 15, 1891.—A complaint came that a man boarding with his daughter in the city was a drunkard; that the daughter was only 9 years old; that the mother was dead; and that the father had the child in his room where he boarded; that he would go home nights to his boarding-house and room, and go to bed in an intoxicated condition. It seemed incredulous, but I took the case in hand at once and had a man in whom I had confidence ferret out the facts, and I found that the father did not room with his daughter; that he took good care of her; and thought a great deal of her. Although he very often did indulge too much in liquor and would go to his room intoxicated, it was not true that the father roomed with his daughter. The woman who kept the boarding-house had charge of the child. She was finally sent to her grandmother who, at last reports, was caring for her properly.

On July 18, a complaint came to the society that a colored woman living in the city was in the habit of going out and leaving her sixth-months-old baby in the house alone. Upon investigation I found it was not true. The mother was a member of the Bethel Sunday-school, and left her child only on Sunday afternoons when she attended the Sunday-school, and then in care of its grandmother. It was an enemy who started the report and made the charge.

On September 19, M. M. Dunham came to the president and stated that a young girl by the name of Katie Glynn had been cruely beaten by an aunt, Mrs. Silas Cox, with whom she lived. Mrs. Cox had been arrested on complaint of a neighbor, and was brought before justice Nash, who, after hearing the case, put her under bonds to keep the peace—a very singular proceeding, and a singular decision under the circumstances, if the case was as it appeared to be. When Mr. Dunham reported the case it had been disposed of as above. But he also reported that the child was at that time in seclusion and the aunt could not again have her or have any control of her. When I learned this fact, and also that the girl was 14 years old, and capable under the law of choosing her own guardian, I advised that those who had her in seclusion, apply to the court through Charles A. Reed or John H. VanWinkle, attorneys, for the appointment of a guardian for her. Louis K. Clarke, with whom she had lived, promised me he would become her guardian, take her into his family, and give her a home and wages of sufficient amount to make her comfortable. Very soon after this, I ascertained that Mr. Clarke had the child and that she was not being molested by any of her relatives.

On September 19, information came to me that a white woman who was married to a colored man was abusing her white child, ten years of age, which she had had by a former husband. I investigated the case, and found that the facts as alleged were true. The abuse consisted of compelling the child to run around barefooted and without sufficient clothing, whipping her, sending her to bed without her supper, and other acts of cruelty. Before taking any steps to arrest the offender, I consulted the vice-president of our society, and it was decided to summon the woman and her colored husband before us and hear their story. We did so and found that the abuse was admitted by her, but she pleaded an extenuation of it on the ground that the child was pilfering from the neighbors and told stories. We finally got the mother to agree to surrender her child to the ladies of the Children's Home. The child was not surrendered to the ladies of the home, but was taken by its mother's father, who resided in the city of Elizabeth, and at last accounts was being properly cared for there. The child would have been put in the home had not the mother been taken ill two or three days after our interview with her, and during her illness the child was sent away with the above result.

In the latter part of January, 1892, Mr Bauersachs, the overseer of the poor of the township of North Plainfield, and Mrs. Joseph M. Myers of Front street, brought to the notice of the society that a family by the name of Parkinson, residing in North Plainfield, was in a serious condition. The father had just died, the mother was lying ill in the hospital, and the town was supporting the family, consisting of one grown-up daughter and six other children. After investigation I found that four of the children were under twelve years of age. Upon consultation with the ladies of the Children's Home, and placing the matter before them, they decided to receive the four children in the home until the mother recovered or for as long a time as was best to keep them. Through the overseer of the poor, Mr. Bauersachs, we endeavored to get the mother to surrender these young children altogether to the home, that they might be properly disposed of, as children are by that institution, but the mother refused. They became so attached to the home that the last I heard they did not want to go back with their mother. I was informed that the first time they returned to their home after the mother left the hospital they cried to return to the home, where I think they still remain.

On March 4 a complaint came to the society through the ladies of the Children's Home, that one Moncton had been leading a little girl five years old through the streets while he was in an intoxicated condition. An investigation followed. I had a personal interview with the man, and found the story true so far as one occasion was concerned. The child had been cared for by a Mrs. Smith, while the grandmother was ill, and after she died the husband had taken the child out on the one occasion when intoxicated. The child I found was then boarding with a respectable family in North Plainfield. Moncton's home had been broken up by the death of his wife, and he placed the child with a relative to board. He promised that he would take good care of the child thereafter; that it was all he had to live for, and he would properly support and care for it. He sent a prominent man to me to assure me the child was in good hands and would in the future be well cared for. Upon being so assured, I took no further action.

A GOOD GOOSE STORY.

For Nearly Twenty-five Years Old Goos Was Linda's Pet.

I see that nearly everyone of you has a pet of his own. One has a dog rover, another a dear little lamb and the third feeds his pigeons out of his hands. Dear little Linda did not care much to play with dolls, and a neighbor who wanted to give her some pleasure took over the tamest goose she had in all her flock. Linda was much pleased with her and "Goosy" was her companion whenever she showed outside of the door. Linda grew up and raised quite a number of geese with her mother's help, but of all of them Goosy was her pet. Linda grew older and so did Goosy. Many a goose had to die and be prepared for a nice roast, but all Goosy ever had to give was her soft feather coat. Linda picked her after she got old enough to help her mother, and Goosy never minded, though it did hurt once in awhile. The geese went all over the ranch in every nook and corner where there was nice grass to pull. Many a goose was caught by the fox, but old Goosy came always home in time.

Linda went away from home and stayed with friends, but old Goosy became so old that nobody ever would do her any harm and whenever Linda came home, she was sure to find her Goosy there. It is now three years since Linda married and left home for good. Her brothers had been putting out many useful young fruit trees, and the old gander that Goosy used to go with (he was a mean old fellow, as jealous as any gander could be) taught her to bark the trees. The brothers would not have it any longer and said Goosy must die or leave the ranch. Linda's husband heard of it and went over and got them both, the gander and old Goosy. He made a pond for them and had his pleasure in seeing them swim. As old as Goosy was, she laid eggs every year, and big large eggs they were. She wanted to hatch them, too, as she always had been used to, but the place where she went was drier and but little grass grew anywhere around it. The goslings could not live long and they all died except two. It so happened that Nero, the great big dog, came in the yard and the jealous old gander would not let him come near the young geese. He hit him with his wings, but before he could do it a second time, Nero got hold of him and broke his neck.

Old Gossy was all alone now. The young geese which she had been raising went their own way, and old Goosy had to sit all by herself. She seemed to grieve and grieve and mourn over her old fellow. Yesterday morning when I fed my chickens and opened the goose-house, old Goosy did not come out. I went to see what was the matter; and there she was cold and stiff in a corner of her house. I took her up and showed her to Linda. You may believe it grieved her to see her old friend dead and beyond any help which we might give her. She had been called "old" Goosy for many a year and all the friends and people living in the neighborhood knew her and inquired for her whenever they came into our yard. She was close to twenty-five years old, and though her color was a very pale gray when she died, her eyes were bright to the last day, and they were open until I shut them before I buried her. That is the story of old Goosy.—Farm and Home.

A TEST OF HONESTY.

A Street Corner Comedy and Its Instructive Moral.

"Paper, sir? Evenin' paper?"

The gentleman looked down curiously on the mite of humanity, the two-foot newsboy, and said, with a slight smile:

"Can you change a quarter?"

"I can get it changed, mighty quick!" was the prompt reply. "What paper do you want?"

"Star," said the gentleman. "But," he added, hesitatingly, "how do I know you will bring back the change?"

"You don't know it," replied the little fellow, sharply.

"Then I must trust to your honest—?"

"That's about the size of it. Or—Hold on! Here's your security. There's thirty-four papers in this bundle. Ketch on to 'em!"

Before the gentleman could remonstrate, the boy had placed the bundle of papers in his arms and was off like a flash.

He was gone perhaps three minutes, but during that time the gentleman was rendered completely miserable. A half dozen of his acquaintances passed, and each one stopped to inquire if he had gone into the newspaper business, and how it paid, while the newsboys gathered around and jeered him, under the impression that he was an interloper. So he gave a great sigh of relief when the boy returned and put twenty-four cents in his hand.

"I didn't run away, did I?" he said, with a cheerful grin.

"No," answered the man, with a groan; "but if you hadn't returned in another minute, I would have run away."

"And cheated me out of ten cents?" demanded the boy, indignantly.

But the gentleman did not stop to explain.—Golden Days.

Twenty Years' Experience.

C. D. Fredricks, the well-known photographer, 70 Broadway, New York, says: "I have been using ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS for 20 years, and found them one of the best of family medicines. Briefly summing up my experience, I say that when placed on the small of the back ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS fill the body with nervous energy, and thus cure fatigue, brain exhaustion debility and kidney difficulties. For women and children I have found them invaluable. They never irritate the skin or cause the slightest pain, but cure sore throat, coughs, colds, pains in side, back or chest, indigestion and bowel complaints."

FOR HOUSEHOLD USE.

Some Unique Inventions That Will Interest the Housewife.

An Electric Flatiron—A Cork That Will Fit Any Bottle—To Prevent Windows and Doors from Rattling—Curling Iron Heater.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

One of the latest products evolved from the brain of the ever-present inventor is an electric flatiron. It is alleged that this device will reduce the work in the laundry to a minimum. Just where the electricity is to come from is not plainly stated. It is claimed that the iron will heat in two minutes and retain an even temperature indefinitely.

ADJUSTABLE CORK.

Another invention is a cork which will, it is claimed, fit any bottle, from the two-ounce vial up to the five-gallon demijohn. This cork is made of rubber, as shown in the cut, and after it has been introduced into the neck of the bottle the thumb button is released and the cork takes the form shown in the cut. The inventor gratuitously offers the suggestion that the cork will be found very useful for application in champagne bottles or in retaining other liquids of an effervescent nature.

KNIFE AND SCISSORS GRINDER AND CURLING IRON HEATER.

KNIFE AND SCISSORS GRINDER.

Knives and scissors in a state of dullness are the cause of much loss of time and no little annoyance. The remedy for this is a knife and scissors grinder, which is shown herewith. According to the originator of this machine, anything with a cutting edge can be sharpened by anybody. As an emery wheel, it seems a good one, but an emery wheel at its best is a poor thing to sharpen a good knife on. The old-fashioned grindstone is superior in every way.

THE ANTI-WINDOW RATTLER.

This device is simplicity itself as regards mechanism. The illustration explains the workings of the rattler. It is held in place by the raised spring as shown, this spring adjusting itself to window cracks which vary from an opening the thickness of a piece of cardboard up to one-fourth of an inch. The rattler is made of brass and is nickel coated.

DEVICE FOR CLEANING WASTE PIPES.

This invention is especially designed to relieve the agony of those persons suffering from stopped waste pipes, whether it be the wash tub, sink, wash bowl or bath tub. The device is constructed as follows: A semi-circular cup is arranged on the end of the handle; the cup is made of rubber and has a flange above it to keep it from turning inside out, like an umbrella in a gale. Water is run into the vessel to be cleaned until it is about four inches deep. The cup is then put over the pipe, and a pressure exerted on the handle forces the water under the cup into the pipe.

HANDY CURLING-IRON HEATER.

This invention is probably the out come of a brain belonging to a married

1.—ADJUSTABLE CORK.
2.—WASTE PIPE CLEANER.
3.—INDICATING OIL CAN.

man who has had to hold a curling-iron over a gas jet at arm's length. The heater is intended for use on an ordinary lamp chimney, but may also be used on a gas jet globe. The heater is held in place by the spring arm on the under side. It is made of brass and is so arranged that two irons may be used and delays in curling reduced to a minimum. A very vital point is not touched upon by the inventor; that is: Who is to pay for the chimneys broken?

INDICATING OIL CAN.

This invention is made with the idea to overcome the overrunning of a lamp during the process of filling. By reference to the illustration a small wheel will be seen arranged on the spout. The spokes or paddles of this wheel stick down in the spout and when the oil is flowing from the can into a vessel the wheel revolves. The casing of this wheel is glass. There is also arranged on the spout an air vent. When the oil in the lamp reaches the end of the spout the air is shut off and the wheel stops, signifying that the lamp is full. The can is specially valuable for use in filling lamps in which the oil reservoir is made of metal and therefore non-transparent.

W. W. BRETT.

Her Question.

"Mr. Spoonamore," said the young woman, timidly, as the two walked along the quiet street on the way to church, "may I presume upon our somewhat short acquaintance to ask you a question?"

"Why—yes, Miss De Muir," he answered, turning slightly pale.

"It is the old, old question, Mr. Spoonamore."

It had come upon him unexpectedly. He was not prepared for it. Long, long afterward he remembered how her voice trembled and how the little hand that rested upon his arm fluttered with a shy nervousness that awoke a responsive chord in his knees. Long, long afterward he could close his eyes and see as vividly as he did at that moment every detail of the commonplace landscape that environed him—the street, with its rows of gas-lamps struggling in vain to illuminate the gloom of a cloudy evening, the sleepy-looking houses that stretched monotonously away until lost in the dim, foggy perspective, the somber bleak sky overhead, and the occasional pedestrian flitting about in the semi-darkness like an uneasy ghost suffering from insomnia and walking because there was nothing else to do.

"Why—Miss De Muir," he gasped, "certainly you—you may ask it if—if you feel that you must."

"Then, Mr. Spoonamore," she said, halting directly opposite a street-lamp and looking the trembling young man squarely in the face, "will you please tell me if my hat is on straight?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Selfish Girl.

Nellie—That Clara De Note is just the meanest, most utterly selfish girl I ever saw. She never thinks of anyone but herself.

Dora—Do tell!

Nellie—Yes. I ran in there the other evening for a few moments, and while I was there Mr. Nicefello called. Well, it wasn't long before he requested her to play. He's passionately fond of music, you know. Well, what do you think that girl did? She asked him to come to the piano and turn the music for her, just so I couldn't talk to him.—N. Y. Weekly.

Young Heir—Mrs. Traddles invited me.

"Didn't you ask her to?"

Miss Caustique—I thought you were especially good in the second act, Mr. Jones.

A DOUBTFUL COMPLIMENT.

He—How do you like my new hat, Miss Arabella? Better than my traveling cap?

Arabella—Oh! much better! It shows less of your face.—Demorest's Magazine.

Some Assistance.

The visitor had found Mr. Ardup at ease and sat down to recover its breath.

"I should think it would make you awfully tired," he said, mopping his forehead with his handkerchief, "to climb all these flights of stairs. Why don't you get a room nearer the ground floor?"

"It wouldn't make you feel so tired to climb them," answered Mr. Ardup, gloomily, "if you had as many creditors pushing you as I've got."—Chicago Tribune.

NEITHER GIVING WAY

Both Sides at Homestead Are Firm as Ever.

REPAIRERS DECIDE TO STAY OUT.

They Are Not Members of the Amalgamated Association, But They Will Fight to the End—Duquesne Men Refuse to Go Out—How the Offer of the Carnegies to the Men to Resume Work Is Regarded—Hugh O'Donnell Away on a Secret Mission—What the Strike Has Cost—Frick Contradicted.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 18.—The chameleon is rivalled in its changing by the situation in Homestead. A visit to the little town to-day would not give an adequate idea of the many changes that have been worked since the trouble began, and only the blackened piers of the landing at the Carnegie mills, the sunken hulks of the Pinkerton barges, the presence of thousands of workmen and the big military camp on the hill overlooking the gigantic plant bring to mind the scenes enacted here since the beginning of the month.

To-day the situation is at the beginning of its crisis. The Carnegie Company is endeavoring to begin repairing operations preliminary to re-opening the mills, and it has asked the workmen, mechanical and repairing force to return to their old places, but so far to-day none of them have gone to work.

These workmen met yesterday and decided to remain out. The company has also given public notice that such former employes of the Homestead plant who are satisfactory to the company may file applications for employment by 5 o'clock Thursday evening.

These offers foreshadow a change in the situation, for they show the determination of the company to start its mills and are believed to be preliminary only to the employment of non-union men if they fail to have the effect intended.

A copy of the notice posted up, inviting applications for work, was taken to the Advisory Committee while it was in session. Some of the men laughed at it and said it was "Frick's way of doing business."

All the members of the Committee who were asked concerning the effect of the notice said it would fail to accomplish what the company hoped for. Men they said would not give up the fight in such short order. They would fight to the end and refuse to be tempted by any offers the company might make short of a concession of the demands of the Amalgamated Association.

The copy of the notice taken to the Advisory Committee was one of those given to the press. This was compared with the printed notices and it was found that in the latter the last paragraph of the copy published in the newspapers was omitted. Much comment was caused by the omitted paragraph which reads as follows: "This notice will be the last given to the employes of the works and after non-compliance with this the places will be filled with non-union men."

"The omission of the section from the posted notices shows the weakness of the company," said one of the strike leaders. "Its managers at first thought that reference to non-union men would frighten us, but mature consideration showed them that we would see the ruse.

Other leaders expressed in substance the same sentiments. An effort was made by a reporter to see Supt. Potter at the Homestead mills, but the watchman at the gates said Mr. Potter had given him strict orders to exclude reporters.

When the offers became generally known the news created the greatest excitement among the locked out workers, but from outward appearances the men are uninfluenced by them in their determination to fight the battle until the bitter end. Those who express themselves on the subject say they will not return to work until the company accedes to the demands of the Amalgamated Association.

If unity is maintained and the old men refuse to work, the starting of the mills by non-union workmen will be the only other move left for the Carnegie Company. From to-day to Thursday the crisis will hang in the balance and then a better opportunity to penetrate the mist that envelopes the present situation will comr.

Both sides admit that there is no immediate prospect of a settlement of the strike, and already the cost is considerable more than $1,000,000. Every day that the plant is idle costs the Carnegie Company $50,000. It is 19 days since the workmen went out.

That means a loss of $950,000 to the company. The militia have been under arms one week, and at $20,000 a day, have cost the State of Pennsylvania $140,000. The cost to the company and State now foots up $1,090,000, and is piling up at the rate of $70,000 a day.

In addition to all this, the workmen lose their wages and ten men have lost their lives. The destruction of property has not been great, as the barges burned were inexpensive.

Instead of sending in their names as individuals and applying for their old positions in response to the notice posted by Mr. Frick on Saturday, the former employes of the Carnegie Company who are not members of the Amalgamated Association got together yesterday and unanimously decided to stand out to the end. The meeting was held in the rink. It was called by members of the mechanical departments, but it included all daily wage earners. These men number about 2,000, and include the Hungarians. The meeting was attended by about 1,000 men. Hugh O'Donnell of the Amalgamated Association addressed the men by special invitation. He did not advise them in any way, but merely stated the condition of affairs, leaving his hearers to decide for themselves.

The meeting at Duquesne yesterday was not much more satisfactory than was that of Saturday. It was held in the picnic grove, and less than 200 in all were present. Addresses were made by Burgess McLuckie, W. A. Carney, one of the vice-presidents of the association, and a workman named Roberts. The resolutions passed by the mechanical department at the meeting here in the morning were read to them, but there was an ominous lack of enthusiasm. The 2,000 employes there of the Carnegie Company are unorganized, and do not want to take part in the fight. Their wages are not changed.

The men seemed in sympathy with the speakers, but were timid to an extraordinary degree, as if they did not dare go to the lengths their feelings might lead them. The threat of the superintendent of mills had had its effect. A resolution was passed expressing the sympathy of those present with the Homesteaders, but there was no intimation that the sympathy would go further than perhaps a contribution. Some of these present joined a new lodge of the Amalgamated Association. There is little hope from the direction of Duquesne.

Union men from Scranton and other towns arrived in town yesterday and informed the Advisory Committee that Supt. Potter had agents in Scranton and throughout the State importuning men to work in the Homestead plant. According to the statements made by these men the efforts of Mr. Potter's agents have not been successful.

The few non-union men now in the mills take their meals in the pressing mill. Huge piles of boxes, barrels, bags, etc., containing provisions are stacked in the pressing mill and in the office building above the railroad trestles. One of the men said to a reporter, who succeeded in getting inside, that they had provisions enough to feed several hundred men for a month. He said: "We are being well fed and having an easy time of it."

ON A SECRET MISSION.

Hugh O'Donnell, Chairman, Away on a Mysterious Trip.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 18.—Hugh O'Donnell, chairman of the Advisory Committee, and the real leader of the locked out iron men, left town suddenly and mysteriously last evening. His departure was known only to the Advisory Committee, and the strictest secrecy was kept concerning it, fearing the effect it might have on the action of wavering men.

He took an east bound train from Pittsburg. The circumstances attending his leaving were as follows: He was expected to speak at the meeting of Carnegie's 2,000 employes at Duquesne, whom the Homestead men hoped to induce to join in the strike. Just before the meeting O'Donnell said he was in receipt of information concerning a matter which imperatively demanded a journey to the East.

He was asked if the business had reference to the strike and he replied evasively. The committee granted the leave asked and appointed Thomas C. Crawford to act until his return. Mr. Crawford said to the correspondent:

"Mr. O'Donnell has gone on a secret mission. I, myself, do not know where; I did not want to burden myself with a secret. He will return on Tuesday night."

FRICK CONTRADICTED.

Carnegie Prices Said to be Even Lower Than at Other Mills.

PITTSBURG, July 18.—In his testimony before the Congressional Committee investigating the Homestead troubles, Mr. Frick made the statement that 296 men were employed in open-hearth department No. 2, and about 100 men were affected by the reduction contemplated. The locked-out men have replied as follows:

"There are 112 tonnage men affected by the proposed reduction. They produce on an average of 24 hours 236 tons of steel ingots. In Shoenberger's open-hearth department, at the same number of furnaces as in No. 2, 168 tonnage men are required to produce 192 tons of steel ingots. At one particular position in the two mills the Homestead men would receive $14.15 per ton; in Shoenberger's he would receive $18. In Homestead, if any accident occurs to the heat of the steel, the men get no pay for it, while in Shoenberger's they would be paid by the day, be the steel good or bad."

ONE REGIMENT TO REMAIN.

Troops to Be Withdrawn Next Saturday If the Situation is No Worse.

HOMESTEAD, July 18.—Preparations have been made looking to the organization of at least one provisional regiment to remain in Homestead after the main force has been withdrawn. If the situation does not assume a troublesome phase by next Saturday the troops will be withdrawn and the provisional force will assume control.

A consultation between Gen. Snowden and some of his principal officers in connection with the organization of the provisional regiments of 600 men each is said to have been held. Twelve hundred men trained in military tactics would probably prevent the recurrence of any more disorder.

200 Discharged at West Superior.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., July 18.—The roller mills of the West Superior Iron & Steel Company are shut down. The fires are drawn, tools put away, and arrangements apparently made for continued inactivity if necessary. All men who were supposed in any way connected with the Amalgamated Association or had taken part in the recent disturbances and for the adoption of the scale, have been discharged by a notice in writing. Manager Matts will say nothing of his plans except that he will not recognize the Association in any event. A secret meeting was held last night, but nothing was done. Whether the men in other departments of the works will go out is not known. About 200 men are affected.

GLADSTONE AND HOME RULE.

Will He Be Able to Push His Pet Measure Through?

LONDON, July 18.—Her Majesty, whose dislike for Gladstone is well known, is in a sore state of mind over the majority, of about 45, which he is sure to have in the next Parliament.

The question now agitating the minds of the Liberals is how far the Parnellite and Labor members will go in support of their venerable leader. The former probably hate him more bitterly than do the Tories, and would rather see Home Rule defeated than to have it brought about by his hands. They certainly would not tolerate a Home Rule measure fashioned by Gladstone, Healy and McCarthy, and for this reason their secret sympathy, and possiblythier co-operation will go to the Conservatives and Liberal-Unionists.

The Labor members profess complete independence, and while they are not supposed to be opposed to Irish Home Rule, there is little reason to believe that they will go out of their way to forward it. In fact, there are measures more nearly concerning their own constituencies that they would rather have disposed of first. Besides these lukewarm members, whom the public generally classes as supporters of Mr. Gladstone, there are a number of Liberals whose election addresses dealt very sparingly with the Home Rule question, and who may show considerable independence should the question come up for action.

For these reasons, and for others which it is unnecessary to recapitulate here, Mr. Gladstone will go into power without any positive indication that he can carry through the pet measure of his old age. There is no assurance that he can command a majority for a Home Rule bill, but in spite of this he will prepare the act and push it through Parliament if he can. He intends, when Premier, to devote himself entirely to Home Rule and other much-needed legislation, leaving foreign affairs to his colleagues. He will be the leader of his party in the House, having the advantage of Lord Salisbury, who was compelled to entrust the leadership to a lieutenant.

For chief opponent Mr. Gladstone will have Mr. Balfour, who is said to be aching for the opportunity to assail him from the opposition benches. The report that Lord Salisbury would retain office until a vote of want of confidence should be passed, is without foundation. The Conservatives are rather anxious to enjoy the spectacle of Mr. Gladstone's contention with his meager and doubtful majority of Labor men, anti-Parnellites and Parnellites. They are confident that the Liberal leader will be in the most embarrassed position of his life, and are determined to give him every opportunity to get there.

If Lord Rosebery will, in all probability, have the direction of foreign affairs. Mr. Gladstone could make no selection more satisfactory to the general public, regardless of party distinction.

THAT SENATE EPISODE.

Believed That Senator Harris Will Apologize to Senator Sanders.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The outcome of the exciting episode in the Senate Saturday is awaited with considerable concern, and the unfortunate occurrence is a very general topic of discussion and regret among Senators. Opinions were expressed by several of the Southern Senators that Senator Harris, whose fiery temperament was admitted, would apologize to Senator Sanders.

Only part of the existing affair will appear in the official report of the Senate and that part, without explanation, will not be understood except by Senators and others who witnessed the scene.

Just before the Senate went into Executive session the veteran Senator and ex-Governor from Tennessee, Mr. Isham G. Harris, closed a personal explanation with these words:

"Under these circumstances, Mr. President, I used language more vigorous, perhaps, than I should have done, but these are the facts."

The "facts" will appear in the report of the Senator's remarks; the "language" will not.

The unreported language was addressed to Senator Sanders of Montana, and was several times audibly repeated on the floor of the Senate though not in the public debate, and consisted in calling that Senator "a—— —— scoundrel."

Under Death Sentence, Now Free.

CHICAGO, July 18.—William Purdy, who has been under sentence of death nearly 2 years on the charge of murdering Samuel Reininger, is at last a free man. Purdy was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged in April 1890. The case was carried to the Supreme Court, where, after resting 15 months, it was reversed and a new trial granted. In its decision the Supreme Court declared the evidence against Purdy to be unsatisfactory, and as the State had no testimony it was obliged to dismiss the case. Both Reininger and Purdy came from Mansfield, Ohio.

Train Men May Take a Hand.

PITTSBURG, July 18.—Several days ago, it is stated, that at a meeting of the train men a resolution was unanimously passed, that in event of work being resumed at Homestead, that plant being operated by non-union workmen, the trainmen will positively refuse to haul either finished or raw material into or out of Homestead, nor will they haul any freight or cars destined to or from any mill owned or operated by the Carnegie Steel Company.

Beaver Falls Strikers Firm.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., July 18.—The strikers at the Carnegie Steel Company's works at this place are quiet and no outbreak is feared. All of the strikers are firm in their determination to remain out. At a largely attended meeting various committees were appointed who will take charge of the strike. The votes of the meeting was a ratification of the action already taken.

DEATH FROM A VOLCANO

Awful Destruction in One of the Philippine Islands.

TWELVE THOUSAND REPORTED LOST

Natives Bring the First News of the Calamity—Partly Confirmed by a Steamship—It Took Her Three Hours and a Half to Sail Through the Wreckage.

SYDNEY, July 18.—Rumors have reached here from Timor that there has been a volcanic eruption on the Island of Sangir, one of the Philippine group, and that most of the inhabitants have been killed. Several natives who have just returned from a voyage near Sangir, and who had intended to land on the island, were prevented by the sight of mountains belching forth smoke and fire. They report that the whole island was on fire.

The water along the coast was full, they said, of half burned wreckage, pieces of houses and charred bodies. The whole population, estimated at about 12,000, seemed to have been swept into the sea or burned, as not a living soul was to be seen. Streams of lava were still flowing toward the shore, showing that the activity of the volcanoes had not abated.

The steamship Catteothon, from China to Sydney, brought a similar story into port with her yesterday. Near Sangir, her captain said, she passed through miles of debris, dissimilar from anything he had before seen at sea.

Poles and sides of huts, most of them charred and broken, were mingled with such utensils as the natives of the Philippines use in cooking. Many unrecognisable objects resembling charred human trunks were also seen.

Articles of headdress in the wreckage were identified by a sailor who had lived in the Phillipines as peculiar to the natives of Sangir and the nearby islands of the Phillipine groups. The ship was three hours and a half passing through the wreckage.

These reports are partially credited here, although they are believed to have been exaggerated. The formation of Sangir is volcanic, and several small craters near the center of the island are known to have threatened activity during the last ten months.

THE INFLUENCE OF MUSIC.

Mr. Cleveland Thinks It an Important Adjunct to Political Campaigns.

LOUISVILLE, July 18.—All lovers of music know Will S. Hays, author of "Mollie Darling," and other melodies. Mr. Hays recently wrote a Cleveland and Stevenson campaign song and sent a copy of it to Mr. Cleveland. In his reply Mr. Cleveland writes as follows:

GRAY GABLES, July 13.

WILL S. HAYS.

Dear Sir—I received a copy of the song you have written to be used, as you say, for an "encourager" during the approaching campaign. I believe with you that the influence of songs and music of the right sort ought not to be overlooked as an important adjunct to the political campaign, and so far as I am able to judge, this latest production of yours will serve to a good purpose in that direction. Of one thing I am certain, the composition of this song by you is a sure demonstration that the composer is actuated by the sort of spirit and enthusiasm which win elections. Very truly yours,

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

WAS THERE A ROBBERY?

The Adams Express Company Officials Decline to Talk on the Rumor.

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—From the reticence and peculiar manner of the officials of the Adams Express Company there seems to be some foundation for the report of the alleged robbery of the company of a package of money destined for the Meriden bank.

Gen. Barton, agent of the Adams Express Company in this city, absolutely refused to talk about the alleged robbery or to say whether the sum was more or less than $80,000.

It is said here that detectives have been employed by the express company and are at work, but no complaint of such a loss has been made to the local police.

KANSAS CITY, July 18. — President Spears of the Kansas City Club has received a telegram from President Mulcany of the Rochester, New York, club, proposing that a consolidation be made by the clubs of the two leagues to form an eight club league. It is the intention to form a league with Albany, Buffalo, Troy and Rochester in the East and Columbus, Toledo, Indianapolis and Kansas City in the West. The proposition is favorably considered by President Spears and President Sharzig of Indianapolis, who is here.

Idaho Mine Troubles.

WALLACE, Idaho, July 18.—Besides President O'Brien, the Secretary of the Miners' Union, and twenty-five other members of that body were arrested, and Coroner Sims and the provst guard are taking men right along during the evening. Several citizens have also been placed in custody, including Robert Neill and Walter Jones, who were formerly members of the union. It is reported that all members of the union are to be locked up. If this be true, it means the arrest of over 1,000 men.

Rev. Mr. Wilson Resigns His Pulpit.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 18.—Rev. C. J. Wilson, the story of whose romantic marriage to Mrs. Getty, nee Elliot, who had refused him twenty years ago, was told in February, has resigned as pastor of the George's Road Baptist Church. His reasons are that his wife is anxious to return to her home in Canada. Mrs. Wilson has an independent fortune.

CARTER AND THE CHAIRMANSHIP.

Republicans Generally Regard the Selection as a Good One.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The selection of Mr. Carter as Chairman of the Republican National Committee is considered among leading Republicans here as being a first-class choice and places at the helm a man thoroughly fitted for the great work before him.

Mr. Carter is but 38 years of age, having been born in June Furnace, Scioto county, Ohio, in 1854.

In 1865 he moved to Pana, Ill., where he lived till 1875 when he moved to Burlington, Iowa. He studied law in Louisvill, Ky., and Illinois, being admitted to the bar in Nebraska. In 1883, he moved to Helena, Montana, which is now his home. He was elected Territorial delegate to the Fifty-first Congress as its first representative. He was renominated in 1890, but was defeated. In March 1891, he was appointed by President Harrison as United States Land Commissioner.

Mr. Carter was one of the five men originally suggested by President Harrison for the office of Chairman when the National Committee held its first session in Washington three weeks ago. His name was withdrawn from the consideration of the Committee for two reasons. He had arrived in Washington from Montana whither he went immediately after the Minneapolis Convention, only a few hours before the Committee met, and he said he could not consent to be elected Chairman without an opportunity to consider the matter fully.

It was held by many members of the Committee that under the rules it was necessary to choose a Chairman from among the body of the Committee's membership, and Mr. Carter was not a member, and in view of his personal objections to taking the place he was finally permitted to withdraw his name. Even then, however, it was expected of him that he should serve as Secretary, but in electing him to the Chairmanship the Committee achieved one of its earliest plans.

When Mr. Carter was asked if the acceptance of the Chairmanship entailed the resignation of his position in the Land Office, he replied: "I shall resign at all events."

The selection of a Secretary will be made within a week, Mr. Carter says.

A DETECTIVE'S STRANGE ABSENCE.

Believed That He is Searching for Fugitive Gideon Marsh.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18. — Detective Frank Geyer, of the City Bureau of Detectives, was granted leave of absence about four weeks ago and since then speculation has been rife as to the character of work upon which he has been engaged.

It has been rumored that he was detailed to find Gideon Marsh, the fugitive President of the wrecked Keystone bank, but this Superintendent of Police Linden denies.

Mrs. Geyer, the wife of the absent detective, claims not to know where her husband is, but it is said that she drew his salary for the month of June.

All information about the welfare of her husband she derives through Supt. Linden.

George William Curtis' Condition.

LIVINGSTON, S. I., July 18.—The condition of George William Curtis is far more serious than has been made public. Nothing, however, can be learned at his home concerning the result of the consultation of physicians. Dr. W. C. Walser, the attending physician, said a bulletin would be issued, but positively refused to give any information concerning the consultation. He said that Mr. Curtis' condition was about the same, but declined to say whether Mr. Curtis' affliction was a cancer of the stomach or not.

Stevenson at Buzzard's Bay.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Gen. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for Vice-President, left the city at midnight for Buzzard's Bay. W. G. Ewing of Chicago accompanied him. Gen. Stevenson goes to visit Mr. Cleveland at the latter's special invitation, and will reach Gray Gables to-day. He will return with Mr. Cleveland in time to be present at the meeting which takes place here on Wednesday night, when the candidates will be publicly notified of their nomination.

Nearly Killed by His Wife.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 18.—Michael Collins, 40 years old, was nearly killed by his wife during a quarrel, in which the woman upbraided Collins for his drunken habits. She finally smashed a piece of crockery over his head, cutting him in many places. When the doctors arrived he was unconscious and almost dead from loss of blood. He was revived and had his wounds dressed, and will probably recover.

Walter S. Gibson, of F. A. Dunham's engineering corps, has gone to Asbury Park for a week.

Dr. T. S. Davis and Mulford Estil leave for a month's trip as far as Switzerland, Tuesday of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bushnell of East Second street are at Ocean Grove, where they will remain until September.

J. Herbert Johnson, vice-president of the New Jersey Central Improvement company, lives in this city in the summer, but will go fishing on the Restigouche.

Lieut. V. Christofferson, formerly of North Plainfield, spent yesterday at his old home. He is an earnest worker in the Salvation Army, and has been stationed at Waterbury, Conn., but will now be sent to Rockville, Conn.

Mulford Estil and Dr. T. S. Davis sail on the North German Loyd steamer "Havre" on Tuesday, the 26th inst., for a three weeks' visit in Holland, Switzerland and France. They will return from Liverpool on the White Star steamer "Teutonic", August 24, arriving home on the 31st.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Dunn and J. Ran Dunn returned home last evening from Arrowhead, California, after an absence of nearly two years. Mrs. Dunn and J. Ran Dunn are the children of letter-carrier E. T. Dunn of West Fourth street. The party went West in August, 1890, to Fairhaven, Wash., thence to San Francisco, thence to San Bernardino, thence to Arrowhead, in search of health. All have been benefited except Mrs. Dunn. The parents and sisters are overjoyed at their safe return. Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Dunn will remain in Plainfield, Mr. Dunn returning to his old business of electrician. J. R. Dunn is on a two months' vacation. He has a position at Riverside, California.

Delightful Meeting of Convention Echoes.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Trinity Reformed church felt that the enthusiasm generated at the recent great convention should not be allowed to subside, and a most interesting "Convention Echoes" meeting was therefore held in the church last evening. E. E. Anthony, superintendent of the Sunday-school, Arthur L. Titsworth, organist, and the Rev. Mr. Metler, a young minister from the lumber region of Pennsylvania, all of whom were delegates to the convention, told a highly entertaining and instructive story of their experiences. Miss Phoebe Mills sang beautifully the favorite hymn of the convention, "Only remembered by what we have done". After the addresses a consecration service was held, led by the pastor; and at the close nearly all pledged themselves by rising, to try to bring at least one soul into God's kingdom during the present year. Altogether it was a delightfully refreshing and helpful service, and was greatly enjoyed by the large congregation present.

THOUGHT 'TWAS JUDGMENT DAY.

Curious Electric Phenomena Startle Plainfield People—Strange Light in the Sky, and Mischief in the Telephone.

The residents of Plainfield and vicinity were surprised and not a little startled by a curious atmospheric phenomenon observed Saturday night. At 8:45 a strange light appeared in the eastern sky, gradually developing into a long and narrow band of brilliant whiteness. Suddenly this shaft of light split into two parallel bands, and from these vibrating waves of light followed one another in swift succession, drifting rapidly towards the northwest. Just over the North avenue railroad station these various waves seemed to meet and re-form into a brilliant shaft pointing directly from south to north, like a huge magnetic needle. The night was very cool, the sky was cloudless, and the stars glittered through the snowy haze as though no veil were over them. The display was supposed to be a form of aurora, and was watched by numbers of people with great interest. The phenomenon was attributed to electrical disturbances, and was used by local electricians to explain the strange influence that worked on telephones throughout Union county during the afternoon and evening, when a dry electric storm seemed charging the air, ringing telephone bells, burning out telephones, and raising mischief generally, in various localities.

The telegraph and telephone people were greatly puzzled throughout the afternoon by the electric phenomenon, which affected all the instruments in this section of the United States. The "calls" came on the wires into the central offices as if some person were ringing them up Inquiry was made through the east, New York State, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and the same curious circumstance existed everywhere. The electricians could not fully explain the mystery, and said that no other incident of the kind had ever been reported. The only central office not affected so far as heard from was that at Plainfield. It was at first supposed that telephone and telegraph wires were crossed somewhere, and an investigation was made; but later inquiries came in from New York, Philadelphia and other places, and it was found that the electric disturbance was general throughout the country. Such incidents happen during heavy electric showers, but fair weather and clear skies are reported in the cities where the strange fact was noticeable.

A party of colored people at the North avenue station were greatly concerned over the mysterious light in the heavens, and superstitiously said "De judgment day has come now for suah!"

This electrical storm was presaged earlier in the day in Northern Illinois. Throughout the day in Chicago the air was so heavily charged with electricity that telegraph companies could not use long circuits. At noon the storm was at its height.

Communication from Chicago to Pittsburg, Omaha, St. Louis and New York was wholly cut off.

NEW PASTOR FOR PARK AVENUE.

The Rev. Mr. Phelps, a Most Able Young Clergyman, Likely to Be Called.

The coming pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church will undoubtedly be the Rev. Isaac Newton Phelps, who has been preaching, with great satisfaction to the people, for several Sundays. At yesterday morning's service his sermon was from the text "Ye are the salt of the earth; Ye are the light of the world"—Matt. v: 13-14, and was in part as follows:

"The relation of the church to the community depends first upon the value of the doctrines held by the church, and secondly upon the amount of benefit actually received from the doctrines by the communicants of the church. If the doctrines are actually beneficial, tested and approved, then the divine law of reciprocity demands that that the church disseminate its benefits that common humanity may be uplifted. The church has proved the value of its truths, hence its obligations are clear and distinct, and necessity is laid upon the church not only to disseminate its truths but to exemplify them. Hence Christ likens the church to salt and light, showing the qualities and properties of salt, analagous to those of the church, to preserve from decay and corruption, to make morality palatable and exert a salutary, beneficient influence. Like salt, if the church cease its functions, it is cast out of respect and power, and is useless.

"Again, the figure of light, as an attractive drawing power, is the province of the church. Men will not be attracted by abstract truth, but by living, vital, embodied truth. The best commentary of the Bible is a Bible life—and the best version of truth is consistent example. Hence the exhortation of Christ to the individual, 'Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven'."

Mr. Phelps will preach again at the Park Avenue church next Sunday, and ere long will doubtless be given a permanent call.

Mr. Stillman Saves a Life.

The Newark News says that an unknown man, neatly dressed, was discovered by W. M. Stillman, of this city, lying on the road leading from Feltville to Summit, Saturday afternoon. Mr. Stillman placed him in a shady spot and drove to Summit, where he notified chief of police Kelly. The latter accompanied Mr. Stillman to the spot. Before they reached there Dr. Reed, who was visiting some friends at Hillside Park, had arrived, and after two hours of hard work succeeded in restoring the man to consciousness. He was removed to a cottage nearby. He said his name was Nathaniel Peabody, and that he was a mineralogist and resided in Rochester, N. Y. Had Mr Stillman not discovered him he would probably have died.

I have not used all of one bottle yet I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. B. Davidson, With the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

DISCUSSING PASTOR DILTS.

Here's an Editor Who Says the Disputed Debt Must Be Paid.

The Elizabeth Journal says, editorially: "Pastor Dilts of Plainfield will not leave the Park Avenue Baptist church, and the congregation will not lose a good, conscientious pastor. It will be remembered that in the building of the new church edifice the contractors lost money, because of a scaling down of bills by the board of trustees. An examination proved the scaling down to be entirely legal, though upon strictly technical grounds. Pastor Dilts held that the moral obligation to pay the contractors was binding, no matter if the legal obligations were not. Some of the trustees and congregation dissented, and pastor Dilts said he could not remain pastor of a church built under such conditions. The whole matter was referred to a committee which has reported that the trustees were technically right, but the pastor was morally right, and the debt must be paid. Both people and pastor will think better of each other when the money is raised and paid over to the men to whom it morally belongs."

The Journal may be right in upholding Mr. Dilts as well as the church, but it is misinformed in the statement that Mr. Dilts will return to the Park Avenue pastorate, or that the claim will be paid.

PLAINFIELD'S CRACK CRICKETERS.

The St. George's Eleven Win Again, Against the Strong Elizabeths.

One of the liveliest games of cricket played this season in Plainfield was that which interested quite a number of spectators on the grounds of the St. George's Cricket club, Saturday afternoon. The eleven of the Elizabeth Cricket club were the contestants. Laycock, of the Elizabeths, was in fine form; and Turner and James Ogden, of the St. George club, also played a beautiful game. After the Elizabeths were retired, and defeated by twelve runs, the local eleven took their guests to the Somerset Hotel and entertained them in a handsome manner during the evening.

Praise for Union County Roads.

[New York Commercial Advertiser.]

Frank O. Roe is at the Netherwood Hotel, near Westfield, N. J. He has much to say in praise of the Union County roads, $300,000 worth of which cross at Westfield. Mr. Roe has a string of fine horses with him and he often makes a swell appearance as he drives through Fanwood, Scotch Plains, Westfield and Cranford. His turnout attracts much attention. His interest is in handsome rather than in fast horses although it is said his outfit includes a 2:16 flyer.

Faded, jaded, tired, overworked women—weak, nervous, delicate and suffering ones. These are the women who are helped to health and strength by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a legitimate medicine, that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nervine that soothes and strengthens. And if it doesn't do what its makers claim for it, they don't want your money.

For all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that afflict womankind, the "Prescription" is a safe and certain remedy—a guaranteed one. In "female complaints" of every nature, periodical pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, leucorrhœa, and all kindred ailments—if it fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

No other medicine for women is sold on such trying terms. If any could be, you may be sure that it would be. Is something else which pays the dealer better, likely to be "just as good?"

PLAINFIELD ON TOP FOR GOOD.

Luck Helps Her Win a Yellow Game, and She'll Lead Now to the End.

Those who have seen much ball playing by the big league teams of New York, Chicago, Boston, etc., have seen many and many just such games as that which "occurred" at Elizabeth Saturday. All teams have to have at least one off day during a season, and the Crescent league's came just at the right time—when they were fortunate enough to win.

It was awful yellow all around. Even Elizabeth's clever catcher made two fatal errors in succession that let in three runs. Francis, too, was bad at critical times—giving five bases on balls, two of which resulted in rune, and in the last inning on a simple error he let Turner home with the "tieing" run and Leidy to first, whence he came in with the winner on Bonner's three-bagger. Just think, also, of six errors for Williams and Murray at third base and short stop!

The Crescents were yellower yet. The total of errors was ten, six of which were in the out field. Everybody was off except Jones, Daley and Hofford. "Tuck" Turner, however, who came near losing the game, eventually won it. He made a home run in the fifth inning, and a three bagger in the ninth that sent Hofford and Daley in and took himself where he could sneak home on an error and save the game. There were no bases on balls given by Sneeden and he struck out six, yet still he did n't pitch much of a game. He has got back his control of the ball since the accident to his fingers, but there was no speed in his curves Saturday. He could be seen all through the game shaking his head at Hofford's signal for a speedy ball. Time and time again he would get two strikes on a man and then lose the put out with a slow ball. Hammill, who has won games many times, was very poor everywhere. He had three errors in right field, two of which resulted in runs, he could n't hit because he was too anxious and he was caught off the base just like Hofford and Murphy were last Wednesday.

Lufbery and Hughes, Elizabeth's new men, made three hits, and otherwise conducted themselves in proper order. The former was greeted with loud applause by the Plainfield spectators when he stepped to the plate. Berry, the clever second baseman, stole bags with impunity and even captured third during Sneeden's long-arm-swing.

The game was won and lost, again and again, first by one team and then by the other. Plainfield got her big lead in the fifth inning in this way: Jones got to first on Elizabeth's first error which was by Williams. He went around on Sneeden's single and came home on Elizabeth's second error which was by Murray. Hofford got first on a bunt, Daley on a sacrifice that sacrificed Sneeden, and Murphy on a play. The bases were thus filled when Rafferty let by the only ball that passed him. Hofford and Daley came home before he could get it and Murphy followed on Rafferty's bad throw back to the plate. Then Turner put it over the fence for a home run.

Elizabeth took her lead in the eighth by four safe hits and errors by every man in the outfield; and Plainfield won on the wind-up in this way: Hofford was first up. He told his men on the bench that he would get a base on balls and that they must all hit as hard as they could. He did and went to second on Murray's error that let Daley to first. Turner's three-bagger brought them home and he came in on Leidy's little hit that Francis fumbled. That tied the score with Liedy on first and Murphy and Hammill out Bonner stepped to the plate with a record for the day of no hits and one strike out. He hit the second ball pitched so far out of reach that Leidy came way home from first and Bonner himself reached within ten feet of the plate before the ball was returned. The score:

AN AWFUL WALKOVER,

Or How Easy it is to Drop Into Second Place.

The old brig "Somerville" shipped another wave Saturday afternoon. Something was the matter with the rudder as it would not work. Miller had the tiller for awhile, then Anderson took hold and tried to steer clear of the shoals, but it was no go. A powerful lot of hard smashing of the ball, some clever base running, and two or three costly errors by the home team, brought the runs for Westfield across the plate by the dozen and threw the hopes of the Somervillians who had expected to step into first place, to the bottom of the tureen.

Sharrott, the new third baseman of the Westfields, formerly of the New Yorks, truly earned the shining dollars that were poured into his hand after the game, by batting the ball safely four times with a total of ten bases.

McIndoe, who was not good enough to play with the Crescents, secured two double-baggers; Lever got in his hit at the right time, and as for Gillies, who was not good enough for the Crescents, Well! when he hit in the first inning—with two men out—for a home run, he landed full on the ball with a noise like the breaking of a stone. Ryman turned and ran like the wind for the fence, but it was no use, the ball was fully fifty feet in the air when it cleared the boards. The Hon. Al. Drake fairly wheezed with delight and had a rush of blood to his whiskers. Detective John Marsh jumped upon his chair and swinging his black sombrero led the Ripley Hillers in the most insane cry man ever heard; while, after the noise ceased, a little boy sang out in a shrill voice, "It's dead easy!"

Willie Clare pitched a most magnificent game, holding the heavy hitters of the West Ends down to five small hits, well scattered. On the other hand, both Miller and Anderson were hit rather freely all through the game and at critical points were made to suffer severely. Kennedy showed his natural bull-headedness in the seventh inning. Anderson struck Gillies out but Kennedy dropped the third strike, and although he could have easily thrown Gillies out at first he did not attempt to do so but said: The man is out!" There was no one on first at the time for McIndoe had gone to second, but Kennedy had forgotten it and hence his mistake. In the eighth McIndoe, who made a neat two-bagger failed to touch the first base and was declared out by red-white-and-blue Hudson. By the way, that umpire sent the league by Mr. Berriman, has proved to be a genuine triumph. Not only in the manner which he orders Harkins and the rest of "de gang" back to the bench, but in the way he attires himself and the gum he chews. He says it is real tutti-fruti and everybody believes him as he could n't tell an untruth to save his life. His only failing is one of saying what he does not mean. When he says a ball he means a strike, and when he calls a strike, why, vice-versa. The consequence was that Kennedy threatened to murder him Saturday and Anderson attempted to carry out "Doc's" evil designs. Poor Hudson, he will be spavined if he umpires many more games behind Anderson.

Charlie Coding, the manager of the hustling aggregation from Westfield, was the most contented man on the grounds. His smile was so broad that he was unable to keep his glasses on straight. The whole Westfield contingent were bubbling over with joy and the milk of human kindness, and one little fellow who was unknown, but who made his nearness felt, said sotto voce: "Why, we 're right in the heart of the city."

After the game Drake, Arkell, et als, made their way to the only real drug store in the village and partook of the following prescription: "Rx.—Spirits Frumenti, ½ oz; plain soda, 3 ozs., mix thoroughly and take at once." This they say was the cause of Plainfield's defeat the previous Saturday, and if the above mentioned properties necessary for the prescription hold out, the pennant is theirs. The score:

BASE-BALL CHATTER.

The Crescent League advertises for a chance to play a game away from home, Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

Manager Reed has gone to Forked River for a week's fishing, and while he is away manager Keller is to reconstruct, if necessary, and stiffen up and strengthen the Crescents.

There are a lot of sore arms among the Central League players.

Manager Keller leaves on August 4 for a trip of a month or six weeks, and will in consequence give up the management of the team at the end of this month.

The Cuban Giants will play here Tuesday of next week.

AN INSURANCE EMBEZZLER.

A Former Plainfield Agent Gone Again With the Company's Funds.

[Dover Iron Era.]

It leaked out last Saturday that William J. Rouse, who has been in charge of the office of the United States Insurance company in this place, had suddenly disappeared, leaving his wife and three small children behind him, together with some unpaid bills. His wife, who appeared to be greatly distressed, said she had not the slightest idea of the whereabouts of the missing man. There are umors that he is short in his accounts, nd that he has gone to England, whence he came. It is also said that he was once short in his accounts with the Prudential company at Plainfield. At last accounts he had not been heard from.

Westfield's Approaching Centennial.

The people of Westfield may celebrate a centennial in two years, for, according to an old book yellow with age and thieworn, they will be entitled to hold one in 1894. The following is a part of the entry in the old book, on which the claim is based:

"Whereas, the legislature of the State of New Jersey on January, 27, 1794, enacted that all that part of the township of Elizabeth, describing this town's boundaries, should be put off from the township of Elizabeth and made a separate township, and to be called by the name of the township of Westfield; this being dated February 2, 1794."

It is proposed that the committee who had charge of the late Fourth of July celebration be continued, and be instructed to look to the gathering of funds for a celebration on July 4, 1894.

A Dangerous Fire Started and Saved by Chance.

J. E. Flannery's wagon shops on East Third street had a narrow escape from fire Friday night. Some old ties had been burned up near by during the day and the fire in them was supposed to have gone out. But during the night a wind sprung up, stirred the dead ashes off the top and sent a lot of live coals over on Mr. Flannery's roofs. This state of affairs was discovered in time or another fire would have been charged against "unknown incendiaries".

Dragged the Lake for the Body.

A little boy named John Hensey wandered away from his home on Somerset street, the first house this side of Greader's, Saturday morning. His parents feared he had fallen into the brook or Tier's lake and been drowned, and yesterday the waters of the lake were dragged for the body. This morning the little fellow was found roaming about the country below Dunellen, very tired and hungry, and taken home.

Happy Time by Young Endeavorers.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Park Avenue Baptist church had a most pleasant meeting at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lowry, Ninth street and Madison avenue, last Thursday evening. The entertainment included cornet solos by Miss Bond, violoncello solo by Miss Alice Coard, accompanied on the piano by her sister Miss Mabel, glee by the church choir, readings by Miss Annie Wyckoff and Miss Fernald, vocal solo by Miss Haines, singing by a quartette, and refreshments.

DRAWING TO A CLOSE

Congress Will Not Remain in Session Much Longer.

NEXT WEEK PROBABLY THE LAST.

The Anti-Option Bill the Only Measure That Can Delay Adjournment—The House Will Devote Itself to Appropriations—Night Sessions Probable.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Congress is rapidly approaching the end of the session and, in the opinion of the House leaders, this week will probably witness the closing scenes. On the other hand, however, the opinion prevails among the minority that adjournment will not be reached before the 1st of August. The proceedings in the House this week will be confined to the consideration of the appropriation bills. To-day is suspension day and several members are expecting a glance of recognition from the Speaker to enable them to pass special measures.

The bill to transfer the revenue marine service from the Treasury to the Navy Department is one of the measures slated for consideration. To-morrow at 12 o'clock a vote will be taken on the World's Fair proposition in the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, and it is probable a final vote on the bill itself will also occur on that day.

The report on the investigation of the Pension Office will be called up on Wednesday by Mr. Enloe, who hopes to have a closure bill reported by the Committee on Rules in order to force a vote on the question of adopting the majority's resolution that Commissioner Raum be dismissed.

The Deficiency and the Fortification Appropriation bills are expected to receive attention during the latter part of the week.

Senator Washburn, of Minnesota, remains firm in his belief that there is a set purpose on the part of the leaders to force an adjournment just as soon as the last appropriation bill has been finally disposed of, in order to prevent action by the Senate on the Anti-Option bill, in which he takes so much interest, which has passed the House, and only needs concurrence by the Senate to send it to the President.

He has shown by two test votes that there is a working majority of at least five in the Senate in favor of the enactment of some legislation on this subject, and he thinks he can get the bill through without material amendment if he can only call it up and make it unfinished business. His chief difficulty lis in the fact that as soon as he starts with the bill an appropriation bill is thrust in the road, and he finds himself facing no thoroughfare.

The Minnesota Senator believes the announced intention of Mr. Aldrich of Rhode Island to make a set speech on the "tariff for revenue" resolutions of Mr. Hale some time this week, to be part of the same policy of delay, though the amendment that Mr. Aldrich would make such a speech was made by Mr. Hale when he called up the resolutions on the 25th of June before the Anti-Option bill came to the front.

Whether the Minnesota Senator's suspicions are well founded or not, it is apparent that the Anti-Option bill is the key to the situation so far as an early adjournment is concerned. If that bill can be postponed till December an adjournment between the 1st and 5th of August is possible, and even probable. If it gets before the Senate as the continuing order with all the appropriation bills out of the way, there is no telling how long the session may last.

Senators who have voted with Mr. Washburn to take up the bill are by no means satisfied with it in its present form. They will propose and will probably carry amendments which will send it back for concurrence by the House, and an almost interminable struggle may thus be brought about.

There is really nothing else likely to delay Congress. The Sundry Civil bill, even with the World's Fair boomerang attached, can probably be disposed of in conference in ten or twelve working days; and the pending Fortifications and Deficiency bills are likely to occupy less time. The notice paper of the Senate is full, but "brutem fulmen" might be written over every suggested topic. Not one of them is likely to be taken up except for an hour or two's talk. No legislation is contemplated on any one of them for this session at least.

A meeting of the Committee on Ways and means of the House will be held today for the purpose of fixing a day for the final adjournment of Congress. It is understood that the date will be July 26 or 27.

The Committee on Rules will, in all probability, take favorable action on Gen. Wheeler's resolution, providing for the holding of night sessions of the House, beginning such to-night and to continue during the Congress. These sessions will be devoted to the consideration of bills on the calendar, to be brought up by the alphabetical call of committees.

Congressmen Anxious for Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The listless attention paid by members Saturday to the debate in the House on the proposition giving the World's Fair $5,000,000 in souvenir coins and closing the gates on Sunday, is sufficient evidence that Congressmen are growing weary of the session and are anxious to adjourn. Not more than 100 members have been present at any time for the past few days. The advocates of the measure under discussion met with some opposition and it is sufficiently evident now that there is a strong sentiment against the amendment.

The Monetary Conference.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The International Monetary Conference will be held in Berlin during the latter part of next month, and the proclamation of the President to this effect will soon be issued. The other countries that have joined with the United States in the proposed conference are Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, Austria, Belgium, Netherlands, Norway and Sweden, Spain, Switzerland, Servia, Italy, Greece and Denmark.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

Some Sage Reflections Upon Our Present Mode of Dressing.

How to Keep Cool—A Delightful White and Lilac Gown—Some New Outing Gowns and Pretty Hats—Notes Picked Up.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

Everybody seems to be looking rather cool and comfortable in spite of the warm weather. There was a time when it seemed well-nigh impossible to keep cool, for we were obliged to wear, no matter how fiercely the sun beat down, stiff white skirts, and a certain number of them, to give our dresses the desired effect. There was not allowed to appear in any part of them the slightest suspicion of that effect which is now so much sought after. Everything at this time must stand out well to be in mode, and that most grewsome of all inventions for women's apparel, the bustle, added its little weight to the rest; so that when we attempted to make our way through a crowded thoroughfare or car, we were driven almost to desperation by the effort. No wonder we grew warm and warmer in the face of vigorous fanning, cooling drinks and inviting sunshades. The other sex has certainly shown much more common sense in their manner of dressing, and a man always looks enviably cool even on an excessively warm day. And the woman of observation noting this fact, straightway set herself to copying, to as great an extent as she dared, the apparel of the cooler sex. And hence our tight-fitting silk underwear, our sparseness of skirts, our thin clinging robes, our shirt fronts and blazers. No wonder we grow more athletic and healthy every year. Who wouldn't, in a garment that one can actually kick in, or run or row in, or ride on a wheel in? Why, the girl of a few seasons ago is a different creature now. Where are her languor and pretty airs, and dainty steps, and timid climbing, and general shrinking back at every new idea proposed for the summer outing? Gone, all of them, with the old garments. But is she masculine then, and self-assertive, and loud-spoken and independent? Nay, none of these; she is still a woman, more truly a woman than before, and more able to win and to hold the admiration and regard of the other sex.

SOME SUMMER HATS.

This train of sage reflections was started by the sight of a fair young girl who stood leaning against a country stile, and whom I had been watching for some time, as I lay in the shadow of a tree, pencil and paper in hand, wondering why there was such a thing as fashions this season of the year, when one felt like doing nothing but idling. She certainly was the embodiment of coolness, clad in a white crepon gown; the dress was all trimmed with narrow pale blue velvet ribbon, in a very pretty way. At the bottom of the skirt was a deep ruffle of crepon with a wide heading, and just beneath the heading were three rows of the blue velvet. Then over the velvet, all around the skirt, at intervals of about three inches, were little puffings of the white. The waist was made simply, just gathered, and had this same velvet and puff arrangement at the belt, and also at the throat. It was repeated again in the puffed sleeve and at the wrist. There were a good many little knots of blue all over her, and she held a pale blue fan in one hand and a white parasol in the other. With the dark green of the trees for a background she made a very pretty picture.

As I turned my head to look for my pencil, I caught sight of something green moving in the distance. At first I thought it might be the waving of the leaves, for it was almost that color, but I concluded it wasn't, and rose quickly to my feet and pursued the moving green. It turned out to be a woman, and she was walking by the side of a tall man. The green she wore was China silk of a soft, exquisite shade, and had a green and white pattern running over it. At the bottom of the skirt there were five ruffles of silk ribbon; the lowest was of a shade to match the gown, and each one above was a trifle darker green, so that the top one presented a striking contrast to the silk of the skirt. The plain, tight-fitting waist was girded by a broad full sash of dark green, and at the neck was a pretty yoke of fine white lace. So far I liked the dress, but I didn't like the long, black lace jacket which fell over it, a jacket which was fitted in tight at the back, which had a large high collar, big puffed sleeves and was turned back from the front of the dress in long, double revers. The points of it almost touched the ruffles at the bottom of the skirt.

Some of the girls here have very pretty hats. One wears a big straw

"at with a high slender crown, chestnut color, and she has some velvet folds of the same shade in front, over which hang long plumes of creamy yellow. Another plume hangs over the back of the crown, and down over her hair are still more plumes in rich luxuriance. I like a little rose-colored one very well that is made of sheer crepe over a small frame. The folds are held down by a twist of ribbon that runs around and is tied in a piquant bow at the back. Some plumes and aigrettes stand up in front. Another is worn by a bride, and is all in gray. It is a little capote, embroidered in a fine gold pattern, and has some fine gray flowers in front, and a full facing of gray velvet in front.

Outing dresses are made now in white, but it isn't white serge or flannel or anything of that sort. Oh! no; it's a heavy, coarse linen material that looks more like common crash than any thing else, but which costs a good deal more than crash. Some varieties of it are after the mummy cloth order. It makes splendid outing dresses—plain skirts, blazers and striped silk fronts, and they are the coolest looking things imaginable. Wear white chamois gloves with them, and the whole thing can be done up as often as you please, so that you can always look spotlessly clean in one of them.

The tennis girl and the outing girl have some more devices for keeping cool. The tennis girl wears a jacket now that has no sleeves; so that her arms are very free when covered by nothing but the thin silk of her shirt. And the outing girl, instead of putting her silk front on a thin linen back, simply puts it on nothing. She fastens a band of elastic to each side of the front, which clasps tight around her waist and at the neck she runs a little ruching all around, which hooks at the back. This keeps everything well in place, and now she only needs a blazer.

The new bodices are widest under the arms and narrowest both back and front.

Sleeve puffs aren't a bit smaller. They're a trifle shorter, however, and a little broader. The baby shoulder puffs are very pretty.

There's such a run on fine linen lawns that it's impossible to find any more pretty ones. EVA A. SCHUBERT.

A City in Two Hemispheres.

In one respect at least Quito, the capital of Ecuador, is the most unique city in the world—it is situated in both the northern and the southern hemispheres, a distinction claimed by no other place of importance on the globe. At Quito the sun rises and sets at six o'clock the year around. You may forget to wind your watch while you are visiting the Ecuadorean capital, but you need not hunt up a regulator—set it when the sun rises or sets and you will be sure to be right. Old Sol makes no mistakes. In one part of the city the summer season does battle with old winter, who is just across the street. The seasons, as far as names are concerned, change almost instantly; but, as the temperature is remarkably even, these curious points are seldom thought of or commented on by the 50,000 people who make Quito their home.

Women Who Deal in Tea.

There is in London a firm of women tea merchants who have bought an estate in Ceylon and carry on their business entirely through women blenders, tasters, packers and agents. The greatest difficulty encountered by the women is in packing, but this they are fast conquering under male instructors. The rooms where this essentially feminine luxury is dispensed in London are marvelously decorated and daintily appointed and are becoming a favorite rendezvous for women, where they meet and entertain their friends in the nearest approach to the man's club method yet evolved.

COTTOLENE

and not one of us has had an attack of "richness" since. We further found that, unlike lard, Cottolene had no unpleasant odor when cooking, and lastly Mother's favorite and conservative cooking authority came out and gave it a big recommendation which clinched the matter. So that's why we always fry ours in Cottolene.

LEADERS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Burgess McLuckie Spends the Night in a Cell at Homestead.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR SIX OTHERS OF THE MEN.

HUGH O'DONNELL STILL MISSING.

It is the Plan of the Carnegie Company to Arrest a Number of the Strikers Each Day—They Say They Have Cases Against 1,000 of Them—Consternation in Homestead When the News Became Known—The Attempt of the Company to Start Repairs Yesterday a Failure, Not a Mechanic Appearing—The Pittsburg Strikers Firm.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 19.—Never since the night Governor Pattison ordered out the State troops to Homestead was this little borough thrown into such a state of feverish excitement as it was last night when the news went abroad that warrants charging the leaders of the strike with wilful murder had been issued in Pittsburg, and that six of the seven men charged had given themselves up to the authorities.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon two men walked into the office of Squire Kuhn, the local magistrate, and made some inquiries concerning the places of residence of Burgess McLuckie and other strike leaders. They refused to tell why they desired the information. The inquiries were continued at other places, and suspicion as to the real character of the business of the two men became aroused when they were recognized as Constables Price and Irwin.

The suspicion was not verified, however, until T. H. Williamson, a member of the Homestead Borough Council, and also a member of the local Advisory Committee on the strike arrived in Homestead from Pittsburg with the information that the warrants had been issued.

The news soon became noised about. While a suspicion that the arrests were anticipated had been prevalent for two days, it was not supposed that the charge against the strike leaders would be so serious a one as murder, and the workingmen were thrown into a state bordering on consternation by the direful tidings. Coming, as the news did directly after the victory of the Amalgamated Association in the refusal of the men in the mechanical department of the Carnegie works to accept the invitation of the firm to return to their old duties, it turned jubilation to despondency and brought tears to the eyes of many a man whose heart was in the cause.

The warrants were sworn out before Alderman McMaster in Pittsburg by Secretary Lovejoy of the Carnegie Company. The men named are Hugh O'Donnell, John McLuckie, the Burgess; Sylvester Critchlow, Anthony Flaherty, Samuel Curkett, James Flanagan and Hugh Russ.

The two depositions made by Secretary Lovejoy state upon "information which dependent believes to be true that the men named" did of their malice aforethought and riotously with force and arms and deadly weapons, kill and murder Silas Wayne and W. J. Connors."

Wayne was the young mill worker who was killed by "Seiften's Pet," the cannon handled by his own friends on the other side of the Monongahela River while being aimed at the barges loaded with Pinkertons. Connors is one of the Pinkerton detectives who was shot dead.

Burgess McLuckie gave himself up early last evening and spent the night in jail. The whereabouts of Hugh O'Donnell is as yet unknown. Nearly all the other men are in custody.

A hasty summons brought the leaders together at the headquarters of the Advisory Committee. On the face of every man was a serious, troubled look, and haste was made to lock the door of the consultation room. The members of the Town Council also met. Their purpose was to consider the arrest of John McLuckie, the Burgess of the town.

In the absence of the Burgess, Chief Byrne, of the fire department, became acting Burgess. When told of the arrests, he expressed himself in emphatic terms. He declared the action of the Carnegie Company an outrage and a most dangerous step to take in the present excited condition of the community.

He said the whole blame of the matter rested upon Mr. Frick, and that in his opinion it would react, and Mr. Frick would lose more than he would gain by the extreme step he had taken.

The two men who have done more than any dozen others to restrain the strikers from unlawful acts during the many exciting days since the battle with the Pinkertons are Hugh O'Donnell and Burgess McLuckie. The removal of these two men from the town at this critical time leaves the more hot-headed of the strikers with few able to keep them in check in case an emergency arises, tending to lead them to again resort to mob violence.

The men of all grades of intelligence have great respect for these two men. They fairly worship O'Donnell. He is considered a young Napoleon among them. He is a born leader, quick to think and act; he is a man of remarkable intelligence, and has practically guided the workmen in their struggle. Burgess McLuckie is also a counsellor of peaceful methods and has done much to restrain the men from violence. He was Burgess at the time of the strike of 1889, and was elected by the men again this year, as they saw another difficulty with the Carnegie Company was brewing.

ARRESTS EVERY DAY.

Secretary Lovejoy Tells How the Homestead men Are to be Dealt With.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 19.—Secretary Lovejoy of the Carnegie Company was in good spirits this morning over the success of his manœuver and in an interview explained at length the circumstances under which the step had been taken.

He said: "These informations were entered in my capacity as a private citizen, and not as secretary of the Carnegie Steel Company. There are good cases against 1,000 of these men and from now on 12 to 15 informations will be made every day. The idea is to make them just as fast as the authorities can handle them.

"We have evidence against 1,000 men, and we propose to push these cases. The laws of Pennsylvania are very broad on this subject and persons who were on the premises at the time of the shooting are liable not only as accessories but as principals. Our preparations for these prosecutions began on June 30, when the negotiations between the company and the association ceased. Seeing the turn that matters were taking and receiving intimations and threats of the things the strikers proposed doing, we began our precautionary measures.

We did not take these precautions because we expected trouble, but because we wanted to be prepared if any occurred. The names of the leaders who were driving the strike into the groove it has taken were procured and arrangements were made to secure evidence in certain emergencies."

WORK DID NOT COMMENCE.

None of the Mechanics Reported for Duty at the Great Mills.

HOMESTEAD, July 19.—At 6 a. m. the watchman threw open the main gate in the two miles of fence that surrounds the great steel mills of the Carnegie company, and peered into the dense fog outside to see if the men in the mechanical departments were beginning to arrive.

The shadowy form of a soldier on guard was the only sign of life visible, and the faithful watchman withdrew to the office porch.

He waited patiently for the approach of the 500 or 600 mechanics who were notified to report for duty and begin repairs preliminary to the starting of the mills.

A few minutes before seven the man arrived and was admitted without a question. Then came another and another, until twelve men had passed within the gate. They were not the mechanics who were summoned. They were not former employes returning to make individual application for their old positions. They were the watchman and foremen who have remained loyal to the company and have been on duty since the mills shut down.

Not one of the skilled mechanics reported at the office, and despite the official notice of Superintendent Potter, work did not commence at the time expected.

These mechanics are not only experts in their several lines, but they are familiar with every machine and every furnace in the Carnegie works. To fill their places will be extremely difficult as the appliances at the Carnegie mills are in advance of those of any steel works in this country.

Even if men capable of doing the work are found it will be no easy matter to induce them to work under guard.

WAVERED, BUT DIDN'T BREAK.

Pittsburg Strikers Remain Out, Many of Them Against Their Wills.

PITTSBURG, July 19.—The limit of time given by the Carnegie Company to the sympathetic strikers at the 29th and 33d street mills in the Lawrenceville district to return to work, has expired and none of them availed themselves of the opportunity to undo their work of last week.

This does not signify, however, that the strikers are a unit in the opinion that they have taken the proper course. Many of the mill hands, including some that have grown gray in the works and were identified with the plant long before they passed into the possession of the Carnegie Company, are free to admit in private conversation that a serious mistake has been made and that it would have been better had the men contented themselves with pledging their moral and financial support to the Homestead men as was done by the workers at Duquesne.

There are about 2,500 names on the payment rolls of the two mills. Of these 1,000 are union, or skilled workmen, and the balance mechanics and laborers employed in the firing and kindred departments.

All the latter are at work to-day and the mills present so busy an appearance the the groups of strikers and the guards at the entrances to the works are the only indications that anything out of the usual run of happenings is transpiring. Everything is running except the tonnage departments; repairs are being made and everything being put in shape for a full starting up of the plant at an early date.

Started Up With Non-Union Men.

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Hughes & Patterson's puddling mill, Otis and Beach streets, this city, has started up with a dozen non-union men. The strikers in Hughes & Patterson's rolling mill and the Fair Hill rolling mill, American and York streets, number 300, one hundred of whom have secured other positions. The strikers have been offered $15,000 by different unions of the Amalgamated Association to keep up the strike, but they refuse to accept the aid at present. The non-union workmen are being escorted to and from their homes by police.

To Consolidate Baseball Leagues.

KANSAS CITY, July 18. — President Spears of the Kansas City Club has received a telegram from President Mulcany of the Rochester, New York, club, proposing that a consolidation be made by the clubs of the two leagues to form an eight club league. The proposition is favorably considered by President Spears and President Sharzig of Indianapolis, who is here.

But she is not yet ready to make the statement, and says that she does not know when she will be.

IT WAS A STRANGE LOVE

Life of Alice Mitchell, Who Killed Freda Ward.

SHE IS DECLARED TO BE INSANE.

Her Trial is Now Taking Place in Memphis, Tenn.—Her Father Breaks Down When Called as a Witness—One of the Most Curious Cases on Record.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 19.—The trial of Alice Mitchell on her plea of present insanity, has been begun in the Criminal Court here. This trial grows out of the murder of Miss Feda Ward by Miss Mitchell, who cut her throat from ear to ear with a razor, and wounded her sister, Jo Ward.

The first witness was Alice Mitchell's father, Robert Mitchell. In relating the story of the girl's life, he wept bitterly when he spoke of his wife's insanity at the time her first child was born, and his emotion was so great that he was compelled to desist for a few moments. The hypothetical story of Alice Mitchell's past, in which her infatuation for Freda Ward and the killing is told, was submitted to some of the most eminent physicians in the country, and upon the facts therein related they are asked their opinion as to the subject's insanity. Among those whose judgment is called for are Dr. Belot of Paris, Dr. Hammond of Washington and Dr. Calendar, superintendent of the insane asylum of this State, who testified as an insanity expert in the trial of Chas. J. Guiteau, the murderer of President Garfield.

The life history of Alice is most strange. From a child she took no delight in the pastimes of girls, and delighted in marbles, tops and baseball and other boyish pastimes. She would ride bareback, boy fashion, and could not be induced to learn to sew or wash. She was unmusical, and was unequal in the manifestation of affection.

She had no intimate acquaintances or child sweethearts. After she was grown she had no beaux, and took no pleasure in the society of men. At the change from girlhood to woman's estate she met Freda Ward, and loved her from the first time time she saw her. The attachment was mutual, but was far stronger in Alice than in Freda. Freda took no pleasure in the sports that Alice delighted in, her instincts and amusements being feminine. Time made their love deeper, and when Freda went to Golddust to live, over two years ago, Alice visited her, and they were not only together continually, but were often seen in each other's arms.

In December, 1890, Freda visited Alice, and then the latter conceived the idea of taking her own life and that of Freda. She bought laudanum, and one night Freda opened her eyes and beheld the girl sweetheart standing over her with a bottle in her hand, preparing to give her its contents. The next day she accompanied Freda to the boat, and, going to a stateroom, Alice swallowed the contents of the bottle.

She finally recovered and assigned as a cause for this act that she saw Freda and Harry Belger and Ashley Rossello together, and she meant to end her existence and leave Freda free to become the wife of the choice of the young men named. Soon after she entered the lists against the two young men and became a suitor for Freda's hand. In 1891 she proposed marriage. She repeated the offer three times, and to each Freda replied agreeing to marry her.

In January, two weeks before she killed Freda, the latter surreptitiously sent her a letter, swearing eternal devotion. On Jan. 25 she followed the two Ward girls to the Custom House in company with Lillie Johnson. Jumping from her buggy she ran down the levee, caught Freda around the neck and cut her throat, killing her at once. Never since the day of the deed has she expressed any regret for the act.

On this state of affairs the physicians were asked their opinion as to her present sanity. It is understood that Dr. Hammond concludes that she is insane, as also does Dr. Belot of Paris. Dr. Calendar of this State says she is what is known as progressively insane, and intimates that in time she will become a driveling idiot.

A Railroad's Progress Stopped.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 19.—The Wilkesbarre & Eastern Railroad, now building, which is supposed to be backed by the Pennsylvania Company, has had its progress stopped by the Reading Railroad. Early yesterday morning a gang of men in the employ of the Reading arrived on the scene and laid tracks on the new road bed, after which a large force was stationed there to protect the property. The Wilkesbarre and Eastern people are collecting a force of men, and a conflict may ensue.

Reported Edison Invention.

PARIS, July 19.—A story is published here to the effect that Edison has invented an electrical machine which will destroy whole towns at a distance of 30 miles from it, and has sold the invention to the German government. A professor in the University here, it is said, wrote of the matter to Edison a short time ago, and Edison replied that he was not animated in what he had done, by any wish to aid the enemies of France.

Elkins to Be Nominated for Governor.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—A Parkersburg, W. Va., special says that information has been received there to the effect that Secretary of War Elkins is desirous that the Republicans of West Virginia tender him the nomination of the party for Governor this fall. The dispatch further says that Internal Revenue Collector White says that the nomination will go to Secretary Elkins without opposition.

STABBED WITH A BAYONET.

A Drunken Militiaman in Pittsburg Fatally Wounds an Old Veteran.

PITTSBURG, July 19.—David Lester, of Company A, 14th Regiment, N. G. P., stabbed Frank Calhoun with his bayonet on Grant street, near Fifth avenue, in the morning.

The affray is the outcome of a night's carousal that Lester and Howard Hook indulged in during the entire night.

They went along Grant street insulting every person they met, and brandishing their bayonets in the faces of passers-by. They entered the rooms of Undertaker Beinhaur, singing and very noisy. Mr. Beinhaur ordered them out. This they complied with, but renewed the noise outside the building.

They defied arrest, but when Beinhaur telephoned for an officer the drunken men started off.

When they reached Devore's undertaking establishment, where Calhoun is employed, the latter advised Lester to be more careful with the bayonet he was thrusting about.

Lester, with a vile exclamation, plunged the weapon into Calhoun's stomach.

Calhoun fell without a struggle.

Lester rushed upon him again, but was caught by bystanders.

After a hard fight Lester and Hook were arrested.

Dr. McKelvy, who attended Calhoun, says the wound is very serious; the stomach was torn and the liver penetrated by the bayonet and he has no hope of Calhoun's recovery.

Calhoun is 54 years old, a member of the G. A. R., and has a family.

Lester lives in the 23d Ward and is 26 years old.

Lester and Hook were deserters from the camp.

A BORGIA OF THESE DAYS.

Several Children Poisoned at Tonawanda By a Fourteen-Year-Old Girl.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., July 19.—A young Borgia has been discovered here in the person of Ella Holderidge, aged 14 years, daughter of Franklin Holderidge.

Last Wednesday Mrs. Luman Eggleston went to Buffalo, leaving her daughters, Susie and Jennie, aged 10 and 4 years respectively in the care of a neighbor, Mrs. Garlock.

During the afternoon Ella Holderidge came to the Garlock House with something mixed up in the cover of a tin box. Some of this she fed to the Eggleston children and to the six-year-old son of Mrs. Garlock, telling them it was cocoa.

Shortly after the children were taken violently ill and Dr. Edmonds was called. He relieved them and the eldest Eggleston girl related the incident of the mixture fed to them.

An investigation showed that the children had been given "rough on rats."

The Holderidge girl would give no reason for her conduct. She was taken before a justice and committed to the Limestone Protectory at West Seneca.

There was much speculation concerning the death of 13-year-old Zoena Stuermer, daughter of a neighbor of the Holderidges, which occurred July 8, and in the light of what has transpired it is suspected she was also given a dose of poison.

She was apparently in perfect health until about 5 o'clock of the fatal day, when she was taken suddenly and violently ill and died at 10 o'clock. Her case puzzled the doctors, who thought it was a case of indigestion or cholera infantum.

Her body will be exhumed and examined for poison.

DESPERATE FEMALE PRISONERS.

Three Attempts Made to Burn the Indiana Reformatory.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 19.—Three separate attempts were made by prisoners in the reform department of the Indiana female prison to burn that institution Sunday night. The first came shortly before 8 o'clock by setting fire to a quantity of bedding stored in one of the large closets on the third floor.

Soon afterward fire was discovered in one of the bedrooms some distance away, and a third attempt followed in still another department.

The girls greeted the firemen with cries of "let her burn," and they ran about the grounds wildly insubordinate and determinedly bent upon mischief.

Some are thought to have escaped.

After the danger was checked the firemen and the police remained on guard for several hours until the insubordination was under control.

For several hours most of the girls were clustered in the corridors and halls, shrilly declaring that they would not go back and the officers were much disturbed over the outlook.

The latter reported that the girls are possessed of a mania to burn the institution and they live in constant dread of a recurrence of the disaster which partly destroyed the reformatory four months ago.

Wilmington's Double Tragedy.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 19.—The terrible tragedy enacted by James McCloskey, a carriage painter, Sunday, is now known to have been caused by jealousy. Miss Claringbould, whom he shot and fatally wounded, is only 24 years old, and as McCloskey is 48 she had begun to treat him coolly for other company. The four bullets McCloskey put in his own brain will probably prove fatal.

Congress to Adjourn July 23.

WASHINGTON, July 19. — The House Committee on Ways and Means considered and ordered favorably reported a resolution providing for the adjournment of the first session of this Congress on Monday next, July 23.

THE MINORITY REPORT

Submitted in the Pension Office Investigation.

MR. RAUM'S METHODS COMMENDED.

The Report Asserts That the Majority Seemed Determined to Fasten Crime and Corruption Upon the Commissioner, and Finally Sought to Do so by Inference.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Representative Lind of Minnesota has submitted to the House the views of the minority of the Special Pension Office Investigating Committee, which had in charge the investigation of the Pension Bureau under the management of Commissioner Raum.

The report asserts that the majority of the committee seemed determined to fasten crime and corruption upon the Commissioner, but having utterly failed to do so by evidence they as a last resort sought to do it by inference.

The report, after paying a glowing tribute to the efficiency of the management and business methods and reforms perfected in the Pension Office, under Commissioner Raum, states that while the minority concur in some of the recommendations of the majority, others they might have consented to in a modified form if the minority had had an opportunity for a comparison of views with the majority before the report found its way into the public press.

The report of the minority recommends in lieu of the resolution adopted by the majority of a substitute to the effect that the record in this case, as reported by the committee, shows an efficient and economical administration of the business of the Pension Office by the present Commissioner, and asks that the committee be discharged from further investigation of the subject under the existing resolution.

FROM CHINA AND JAPAN.

Great Inundations—Treatment of Foreign Missionaries.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—The steamer City of Pekin has just arrived, bringing China advices to June 28 and Japanese to July 2. Accounts of terrible inundations come from Fukushima Prefecture. Incessant rain from the 20th to the 26th of June has resulted in the flooding of ten districts, eighty-four people being killed and many wounded; over 1,000 houses were inundated, forty-three houses destroyed and many damaged. Nearly seven hundred dredges were swept away. Eight hundred acres of rice fields inundated and 4,000 acres are under water.

From Nanking the news comes that reports of the capture of Chinese by foreign missionaries, the gouging out of eyes, etc., are prevalent and are really believed by all classes.

There is no open opposition to the foreign missionaries, but the officials place every obstruction in their way, and, it is suspected, secretly aid in the spreading of vile anti-Christian literature, which is mainly responsible for all the trouble.

The editor of the Japan "Gazette," who has examined some of these pamphlets says of them:

"If the government continues to permit their circulation these, Hunan tracts will be a blot upon the Celestial Empire, which ages will not efface."

At Shun-King and Ichang some mysterious plague is carrying off thousands of people. General Lo Lo, who has charge of the district, is out daily with his troops firing volleys of blank cartridges to drive off the demons of the air who are supposed to bring pestilence.

A few months ago the schooner Undine, towed by Crawford & Company, of San Francisco, sailed for the South Sea Islands in command of Captain Castella. The vessel's crew consisted of the captain and 8 men. At Honolulu a man who said he was the mate's brother joined the vessels crew and when out three days from Honolulu, one of the brothers shot the captain and supercargo. The crew were then poisoned with liquor, and made away with, except the steward, who was given a bribe of $1,000.

At one of the islands a new crew of natives was shipped and the schooner proceeded to Ascension Island. There the steward revealed the crime to the authorities, who arrested the murderers and sent them to Manilla.

The Pope's Columbus Encyclical.

ROME, July 19.—The Pope says, in an encyclical regarding the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, that few men were comparable to Columbus in genius and magnanimity of soul. The Pope ordains that mass shall be offered up to the Holy Trinity in the churches of Spain, Italy and America on the 12th of October next, thus imitating the example of the Supreme Pontiff when he learned of the discovery of America. The bishops of other countries than those mentioned are invited to celebrate mass on the same date.

No Truth in the Rumor.

NEW YORK, July 19—John Hoey, stepson of the ex-president of the Adams Express Company, and manager of the company's office in this city, denies there is any truth in the rumor that his stepfather and ex-Senator John Kiernan were about to start a new express company, and that they were backed by the Pennsylvania and another large railroad company in their efforts. He said there was no truth whatever in the rumor.

This privilege was asked in order to enable the committee to consider the bill introduced by Mr. Curtis, of New York, to enforce reciprocal relations between the United States and Canada.

Died From a Man's Bite.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The police have arrested John Murphy, of this city, on a charge of being the one who bit the hand of George Coe, a driver. Coe told the police that he had been bitten by a mad dog, but afterwards confessed that Murphy was the guilty one. Coe died Sunday night in great agony. Murphy has been held to await the action of the grand jury.

A young Italian laborer named Lombardo Cosmo, of Bound Brook, was accosted in Franklin street, New York, yesterday, by Joseph Green, of 43 Oliver street, who asked him to change a $100 confederate bill. Cosmo replied that he had no such amount, and then Green, who is also an Italian, asked him to show him how much he carried. The laborer pulled out of his pockets $10.35, which Green seized. A struggle followed during which Cosmo was knocked down. Green left the worthless bill with Cosmo and ran away. The robber was caught by ward detective Mitchell, and at the Tombs Police Court the prisoner was held in $2,000 bail for trial.

ANIMALS SUFFER AGONIES.

Dumb Creatures Poisoned In Revenge Against R. F. M. Chase.

R. F. M. Chase has an enemy whose dastardly acts will be severely punished if the efforts now being made to discover his identity are successful. Mr. Chase owns a delightful home on the brow of the first hill this side of the "Notch", near Somerset street. One of the hobbies Mr. Chase has is that of keeping an extensive dog-kennel. The dogs are all fine-bred, and never trouble passers-by.

During the last few weeks seven of these noble animals have been poisoned, and on Monday morning another poor creature died in the greatest agony after having been dosed with a deadly poison. Not satisfied with killing the dog alone, the human brute poisoned also a valuable horse and a "registered" cow. The horse and cow suffered such terrible agonies that Mr. Chase and his coachman were awakened by their cries. Efforts were at once directed towards saving their lives, and, fortunately, these were successful.

Every possible effort to discover the perpetrator of the outrage will be made.

City clerk Runyon was out of town on a vacation, and his assistant editor Winfield S. Angleman was elected as temporary clerk. An ordinance drawn up by Charles A. Reed, acting corporation counsel, was presented. The object of the ordinance is to extend the route of the street railway up East Front street to Peace, and through Peace to North avenue to the station, and also from Front up Somerset street. There was a clerical error in the ordinance, and it was referred to the committee on laws and ordinances. Then the council adjourned, at 8:15.

Good Companions for the Summer.

The fascinating story of "The True Daughter of Hartenstein" has been translated from the German into pure English, and published in a beautiful volume of the incomparable "Choice Series" by Robert Bonner's Sons, corner of William and Spruce streets, New York. Other recent issues of the "Choice Series" are "Edith Trevor's Secret", and its sequel "Cecil Rosse", by Mrs. Harriet Lewis; "Love Is Lord of All", from the German by Mary J. Safford; and "Zina's Awakening", by Mrs. J. Kent Spender, all charming volumes that will be greatly enjoyed by all people of taste. House an Embezzler.

At the office of the United States Industrial Insurance company at Newark, yesterday, a reporter was told that William J. Rouse, the missing insurance agent whose disappearance was recorded exclusively in these columns yesterday, had been in their employ for some time as superintendent at Dover, and that he had made way with some of the company's money.

Rouse formerly was the superintendent for the Prudential Insurance company at Plainfield and he also did work for them in Elizabeth.

A Barn Saved from Burning.

John Demeza prevented a serious fire last night. He saw a dense volume of smoke issuing from Carl Kaerth's barn on East Second street, at 9:30, and promptly investigated. It was found that a bundle of waste rags had burst into spontaneous combustion. The fire was extinguished without damage.

Exciting Runaway.

A horse belonging to Robert Jahan of Fanwood was standing opposite Edsall's on Front street at 11 this morning when it took fright from a bicycle and galloped rapidly down West Front street. One of the men employed on the railroad tried to stop the animal, which then rushed upon the sidewalk in front of Dreier's and was stopped without doing any damage, which was very fortunate, for both sides of the street were lined with carriages.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

PLAINFIELD WILL FIX IT NEXT YEAR.

Elizabeth Gets Even This Time Because She Failed to Organize the County Board of Assessors, by Increasing the Valuations in Several Townships.

The Union county board of assessors had a lively time at their annual meeting in Elizabeth yesterday when the Elizabeth assessors attempted to get control of the board. They failed in this, but got square by jumping up the valuations in several townships, Summit being raised $85,000, Union and Westfield each $30,000, Cranford $25,000, and Fanwood $15,000. Elizabeth has had no vote in the board of assessors since 1883, when the city's assessors resigned to prevent its creditors getting their judgments in the tax levy. Now Elizabeth can pay all outstanding claims against it, and, therefore, did not ask the governor to appoint a tax commission this year, but elected assessors as formerly. This gave it a preponderating voice in the county board of assessors, Elizabeth having twelve members to the rest of the county's ten. But next year Plainfield will send the same representation as Elizabeth—one assessor from each ward—instead of the one assessor now chosen, and thus take from Elizabeth the control of the county board.

While the Elizabeth men were holding a caucus at the City Hall and planning to capture the officers of the board, the county members met at the Court-house and stole a march on the other fellows by organizing and electing D. Hobart Sayre, of Union, president, and Alfred B. Cook, of Rahway, secretary. The Elizabeth representatives were furious when they reached the Court-house and found the board already in session. They denounced the organization as illegal, and by a vote of 12 to 9 moved to turn out the newly-elected officers. The county members appealed to county attorney McClure, and he declared that since Elizabeth's members failed to appear at the time designated for the meeting to begin the other members had a right to go ahead and organize without them. Elizabeth's representatives would not accept this decision, and then the county members said they would go home until September, when they would meet under the State law, and Elizabeth's members would have to stand the responsibility for the delay in making the valuations. At this threat the Elizabeth majority in the board gave in and let the organization stand.

They afterward revenged themselves on the farmers by increasing their valuations. These were fixed as follows for the county:

Elizabeth	$15,578,500
Plainfield	6,600,000
Rahway	2,773,100
Union	1,621,600
Linden	1,553,000
Summit	1,285,000
Westfield	1,136,000
Fanwood	719,800
Cranford	600,000
Springfield	368,000
Clark	246,800
New Providence	242,700
Total for the county	$32,684,500

Elizabeth gained $827,000, Plainfield $400,000, and Rahway $48,000 in valuations during the year.

He finished in 36¼ minutes, as fresh as a mountain zephyr, and was awarded a handsome gold medal. King of Newark was a minute behind, and Maltby of Newark came in third. They received silver medals.

For the National Meet of the League of American Wheelmen at Washington, July 18 to 20, the Royal Blue Line will sell excursion tickets at rate of one fare for the round trip. Tickets will be sold July 16 to 19, and will be valid for return journey until July 24. Bicycles of passengers will be carried free of charge. It fills the bill—a dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Sick or Bilious Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

But not in the way the huge, old-fashioned pill tries to do it. These little Pellets have better methods. They cleanse and regulate the whole system naturally. In other words, they do it thoroughly, but mildly and gently. There's no disturbance to the system, diet or occupation. They're the smallest in size, but the most effective in results—purely vegetable, perfectly harmless. Only one little sugar-coated Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic.

They're the cheapest pills you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

This is true only of Dr. Pierce's standard medicines.

IN HOT WEATHER,

When people grow irritable even to the point of breaking out with Prickly Heat, it is plain that something is needed to calm the nerves and tone the system. BEEF, WINE AND IRON WITH CELERY is just the thing—a harmless sedative and tonic. Moreover, if taken at bedtime it conduces to healthy, refreshing sleep. Originated and sold only at Bismarck's Course Defended.

BERLIN, July 19.—The "Prussische Jahrbuecher," edited by Hans Delbrueck and second in influence to no other periodical in Germany, takes issue in its last number with the assailants of Bismarck. After reviewing the services of the ex-Chancellor to the Empire and analyzing the reflections cast upon his foreign policy by the "Nordeutsch Allgemeine," the writer says the people of Germany may well ask what the men of the new era have done to entitle them to sit in judgment on the founder of united Germany and charge him with disloyalty.

The Proprietor Has Departed.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 19.—The Bradford Iron Works at Bradford are closed, and it is said the proprietor, E. E. Webb, has left for parts unknown. The twenty workmen employed in the establishment were not paid Saturday night. No proprietor showed up yesterday and the workmen caused an attachment of $350 to be placed on the works in their behalf. It is understood that the works are heavily mortgaged and that the creditors will get little or nothing.

Blair Sure of Harrison's Election.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Ex-United States Senator Blair of New Hampshire, who is in this city, says that Harrison is stronger than he was in 1888, and he looks to see him elected by an overwhelming majority. "Cleveland," continued Mr. Blair, "has made the error of making himself bigger than his party, and therefore he will antagonize his party."

Brought Suit Against the Town.

COHASSET, Mass., July 19.—Four of the persons who were injured by the overturning of a tally-ho coach here on the night of the 17th of last June, have brought suit against the town of Cohasset for $4,000 each. The select men have refused to settle the matter, and will file it in the courts.

A Weavers' Strike Ended.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 19.—The strike of weavers in Polercy's mill has ended, all the women and part of the men returning to their looms. The balance were paid off. No change was made in the wages, but the returning strikers will probably get an increase.

A Mill Agent Fails.

DEDHAM, Mass., July 19.—Charles C. Loring, mill agent of Dedham, has filed schedules in the Norfolk registry. His liabilities amount to $17,960, and assets about $3,000.

Still Arresting Miners.

BURKE, Idaho, July 19.—The arrest of miners still continues here. A Deputy United States Marshal goes through the camps, points out the man wanted and he is at once arrested without ceremony by the troops. Few of the union men remain here. Scouts report that a number of armed men are camped considerable distance from here. The strikers are camped on the mountains in large numbers around Mullane. The soldiers will keep a sharp lookout for them.

Nearly Killed by His Wife.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 19.—Michael Collins, 40 years old, was nearly killed by his wife during a quarrel, in which the woman upbraided Collins for his drunken habits. She finally smashed a piece of crockery over his head, cutting him in many places. When the doctors arrived he was unconscious and almost dead from loss of blood. He was revived and had his wounds dressed, and will probably recover.

A Coalition Government Possible.

LONDON, July 19.—The "Pall Mall Gazette" says there is a rumor in circulation that the Queen will not summon Mr. Gladstone to form a Ministry, and that a coalition government under the Duke of Devonshire is possible. The "Pall Mall Gazette" connects the rumor with the visit of Lord Salisbury, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain and the Duke of Devonshire to Windsor.

Husband and Wife to Part.

Patrick McGovern and his wife have agreed to separate. They have for some time been living together amid difficulties, and yesterday Pat was arrested for disorderly conduct on complaint of his wife. Judge Codington suspended sentence today, on McGovern's promise not to molest the woman any more.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

ON THE IRON PIER.

(A MEMORY.)

I remember that night on the Iron Pier—
I remember it now with a sigh;
I recall every moment of hope and fear,
And think of the star-lit sky,
And the moon that shone so bright and clear—
Bright and clear when she was nigh—
On the Iron Pier.

I recall the music, weird and drear,
And its notes that thrilled me so;
And sweeter still I seemed to hear,
With its words divine and low,
The echoed voice I held so dear—
The voice of an angel here below—
On the Iron Pier.

I remember her face as if it were here,
With the hair like a framing of bliss,
And the dark eyes flashing so deep and clear,
And the lips that were made to kiss;
But better still I recall with a tear,
The price of the cream absorbed by that miss—
On the Iron Pier.

A PLAINFIELD DELEGATE REPORTS.

Interesting Review of the Great Convention, by a Seventh-Day Representative.

The readers of THE PRESS will be glad of the opportunity afforded in these columns to-day of reading and preserving the most excellent address delivered by A. L. Titsworth at the Trinity Reformed church Sunday night. Mr. Titsworth was a delegate from the Seventh-Day Baptist church to the great Christian Endeavor convention in New York; and kindly consented to relate his experiences, at the Trinity "Convention Echoes" meeting reported by THE PRESS yesterday. The address is herewith published at the request of many who heard it:

The convention! It was a marvelous gathering, and it is worthy of comment that this largest of all religious meetings known in the history of Christianity, should have been reserved for our century—for our generation—for our decade—yes, even for our personal experience, and it is not surprising to those of us who were permitted to attend any of the sessions of the convention, nor to all of us who have read of its proceedings, that our thoughts continue to dwell upon it, and that our thoughts find expression in words.

It does not seem at this time as though anything could be added to what we have heard, or what we have experienced, or what we have read, for there were so many features that impressed us all very deeply. But it is only to one or two of these more prominent features of the assembly that I would again call your attention.

For many weeks and many months prior to the convocation, all Christian Endeavorers, and many of their friends in the churches, earnestly prayed that the special blessing of God might rest upon that meeting, and that there might emanate therefrom powerful influences for good, and there were some who were even so rash as to pray that the presence and influence of this noble band of Christian young people might be noticeable to the citizens of the great metropolis, and felt by them, yet in all fairness, we believe that it may safely be said, that very few of these really had sufficient faith to believe that their prayer would be answered.

But what of the answer to that prayer?

If there were any persons in the city of New York between July 7 and July 12, 1892, who did not hear and know that something unusual and of manifest importance was taking place in their very midst, it could only have been those who were incarcerated in the public institutions of the city, for all those who had the liberty of the streets, certainly realized that somebody had come to town, for from the Battery to Mott Haven and from the North River to the East River the Christian Endeavorers and the convention badges were noticeably conspicuous.

New York city has many notable attractions entirely its own, which are calculated to and do draw large crowds continually, and it has also been the scene of many large assemblies, city, State, national and international, but these for the most part have been attended with parade, and show, and brass bands, and those things especially intended to attract and entertain the mass of the populace, but last week it witnessed a spectacle never before known in the history of the great commercial centre—the assembling of 30,000 delegates at a convention, unattended by parade, void of show, and free from noise—a multitude drawn together not by these usual concomitants of monster demonstrations, but a multitude drawn by the influence of that "still, small voice", by the sympathies of Christian brotherhood, and by that matchless conception of life's object—for Christ and the church.

History records no instance of the congregation of such a multitude by means of invisible and inaudible attractions. What a visible testimony it was to the marvelous power of the invisible hope that is within us!

But this prayer was not answered solely by the recognized presence of our fellow members in the great city as a whole, for individual localities yielded to the conscious influence of this refined presence.

One of the most noteworthy instances in illustration of this fact, was the scene enacted within the walls of the Stock Exchange last Monday at noon. At this time the galleries of the Exchange were filled with delegates from abroad, who were on their tour of inspection of the sights of the city, and upon the arrival of the noon hour the members upon the floor voiced forth in Gospel song their salutation to their guests.

The brokers were sure of winning favor, when for their first song they caught up that famous melody which won for its author so great an ovation upon his introduction before the Raikes Centennial held in London a few years ago, and when they sang the accompanying words which have not only circled the globe but which reach out into the very portal of the great beyond, "Shall We Gather at the River". I hope that the author, who is now traveling in Europe, may soon learn of this use of his beloved hymn. It is needless to name in this presence as the author of this inspiring hymn, our beloved and honored fellow-townsman, the Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D.

The ties that bind in national brotherhood were expressed in our national hymn, "America", and then followed "Nearer My God to Thee", as though those business men would say, this is the prayer we would voice forth in song, for you Endeavorers, by your consistent conduct, and by your earnest devotion, have taught it us.

It is not to be inferred that these songs had to be specially learned for the occasion, and for the first time, by the members on 'Change, but it was a remarkable tribute to the religion of the Cross as represented by the Christian Endeavor delegates, and the reverberation of those walls with gospel song was in marked contrast to the usual babel of buying and selling stocks.

So not only the crowded thoroughfare, but also the busy marts of trade were permeated with the subtle influence of noble and high endeavor, and who can estimate the number who were inspired to a higher and nobler life, even among those who only touched the great convention on its extreme outskirts.

But what of us who were permitted to be associated more directly with its proceedings? Surely it failed of accomplishing its purpose in us if we did not receive this same inspiration to higher, nobler, broader and more consecrated Christian living.

But we would bear testimony to the power for good that is exerted by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor not only upon the individual life and the life of the great city, but also upon the life of the church and the world.

Until within a very few years, the cry of alarm has sounded forth from the middle-aged and aged members of the church: What will become of the church when we have passed beyond the stage of its activities and have lain down life's burdens? And there was reason for this cry; but what of this alarm since the organization of the Society of Christian Endeavor?

This society numbers within its ranks 22,000 local societies and 1,370,200 souls quivering with young, active, consecrated life, and who, marshalled under the banner of the cross, are moving boldly forward against the ramparts of sin.

Within the past year 120,000 of its members have risen to the higher plane of membership in the church of God. This record has no parallel in Christian history.

What of the future of the church? The future of the church is assured so long as the individual members of these societies remain true to their pledge, loyal to the local society, loyal to the local church, loyal to the denomination, and above all, loyal to Christ, the great Head of the church.

And now, finally, what of the world? Could we all have been present in that great auditorium at the final consecration service, and heard the testimonies of the delegates from every State in our union, from Mexico, and from England, Scotland, France, Spain, Russia, Persia, Syria, China, Africa, Tarsus and the Isles of the Sea, hope would have revived, fears would have been quelled, and we would have felt as we gazed along the distant horizon that we could already begin to see the dawn of that blessed day when all the kingdoms of this world shall have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ.

Fellow Endeavorers! "One is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren". When will the Master declare his followers off duty? Not until in His name they accomplish this mission: The world for Christ!

Pawnee Bill's Combined Shows.

As will be seen by reference to the advertising columns, Plainfield is to be favored with these shows, now in popular combination, comprising a genuine Wild West, Indian village, Indian museum, Mexican Hippodrome and exposition of trained animals, headed by the guide, scout, U. S. interpreter and Oklahoma hero, Major G. Wm. Lillie (Pawnee Bill), with his own company. Genuine and true—it is said. His Indians are Indians, his Mexicans are Mexicans, his cow boys are cow boys, his vaqueros are vaqueros, and so on through the long list of genuine attractions. Would you see the Indian as he was in his might; would you see him in sage brush covered plains; in the valleys of the Rocky Mountain range? If so, you may, by witnessing one exhibition of Pawnee Bill's historical Wild West, in conjunction with his Mexican hippodrome and trained animal show, combining many new and imposing features, namely: Miss May Lillie, the 19th century Diana, champion girl horseback rifle shot of the world—absolutely without a rival. Dot Pullman, on the running globe up and down inclines and spirals. Senor Jose Valasques, riding and driving 35 horses at one time. Thrilling hippodrome races, by a corps of senors and senoritas; trained animals, a herd of buffaloes and drove of long horned Texas steers, 500 animate and inanimate curiosities, and pyrotechnic display, making one of the biggest exhibitions that ever appeared in this city. A free street parade will take place at 12:30 p. m. One 25-cent ticket admits to all the departments of the show. Children, under 9, only 10 cents to the afternoon performance.

Twenty Years' Experience.

C. D. Fredricks, the well-known photographer, 70 Broadway, New York, says: "I have been using ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS for 20 years, and found them one of the best of family medicines. Briefly summing up my experience, I say that when placed on the small of the back ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS fill the body with nervous energy, and thus cure fatigue, brain exhaustion debility and kidney difficulties. For women and children I have found them invaluable. They never irritate the skin or cause the slightest pain, but cure sore throat, coughs, colds, pains in side, back or chest, indigestion and bowel complaints."

DR. SCUDDER'S TRAGIC SUICIDE.

Senator Evarts's Son-in-Law Killed by a Dagger Thrust in the Heart.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

NORTHPORT, L. I., July 19.—Dr. Chas. D. Scudder, son of the late Henry J. Scudder and son-in-law of Senator William M. Evarts, committed suicide at this place this morning in an extraordinary manner. Dr. Scudder, who had been in ill health for some time, came to Northport yesterday, with an attendant, from his home, 1 East Thirty-third street, New York city, to stay for a few weeks at the Scudder homestead for the benefit of his health. When he got off of the train at the station he muttered to himself and made wild gesticulations with his hands. He was quickly put into a carriage and driven to the old Scudder mansion. The family did not deny that Dr. Scudder was suffering from temporary aberation of the mind caused by overstudy. He was considerably excited when he reached the Scudder house, but became more quiet after dinner. His attendant watched him until he went to bed.

The household was much alarmed this morning when it was learned that Dr. Scudder had managed to escape from his room at about 6 a. m. A search was immediately made for him, the servants and the members of the Scudder family going in every direction and making inquiries for the missing man. Dr. Scudder's attendant got trace of his master but before he could overtake him Dr. Scudder had fallen to the ground after plunging a dagger in his heart. It is believed that he died almost instantly.

The remarkable suicide caused much excitement in the village, and a large number of persons soon flocked to the scene of the tragedy.

Dr. Scudder was about thirty-five years old, and had a promising career as a physician. He leaves a wife, whose maiden name was Louisa Evarts. The latter and her seven-year-old daughter are now at Mr. Evarts's country home in Windsor, Vt. Despatches have been sent there and to Dr. Scudder's home in New York city conveying information of his suicide.

BIG BLAZE AT LONG BRANCH.

Half-Naked Guests Driven Out of Doors by a Hotel Fire.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

LONG BRANCH, July 19.—Considerable consternation among residents at Long Branch was occasioned at 3 this morning by a fire which broke out in the old Atlantic Hotel, at the corner of Ocean and Pavilion avenues. There was much excitement when the guests, numbering about 150, were awakened by the smoke and smell of burning wood, and many persons ran out of the hotel in their night clothes. Fortunately no lives were lost, nor was any serious accident reported, though the hotel was almost totally destroyed. Some of the guests lost thousands of dollars in diamonds and jewelry. Most of the imperilled people had all their clothing consumed.

The guests numbered about 300. A few of them were more or less hurt in the panic that ensued after the discovery of the fire. Some who, in a panic, leaped from the windows and porches of the hotel, were badly shaken up, and one, Mrs. Henry Englemann of New York city, had her arm fractured. Many of the others received scalp wounds. The fire was caused by an overheated range in the kitchen.

DEATH OF THOMAS COOK.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

LONDON, July 19.—Thomas Cook, founder of Cook's excursions, died to-day from paralysis. He was born at Melbourne, in Derbyshire, England, November 22, 1808. His parentage was humble. At the age of ten he left school and began to work for himself. He accumulated a large fortune by industry and economical living.

Dunellen Doings.

J. B. Cloos of Brooklyn is visiting friends in town.

Joseph H. Johnston has returned to his old quarters for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tinsman of Newark visited friends in Dunellen Sunday.

The Christian Endeavor society are to meet next Thursday to appoint committees for their excursion, up the Hudson, Aug. 10.

The M. E. Sunday-school started to Papiac this morning on a picnic. They had four stageloads, besides a number of carriages.

A large number of Plainfield bicyclers visited the residence of Mr. Rider one evening last week, by invitation, the occasion being a barn dance. The place was beautifully decorated with Chinese lanterns and flags, and presented a most attractive appearance. Music was furnished by Johnston.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

BREWSTER'S SCARS.

A Thrillingly Dramatic Incident in a Philadelphia Courtroom.

"Ten or twelve years ago I witnessed the most dramatic situation of my life in a Philadelphia courtroom," said Henry J. Erskine, of the Quaker city, to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter. "It occurred during the trial of an important suit involving certain franchise rights of the Pennsylvania railroad in Philadelphia. Benjamin Brewster, afterwards attorney general of the United States, was then the chief counsel of the Pennsylvania company. Brewster, you know, was a frightfully ugly man on account of a terrible disfiguration of his face from burns, but intellectually he was a giant and in deportment a Chesterfield. So great was the admiration for the man's powerful mental parts that one soon forgot his ugliness. He was extremely sensitive of his facial misfortune, but never referred to it himself nor did any of his thousands of friends ever ask him its cause. The trial to which I refer was a bitterly contested affair, and Brewster at every point got so much the best of the opposing counsel that by the time arguments commenced his leading adversary was in a white heat. In denouncing the railroad company this lawyer, with his voice tremulous with anger, exclaimed: 'This grasping corporation is as dark, devious and scarified in its methods as is the face of its chief attorney and henchman, Benjamin Brewster!'

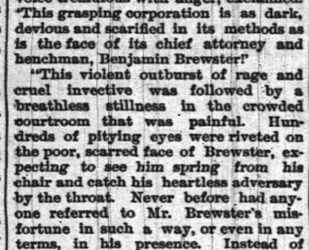
"This violent outburst of rage and cruel invective was followed by a breathless stillness in the crowded courtroom that was painful. Hundreds of pitying eyes were riveted on the poor, scarred face of Brewster, expecting to see him spring from his chair and catch his heartless adversary by the throat. Never before had anyone referred to Mr. Brewster's misfortune in such a way, or even in any terms, in his presence. Instead of springing at the man and killing him like a dog, as the audience thought was his desert, Mr. Brewster slowly arose and spoke something like this to the court: 'Your honor, in all my career as a lawyer I have never dealt in personalities; nor did I ever before feel called upon to explain the cause of my physical misfortune, but I will do so now. When a boy—and my mother, God bless her, said I was a pretty boy—when a little boy, while playing around an open fire one day with a little sister just beginning to toddle, she fell into the roaring flames. I rushed to her rescue, pulled her out before she was seriously hurt, and fell into the fire myself. When they took me out of the coals my face was as black as that man's heart.' The last sentence was spoken in a voice whose rage was that of a lion. It had an electrical effect, and the applause that greeted it was superb, but in an instant turned to the most contemptuous hisses, directed at the lawyer who had so cruelly wronged the great and lovable Brewster. That lawyer's practice in Philadelphia afterwards dwindled to such insignificance that he had to leave the city for a new field."

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Gratifying Progress Reported by the Managers of the Enterprise.

Work on the state buildings is progressing very favorably and considerable of a showing is made. Good appropriations are at the disposal of the state managers and an excellent display is promised from each.

In response to the thousands of invitations to distinguished persons to attend the exposition dedicatory ceremonies next October the acceptance thus far has been almost unanimous. Among those who will be present are the president and his entire cabinet, the members of the supreme court, nearly every foreign minister at Washington, governors of the different states, members of congress and special representatives of foreign nations.



COLORADO WORLD'S FAIR BUILDING.

The exposition is deriving quite a revenue from the visitors whose curiosity prompts them to see the grounds and the wonderful buildings now approaching completion. An admission of 25 cents is charged, and on single days the number of visitors has exceeded 14,000. With warmer and more pleasant weather it is believed the visitors will be much more numerous. Without exception all are enthusiastic in their admiration and wonder at the magnificent spectacle.

The magnitude of the French exhibit at the exposition can be surmised from the fact that in the calculations as to its transportation to Chicago it is estimated that it will aggregate fully 3,000 tons. The exhibit, it is unnecessary to explain, will consist chiefly of works of art and manufactures of the finer and lighter description, and will include very little in the way of heavy articles, such as machinery.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

DEMOCRACY'S LEADERS

The Two Men Nominated by the Chicago Convention.

Brief Biographies of Grover Cleveland and Adlai E. Stevenson — The Ex-President's Popular Wife—Stevenson's Record.

Grover Cleveland was born fifty-five years ago in New Jersey. His educational opportunities were at that time limited, and when fourteen years old he removed with his parents to Fayetteville, N. Y., where he began his career as a clerk in a store. Then came an opportunity for Grover to attend a local academy and it was here he received training that later in life led him to adopt the legal profession. Drifting westward, he became a student in a law office at Buffalo, N. Y., and in May, 1850, he was admitted to the bar. His industry and evident ability led to his appointment as assistant district attorney when only twenty-five years of age. Then followed in sequence of official terms of office his election to the post of sheriff of Erie county in 1870, mayor of Buffalo in 1881, governor of New York in 1882, president of the United States in 1884. His first Waterloo came in 1888, when, nominated for a second term at the white house by the St. Louis convention, he was defeated by President Harrison by sixty-five electoral votes.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

During the earlier part of his administration Mr. Cleveland was wedded to Miss Frances Folsom, of Buffalo, N. Y. The story of how the ex-president wooed and won his bride is somewhat romantic. She was the daughter of Cleveland's former law partner. It is said that Miss Folsom became engaged to Mr. Cleveland about the time he began his term as president. He had always held her in fond regard since the time he trotted her on his knee when she was a little girl. He treasured her picture all through the days of his bachelorhood. Frances Folsom Cleveland added vastly to the luster of Grover Cleveland's administration, endearing herself almost to the extent of being idolized by a large part of the American people. In October, 1891, a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland. They named the child Ruth.

Adlai E. Stevenson, the nominee for vice president, is a resident of Bloomington, Ill. He was born in Christianson, Ky., October 23, 1835. He attended Center college at Danville, Ky., and when sixteen years of age removed with his father's family to Bloomington, Ill.,

ADLAI E. STEVENSON.

where he studied law and was admitted to the bar. In 1859 he located in Metamora, Woodford county, Ill., and engaged in the practice of his profession, remaining there for ten years. In 1864 he was named as the presidential elector for the district. In 1869 he returned to Bloomington, forming a law partnership with J. S. Ewery which still exists. He was elected to congress by the democrats of the Bloomington district in 1874, although the district has always been strongly republican. In 1876 his party again nominated him for congress but he was defeated. He was nominated a third time in 1878 and was elected. He was a delegate to the national convention of 1884 and was appointed first assistant postmaster general by President Cleveland. At the close of Cleveland's administration he returned to Bloomington. In 1877 President Hayes appointed Mr. Stevenson a member of the board to inspect the military academy at West Point. The recent Illinois state convention elected him one of the delegates at large to the national convention. He was serving in that capacity when nominated for the vice presidency.

A Queer Legend of Tailed Men.

When a native Hollander wants to show his hatred for an Englishman he simply refers to him as a "steert man"—in other words, "The man with a tail." The legend says that Thomas a Becket cursed the Kentishmen who spitefully cut off the tail of his horse while he was riding the animal through that country, and that the entire generation of Kent which followed wore tails like those of horses. John Bale, Edward VI.'s bishop of Ossory, mentions the legend, but gives some variations in the cause of the ignoble punishment. He says John Capgrave and Alexander of Esseby sayeth that "for castinge fyshe tayles at St. Augustine, Dorsetshyre men had tayles ever after that." But Polydorus applies it to Kentish men at Stroud, by Rochester, "for cuttinge off Thomas a Becket's horse's tayle." One account says that only those living in Kent at the time of the curse were "afflicted with large drooping tayles like brutes; their posterity being not so affected."

ROUMANIA'S QUEEN.

Princess, She Says, Should Woo and Marry the Girls They Love.

The queen of Roumania, Carmen Sylva, has come from Palanza to her castle Wied, at New Wied, on the Rhine. King Oscar, of Sweden, visited her there a few days ago. He found her still shattered in health, but well enough to read to him her last poem, contrasting the happiness of Prince Oscar's unroyal wife with the misery of Mlle. Vacaresco, the young woman who tried to capture Crown Prince Ferdinand, of Roumania, but has been condemned to seeing diplomacy carry him off and engage him to Princess Marie, of Edinburgh.

QUEEN OF ROUMANIA.

The queen still bemoans the disappointed love of her favorite lady-in-waiting, and has not been reconciled to her husband since he utterly refused, upon the advice of his cabinet, to countenance the match between Mlle. Vacaresco and the crown prince. The queen informed the Swedish king that she was writing a long poem, in which she would depict the sorrows of Mlle. Vacaresco, the disappointment of Crown Prince Ferdinand over the thwarting of his first true love and the advantages of allowing princes, like other men, to follow their own bent in selecting their wives, as did Prince Oscar, of Sweden.

Princess Marie, of Edinburgh, will hardly be edified by reading in this poem when it shall appear that her future husband is supposed to love still another woman.

It Will Be Modeled After the Old Colonial Plantation House.

Plans for the Louisiana world's fair building have just been completed. The style of the structure will be the old colonial plantation house. A great many works of art by Louisianians have been collected and will form a feature of an exhibit to be placed in the building. Lumbermen of the state have practically agreed to furnish the building material, but it appears that a great deal of money will have to be raised by private subscription before the erection of the pavilion will be assured.

Senator Vance as a Humorist.

Senator Vance has the reputation of being a humorist. It is a fatal reputation. "Sunset" Cox used to say that it ruined his future. As Mr. Vance has no ambition beyond the senate, and as humorous speeches there have made him rather popular with his people, he can afford to be "funny." Senator Gray spent part of last summer abroad. Mrs. Gray accompanied him. On a steamboat on Lake Lucerne he encountered Senator Vance, who came up behind him as he stood near the rail and, touching him on the shoulder, greeted him most cordially. When the usual greetings had passed between them, Senator Vance asked: "Well, as Sandy said, are you traveling for pleasure or is the good wife along?" Senator Gray's embarrassment will be understood when it is known that Mrs. Gray sat within three feet of him, an amused listener to the conversation.

Not Obliged to Believe Everything.

The dean of Norwich in a recent speech told this story to illustrate the new criticism as it appears among the middle classes: A worthy timber merchant announced that he was relieved to find that he need not believe literally the various passages in the Bible which he had often proved to be impossible. Being pressed to name one of these passages, he mentioned the ark. It was, he understood, 450 feet long, 70 feet broad, and 45 feet high, and was filled with live animals. He was convinced, therefore, that the Israelites could not have carried it about with them for forty years!

A Return Blow on Butler.

Henry Durant, the founder of Wellesley college for women, and a very well known lawyer in New England, studied law in Butler's office when a young man, and was admitted to the bar on his recommendation. On one occasion Butler and Durant were opponents in a case, and the contest was very heated. Butler suddenly turned to the court and said: "It is the chief regret of my life that I recommended that young man for admission to the bar." Durant, as quick as a flash, replied: "Your honor, it is the great wonder of my life that his recommendation had any weight with the court."

Air Pressure at the Cannon's Mouth.

Experiments, our correspondent says, were made during the last trial trip of the armed cruiser Beowulf to determine the air-pressure at the mouth of a gun at the moment of discharge. Rabbits were placed near the muzzles of the guns, and shots fired. In every case the animals fell dead at once. In order to test the probable effects of the enormous displacement of air upon human beings, figures made of straw were used. These were torn to pieces in every instance. The trials were made with long-bored twenty-four centimeter ring guns.

AT WORK IN THE MILLS

Repairs Begun Preparatory to Active Operations.

GOVERNOR PATTISON ON THE SCENE

He Will Remain Several Days and Inspect the Troops—More Warrants for Men Engaged in the Riot—About 175 Non-Union Men Working in the Armor Plate Mill—Warrants to Be Procured for Carnegie, Frick and Others On Charges of Treason and Murder—McLuckie to Have a Hearing To-day—O'Donnell Expected to Return Hourly—A Report that He Is Going to Europe.

HOMESTEAD, July 20.—For the first time since the present lock-out began the Carnegie Company has made a pretense of starting its mills here. It was something of a surprise to Homestead people to see smoke issuing from the armor plate mill, but they were still more surprised when the big whistle was blown for dinner hour. The full power of the whistle was not put in operation, but the people recognized the old-time sound and many of them looked down toward the entrance of the works to see if gangs of workmen were not pouring out on their several ways to dinner. But none came.

There were workmen inside the works, however, and they were pursuing their duties in a business like manner, seemingly without thought that an armed guard was necessary to protect them. These men were brought into the works secretly by the company within the past week. They came a few at a time until yesterday, when the company succeeded in getting in a number of workers sufficient to guarantee the starting up of the armor plate mill.

Some of the men were probably landed at the mill between sunset and daybreak by the Little Bill under the protection of the military. Later in the day the Tide, a small, stern-wheel tug, brought a number of men up the Monongahela from the direction of Pittsburg and landed them at the works. There were about 30 in the party and all went into the armor-plate mill. The company is believed to have about 175 men at work in the armor-plate mill. Included among these are five steel workers, believed to have been brought from the works of the company at Braddock.

All the men in the mill are, of course, non-union. They are engaged in making repairs preliminary to the commencement of work on the contracts with the Federal Government delayed by the lock-out, and it is probable that the company is making every effort to secure the service of men for the steel working department, so that work on the contracts may be begun without delay when the repairs are all completed.

The starting of the mills, following the issuance of warrants for leaders of the strike, has shown the members of the Advisory Committee the determination of the Carnegie Company officials, but they do not appear to be downcast at the presence of non-union men in the places of Homestead workmen. Members of the committee insist that non-union men can never run the Homestead mills because of their ignorance in the technical branches of iron and steel making required to make successful the manufacture of the improved product of the plant.

The members of the Amalgamated Association have practically decided to apply for warrants for Mr. Frick, Andrew Carnegie and others, but are still in consultation with counsel as to whether the warrants if sworn out for murder and treason will hold good. They are determined to offset the action of the company's officials by obtaining these warrants, if possible, and the men are confident that they will succeed.

They claim that case against the officials of the company is much stronger than that of the latter against any of the individuals who are now wanted by the constables. They claim that Andrew Carnegie and Mr. Frick are responsible for sending an armed body of men into the State without legal authority, and can be held for treason on this charge, and are also responsible as accessories before the fact for the manslaughter which followed.

They hope to secure the extradition of Andrew Carnegie and bring him to Pittsburg for trial. The delay in making informations against Mr. Carnegie and his superintendents is said to be due to the hesitancy of W. J. Brennan, counsel of the Association, in advising such a course until permanent counsel has been secured for the coming battle in the courts.

It was rumored that General Butler and ex-Gov. Hoadley had been retained by the men to manage their case, but this was denied by the men themselves. The programme of the men now is to engage the best legal talent obtainable and to prosecute the Carnegie people criminally and, as one of them remarked, put them to the expense of a heavy legal fight.

No attempt has yet been made to serve warrants on the five men in Homestead who, with John McLuckie and Hugh O'Donnell, are charged with murder committed on the day the Pinkertons were repulsed. Constable Webber, one of the trio sent out by Alderman McMasters of Pittsburg to arrest the five men wanted, came to Homestead early in the afternoon with subpœnas for people whose evidence is wanted at the hearing Burgess McLuckie will receive in Pittsburg to-day. This duty was accomplished without trouble.

When the subpœnas had been served Constable Webber went back to Pittsburg without having attempted to arrest Ross Critchlow, Flannagan, Burkett or Flaherty. These five men are to be seen about the streets of Homestead apparently indifferent to the serious charge made against them.

The accused men have decided to evade arrest until after the McLuckie hearing to-day. If the Burgess is admitted to bail they will immediately surrender and ask release under bond on the same grounds as those asked by McLuckie. They have not made any decision as to what they will do if bail is refused the Burgess, but it is probable that they will ultimately place themselves in custody.

Hugh O'Donnell's friends say they expect him back in Homestead to-day. The fact that a warrant for his arrest has been issued must be known to him by this time, and his many admirers here contend that he is not the kind of a man who would run away at this critical time.

Gov. Pattison inspected all the Second Brigade that is stationed on this side of the river yesterday. He expressed himself as very much pleased with the appearance of the troops. He was the guest at supper last evening of the City Troop of Philadelphia. To-day he will inspect the Third Brigade.

Eight warrants were issued yesterday at Pittsburg for the arrest of more of the men.

A large crowd began to gather around the office of Alderman McMasters at an early hour and the Alderman himself put in an appearance considerably earlier than usual in expectation that some of the men against whom warrants are out would come in and surrender.

But as the hours wore on it became evident that the much wanted men had no such intention, and this was confirmed shortly after Judge McGee had set the hearing on the question of bail for Mr. McLuckie over for a day, when word was received to the effect that Ross and his associates would keep under cover until the hearing had taken place, when they would appear of their own volition and accompanied by bondsmen.

No additional information had been laid against any of the strikers, although the alderman intimated that he might have some work in that line on hand within a few hours.

It is reported that many more non-union men will be brought in to-day.

THE RIOT LAWS.

A Prominent Lawyer Thinks the Men are Guilty of Murder.

PITTSBURG, July 20.—The attorneys for the strikers against whom the proceedings for murder have been instituted have spent a great deal of time in looking up the State laws relating to riot.

On this point a leading member of the bar of this city, and who for years has made a comprehensive study of the statutes relating to the unlawful assemblages, has this to say:

"All riot laws are based upon the point of law found in the charge of Judge King of Philadelphia to the jury in the Catholic riot cases in 1844.

"The Judge, after citing the facts in the case said in substance, that everybody who was present during a riot, participating, aiding or abetting it in any way, was guilty of felonious riot, and should a death be caused by the riot, he would be guilty of murder in the first degree.

"Since this charge was made, all riot rulings have followed the law laid down in this charge.

"In the riot trials of 1867, this charge was cited as authority, and in the present case it applies even more forcibly.

"In my opinion, the men who participated in the riot at Homestead are guilty of the most felonious riot I have ever met with in all my experience.

"Take for instance the tearing down of the Sheriff's proclamation and sending away of his deputies right in defiance of the law. Then they not only assembled, but assembled in cold blood with arms and by arranged and preconcerted signals.

GOV. PATTISON ON THE SCENE.

He Will Remain in Homestead Several Days—Brigade Inspection.

HOMESTEAD, July 20—The booming of cannon a few minutes after 9 o'clock announced to the citizens of the borough of Homestead that Gov. Pattison had arrived.

A large crowd had gathered at the Homestead depot and several trains from Pittsburg were watched in vain. Rain was falling steadily and it was a very disagreeable morning for the Governor to make his entry.

The Governor's private car was switched off at Munhall station and the Governor went through the Carnegie mill to the hotel opposite the entrance. The Governor's presence was not discovered for some little time. Finally word was sent to headquarters and the brass ten-pounders in front of Gen. Snowden's headquarters responded with a salute of seventeen guns. While this was in progress, the head of the State Government was being driven up the steep hill in an open carriage. The cavalry acted as an escort.

Gen. Snowden was at headquarters awaiting the arrival of his chief.

The Governor is expected to remain in camp for several days as both the Second and Third brigades are to be inspected.

Comfortable tents have been erected for the Governor and his staff near the division headquarters.

Efforts to Secure McLuckie's Release.

PITTSBURG, July 20.—Attorneys W. J. Brennan and J. J. Cox, the legal representatives of the Amalgamated Association, appeared in that branch of the Criminal Court presided over by Judge Chris Magee, shortly after 10 a. m. and filed an application for the release on bail of Burgess McLuckie. After a brief consultation with the attorneys, the Court decided to hear the application on its merits to-day.

Is O'Donnell to Bail for Europe?

PITTSBURG, July 20.—A rumor is being circulated here that Hugh O'Donnell will sail for Europe to-day. According to the rumor, which has not yet been verified, Owen Murphy, a friend of O'Donnell's, recently sold out his business at Homestead for a large sum of money and went to New York, where he was joined by O'Donnell, and the two are to make a tour of Ireland, O'Donnell going as Murphy's guest.

Skilled Workmen for Homestead.

PITTSBURG, July 20.—It is reported that the Carnegie Company has secured three highly skilled non-union men from the Black Diamond Steel Mills here for their armor plate mill at Homestead. Their names are given as Robert Baumgartner, a roller; Robert Solomon, a screw-down hand, and Jack Hood, a heater.

More Troops Ordered to Homestead.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—It is stated here that the First Brigade, which has been in camp at Mount Gretna for the past ten days, has been ordered to Homestead.

DEFEATED IN THE HOUSE.

The $5,000,000 Appropriation Amendment Voted Down—Sunday Closing.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—In anticipation of the vote on the World's Fair appropriation there was quite a full attendance of members in the House.

On motion of Mr. McMillan (Dem., Tenn.) the resolution fixing adjournment on the 25th inst., reported by the Committee on Ways and Means, was laid over for the present.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, Mr. Lester (Dem. Ga.) in the chair, the pending amendment being the appropriation for the World's Fair.

The House then proceeded to vote on the amendments offered. The increase made by the Senate in the appropriation for Government exhibits from $818,500 to $500,000 was disagreed to; also to all increases of the Senate relating to the World's Columbian Exposition.

When the $5,000,000 souvenir coin clause was reached, Mr. Atkinson (Rep., Pa.) offered an amendment forbidding any use of the appropriation until satisfactory proof is given by the Fair authorities that no intoxicating liquors shall be sold, except for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes. Defeated, yeas 41, nays 189.

An amendment was offered by Mr. Patterson (Dem., Tenn.) and voted down, appropriating $50,000 for statistical information regarding the moral, religious, and educational development of the colored race.

Mr. O'Neill (Rep., Pa.) endeavored to have the $5,000,000 voted as a loan to be paid back, before any other indebtedness, and also to divert $1,500,000 of this amount to be refunded to stockholders of the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876. These propositions were voted down.

The vote now recurred on the Senate proposition appropriating $5,000,000. On a viva voce vote this was defeated—yeas, 68; noes, 132. Tellers were then ordered.

The vote by tellers, Messrs. Hooker of New York and Halman acting as tellers, was: yeas, 91; noes, 116.

On a viva voce vote on concurring in the Senate amendment to close the Fair on Sunday was carried, 78 to 74. Tellers were then ordered.

The vote by tellers on concurring in the amendment, was 103 yeas, 73 nays. Announcement received with applause.

The appropriation of $45,000 for 50,000 bronze medals and diplomas was agreed to in Committee of the Whole.

PARADE OF THE WHEELMEN.

Five Thousand Strong They Pass the White House Before the President.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Not daunted by the threatening clouds and slight rain the League of American Wheelmen carried out their programme of a grand parade with about five thousand wheelmen in line.

When the procession reached the White House, headed by the Overman Wheel Band, also mounted on bicycles, the President had not left his office, and some three hundred wheelmen passed under the arch of the White House before the President arrived.

The President stood on a Turkish rug in the center of the portico, looking towards Lafayette Park. To the left of President Harrison stood President Burlette of the League of American Wheelmen, and to the left of him stood Col. Ernest, Superintendent of Public Buildings.

The first to pass in review of the President was the bicycle-mounted military company of the National Guard of the District of Columbia, which acted as escort for the parade; then came the visiting clubs, arranged by States.

They made a grand panorama as they passed the President with their neat and trim costumes and gaily decorated machines, many riders being literally covered with the various badges which they had "swapped" for.

The wheelmen were evidently out for fun and carried everything possible that would add to the hilarity prevailing. Some had cow-bells, many had gorgeously colored Japanese umbrellas, and nearly all carried flags.

One of the most attractive features of the parade was the very large number of lady riders.

Mr. Bennett of Shickshinny, Pa., was accompanied by his two sons, one-aged eight and the other two and a half years. The little tots, on his miniature wheel, kept up with the procession throughout.

HE WILL NOT RESIGN.

The Commissioner of Pensions Intends to Stick to His Place.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Commissioner of Pensions Raum denies in the most emphatic manner the statement that he had resigned his position as Commissioner of Pensions, to take effect August 1.

General Raum said he had not resigned and did not intend to resign his office now or at any other time. He will leave Washington in a day or two for Caldwell, O., where he is to deliver an address to a soldiers' reunion next week, after which he will take a vacation for several weeks.

No New Trial for Fales.

NEWARK, N. J., July 20.—Chancellor McGill has denied the application for a new trial in the case of Robert Alden Fales, the 16-year-old boy who was convicted of the murder of Thomas Haydon, in this city. The boy murderer's counsel, as a last resort, will apply to Gov. Abbett and the Court of Pardons to commute the prisoner's sentence to imprisonment for 20 years.

COWHIDED HER FORMER HUSBAND.

Mrs. John Hueston of Newark, N. J., Creates a Sensation.

NEWARK, N. J., July 20.—Mrs. John Hueston has been trying her best to stop the marriage of her divorced husband to Miss Fannie Leach, of Newburyport, Mass., but despite her efforts, the couple were united.

Yesterday Mrs. Hueston went to a Police Justice and asked that officers be sent to St. Paul's Episcopal Church to stop the wedding.

The justice inquired into the matter, and found that Hueston was divorced from his wife, but that she did not know it, and so the justice declined to interfere.

Mrs. Hueston then decided to take the matter into her own hands, and she purchased a rawhide and last evening she stood out in front of the church and waited for the couple to put in an appearance.

Hueston, however, had learned that divorced people could not be married in an Episcopal church, and so he went to a Methodist church and was married.

After Mrs. Hueston found that she had been foiled in her attempt to whip her divorced husband, she went to his home, where the bride and groom had repaired after the ceremony. Mrs. Hueston called her husband out into the street, where she gave him a severe cowhiding. A sympathetic crowd collected, who wanted to tar and feather Hueston, but he finally escaped into the house.

George Shiras, third, a son of the newly appointed Justice, is active in politics in Western Pennsylvania and is credited with bringing about the investigation in Allegheny City politics which resulted in the conviction of the Mayor and other officials.

During a campaign a few years ago George Shiras, third, was ridiculed on account of the "Englishism" to his name, and was defeated. His father was then known as George Shiras, second, but he has recently adopted the signature of George Shiras, jr.

ALICE MITCHELL'S TRIAL.

Testimony Showing That Insanity Was Inherent in the Family.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 20.—The second day's proceedings in the Alice Mitchell trial were witnessed by a large crowd. The deposition of Juliet Bishop of Brookville, Ind., was read. She is Mrs. Mitchell's step-daughter, and testified that Mrs. Mitchell once made an effort to kill her. So strong was her resentment that Mrs. Bishop was compelled to leave home.

A number of depositions were read showing the insanity of Mrs. Mitchell's relatives. Dr. Thomas Griswold Comstock of St. Louis treated Mrs. Mitchell in St. Louis when she was suffering from acute mania. He said that heredity was probably the original cause of insanity and asserted that it was more potential from a mother to a daughter than otherwise.

Robert Mitchell, Alice's half-brother, testified that he searched her room after the tragedy and found in it tops, marbles, baseballs, etc. She also had a rose sent her by Freda and several letters. He always noticed that Alice acted like a boy.

From the tenor of the letters that passed between Freda Ward and Alice Mitchell, one is led to the conclusion that each was infatuated with the other, and that Alice loved Freda as man loves woman and Freda loved Alice as woman regards man. The letters written by both the young women were made public on the witness-stand and their contents were astounding.

If Alice is crazy so was Freda, because the emotions and mentality of both were alike.

A prominent physician, discussing the case from a scientific standpoint, said the story of these two girls gave rise to a problem for psychologists, viz—Can one woman love another as a man without being insane, and when this love is reciprocated are not both insane?

FROM A BURNING HOTEL.

Narrow Escape of Guests at Long Branch—Valuables Stolen.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 20.—The Atlantic Hotel, at the corner of Ocean and Chelsea avenues, was almost totally destroyed by fire at 5:30 a. m.

There were nearly three hundred guests in the hotel at the time, and a panic ensued.

In their anxiety to reach the street many of the guests leaped from the windows and several were hurt.

Many others were carried out by the firemen.

All escaped in their night clothes and lost their valuable wardrobes.

Upwards of $30,000 worth of jewelry is missing from the various bedrooms, and it is thought to have been stolen.

The fire started in the bakery, spread to the main building, and thence to the northern portion.

The hotel, which is owned by Percy R. Dobbins, of Dobbins & Loeb, New York, was completely gutted and will prove a total loss.

The furniture was owned by M. Lustig, the manager of the hotel, and very little of it was saved.

Joseph Kirby, a resident of Long Branch and a member of the West End Fire Company, was arrested on a charge of stealing silverware and other valuables from the burning hotel.

He denied the charge, but was looked up.

PLAINFIELD PLUNGERS IN THE SURF.

A Great Surprise Party at Squan Inlet, Followed by the Biggest Catch of the Season.

MANASQUAN, N. J., July 20.—Dr. Frank Herbert of Plainfield invited a number of his friends to accompany him to Equan Inlet on a fishing and crabbing tour, promising great sport and plenty of game of the finny tribe, as well as a chance shot at snipe, which he stated were flying low.

The invitation was accepted by the veteran Andrew Love and son, Charles Bock, and Charles Johnson, all of Plainfield; and Col. C. K. Moore of Fanwood, accompanied by the Crescent League mascot. Upon arriving at Manasquan, Sunday morning, fully equipped for slaughter of feathers and fins, the party was driven to "Camp Herbert" on the beach at the intersection of the Inlet. Dr. Frank had previously announced "just a stag party". What, then, was the surprise of his guests to find themselves received by "Major-Gen'l" O. C. Herbert, commander of the camp, who with his wife greeted the delegation most cordially. But the greatest surprise was to come, when, on entering, the visitors were surrounded by a bevy of ladies with their husbands and children, who, in following the example of their seniors, placed all at their ease.

The day was quietly spent, and the hours were interspersed with religious devotions. One of the party was delegated by the "Commander" to remain on watch all night, the camp fearing an attack from sharks. Nothing was disturbed, however, with the exception of the little mascot, who had his hammock dropped by an unknown; and the "veteran", not being able to remain in his, until it was lowered to the ground. (Sailors' hammocks are treacherous.)

Two of the gentlemen, leaving camp in the morning for their city offices, after careful deliberation decided to request the Colonel to be responsible for the welfare of their wives and children. Considerable jealousy was thereafter manifested by the fair ones, as to which received the greatest attention. Monday morning a crabbing expedition was in order, and the youngest of the ladies, daughter of the "Commander", distinguished herself by landing nearly forty crabs before the great American crabber (Mr. Bock) caught one; but she did it "with papa's stockings". As usual, the veteran added to his record by landing a five-and-one-half-foot eel, which, floating dead upon the water, he captured with an oar. The laugh being upon him, he hooked the monster on a line, and, taking the ladies into his confidence, awaited the issue. About nine at night the Col. was ordered to provide fish for next morning's table. Repairing to the beach, he cast in a line, when one of the ladies claimed it, and he, as usual in such a case, gallantly surrendered it to her. Finding the end of a line secured on the shore, he picked it up and imagined he had a whale at the other; so, excitedly and powerfully pulling in, he landed the same old eel, dead. The merriment of the entire party was beyond description, and the Col. promised Huyler's to the ladies and cigars to the gentlemen, providing nothing was said.

The party will not evacuate the camp for some time, and more fun is expected. Dr. Parkhurst may possibly visit the camp next Sunday, in which case we hope to be able to give a full account of his discourse.

All are well, including "Helen's Babies" in charge of the gentleman metioned.

THE ROVER.

HYMENEAL.

Frazee—Weaver.

The marriage of councilman Vincent L. Frazee to Miss Kate Weaver, daughter of Peter V. Weaver of Orchard place, took place at the home of the bride at 8 last evening. The wedding was a charming one, the bride and groom making a very handsome couple. The best man was Walter N. Martin, and the bridesmaid was Miss Addie Weaver, sister of the bride. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck officiated. The happy couple boarded the 11:28 train for Albany, where they will stay for a few days. Among the guests at the wedding ceremony and the reception that followed were: James E. Martine, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hetfield, Mr. and Mrs. David Weaver, Miss Ida Myers, Mrs. L. Coles, Will Cadmus, Mrs. Carrie Martin and Miss Annie Frazee, all of Plainfield; George Wendell and Miss Marion Wendell, of Boston; Frank Hodges of New York; and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Myers of Raritan.

The groom's fellow-members of the Fourth Ward Democratic club gave him a great send-off, by cheers and a pyrotechnic display in front of the house, in honor of the event, and a vigorous salute from the big brass Democratic cannon.

Searing—Butts.

A pretty home wedding took place at the residence of the groom, 12 Elm place, yesterday afternoon at 2, when Miss Emelie A., daughter of the late Rev. Daniel Brainard Butts, was married to Augustus V. Searing. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. W. E. Honeyman. The bride and groom left town at 4 o'clock for their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Searing will spend a week of their honeymoon at Hempstead, L. I. The bride is a sister of the groom's first wife.

Plainfield News in German-land.

The following is a literal translation of an article in this week's issue of Der Somerset Bote, Bound Brook:

THE PATRICK SICKNESS AROUND.

Frank Condé resigned from the Plainfield police force on the 1st of July. To a reporter he said that he was ashamed to think among all the policemen he was the only one that had n't the name of Pat. People say that Pat Clausen is going to have his place, and other talk is around saying that Pat Giese and Pat Cooney are going to resign and if it is the truth it will give two more Pats a chance. Frank Condé made up his mind to be christened over again, and by the next election he'll vote for Grover Cleveland.

TOWNSHIP ASSESSORS FULL OF FIGHT.

Pooh-Bah Marsh Makes Serious Charges Against Elizabeth—Planning to Get Square by Plainfield's Aid.

The assessors of the townships which had their assessments raised by Elizabeth's votes, Monday, as related in these columns yesterday, are preparing to appeal to the State board of taxation against what they consider an injustice.

At Monday's meeting, John M. C. Marsh, of Westfield, led the resisting forces, and he was ably backed by assessors Ludlow of Cranford, Robinson of Fanwood, Hubbard of Plainfield, chairman Sayre, and others.

Mr. Marsh moved that the valuation of Elizabeth be put up $200,000.

This motion was lost by a vote of 9 to 12.

Assessor Corey moved to refer the whole matter to the State board of taxation.

The Elizabeth men voted this motion down, and Mr. Marsh exclaimed: "You will have to come anyway; you will be subpœnased before the State board."

Then there was some lively cross-firing.

Mr. Marsh charged that Elizabeth for several years had held back over $800,000 of its valuation to save county tax, and he wanted to know if the assessors had turned in the whole valuation.

This question was received with some indignation, and the assessors from Elizabeth protested that Mr. Marsh knew well that their reports were accompanied with affidavits that the valuations were true and just.

It was then proposed to poll the entire board and propound the question, but the proposition did not meet with favor, as it was seemingly an insinuation that they had sworn falsely to their reports.

The apportionment of the county tax was then figured out. Mr. Marsh and chairman Sayre refused to figure on the raised valuations in their townships, but made their estimate on the valuation they had reported. They said they would refuse to levy the increased valuation, unless the State board ordered it. Other members of the board figured the apportionment for Union, Westfield and Summit, and the division of the county tax throughout the county was fixed as announced yesterday. The whole matter will be taken to the State board for review, but the main hope of the township assessors in securing revenge is by combining with Plainfield's increased vote next year to wrest Elizabeth's power away and force her to submit to tactics similar to those employed by her against the townships Monday.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN CLUBS.

Singers and Wheelmen Organizing for Harrison and Reid.

The project to organize a Republican campaign glee club in Plainfield is gradually taking shape. Last evening the leaders of the movement met and appointed various working committees, one to secure music, another to interest singers in the club and increase the membership, and a third to decide on a capable leader. The club will meet again next Tuesday evening, when permanent organization will probably be affected.

A committee, consisting of W. R. Codington, J. Hervey Doane, John H. Doane, H. H. Coward, F. W. Runyon and H. S. Thomas, has issued a call for a meeting of the Republican bicycle riders of Plainfield and vicinity, to be held at the Republican association rooms to-morrow evening, for the purpose of organizing a Harrison and Reid campaign bicycle club.

Written for Those Who Doubt.

A very timely work is the handsome little volume "Not on Calvary", recently issued from the press of Charles T. Dillingham & Co., 718 Broadway, New York. The boldness of the position which the writer of this little book takes, at the outset leads the reader to expect conclusions widely at variance with those which the popular christology teaches. But as one lays down the book, its deep reverence for the Christ sacrifice, its full acceptance of the divinity of the Master, its plea for a higher conception of the Father's love, all leave the conviction that this is the most orthodox heterodoxy that has issued from the press for a long time, and it cannot fail to command attention. The book is written for those that doubt, and the writer's position is of startling boldness and originality. The publishers will supply a copy of "Not on Calvary" on receipt of 35 cents. It is bound to be a literary religious sensation.

Republicans in Bad Humor With the Party Leaders.

In spite of the fact that the Hon. John Ulrich, of this city, State organizer of Republican campaign clubs, was present and made a conciliatory speech, counselled harmony, and recommended that the Republicans of Neptune pursue their even course, continue the organization and work for Republican success, yet at a meeting at their club-rooms last night, the Republicans of that township jumped on Gen'l Sewell and passed this resolution:

That it is the sense of this meeting that the action taken by the leaders of the party in ignoring the Republicans of Neptune township and a large number of Republican voters in the appointment of a postmaster at Asbury Park, is hereby condemned.

Hugwumps and Wobblers Defined.

A striking tale, of absorbing interest, is told in the August issue of that sterling old monthly magazine Lippincott's, in the complete novel entitled "The Martlet Seal", by Mrs. Jeanette H. Walworth. These complete novels are a great feature of Lippincott's, which is the favorite magazine at all firesides where it once has been read. But besides this longer story, there is an abundance of other fiction, and any quantity of matter on all topics of interest. The August number is especially bright, and is most profusely illustrated by leading artists. The department called "As It Seems" discusses the popular sentiment wasted on prisoners to the forgetfulness of the honest poor; and, always seasonable, ably determines the distinction between a Mugwump and a Wobbler.

To Make the Driveway Safe.

A committee of the Union county board of freeholders went to a point near Springfield, Friday, to investigate a dangerous spot known as "Diamond Hill", where along the roadway there is a deep gully fully 150 feet long. Heretofore the township committee has always attended to the place, but by an act of the last legislature the matter now falls on the freeholders. In order to have the driveway safe, the board will be asked at its next meeting to erect a fence along the road. This will be cheap, as it will cost only about twenty cents a foot, and it may save thousands of dollars which might otherwise be lost by accidents.

To Dedicate a Child to God.

The Salvation Army will have a "grand holiness convention and dedication", at their barracks to-morrow evening at 8. A child will be dedicated to God under Salvation Army form, and a beautiful service may be expected. Staff captain Marshall, the poetical Salvationist, will conduct the service. The subject will be "Wading through Jordan".

IN THE TIME OF THE TORCHLIGHT.

The Censor Chats About Campaign Clubs and Their Conspiracies, and Falls In Love With Two of Our True-Hearted Girls.

I suppose half-a-dozen campaign clubs are soon to burst upon us in all the radiance of economical uniform and malodorous kerosene lamps, and it is to be hoped they will be able to show up a respectable torchlight parade this year. Last campaign the processional display was extremely puerile, the most creditable performance being by the Democrats. In 1884, however, if my memory does n't drop me, the Republicans put forth the best torchlight parade that ever marched our streets, and it sported the banners of the gamey Jim Blaine, since lost to fame. That one certainly was a stunner, but I don't see why it should not now be equaled by either side, if they care to try. The town has grown a lot since then, the enthusiasm is quite as great, and the money ought to flow as freely. Altogether, I for one look for a presentable procession this trip.

Speaking of political parades reminds me of a good one I heard the other night at the cost of one of our most reputable townsmen, a familiar figure at all our nicest gatherings, an ardent Republican, blue-blooded, dyed-in-the-wool, protection-or-bust, blocks-of-five, and all that, who lives at present—well, never mind where he lives. Ten to one he'll know I wrote this anyhow, and so I won't give away his number.

It seems that last campaign, while he—because his great-great-grandfather's seventh cousin German on his mother's side was not a Democrat, or for some equally timely, potent and characteristically Republican reason—was going about whooping it up for Mr. Harrison, his two daughters were sitting at home, reading the papers, and thinking for themselves; aided by once having met Mrs. Cleveland's charming self, they had developed into good, stanch little Democrats. I always have admired those two girls, and I shall tip my hat to them with added respect hereafter. They are pretty enough for any man, to be sure; and to find out that they were Democrats despite their father's weird notions, was a source of gratification to me, and it is to you, too, I 'll wager. Only, of course, you do n't know them, perhaps. Well, never mind, I can 't help that—it 's your misfortune. But to the narrative:

The Republican parade was down to come by their house, and the old gentleman, filled with his party ideas and a desire to do them honor, purchased a string of Chinese lanterns and hung them from his third-story window to the roof of his front piazza. Then he tacked up loud-colored paper in his second-story windows, painted "Harrison and Morton" on the same, lighted the gas in the room behind them, and, touching a match to the dozen or so of lanterns, repaired to his lawn and viewed with satisfaction the elaborate illumination. Be ore long the parade was sighted bearl g down the street, and the man and his wife and two daughters assembled on the porch to see it pass 'and note the pleasure of the paraders when they contemplated the decoration of the house.

The old man is a good speaker; really he is (why, I heard him made one or two addresses on the inspiration of good New York dinners that would surprise even himself were he to hear them repeated); and he rather hoped the boys would know enough to rest in front of No. —— street, and give him a chance to make a few appropriate remarks. But it was not so to be.

When the parade drew quite near, the two pretty girls ran into the house, saying they preferred a bird's-eye view of the affair, and then, knowing the kind parent could not see the lanterns or the windows from his seat upon the porch, the dainty Democratic patriots proceeded to extinguish not alone the light in the second-story room, but, at the peril of their dear little lives, every one of the Chinese lanterns as well. The parade came and went. The old man sat and watched it pass in growing wonder. No one seemed to observe his handsome illumination! He waxed indignant as the last man disappeared and the music died away. To what end had he striven to honor the cause? To what purpose, forsooth, had he blown in a respectable slather of his hard-earned gelt, and sunk his glorious 62-cent silver sinkers in the interest of the beatific fake tin, the Utopian Force Bill, the Reciprocity delirium, and their super-hatted little exponent? He did n't like it a bit, and he said as much to his wife. She agreed with him, of course, and they two held an indignation meeting between themselves which did not adjourn for upwards of half-an-hour. Then they went to bed. The old man was a bit surprised that all his lanterns should have burned out so soon, and the girls, who had already retired, lay awake just long enough to explain that the light in the front room had been doused only the moment before because it shone in their eyes so they could n't go to sleep, and it is probable that this gentle fabrication saved their lives.

One of them told me this yarn herself, and added that they had never dared to explain to their fond parent why his parade gave him such an uncompromising go-by four years ago. When the old man reads this it will be his first intimation of the dreadful truth.

THE CENSOR.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

DEFENDING ELIZABETH'S ACTION.

Editor McBride Thinks the City's Assessors Did Right.

(Elizabeth Journal Editorial.)

The proceedings of the annual meeting of the Union county board of assessors, held Monday, have been duly reported in our columns. It was the first meeting for several years, owing to the existence of the tax commission, that Elizabeth has had a voice in such meetings, and it very naturally made good use of its opportunity to remedy some well-known inequalities in the valuations returned by certain townships. In this effort Elizabeth assessors did not have the support of any other members of the board, who failed to recognize the justice of the demand.

This city asks only for what is equitable. In the last year Elizabeth has increased its valuations over $800,000, while the total increase reported for the same period in the valuations in the rest of the county was only about $700,000. The assessors of this city argued that an adjustment should be made by securing an increase in the ratables of the townships of Summit, Union, Westfield, Cranford and Fanwood. It was agreed by the board, therefore, to make the following addition to the returns submitted by the assessors of the towns named:

Summit	$85,000
Union	20,000
Westfield	20,000
Cranford	25,000
Fanwood	15,000

This makes a total increase of $185,000. It is hard to believe that any fair-minded person who has made himself familiar with the subject will question the action of the board of assessors in this matter. The individual taxpayer in the towns affected will scarcely feel the increase, and their sense of the justice done other parts of the county will no doubt easily reconcile any objectors who at first blush might be disposed to complain.

These townships, it must be remembered, are reaping the direct benefits secured by the county-road improvements, the cost of whose construction is a decided factor in the tax-bills. Elizabeth has only a mile of these roads within its limits, and Plainfield is not touched by them. But these two cities are bearing, and bearing cheerfully, their share of the burden, which is necessarily much larger, in proportion to the direct advantage afforded them, than that of the townships.

A Creature of Brains and Beauty.

The name of Frank A. Munsey is deservedly a household word in American homes. By his own able pen he has contributed much of high merit to the literature of the country, and by his publishing house he has given to the people choice literature at a nominal cost. THE PRESS has watched with interest the growth and development of his new venture, Munsey's Magazine. It knew that the publication would be a great success, since Mr. Munsey's personal ability and enterprise were behind it, and were aided by abundant capital. In six short months the daring publisher has seen his magazine take front rank in a territory that seemed already abundantly supplied. Indeed, it may be said that Munsey's has created a field for itself. It is what no other monthly magazine of the country has as yet fully become—distinctively American, and every patriotic citizen ought therefore to take a jealous and a personal pride in its triumph. Each issue of Munsey's is brilliant with native fiction, and resplendent with the finest illustrations that the marvelous mechanical picture-arts of the present age can produce. The magazine is a superior creature of brains and beauty. In its pages abound delightful articles of description and travel, preference being given to dear and familiar scenes of American soil and American life. There is always a plenty of choice verse and charming romance. Whatever of cleverness, whatever of beauty and nobility, the pens of American writers can produce, that it is Munsey's purpose to secure and spread broadcast for the delight and delectation of the people. Since The Epoch was purchased and merged with Munsey's Weekly into the magazine, there have been established in Munsey's pages excellent editorial departments on topics of the day, outrivalling the brain-productions of the older publications. A very desirable feature of Munsey's is that each issue is complete in itself; there are no continued stories. A portion of every number is set aside for a new complete novel, which is sure to be of the best; and one of the choicest of these thus far has been from the delightfully entertaining pen of Mr. Munsey himself, and entitled "On the Field of Honor". Like all of Munsey's tales, this is a most fascinating and elevating production. Munsey's is American, original, superb. It is most ably edited, and its pages show the judicious and experienced hand of the cultured Richard H. Titherington, Mr. Munsey's right-hand man. There's just one thing about it: If you want to add to your home-happiness and provide yourself and your family with the best in art and literature, you must subscribe for Munsey's.

Saturday's Century Run.

The Newark-Princeton century run of the Metropolitan Association of Cycling clubs, which starts next Saturday at 4 from the Continental Hotel, Newark, will probably be as well attended as the century run of the Captains' Association of Philadelphia. The course to be taken, through Plainfield, is exceedingly popular, and it is expected that it will become an annual feature. The Atalanta Wheelmen and the Business Men's Cycling League are making great efforts to secure one, if not both, of the special prizes offered by the association for the club which will have the largest number of men at the finish who have ridden the entire distance. It is expected that these clubs will have from fifty to sixty men at the start.

Final Work of the Assessors.

The Union county board of assessors held an extra session yesterday afternoon to complete their work. The only change made in the tax rate as given in yesterday's PRESS, was that the State school tax being .29 and a fraction was put at .30.

BURGESS M'LUCKIE GETS BAIL.

$10,000 the Amount Fixed at the Hearing in Pittsburg.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

PITTSBURG, July 20.—Burgess McLuckie was admitted to bail to-day in $10,000. The decision was stated not to apply to other strikers for whom warrants are out, but who failed to surrender. McLuckie's friends furnished the bail, and he was set at liberty by Judge Magee.

The following was McLuckie's petition:

"Your petitioner avers that he is not guilty of the crime charged, and that the same charge is not even made in good faith; that it was and has been his endeavor to preserve the peace, and the said complaint is unfounded."

The locked-out workmen at Homestead are in despair. Gen. Snowden says that he will stay in occupation.

DOUBLE SUICIDE IN A BATH ROOM.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

NEW YORK, July 20.—Michael Valley, forty-three years old, of 2,204 Seventh avenue, and his daughter, Annie, nine years old, were both found dead in the bath room of their residence at 9 this morning.

The gas was turned on, and the police are of opinion that the case is one of suicide, or suicide and murder.

RUM DROVE HER TO DEATH.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

NEW YORK, July 20.—Kate Gaffney, 31 years old, of 209 West Sixty-fourth street, jumped from the third-story window of her home to the sidewalk at 3:30 this morning and was killed.

Mrs. Gaffney was the wife of Thomas Gaffney, a laborer, and the mother of two children. The couple lived happily, but Mrs. Gaffney was given to drinking.

BASE-BALL BABBLE.

Two More Contests Arranged With the Bergen Pointers—Keller on the Hunt—The Game of Next Tuesday.

Games have been arranged with the N. J. A. C's for August 24 at Plainfield and August 31 at Bergen Point.

It is rumored that Williams and Murray, third base and short stop of the Elizabeth team, have been released.

The Cuban Giants, whose team includes Stovey, Jackson, Williams, and others of the old Gorham nine, will play here next Tuesday against the Crescents.

A prominent figure nowadays at all the grounds where the crack ball players congregate, is manager Keller of the Crescent League team. He is going away Aug. 4, for a long trip, and before that time proposes to make the Plainfield aggregation the strongest in the race for the Central New Jersey championship.

Borough clerk Brokaw, chevalier Verrier, George Cornwell, John Kenney, J. Hervey Doane, and other enthusiastic base-ball admirers, were present at Bergen Point, yesterday afternoon, when nine base-ball players turned up who can hit the much-advertised Westervelt's curves. They are the Boston Athletic association's team, and the way they pounded that "wonder's" curves in the game yesterday made the Jerseyites look rather blue. A. Highlands, a brother of Harvard's famous pitcher, pitched for the visitors, who won by the score of 7 to 3.

HELD ON A WOMAN'S CHARGE.

Scandal in Fanwood—The Prisoner Accuses a Well-Known Citizen.

Constable Moffett of this city arrested Charles Bailey of Fanwood this morning on complaint of Theresa Logans, on a serious charge. Charles and Theresa are colored people. He is chief steward at the Homestead, Fanwood, where the girl formerly worked. Theresa is now, however, in the employ of Capt. George F. Hamlin, as cook.

The woman's charge is that Charles led her astray under promise of marriage, and she demands that he be forced to support her child, which is yet unborn.

Constable Moffett had Bailey in freeholder George Kyte's office at Fanwood for some time after the arrest, while Mr. Ashley went scurrying about town in search of bail. Finally Charles was brought to Plainfield, and justice Nash required him to furnish $200 bail for a hearing next Wednesday. Dr. Westcott became his bondsman.

Bailey declares himself falsely accused, and lays the blame on a highly-respected citizen.

Plainfield Repudiates the Rowdies.

Saturday evening, at about 10, a strage furiously driven and containing ten or a dozen insane individuals, was seen on the streets of Somerville. The inmates of the stage were yelling at the top of their lungs the Crescent war cry: "Rah! Bah! Rah! Ah! Sis! Boom! We are the Crescents! Give us room?" Well, they would have been accomodated with a room, or, to speak more properly, a cell, had they been caught. The local police were on the chase, but failed to get anywhere near them. When last seen the horses were reeking with prespiration. Such actions as these cast dark blots on the fair name of Plainfield, and more than dishonor on her residents.

Want Damages for His Death.

The family of John Peebles, who was killed on the P. and R. above Bound Brook some time ago, have begun suit against the railroad company for $10,000 damages, and have engaged counselor James J. Bergen to prosecute the suit.

The railroad company will seek to prove that Peebles was killed through his own negligence. The wagon road at the crossing where he was struck commands a full view of the railroad for a long distance, and it is alleged that if Peebles had not had his buggy top up and curtains shutting off his view he would have seen the Blue Line train in time.

CHILI PAYS PROMPTLY

Indemnity of $75,000 For the Baltimore Affair.

BOTH NATIONS ARE SATISFIED.

The Money Will Be Distributed Among the Families of the Two Killed Seamen and to the Members of the Crew Who Were Wounded In the Fight.

WASHINGTON, July 20. — Secretary of State Foster announces that an entirely cordial and mutually satisfactory settlement has been reached between the Government of the United States and Chili respecting the indemnity to be paid by the latter on account of the assault upon the crew of the Baltimore at Valparaiso on October 16 of last year.

The last published dispatch upon the subject was sent by Mr. Blaine on January 20 last, in which it was stated that the President believed that the subject of reparation for the Baltimore affair was capable of adjustment by the usual diplomatic methods and that the sense of justice of Chili would doubtless enable the two governments to honorably make a full end of the whole matter.

The subject rested in this condition till the entrance into the Chilian Cabinet of the present Minister of Foreign Affairs, Senor Errazuriz, last month, when he communicated to Mr. Egan the disposition of the Chilian government to come to an adjustment of the Baltimore indemnity.

On July 1, Mr. Egan informed Secretary Foster that the President was much gratified at the indication received of the disposition of the Chilian government and that he did not doubt that it would be ready to make a liberal indemnity to the families of the deceased and to the wounded survivors; and Mr. Egan was instructed to ascertain the views of the Minister of Foreign Affairs on the subject.

Under date of the 13th instant Senor Errazuriz addressed Mr. Egan a note placing at the disposal of the latter the sum of $75,000 in gold, asking him to cause it to be distributed among the families of the two seamen who lost their lives and to the surviving members of the crew wounded in the affair of October 16.

On the 17th instant Mr. Egan replied, cordially accepting the offer of the Chilian Government as a frank, friendly and entirely satisfactory settlement of the deplorable occurrence at Valparaiso.

The Baltimore indemnity finds no exact precedent in the diplomatic history of this country. Probably the case nearest in point is that of the Virginia, seized on the high seas by a Spanish gunboat, and taken into a Cuban port, where a number of the crew and passengers were summarily shot on the charge of being engaged in an insurrectionary movement. Some of the sufferers were citizens of the United States and some British subjects. The Spanish government paid to the United States for each sailor and citizen killed, about $2,500. The British government received for each colored subject shot $1,500 and $2,500 for eac 1 white subject.

DR. SCUDDER'S TRAGIC END.

Stabs Himself to the Heart With a Dagger While Demented.

NORTHPORT, R. I., July 20.—Dr. Charles Scudder, son of the late Hon. Henry J. Scudder and son-in-law of Senator Wm. M. Evarts, killed himself at an early morning hour, at the Scudder mansion, in a tragic manner.

For some time Dr. Scudder has been in poor health, and came here Monday from his home in New York to spend a few weeks for the benefit of his health.

It was noticed when he got off the train he was muttering to himself and making wild gesticulations with his arms. He was quickly ushered into a carriage and driven to the Scudder mansion.

The family admitted that Dr. Scudder was suffering from temporary aberation of mind, caused, they said, by over-study.

He was placed in charge of an attendant who kept a close watch on him all the evening.

In the morning the Scudder household was greatly alarmed when they learned that Dr. Scudder had escaped from his room.

A search was immediately made for him, servants being sent in all directions to find some trace of him.

His attendant finally caught a glimpse of him a short distance from the house. He called him to stop.

The doctor turned about and seeing the man approaching him drew a dagger and plunged it into his heart. He sank to the ground and expired instantly.

Dr. Scudder was about 35 years of age. He leaves a wife whose maiden name was Louisa Evarts. The latter and her 7-year-old daughter are now at her father's home in Windsor, Vt.

A woman best understands a woman's ills.

At the age of fifty, Mrs. Pinkham publicly commenced her great work of helping such women as could not help themselves. Having devoted her life to the study of female complaints she discovered that a large proportion of the diseases of women have a common origin and may have a common cure. That cure she created, and named Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how honest was her purpose and trustworthy her judgment is plainly indicated by thousands of such thankful letters as this:

DEAR MADAM. — . . . Would that I could induce all suffering women to give your Compound a fair trial. I must say to you that it is an invaluable medicine. It has been very beneficial to myself and daughter. — Mrs. S. BLAIR, Roanoke City, Va.

Druggists sell it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of price, $1.00. An illustrated book, entitled "Guide to Health and Etiquette," by Lydia E. HERBERT VON BISMARCK

The Son of the Iron Chancellor Married to Countess Hoyos.

Brilliant Wedding Ceremony Performed at Vienna—The Bride's Family—Where the Young Couple Will Make Their Home.

The marriage of Count Herbert Bismarck to the young Countess Hoyos was celebrated in the Calvinist church, at Vienna, Austria, a short time ago. Prince Bismarck was present, wearing the white uniform of the Magdeburg cuirassiers, of which regiment he is the honorary colonel. He also wore the ribbon of the grand cross of the order of St. Stephen of Hungary, in compliment to nationality of his son's bride. Prince Bismarck was loudly cheered on his way to and on his arrival at the church. Count Herbert, the bridegroom, wore a German uniform and looked happy and affable. The Russian ambassador to Germany, Count Schuvaloff, acted as best man. He wore the uniform of a Russian general. The Hoyos family were in the picturesque gala dress of the Hungarian nobility. Not an Austrian uniform was visible, and the Austrian court was entirely unrepresented.

Comtesse Margarethe's father is Count George Hoyos, a partner in the celebrated firm for the manufacture of torpedoes at Fiume, and her mother is an Englishwoman, the daughter of Mr. Whitehead, the founder of this torpedo manufactory, and in consequence the young comtesse has been brought up like an English girl and is especially fond of outdoor amusements. She is twenty-one, and therefore very much the junior of Count Herbert. Her eldest sister is married to a great friend of Count Herbert Bismarck—namely, Baron von Plessen, the Prussian ambassador at Darmstadt, and it was through him that the acquaintanceship was made that ended in the engagement. Comtesse Margarethe is a bright, handsome girl, with plenty of spirit, and will inherit a large fortune at her father's death.

Count Herbert has always had a decided penchant for Englishwomen, and it is the English bringing-up of his bride that fascinated him. The engagement of the count has frequently been reported at various times within the last few years, and once another English lady of title was selected as his future bride by public gossip. On each occasion, however, the proposed alliance failed to meet the approval of the man of iron, and the count, like the dutiful son that he is, bowed in obedience to parental authority.

Count Herbert is in his forty-third year and his bride is twenty years his junior. He is a major in the German army, has served the German empire in various diplomatic capacities and was embassy secretary in London and minister at The Hague. He has been a member of the reichstag from Schleswig-Holstein and was head of the German foreign office, resigning shortly after the disruption between the emperor and his father.

The castle of Schonhausen, where Count Herbert Bismarck and his bride will take up their residence, is the family seat of the Bismarcks, whence the "wild Junker of the Mark" first went out to gain his laurels in the battle of life. Up to 1867 the old house in the Altmark, situated on a property of about twenty-eight hundred acres of excellent land, was Prince Bismarck's only landed property. It was there where he rested from his political labors and became once more the gentleman farmer who managed his own estates, planted his oats and barley and doffed his uniform for a loose shooting jacket and strode across country, carrying a stout cudgel and closely followed by his dogs.

A Texas Woman's Great Ranch.

Richard Harding Davis thus writes of a lady who runs a Texas ranch: "When ladies go to call on Mrs. Richard King, after they have reached the front gate they have to drive ten miles up the walk to the front door. But the baker, when he wants to get at the kitchen, must drive thirty miles from the back gate. Mrs. King lives on her ranch, forty-five miles south of Corpus Christi. Over her acres roam 100,000 head of cattle. These are attended by 300 cowboys and 1,200 ponies. When there comes an order from a Chicago butcher for 1,000 head of cattle, it is but short work to round them up and send them on their way. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob would find this life ideally patriarchal. And none the less so by reason of the modern improvements of the home and house parties of this lady of large acres and many cattle."

A Ghastly Marriage.

A stock raiser and ranch owner of Homer, Neb., has just contracted one of the ghastliest marriages on record. He was a widower. Ten days before his second union, he declares, he received a spirit message saying that his wife was in a perturbed state, his approaching marriage being the cause. To propitiate the wounded spirit the stockman and his bride were married at midnight on the grave in which his first wife was buried. From exposure and fright the strangely made bride has since been confined to her bed.

RESTORATION OF RAMESES.

Modern Engineering to the Rescue of the Temple at Aboo Simbel.

Eight hundred miles up the Nile the restoration of the large temple of the great Pharoah is going on. In connection with this restoration the following information is of interest:

Over three thousand years ago Rameses II. selected a mountain in Nubia and hewed out of the living rock two vast temples. The largest of the two he dedicated to the god of gods, Amen, and secondarily to his own glory; and the smaller to the goddess Hathor and to his wife Nefertari. He reigned over sixty years, begot many children, and lived to be nearly one hundred years old. "And now he lies in his case at the Gizeh museum, the haughty old face frowning beneath its glass cover.

At the larger temple, where practical work is in hand, four gigantic colossi sit hand on knees and gaze across the desert sands. Three thousand years have told upon the cliffs above the temple. The statues themselves would have defied time, but the native rock has yielded to sun and sand. In the rock itself there is a treacherous vein of clay, and the sand has at last eaten away the clay, and the fissures have gradually widened. A report was furnished to the irrigation department at

THE TWO GREAT STATUES.

Cairo, setting forth that the great temple was in imminent peril, and that a block of stone weighing 270 tons was likely to fall and smash the only one complete statue of the four.

The surveyor and engineers sent up to Aboo Simbel found no less than three rocks in a dangerous condition. One, measuring 34 feet by 12, was taken in hand at once and broken up into small pieces; another of twenty-five tons was similarly dealt with; and then the biggest of all, weighing about two hundred and seventy tons, was tackled. No explosives of any kind could be used, as the two northernmost colossi are out of their equilibrium, and the least vibration might topple them over. So five stout iron cables were placed around the big block, and then it was broken up into small pieces and thrown down into the sand. Rameses may now sit in peace and watch the dawn break over the desert for another 3,000 years. The two colossi which are out of balance are to be pinioned back to the rock behind by iron bands. The bands will be disguised as much as possible.

A MILE A MINUTE.

Quaint Device for Rapid Traveling Invented by a Michigander.

Prof. Charles Bartholomew, of Jacksonville, Mich., has evolved a novel invention for rapid traveling. The latest project of his versatile brain he has named a unicycle. An idea of the contrivance can, perhaps, be gained from the following illustration of the machine now in process of construction.

It is composed of one large wheel, eight feet in diameter, which is supplied with a rubber tire; on each side is attached a circular rim, seven feet in diameter; from the latter are spokes which are connected with the large wheel; extending across from the outer rims or seven-foot wheels, are cross pieces, to which the axle is attached. The operator sits on a seat under the axle and propels the machine by pedals similar to an ordinary safety bicycle, and guides it by means of handles like those of a bicycle. Thus provided for the rider can always maintain a perpendicular position and, as brakes are also provided, the operator will be able to turn or stop at will. The machine is light in construction and easy of propulsion. Its circumference is twenty-four feet, and it is estimated that a speed of over a mile a minute can be attained upon a level roadway, and with a perfected machine Prof. Bartholomew claims a speed can be made with comparative safety of seventy miles an hour. He has already received an offer of $100 per week to make exhibitions upon the race track of one of the largest exposition grounds of the United States. He intends patenting his invention as soon as he gets everything working to his satisfaction.

He Had Grown.

A father was very much annoyed by the foolish questions of his little son.

"Johnny, you are a great source of annoyance to me."

"What's the matter, pa?"

"You ask so many foolish questions. I wasn't a big donkey when I was of your age."

"No, pa, but you've growed a heap since."—Texas Siftings.

It Had Been the Rounds.

Miss Clara—Is that a new ring you have on, Ethel? It strikes me I have seen it before.

Miss Ethel (blushing)—Yes, Clara; young Mr. Paperwaste presented it to me last night. I have accepted him.

Miss Clara—Oh, indeed! I'm so glad. Accept my best wishes. I thought that ring looked strangely familiar.—Tansill's Punch.

A Little Patti for a Cent.

Mr. Knox—Ethel, it is perfectly imbecile, your trying to give yourself the airs of a prima donna, every time George calls.

Ethel Knox—Why, papa! What do you mean?

Mr. Knox—I heard you say farewell at least sixty-five times last night.—Puck.

A Safe Horse.

Purchaser — Now, remember, you warrant this horse fearless of steam.

Dealer (pocketing the money)—That's so. He ain't 'fraid of no steam. He don't scare at nawthin' 'cept bicycles an' flying leaves an' pieces o' paper an' such things.—N. Y. Weekly.

Still a Gay Deceiver.

"How little things sometimes affect men," observed the Charming Widow, meditatively.

"Yes?" queried the Other Widow.

"I was reminded of it by Mr. Oldhand's proposal this morning."

"What did he say?"

"That I was the only woman he had ever really and truly loved."

"And the queer thing about it?" with a questioning inflection.

"Why, that such a little thing as that should have mattered. He has been married three times already."—Chicago News.

Profiting by the Standard.

He (literary)—Since Van Pushe has gone into fashionable society he has become quite distinguished.

She (artistic)—I always considered him as having merely an ordinary mental outfit.

He—That's what enables him to shine in that particular field.—Life.

A Sensible Suggestion.

Mrs. Spendem (trying on a new bonnet)—Dear me! how small the bonnets are this season. This doesn't suit my face at all, it's such a little thing!

Mr. Spendem (examining paper)—Better wear the bill, that seems big enough!—Brooklyn Life.

Placing Him.

Little Robby—Are you a lawyer, like papa?

Doctor—No, my boy; I am a physician.

Robby—Oh, yes; you're the gentleman that comes to see sick people before they die!—Puck.

In Boston.

"Who was called the father of his country, Miss Beacon?"

"George Washington was called the father of his country; but this was an erroneous idea, for it has been proven that to Adam belongs the ignominy."—Life.

Raising Fowls.

"What is the best way to keep chickens?" asked a newly arrived farmer of an old Texan.

"Eat 'em up before the colored brother gets a chance to steal 'em."—Texas Siftings.

No Engagement.

Blind Beggar—Say, Duffy, let's take a night off an' see this serpentine dance at the theater.

Deaf and Dumb Beggar—I can't tonight. I'm going to hear Patti.—Brooklyn Life.

Accounted For.

"We're about five minutes late this morning," said the passenger.

"No, sir," said the conductor. "You forget that you are on the last car of a very long train."—Harper's Bazar.

The Point of View.

Miss Goseldom (at the theater)—How lifelike he acts! He seems to me so forcible, so terrible, so—so realistic!

Mr. Gofrequent—He is. Real stick.—Chicago Tribune.

Appreciative.

Sweet Little Girl (singing)—I want to be an angel.

Mr. Nicefello—Have patience. You'll grow.—Good News.

Near Enough.

She—You say that you have never been in love. How near have you come to it?

He—I was married once.—Life.

Loss of Memory.

Mollie—How old is Miss Maidish?

Her Sister—So old she's forgotten herself.—Chicago News.

He—Are you happy, now that you're married?

She—Comparatively.

He—Compared with whom?

She—Compared with my husband.—Life.

Poor Logic.

Father—I suppose you're glad vacation is so near?

Donald—I don't know; 'cause the quicker it gets here, the sooner it will be over.—Harper's Young People.

Cheap Enough, Certainly.

"I felt so cheap during the ceremony," confessed the bride to her dearest friend.

"Why, my dear?"

"Because pa gave me away."—Detroit Free Press.

The Toper's Paradox.

When Old Soak looks upon the cup,
His face takes on no frown;
E'en though when he would drink it up,
He goes and drinks it down.
—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

A Startling Performance.

Wiggins—What did you lend him five dollars for?

Skinflint—Thought the shock of surprise would kill him.—Chicago News.

The Work Was Performed.

Mr. Wildwest—You surely do not mean to say you're English. Why, you don't drop your h's!

Mr. Tewksbury-Podd—No; me valet attends to that for me.—Truth.

THE CANDIDATES RECEIVE NOTICE

Nearly 20,000 Enthusiastic Democrats Witness the Exercises.

A MEMORABLE SCENE IN MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.

OVATIONS TO THE TWO LEADERS.

Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Stevenson Officially Informed of the Action of the Chicago Convention—Address of Chairman Wilson and Response of Mr. Cleveland—Answer of Mr. Stevenson to the Notification Speech of Mr. White—Mrs. Cleveland Also Comes in for a Share of the Honors—Reception at the Manhattan Club.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The first decisive gun of the Democratic campaign of 1892 was touched off last night in Madison Square Garden in the presence of a vast assemblage. The huge auditorium was packed from pit to dome, and, as the place holds 10,000 persons comfortably, it is estimated that almost twice that number were present.

The occasion that brought this vast throng together was the notification ceremonies of the two leaders of the Democratic party—Grover Cleveland and Adlai E. Stevenson.

As early as 6 o'clock the crowd began gathering about the doors, and at 7:30 p. m., when they were finally opened, the streets about the Garden were filled with a pushing, struggling, perspiring mob, which flowed into the auditorium with the roaring sound of a cataract. Never had the Garden held such a crowd nor more enthusiasm been displayed. The space room was economized to the utmost degree, the enthusiastic Democrats standing, after the seats were filled, in lines so dense that breathing became difficult.

The Garden was profusely decorated with flags and bunting, the colors of which were brought into strong relief by the brilliant light from 8,000 electric lamps. This, with the sea of bobbing heads and upturned faces, presented a memorable scene and one never to be forgotten. Previous to the exercises Cappa's band discoursed strains of sweet music to which the huge, perspiring crowd listened in a philosophical manner, at the same time endeavoring to keep cool by swinging fans and handkerchiefs.

The platform was placed at the Fourth avenue end of the building. Over it was an immense sounding board. In the centre of this were two national flags placed transwise, and over these, written in incandescent lamps, were the words "Cleveland and Stevenson."

The platform had a seating capacity for 750 persons, but it had a thousand on it before the central figures, in one of the most brilliant tableaux New York has seen in many months, appeared. The crowd was a patient one, despite the heat, relieving its feelings every few minutes by rounds of applause as some familiar figure appeared on the platform. At first glance, during those periods of enthusiasm, one would imagine the whole audience was composed of men, but after the troubled sea had settled, the fairer sex seemed to emerge from it in bewildering summier costumes, smiles and the inevitable fan.

Mrs. Cleveland and party entered a box about 8 o'clock and this gave the crowd a chance to give vent to some of their pent up enthusiasm. Quiet had scarcely been restored when a mighty chorus of cheers broke out, and there was a universal waving of hands, arms, hats, handkerchiefs and fans. Then John M. Bowers, escorting Adlai E. Stevenson, appeared. Mr. Stevenson gracefully acknowledged the plaudits with a bow. Gov. Flower and Gen. Sickles were the next arrivals and they were also vigorously applauded.

Among those who occupied boxes were Gov. Flower, Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan, Mayor Grant, Comptroller Meyers, Commissioner Gilroy, William C. Whitney, the Manhattan Club, the Stock Exchange and the Consolidated Exchange Campaign Clubs, Orlando B. Potter, Congressman Bourke Cockran, Police Commissioner Martin, Benjamin Wood, Henry Villard, Fire Commissioner Purroy, Frederick R. Coudert, Perry Belmont, E. Ellery Anderson, S. D. Babcock, Evan Thomas and Police Justice Voorhis.

The concert pitch of enthusiasm was struck at 8:15 o'clock when Mr. Cleveland entered. Mr. Cleveland looked impressed with the magnitude of the gathering and the wondrous scene it presented as such and every man and woman stood on their feet applauding in the most enthusiastic manner. He bowed his thanks again and again, but the din and noise continued for many minutes, and the Secretary of the Notification Committee, Nicholas M. Bell, finally arose in despair and entreated the crowd to be silent. It was, however, a fruitless task, and nothing was left but to begin the exercises. Colonel Wilson of West Virginia approached the rostrum, and Grover Cleveland rose to listen to the speech of notification. Mr. Wilson said, in part:

Mr. Cleveland:

"We bring you, to-night, a message from the Democratic party. We come as a Committee from its National Convention representing every Democratic constituency in the country, to give you official notification that you have been chosen as its candidate for the office of President of the United States.

"We are also charged with the duty of presenting you the platform of principles adopted by that convention. This platform contains a full and explicit declaration of the position of the National Democratic party on the great political issues of the day; but in all its utterances it is merely a development of one great principle, that whatever governments and laws can do for a people must be done for all the people, without precedence of section or grades of citizenship.

"We believe that a government administered in this spirit in such a country as ours, will secure a larger measure of freedom and prosperity to the people than has heretofore been possible in the world, and that it will be an example and an inspiration to all mankind. To make and keep such a government—to guard with jealous care the rights of equal citizenship—to bear our freedom safely along the march of our material progress, unharmed by the mighty agencies that minister to that progress—this is the high and glorious duty of the Democratic party.

"It is a dangerous thing for a political party to continue its existence after the work which called it into being has been accomplished. It will inevitably pass as the political organization against which we contend has already passed, into the service of the great special interests which everywhere strive to secure political power for their own advantage. Of the present policies of that party it may truly be said that they all tend to the centralization of wealth in favored classes. Against both tendencies we fight as against enemies of our freedom.

"In this great contest your party has summoned you to be its leader. Four years ago in the mid-career of a service that well deserved the highest honors your countrymen could bestow, as we feel sure that it will receive the highest encomiums that history can award, you were struck down because as a Democrat you could make no terms with those who wished to plunder the people's treasury, or those who sought to perpetuate the passions of civil strife. Your countrymen will right that wrong. They will not do it for your sake alone but for their own sake and the sake of the Republic.

ADLAI E. STEVENSON.

"And now, sir, we put into your hand the commission of which we are bearers. It is the highest honor your party can bestow. It is the gravest call to duty your fellow Democrats can make. But we believe we can assure you that there are no weak, weary or despondent Democrats in the ranks of our party to-day, and that with the people's cause as our cause we doubt not you will lead us to a victory in which the principles of our party shall gloriously triumph, and the welfare of our country shall be mightily promoted."

Hon Nicholas M. Bell, of Missouri, then read the letter of notification from the notification committee. The crowd, when the Democratic standard-bearer stepped forward to make response, again lost control of their enthusiasm. The din was deafening and long sustained. Finally Mr. Cleveland began to speak and the storm suddenly abated. He was listened to thereafter with much attention and plaudits only came when his utterances pleased his hearers. He said:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

"The message you deliver from the National Democracy arouses within me emotions which would be well nigh overwhelming, if I did not recognize here assembled the representatives of a great party who must share with me the responsibility your mission invites. I find much relief in the reflection that I have been selected merely to stand for the principles and purposes to whic my party is pledged, and for the enforcement and supremacy of which, all who have any right to claim Democratic fellowship, must constantly and persistently labor.

"Never has a great party, intent upon the promotion of right and justice, had better incentive for effort than is now presented to us.

"Turning our eyes to the plain people of the land, we see them burdened as consumers with a tariff system that unjustly and relentlessly demands from them in the purchase of the necessaries and comforts of life, an amount scarcely met by the wages of hard and steady toil—while the exactions thus wrung from them, build up and increase the fortunes of those for whose benefit this injustice is perpetrated.

"We see the farmer listening to a delusive story that fills his mind with visions of advantage, while his pocket is robbed by the stealthy hand of high protection.

"Our workingmen are still told the tale, oft repeated in spite of its demonstrated falsity, that the existing protective tariff is a boon to them, and that under its beneficent operation their wages must increase—while as they listen, scenes are enacted in the very abiding-place of high protection, that mock the hopes of toil and attest the tender mercy the workingman receives from those made selfish and sordid by unjust government favoritism.

"Ours is not a destructive party. We are not at enmity with the rights of any of our citizens. All are our countrymen. We are not recklessly heedless of any American interests, nor will we abandon our regard for them; but invoking the love of fairness and justice which belongs to true Americanism, and upon which our Constitution rests, we insist that no plan of tariff legislation shall be tolerated, which has for its object and purpose a forced contribution from the earnings and income of the mass of our citizens, to swell the accumulation of a favored few; nor will we permit a pretended solicitude for American labor, or any other specious pretext of benevolent care for others, to blind the eyes of the people to selfish schemes of those who seek through the aid of unequal tariff laws to gain unearned and unreasonable advantages at the expense of their fellows.

"We have also assumed in our covenant with those whose support we invite, the duty of opposing to the death another avowed scheme of our adversaries, which under the guise of protecting the suffrage, covers, but does not conceal, a design thereby to perpetuate the power of a party afraid to trust its continuance to the untrammeled and intelligent votes of the American people. We are pledged to resist the legislation intended to complete this scheme.

"I shall not attempt to specify at this time other objects and aims of Democratic endeavor which add inspiration to our mission. True to its history and its creed, our party will commend to the wants of the people within safe limits and guided by enlightened statesmanship. To the troubled and impatient within our membership we command continued, unswerving allegiance to the party whose principles, in all times past, have been found sufficient for them, and whose aggregate wisdom and patriotism, their experience teaches, can always be trusted.

"In a tone of partisanship which befits the occasion, let me say to you as equal partners in the campaign upon which to-day enter, that the personal fortunes of those to whom you have entrusted your banners are only important as they are related to the fate of the principles they represent and to the party which they lead.

"I cannot, therefore, forbear reminding you and all those attached to the Democratic party or supporting the principles which we profess, that defeat in the pending campaign, followed by the consummation of the legislative schemes our opponents contemplate, and accompanied by such other incidents of their success as might more firmly fix their power, would present a most discouraging outlook for future Democratic supremacy and for the accomplishment of the objects which we have at heart.

"It only remains for me to say to you, in advance of a more formal response to your message, that I obey the command of my party and confidently anticipate that an intelligent and earnest presentation of our cause will insure a popular endorsement of the action of the body you represent."

There was one more burst of concluding applause as Gover Cleveland took his seat, and then came the speech of notification, made by Stephen M. White of California, to Adlai E. Stevenson. The voice of the California orator was powerful, and every syllable was distinctly heard throughout the vast hall. He said:

Mr. Stevenson:

"The Democratic Party, recognizing your worth and popularity, has selected you as its candidate for Vice-President of the United States, and this Committee, in obedience to the instructions of the National Convention by which it was appointed, is present to notify you of your appointment.

"The circumstances attending the conferring of this honor are such as to augment the gratification which, in any event, would accompany the discharge of the duty which we are here to perform. The great organization in whose battles for the public welfare you have borne so conspicuous a part, has emphatically manifested its unfaltering approval of the enlightened and progressive administration with which you were for four years prominently identified.

"Candid in our platform; rejoicing in the character and statesmanship of our chosen leaders, conscious of the honesty of those upon whose suffrages we must rely, we are prepared and anxious to meet the issue. We have nothing to fear and can have nothing to regret.

"The unanimous expression of the committee will be presented by Hon. Nicholas M. Bell, its Secretary."

Adlai E. Stevenson listened closely to the speech of Mr. White and to the official notification read to him by Mr. Bell. He then stepped to the extreme edge of the platform, and bowing to the thunderous applause which again belched forth, he said, in clear, ringing tones:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:

"I cannot too earnestly express my appreciation of the honor conferred upon me by the great delegated assembly which you officially represent. To have been selected by the National Democratic Convention as its candidate for high office is a distinction of which any citizen might well be proud. I would do violence to my own feelings, sir, should I fail to express my gratitude for the courteous terms in which you have advised me of the result of the deliberations of the Convention.

"Distrusting my capacity fully to meet the expectations of those who have honored me by their confidence, I accept the nominations generously tendered. Should the action of the Chicago Convention receive the approval of the people, I shall, to the best of my humble ability, discharge with fidelity, the duties of the important trust confided to me."

"Reference has been made in terms of commendation to the late Democratic administration. Identified in some measure as an important branch of the public service with that administration, I am gratified to know that it has in so marked a degree received the indorsement of the Democratic party in its National Convention. I am persuaded that intelligent discussion of the issues involved in the pending contest for political supremacy, will result in victory to the party which stands for honest methods in government, economy in public expenditures, and relief to the people from the burdens of unjust taxation.

"In the contest upon which we now enter we make no appeal to the passions, but to the sober judgment of the people. We believe that the welfare of the toiling millions of our countrymen is bound up in the success of the Democratic party. Recent occurrences in a neighboring state have sadly emphasized the fact that a high protective tariff affords no protection, and tends in no way to better the condition of those who earn their bread by daily toil.

"Believing in the right of every voter to cast his ballot unawed by power, the Democratic party will steadily oppose all legislation which threatens to imperil that right by the interposition of Federal bayonets at the polls.

"In a more formal manner, hereafter, Mr. Chairman, I will indicate by letter, my acceptance of the nomination tendered to me by the National Democratic Convention, and it will give expression to my views touching the important questions enunciated in its platform."

At the conclusion of Mr. Stevenson's speech, Chairman Wilson declared the meeting adjourned. While the crowd was dispersing, Mrs. Cleveland came in for honors, which showed her great popularity. Several thousand persons gathered around where she was seated and cheered her repeatedly. She looked marvellously becoming in a costume of gray, her face wreathed in smiles for the honors paid her distinguished husband and her—

O'DONNELL BACK AGAIN

He Returns to Homestead Early This Morning.

SAYS HIS MISSION SUCCEEDED.

He Will Give Himself Up in Pittsburg To-Day—How Burgess McLuckie's Release on Bail is Regarded—Consternation Among the People When They Learned That the Soldiers Will Remain Until the Trouble is Settled.

HOMESTEAD, July 21.—Hugh O'Donnell came into town early this morning. He came by the limited from New York, and while he chafed over the charge of murder made against him, said his mission to a large extent had been successful, and intimated that if matters progressed as they began the strike would be satisfactorily settled to the men. He will surrender himself at Pittsburg to-day, get bail and return to New York to pursue the work he is engaged in.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 21.—There is only a slight increase in the signs of activity around the Carnegie mill to-day. Efforts are being made by the company to create the impression that the mill is in operation, but, including the carpenters and mechanics who have been smuggled into the works, there are only 300 men where 4,000 are usually employed.

Carpenters are at work to-day erecting a big shed between the press mill and the river. Bunks will be placed in this for non-union men, who are expected to arrive in large numbers before the end of the week.

One of the scouts of the Amalgamated Association who was posted on the hill overlooking the mill, and had a powerful field-glass, reports some queer proceedings in the rolling mill. He says that half a dozen men heated an old plate until it was red hot and placed on the rolls. It was run through the rolls evidently for the purpose of creating an impression that actual rolling was being done.

No arrests of leaders in the strike were made here yesterday. The release of Burgess McLuckie on bail has resulted in the announcement that the men for whom warrants are out will go to Pittsburg and give themselves up.

The ovation tendered the Burgess on his return from jail has counteracted the intended effect of the arrests for murder, and the strikers look upon McLuckie's release as a great victory for them.

THE SOLDIERS WILL REMAIN.

Gen. Snowden's Decision Causes Consternation at Homestead.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 21.—Gen. Snowden's statement that the entire force of militia at present concentrated at Homestead would remain here until all danger of trouble had passed, has thrown a damper on the feelings of many of the strikers.

They did not know of Gen. Snowden's determination until the morning, but when they did know tongues that had been bridled since the militia came threw off restraint and talked freely.

"Gen. Snowden is making a serious mistake," said one of the strike leaders this morning. "He has seen enough of the people at Homestead to know that their inclinations are peaceful and that the presence of a large body of armed men does much to irritate them.

"If the troops were withdrawn to-day the bearing of the people would be no different from what it has been since since the military took possession."

Military officers and people who have no personal interest in the outcome of the wage question hold a different opinion.

The Advisory Committee of the Amalgamated Association met at their headquarters late last night and received reports from committees and scouts as to the progress of the strike. Word was received that three night watchmen, who have been on duty in the mill, were discharged yesterday because they refused to be sworn in as deputy sheriffs, and they were also suspected of carrying news to the strikers.

The Advisory Committee sent one of their members to answer an advertisement inserted in a Pittsburg paper by Clark, Richmond & Co., of 33 Hide street, Pittsburg. The advertisement stated that twenty-five carpenters were wanted for outside work. The envoy of the association found that $2.75 per day, the regular carpenters' wages, was offered, and that the twenty-five men were wanted to erect sheds and bunks for workmen at Homestead.

The contributions received by the committee yesterday in response to their appeal to labor organizations for financial aid amounted to $106.

Gov. Pattison was occupied all of the forenoon inspecting the Third Brigade. The Second Brigade drilled on the hillside until noon.

M'LUCKIE'S RELEASE.

The Decision in His Case Will Not Affect the Others Who Are Wanted.

PITTSBURG, July 21.—Although Burgess McLuckie has been released on $10,000 bail, the decision in this case will not apply to Hugh O'Donnell and the rest of the strikers for whom warrants have been issued, but who failed to surrender, and all of them will be compelled to take their innings before the court.

Judge Magee's court room was crowded to the corridor by laboring men of this city and Homestead when Burgess McLuckie was brought across the "Bridge of Sighs" from the County Jail and placed in the prisoners' box.

He held something approaching a levee until Judge Magee, accompanied by Judge Porter, took his seat upon the bench.

It had been anticipated that counsel for the Carnegies would resist the application to give McLuckie his liberty and there were consequently many murmurs of surprise when, as soon as the case was called, District-Attorney Burleigh arose and said that having carefully gone through the evidence with the associate counsel for the State, he concluded that McLuckie was entitled to his liberty. Inasmuch, however, as the offense was one of considerable gravity, and in view of the present situation in the locality, he felt justified in asking that bail should be made ample.

"I have carefully looked into this matter," replied Judge Magee, "and I do not consider that you can make it a case of murder in the first degree. But the law, as I understand it, makes every one who stands idly by during a riot, and without making an effort to suppress it, guilty of riot, and a rioter, and he becomes responsible for the consequences, whether there be destruction of property or loss of life.

"Where life is destroyed, he becomes answerable in the degree of killing to be determined by the law, whether it be first or second degree.

"But if the Commonwealth wishes to make any of these cases those of the first degree, it will have to show willful premeditation."

On behalf of the defense Attorney Cox suggested that the decision in McLuckie's case should govern all the rest of the accused men, in order that they might surrender and give bail.

Neither the District-Attorney nor the Judge, however, was willing to concede this much.

The former said that the other men were, so far, fugitives from justice, while the court held that all the cases might not be alike.

"Suppose," he said, "that any of these people got into trees with sharpshooters, and picked off their men with deliberation, would they be entitled to any consideration in the matter of bail? I think not."

"All the men for whom warrants are out are ready to surrender and give bail," suggested Attorney Cox.

"The Court can consider no case that is not before it," said the Judge, and that ended the matter.

McLuckie's bail was fixed at $10,000. Owen Murphy and Oliver C. Kinton, two residents of Homestead, qualified, after being put through a rigid examination by the District Attorney, and McLuckie was then released.

The crowd filed out of the court room and gave him a cheer as he hurried away to catch the first train for Homestead.

In an interview with Attorney Brennan he said that warrants would be issued very soon for the arrests of Frick and Lovejoy. They will be prosecuted. He did not say what would be done about Andrew Carnegie.

ALICE MITCHELL'S TRIAL.

Letters Protesting Her Love for a Man Read in Court.

MEMPHIS, July 21.—Robert Mitchell, brother of Alice, who killed her friend, Freda Ward, resumed his testimony by reading a letter from Freda Ward, dated Jan. 1, one week before the tragedy, in which she protested her love for Alice, and said she hated her brother-in-law for breaking into their arrangements.

On cross-examination he admitted that Alice wrote to several young men. The Attorney-General read letters from her to V. J. Ward, Carbon, Tex. In these letters she protested that she was in love with him. Letters written by her to T. L. Seagal, Pittsburg, Pa., were also introduced. In these she represented herself to be an actress, and spoke of her love for southwestern parts above tragedy parts.

A letter was read which she wrote to Freda, telling her of attempting to buy a pistol. She also reproached Freda for receiving the attentions of men, and made a threat to kill her unless she desisted.

2,000 OPERATORS MAY STRIKE.

Trouble With the Telegraphers Along the Louisville and Nashville.

LOUISVILLE, July 21.—There is a prospect of a strike on the part of the telegraph operators of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

The men ask an advance of pay and the adoption of certain rules for the dismissal of men. Their demands were recently put before George E. Evans, Superintendent of Transportation, and upon his refusal to make the desired concession Jas. G. Metcalfe, general manager, was yesterday approached with the same request. He also declined to yield.

An effort will be made to reach President M. H. Smith, and secure an agreement with him. If this cannot be done a strike is expected. About 2,000 men will be involved.

The Order now numbers 21,000, all of whom are pledged to support a strike if made.

Athlete Fred Scott Dead.

QUINCY, July 21.—Fred Scott, aged 22, the all-round athlete of Providence, R. I., died suddenly here yesterday of inflammation of the bowels, at the residence of his father Charles Scott, manager of the Lowe-Laurentide railway. The deceased was a member of the Metropole Athletic Club of Providence and was a remarkable athlete. At the time of his death he held the New England amateur championship for boxing, shot putting and throwing the hammer.

Andrews Off on Another Voyage.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 21.—Young & McKee's pier was crowded yesterday afternoon with people anxious to see Capt. W. A. Andrews start on his fourth trans-Atlantic voyage, in a boat barely 14 feet in length. The craft, which is of the folding variety, is made of canvas, but when stretched is stiff enough, the captain says, for any sea he may encounter on his perilous voyage. The boat was loaded with provisions enough to last at least a two months' trip.

Chicago People Indignant.

CHICAGO, July 21.—The people of this city and vicinity feel very sore over the action of the House of Representatives in refusing to concur in the Senate amendment to the Sundry Civil bill appropriating $5,000,000 to the World's Fair. There was great consternation at the Fair's directory when the fact became known yesterday. Director Lyman J. Gage was greatly downcast, but expressed the opinion that the House would reconsider its action.

Assaulted a Half-Witted Girl.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 21.—Hattie Freeman, a half-witted girl, 18 years of age, who lives with her grandfather in Wickford, claims to have been assaulted by a number of men in that village. Several days ago she left her home and until her return was kept by the men in a house near Belleville and in the woods. Warrants have been issued for her alleged assaulters' arrest.

Severe on Russell Harrison.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The report of the Yellowstone Park Investigating Committee made yesterday severely comments upon the exertion by Russell Harrison of influence with the Government in favor of a corporation, and remarks upon the coincidence that $5,000 worth of stock was sought to be set aside for the President's son at the same time.

To Enforce Reciprocal Relation.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs has ordered a favorable report on the bill introduced by Mr. Curtis, of New York, to enforce reciprocal commercial relations between the United States and Canada.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—A baby alligator amuses the people who pause in front of Vanderbeek's on Park avenue.

—The Baptists took 1,300 people on their excursion to Asbury Park yesterday. All had a fine time.

—A valuable team of fine black horses was stolen from the pasture of J. A. Cammeyer, Berkley Heights, last night.

—Twenty-five dollars worth of carpenter tools owned by L. D. Carter were stolen from a new house in which he was working last night. He suspects tramps.

—Fred Randolph, colored, was brought before judge Codington this morning, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He pleaded not guilty, and will be tried Monday evening at 7.

—J. C. Williams, the colored "doctor", is in town again. He seems to have prospered at New Brunswick, for he now sports a brand-new high silk hat, and wears more brass buttons and looking-glass medals than ever.

—THE PRESS joins the Somerville Messenger extending congratulations to Henry D. Winton of the Bergen County Democrat, and senator from that county, on his marriage last week. The bride is a well-known society woman of Freehold.

—The purchase of a piano or organ is an important matter. If you want a fine instrument, go to Vanderbeek & Sattels, 33 Park avenue, where orders for tuning and repairing will also be promptly attended to. Fine pianos for rent is a specialty.

—An over-jubilant North Plainfield Democrat went to New York last evening and attended the meeting in Madison Square Garden at which Cleveland and Stevenson were officially informed of their nomination. During the course of the evening he became very much excited and threw his hat in the air. Some one sitting near-by struck the tile with a cane for a long hit to center field and in consequence the owner of it came home bareheaded.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

John W. Murray, jr., and family, leave to-morrow for Newport.

W. F. Oliver, of 21 East Fifth street, is suffering from the effects of a heavy cold.

A four-months-old daughter of Mrs. Hase of Franklin street, Somerville, died on Monday and was brought to this city for interment yesterday.

Miss Daisy Shepard left town to-day for a short stay at Newport, whence she will leave for Halifax, the home of her sister, Mrs. John Doull Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bedell of Somerset street have returned from two weeks' enjoyment of life in the Adirondacks, where they found fine fishing and abundance of sport.

A. E. Faber and family of Rockview avenue, North Plainfield, start to-day for Mountain Sunset House, Mountain Sunset post-office, Warnersville, Burks county, Pa.

The marriage of Edward C. Searing of THE PRESS composing room, and Miss Lottie Powers, will take place at St. Mary's church parsonage at 8 this evening, the Rev. Father Stafford officiating.

Among the distinguished persons present at Madison Square garden last night, as catalogued by World reporters, were DeWitte C. Ivins, of this city, and Thomas Nevins, president of the Plainfield Street Railway company.

Mrs. Abraham DeRevere, mother of George B. DeRevere, of Union Square hotel, New York, whose summer residence is on Woodland avenue, this city, died last evening at 7:30 at her home in Brooklyn. She was 72 years old. Funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2.

Robert P. Courtney, who died at Scotch Plains, Tuesday, was a well-known figure in the oil-cloth trade of New York city for many years. Until nine months ago he was a partner of William M. Brasher, manufacturer of oil-cloths in Brooklyn. Since that time until his death, Mr. Courtney was connected with the house of Thomas Potter & Co., of 343 Broadway, New York city. Mr. Courtney was 48 years of age and unmarried.

A Good Time at Boynton's.

The Dunellen M. E. church had its Sunday-school picnic at Papiac Tuesday. Stageloads of children drove down to Capt. Boynton's grove and found a place provided with all kinds of harmless amusements, merry-go-rounds, swings, photograph gallery, restaurant, bowling alley, fine pavilion skirting the water, plans for their use, a splendid sandy beach for bathing and wading, and elegant trees, among which are tables, and a well of cool, sparkling water. The children had a fine time, and came away with regret.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

A PARADISE ON THE HEIGHTS.

Brilliant Events, Lovely Women, and a Sweet Voice Enrapture THE PRESS'S Correspondent.

NETHERWOOD, last evening, was the scene of the first progressive euchre party of the season at the hotel. It was held in the main parlors at 9 and closed at 11:15. The prizes were lovely, and selected by Mrs. J. E. Spencer, whose exquisite taste elicited warm commendation.

Eleven tables were set at which were seated forty-four of the guests. It was a delightful event, a brilliant and joyous occasion, and another charming affair added to the chronicles of gay Netherwood. A generous sum was subscribed for the purchase of prizes by the guests.

The following were the fortunate winners:

Miss Goddard, bon-bon spoon.
Mrs. H. W. Williams, breast pin.
Mrs. O. B. Bridgman, pocket-book.
Mrs. J. F. Goddard, vase.
Mrs. Blount, bon-bon spoon.
Mrs. W. J. Eaton, bon-bon spoon.
Lewis M. Meeker, silver-mounted hair brush and comb.
H. W. Williams, silver-wrought pocketbook.
J. F. Goddard, Russia leather dressing case.
F. S. Jordan, silver-mounted English umbrella.
W. H. Sneckner, silver filigree cologne flask.
Mr. Hancey, silver cigar cutter.

A large number of guests are sojourning here for the season. Admiral Walker, of the White Squdron, was a guest at the hotel during last week. The season of '92 bids fair to be a brilliant and notable one. The cuisine is excellent and the guests seem thoroughly satisfied under the capable management of proprietor Miller.

The Saturday night hops and Sunday evening concerts, under the direction of professor Greenop, aided by his excellent orchestra, are notable events of the season.

Occasionally Miss Conway entrances the guests in the rendition of some of her charming selections. Her lovely voice is of exquisite timbre and shows the results of earnest study under her noted teachers, Del Puente and others.

There is a sense of restfulness enveloping this paradise on the heights of fair Netherwood, and I am quite sure none enjoys it more than the daily bread winner upon his return here from the city.

JUDGE CODINGTON SAVED HIM.

No Truth in the Terrible Charge Made by Spiteful Enemies Against a Westfield Lad.

Ross Bacon, the young colored lad charged with attempted assault on a little girl at Westfield, was discharged by the Union county court at Elizabeth yesterday. Judge W. R. Codington of Plainfield was his counsel, and presented proof that there was no truth in the charges against the lad, but they were made through the spite of an enemy. Mr. Codington submitted testimonials from Westfield's best citizens that the lad's character was unusually good, and that he was not morally likely to commit the offense alleged. Even prosecutor Marsh admitted that there was no evidence against the boy, and admitted his good character. The allegation was nolle prosequied.

THE WIFE FORGIVES.

James Hallett Goes Free by Request of the Woman He Injured.

James H. Hallett, the New Market man who was recently arrested for beating his wife, destroying a quantity of furniture, and striking a servant girl, was arraigned in the Middlesex county court at New Brunswick yesterday. He was intoxicated at the time the offences were committed; and his wife, who had him arrested, pleaded yesterday for his discharge, as she did not desire to press the case. Accordingly, by direction of the court, the prosecutor entered a nolle pros.

The case of Barkalew vs. Hallett, a civil suit, in which Mrs. Hallett, wife of the prisoner who had just been discharged, was concerned, was adjourned.

A SORROWFUL WEDDING.

The Lover Was Faithless, But the Law Was Stern, and Exacted a Marriage Ceremony.

John Henry and a Miss Stevens, young colored people of Dunellen, were married at the residence of the Rev. A. J. Cubberly of New Market yesterday.

The young girl had a babe in arms, the Scarlet Letter of her shame, and of her lover's faithlessness.

Henry had not denied his guilt, but had refused to keep his promise to marry the woman who had trusted him too fondly.

The aid of the law was therefore invoked; and constable Pierce, armed with a warrant, arrested the recalcitrant lover.

Rather than suffer imprisonment, Henry then agreed to the wedding ceremony, and the entire party repaired to the parsonage, where an unhappy family were united.

A Bonfire Fete on the Mountain-Top.

A novel social event that might happily be copied by Plainfield people is to take place at Boonton, one of the thriving summer-resort places in the mountains back of North Plainfield, Saturday evening, July 30, for the benefit of the local public library. Clarence A. DeCamp, who has the affair in charge, has several men engaged in cutting brush and putting it in huge piles. He expects to have over a hundred brush piles scattered over the top and sides of the hill, and will on the night of the hill-top fete set fire to them. It will be a great sight, and a novel affair.

No Lack of County Fairs

New Jersey fairs this year are already announced as follows: Vineland, Aug. 17 and 18; Bridgeton, Aug. 23 to 25; Woodstown, Aug. 30 to Sept. 1; Mt. Holly, Sept 12 to 16; Somerville, Sept. 13 to 16; Newton, Sept. 13 to 16; Waverly, Sept. 19 to 23; Trenton, Sept. 26 to 30.

IS IT BIGAMY?

Should This Tale be True, Jake McCullough, a Resident of Somerset County, is Guilty of Something Very Much Like It.

Tuesday afternoon as the Pluckamin stage stood in front of the post-office at Somerville waiting for the mail bags, a big, strapping, cross-looking woman came over the street and climbed aboard. It was noticed at the time that her face was rather red.

When the driver brought out the mail pouches and prepared to start on his homeward journey the woman refused to allow him or any one else to get into the stage. She, in fact, took free possession and from her manner plainly and positively gave everybody to understand that she intended to keep it. It was then discovered that she was real full, and the stage driver called officer Manning T. Crow and ordered him to arrest the woman. Upon her refusing to peaceably get out, Crow reached up and attempted to forcibly take her out. She resisted with all her power. Crow then called for assistance and officer Sebring of Bound Brook nobly responded. The two between them dragged her out on the sidewalk. She immediately threw herself down and began to kick, screaming and cursing. A big crowd gathered around and women who at least ought to have had decency enough to turn their backs, stood gazing at the disgusting spectacle with just as much curiosity as did the small boys and the men.

When Crow found she could not be induced to go quietly he put the nippers on her and with Sebring to push finally jugged her. For two hours after she was put in jail she kept up a running fire of abuse and imprecations against her captors. Wednesday morning at 10 she was brought before Justice Sutphen for a hearing, and her story is as follows:

She lived near Plucksmin, her name is Ann McCollough and she is the second wife of Jake McCollough who lived on the John Veghte place near Somerville some two years ago. She was married to McCollough one year ago in Dunellen by the Rev. Mr Stiner who has since gone West. McCollough has three children by his first wife, who is a daughter of Mose Williamson a resident of Somerville. This wife left McCoullough sometime ago and is now living in New Brunswick. McCollough has never been divorced from his first wife, and if it be true that he did marry the woman who tells this story he is guilty of bigamy and is liable to indictment by the grand jury.

Justice Sutphen imposed a fine of five dollars on the woman in default of payment of which she was committed to the county jail for five days. A great many people condemed the action of the officers in treating her, as they said, "brutally", but nothing else could be done. A drunken woman they say is ten times worse to handle than a drunken man.

BASE-BALL BABBLE.

A New Pitcher Signed for Plainfield—His Name Is Murphy—Notes of the Game.

Elizabeth has signed Reagan.

Some surprises from Somerville are predicted ere this week ends.

Meakin will not play for the Crescents any more. He will be given his release probably Saturday.

The Elizabeth Journal confirms the announcement of THE PRESS that manager Whelan of the Elizabeths has released Williams and Murray, whose costly errors helped to lose Saturday's game to Plainfield.

Manager Keller signed a new pitcher for the Crescents yesterday—R. J. Murphy by name. Murphy was in the box for Albany last year, and pitched for New York occasionally during the early part of last season. He is said to be in great shape this year, and doing good work. He will be on hand at this week's game, and may be given a trial then.

SOMERVILLE SIGNS GORE

And Otherwise Strengthens Her Team Again.

Manager Mack of the Somerville ball team has signed George Gore, the big professional who by a smashing two-bagger won the tie game from Plainfield two years ago, yesterday. Gore will hereafter play left field for the West Ends and makes his first appearance Saturday at Westfield. Tommy Murray, who has just been released by Elizabeth, was signed at the same time. These additions will strengthen the West End team greatly and the Crescents will have their hands full as usual when next the two teams meet. Carlin will be released by Somerville and Moorehead will probably play right field.

Plainfield Marksmen to Try Their Skill.

Saturday will be a gala day among New Jersey shooters, the occasion being the seventh monthly competition of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' league, to be held on the grounds of the New Jersey Shooting club at Claremont. The feature of the day will be the team contest of five men each for a handsome trophy and other prizes. The crack shooters of the Independent Gun club of North Plainfield will participate.

Backed up by a cash offer—the statements that are made by the proprietors of Doctor Sage's Catarrh Remedy. They say that their medicine will cure, perfectly and permanently, the worst case of Chronic Catarrh in the Head—that not only Catarrh itself, but all the troubles that come from it, and every thing catarrhal in its nature, are cured by the mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties of their remedy.

They can't say any more. Probably every medicine for Catarrh claims as much. But it's one thing to promise a cure—it's a very different thing to perform it. The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Remedy want to prove that they mean what they say. So they make this offer: If they can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, they'll pay you $500 in cash. You're sure of the money or a cure. Isn't such a medicine worth trying?

WATER SPOUT AT FANWOOD.

Bad Break in the Main Pipe of the Union Water Company.

As Mr. Doud was driving through Fanwood this morning he discovered a column of water which rose to a great height, issuing from the water main at a point about 300 feet east of Capt. Briggs's residence on Quality Hill, Fanwood. A gang of laborers was immediately ordered to the spot, and have been hard at work up to the time of going to press but are unable to find it, owing presumably to the fact that the joints were either not accurately located or a pipe itself had burst. The water runs upon the surface of North avenue, and unless the leak is speedily discovered there is great danger of the cellars of several houses being submerged, as the spout apparently is at the summit, and therefore it is evident the water must find a depository in lower places, which are the cellars of Messrs. Babcock, Briggs, Gardner, Darke and Moore. In case of a fire Fanwood, it is believed, would have to summon assistance from Plainfield.

A Cycler Who Will Be Missed.

George W. Moreton will sail for Europe Saturday with firm faith in the advertising power of THE PRESS. He inserted a small advertisement in its columns Tuesday evening, announcing that his bicycle was for sale on account of his contemplated removal to England. Though he published the same advertisement in the other Plainfield papers, from those he received no response. But from THE PRESS he got more answers than he wanted, and easily sold his wheel to one who had read the PRESS advertisement and no other. Mr. Moreton has been one of Plainfield's leading and most popular bicyclists. He was color bearer of the Bi. club. He has resigned his position as draughtsman at Pond's, to return to his old home, near Crewe, England.

His Hand Crushed by Cog-Wheels.

Elmer Hand had his left hand mutilated by machinery at Tier's ice-cream manufactory on Bank place, yesterday afternoon. His fingers were caught in the cogs of an ice-cream freezer which was running by steam power, and the flesh was stripped from two fingers. Dr. Frank R. Searles dressed the maimed hand, and the patient went to his home in Flemington.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

WESTFIELD STILL FIGHTING MAD.

But Summit Surprises Everybody by a Complete Surrender in the Tax-Assessment Contest.

The battle over tax valuations in Union county is for awhile at rest. The last day's fighting, at the meeting of the county assessors in Elizabeth, Tuesday, developed a surprise which disconcerted the protesting townships. At that session James A. Reed, the Summit assessor, who had been absent from Monday's meeting, put in an appearance with his big book of assessed valuations under his arm.

In his absence, the day before, the Elizabeth majority had suggested that the Summit valuation be increased $85,000 over the assessed valuation of 1891. This suggestion was adopted without any "kicking" because there was no one from Summit present to kick, but it was intimated that there would be a storm when assessor Reed arrived. Those who had so ruthlessly put an extra burden on Summit were a little apprehensive of trouble when it was announced that the Summit man was coming.

Mr. Reed is a man of fine physique, and when his shadow fell across the threshold there was possibly something of an uncomfortable feeling among those who had so readilly boosted up his township's figures.

But a surprise awaited all. Instead of bolting into the door in a rage and with threatened vengence, the big man from Summit strode calmly up the aisle with a pleasant smile on his face, deposited his book on the table, and signified his willingness to have it examined.

The committee made the examination and reported the books correct. Then came the surprise. Mr. Reed had assessed the valuations of Summit at $1,295,000, a total of $10,000 more than the increase made in his absence! He had not taken the old books of last year and copied the figures. He had, on the contrary, looked at the property, had estimated the value of each piece, and had assessed it accordingly. His valuation exceeded that of last year by $95,000.

The county tax had been apportioned, and the ten thousand additional valuation reported from Summit necessitated some alteration in the figures as tabulated Monday afternoon.

Mr. McGrath, of Elizabeth, thereupon moved that to make the adjustment necessary ten thousand of the thirty thousand increase placed by Elizabeth's votes on Union township be deducted.

This proposition did not please Mr. Reed of Summit. He said he saw no justice in such a proposition. He had fairly and squarely increased the valuations in his township. He had reported $10,000 more than the board wanted, and for that reason they proposed to take $10,000 off some other township. He did not think the action reasonable or just. His assessment of Summit's valuations were honestly made, but that was no reason why some other township should benefit thereby.

J. M. C. Marsh, of Westfield, agreed with the member from Summit, and then handed over to the clerk a written protest against the board having met at all, holding that according to law the board was directed and ordered to meet in September and not in July, consequently all action taken was illegal, and this he would yet prove to be the case.

Explanations were made to Mr. Reed that the board had increased the valuation of Union township above the report of the assessor. It was largely a farming district, and as there was an excess of $10,000 it was believed it should come off Union. The board had no right to take anything off the assessment returned from Summit. If in the judgment of the board an assessor has returned a too-low valuation, and not in comparison with other parts of the county, the board had authority to increase as it did in the cases of Cranford, Fanwood, Westfield and Union.

The motion to reconsider the extra assessment placed on Union was adopted, and $10,000 was deducted, making the increase only $20,000 over the amount reported by assessor Sayre.

It is reported that in his examination of valuations Mr. Reed discovered property that sold for $3,000 an acre, and was assessed for only $300 an acre. He promptly raised the valuations in a number of similar instances and also increased the personal property assessments about $30,000.

J. M. C. Marsh, the Westfield assessor, persisted throughout the session in expressing his dissatisfaction over the action of the board in increasing his township's valuation $30,000. He refused to figure the school tax apportionment on the advanced sum, and to sign the tabulated sheet, except under protest. He declared he would go to the State board with the matter, and prove that Elizabeth had raised Westfield's figures out of spite. The Elizabeth assessors laughed and denied his statements.

Mr. Marsh filed a protest against the assessment put on Westfield. This protest he made on three grounds; first, that there is no provision in the State laws for the county board to meet in July; second, that the increase was made without examination or comparison of the valuations in the township; third, that it was done out of spite because the board was organized in the absence of the Elizabeth assessors.

The school tax as finally apportioned was: Clark, $717.94; Cranford, $1,818.44; Fanwood, $2,093.91; Linden, $4,517.66; Plainfield, $19,199.40; New Providence, $706.02; Rahway, $8,066.95; Springfield, $881.44; Summit, $3,767.15; Union, $4,688.14; Westfield, $3,304.62; Elizabeth, $46,275.01; total school tax, $95,079.40.

The county tax: Clark, $1,434.68; Cranford, $3,639.22; Fanwood, $4,184.31; Linden, $9,020.38; New Providence, $1,410.85; Plainfield, $38,363.75; Rahway, $16,124.54; Springfield, $1,766.80; Summit, $7,469.89; Union, $9,252.21; Westfield, $6,603.94; Elizabeth, $90,531.24; total, $190,000. The county tax rate will be about .59, and the State and school tax rate about .30.

—Friday, August 8, is the date set for the excursion to Asbury Park of the First Presbyterian, Park Avenue Baptist and Congregational Sunday-schools.

KILLED BY A TORNADO.

Three Persons Crushed to Death Under Their Home.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

MADISON, S. D., July 21.—Reports have just come of a destructive tornado that visited the town of Gettysburg at midnight Tuesday night. The storm formed on the Missouri river and swept west through the State as far east as the Minnesota line. At Gettysburg the storm assumed the proportions of a tornado, completely demolishing the Methodist church, two schoolhouses, several residences, and fifteen business houses. Every vestige of the Advocate printing-house with its heavy machinery was obliterated, and the contents are scattered about the prairie.

Mrs. Wm. Herrin and her two children were crushed to death in their home. Twenty-five horses and cattle were also killed. The railroad tracks were torn up and telegraph wires prostrated. Other towns of the district have suffered much from wind and lightning.

O'DONNELL SURRENDERS.

The Strike Leader Gives Himself Up to the Pittsburgh Authorities.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 21.—At 9:20 this morning Hugh O'Donnell, together with all of the other Homestead men for whom warrants had been issued, assembled at the office of their attorney, Mr. Brennan, to make preparations for surrendering themselves to the magistrate.

Shortly afterwards O'Donnell walked into Alderman McMaster's office and gave himself up.

Counsel for the rest of the accused strikers decided during the morning that they should not surrender to-day. Attorney Brennan went to Homestead to see Gov. Pattison.

NEW STATIONS ON THE CENTRAL.

Elizabeth's Waiting Rooms to be Ready for Use This Week.

The Jersey Central has nearly completed its new one-story brick and stone station on the south side of the tracks at Elizabeth. The building has an eighty-foot stone and brick tower in the center. Four turrets adorn each side, while a clock displays the time of day to all points of the compass.

On each side of the station is a long shed, and on the north side of the tracks an annex or station for west-bound passengers, similar in design to the one on the south side, has been constructed. It also has long sheds on each side. Both stations are lighted by electricity, and have all accommodations for travelers.

The company's men are busily at work digging a tunnel under both tracks which will be used as a passenger passage from one station to the other. Both stations will be thrown open to the public this week.

The Pennsylvania company has just completed a little one-story frame building, corner of West Grand street and the railroad, which will be used pending the erection of a more pretentious one across from the Central tracks at the corner of East Broad street. Work on the permanent station will be begun during the next thirty days. Tenants of property through to Mary street have been ordered to vacate the property. Whether this is done to prepare for the elevation of the tracks or not is not known, but it is strongly hinted that the elevation will begin with the construction of the station. It is the desire of the company to elevate the tracks as quickly as possible so as to obviate the crossing of the Central tracks, which has ever been a source of delay, danger and expense. This crossing, over which 700 trains pass daily, is the most dangerous in the United States.

Dunellen Doings.

Harry Terry has just returned from a fortnight's outing.

The whist club is preparing for a picnic to Papiac about Aug. 1.

The electric lights are as dim as ever.

Dr. P. W. Brakeley and family returned last Saturday from a week's vacation in the White Mountains.

The old public school building is receiving a new coat of paint. The color is gray, trimmed with brown, and has a very beautiful effect.

A number of Dunellenites went with the Plainfield Baptist church to Asbury Park yesterday.

The three-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vail died at their late residence Tuesday night.

A Wonderful Machine.

There is no doubt that man is a fine mechanism, but like every other machine he wears off by friction. It is said he is born again every two or three years. His body is virtually re-made from food. To retard this making over is radically wrong as a man loses so much vitality in the delayed process that it takes a long time to recuperate. The process of making anew is so accelerated by purging with BRANDETH'S PILLS that a new man, as it were, may be made in two or three months, and the change in the mechanism is such that the worn out part is replaced by the new without the usual running down of the entire machine. You don't have to stop for repairs. Purge away with BRANDETH'S PILLS the old diseased and worn-out body. They are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

Improvement on North Avenue.

The old bill-board on North avenue adjoining Roberts's stables is to be taken down. A substantial board fence seven feet high, to contain a painted advertisement of THE PRESS, will be erected 10 feet back from the sidewalk, and the space in front will be neatly sodded. The improvement is to be done by THE PRESS, which has for years controlled the bill-board, and the idea of the improvement is to attract attention to the vacant lots, which are in the market. A Newark firm tried to secure the advertising privilege of the board, but was refused.

The Sabbath Question in Plainfield.

Under the heading "A New Difficulty", The Sabbath Recorder republishes from THE PRESS of July 13 its account of the Sabbath-selling difficulties in Plainfield, and says:

The following clipped from The Press of Plainfield, N. J., of a recent date, shows how the effort to protect the "American Sabbath" by law leads to difficulties and complications which puzzle New Jersey lawyers. How would it do to let the observance of religious institutions rest upon the consciences of religious people, enlightened by the word of God, and ask the civil law to concern itself with purely civil matters?

Somerville Sees the Show.

Bob Hunting's circus, which the mayor would n't let come to Plainfield, showed to 1,500 of Somerville's "swellest" people, Tuesday night. The show was pronounced the finest that had ever come to town. The managers made enough money to pay all hands off for the first time in three weeks, and the employes celebrated by painting the town as red as they could without stirring up the police.

MANGLED BY THE CARS.

A Father and His Sons Killed at a New Jersey Crossing.

NEWARK, N. J., July 21.—A frightful accident occurred at a crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Harrison at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, which resulted in the death of a man, two boys and two horses. James Burns, of this city, an employe of the Illingsworth steel works, was driving one of the company's heavy trucks across the tracks of the railroad as a west-bound train, due at the Market street station at 3:30 o'clock, was approaching at great speed.

A freight train which had become blocked across the crossing, had separated so as to allow the wagons to pass, and the long line of cars completely shut off the view of anyone approaching in a wagon. Burns drove directly onto the track in front of the west-bound engine and the locomotive struck the heavy wagon just back of the forward wheels, throwing the tangled mass high into the air.

The two boys, who were Burns' sons, and were aged 7 and 9 years, were instantly killed, and were found in the meadow beside the track. The father was terribly mangled, and was just alive when taken to the Hospital. He died soon after. The wagon was reduced to small pieces, and the horses were so badly cut up that they had to be shot by one of the employes.

BEAUTIFUL SCENERY.

The Road from Washington to Cabin Johns Bridge.

Favorite Thoroughfare with All Classes of Society—Diplomats and Statesmen in Handsome Turnouts—History of a Famous Bridge.

[Special Washington Letter.]

The vicinity of Washington abounds in beautiful scenery and pleasant drives, but the favorite thoroughfare with all classes of Washington society is the road to Cabin Johns bridge. Every bright Sunday the owners of fast horses, and of those not so fast, hie them to the boundary of Georgetown, that quiet little annex to Washington, and take the conduit road to the bridge. It has been so ever since the bridge was built in 18— and it will probably remain so forever.

Let us follow this red-wheeled road wagon, in which the "sporty" looking gentleman is explaining to his friend, evidently a stranger, the different places of interest along the way. We will be sure to see all there is to be seen, as he and his gray mare are a feature of the road every pleasant Sunday.

After leaving Georgetown we follow along the banks of the Potomac for about a mile and then make a turn at right angles to the river only to take a parallel road a little higher up. Before we turn, however, let us take a look back at the city. How pretty it looks with the Aqueduct bridge spanning the river at the end of Georgetown and the Washington monument and capitol in the distance. Right opposite us, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, are two houses picturesquely situated among a grove of trees and with the American flag flying from their tops. We had better, however, admire them from the safe distance of the Maryland shore; as, despite their innocent appearance, they are said to be the home of the great American tiger.

Now let us continue our drive. For a short time we lose sight of the river, although traveling in the same direction. As we get upon higher ground we come in sight of the first reservoir. This is a beautiful sheet of clear water from which the city is supplied with alleged aqua puris. It is hard to explain the transition from the clear water of the reservoirs to the muddy fluid which issues from the faucets in our town houses at this season of the year. Pretty country villas dot the landscape in the neighborhood of the reservoirs, of which there are five. An electric road is in operation by a roundabout route from Georgetown to Glen Echo, in consequence of which a "boom" is on and the real estate dealers are flourishing.

Leaving the first reservoir we pass over a comparatively level stretch of ground until the road takes a sudden dip and we pass over a bridge spanning another reservoir. Up the hill on the other side we come upon the road again, which is here as smooth as the track at a racecourse, and along which it is a pleasure to drive. The horses seem to find a similar enjoyment in carrying their masters along at an increased rate of speed, and here it is that the fun comes in and the numerous "brushes" take place. Let us stop for a few minutes on one side of the road and watch the steady stream of Washington society drive past. In the van comes a blonde young man in a very high dog cart. He is from New York and came here with the spring races and, making "a big stake," became so charmed with Washington life that he has remained ever since. He will not be able to hold his lead long with that heavy-wheeled cart. Immediately behind him, and in marked contrast, comes the brougham of Senator Stockbridge, who takes a drive in the country every pleasant afternoon. Here is a buckboard with four young people out for a Sunday's frolic. That fine-looking old gentleman with the gray side whiskers is the British minister, Sir Julian Pauncefote, and that smooth-faced man in the red-wheeled Brewster brougham right behind is the vice president, Mr. Morton. That blonde-mustached man driving the team of bays is Campbell Carrington, a prominent criminal lawyer of this city, who, it is said, has a different pair of horses for every day in the week. That fine-looking old man with his handsome wife is Senator Stanford, of California. They drive their pair of well-known black coach horses, Major and George, and their landau is an object of much attention and admiration from the occupants of the other vehicles. That genial-looking gentleman with the brown beard is Senator Proctor, of Vermont, and few teams in the city can pass that pair of silver sorrels which he is driving before the red-wheeled landau. Here comes what looks to be a pretty close race. Hon. Archie Bliss, of New York, with his spanking team of bays hitched to a side-bar trap, is slightly in advance of his friend, Senator Manderson, who is driving a little trotting mare with a record of 2:38 to a light Kensington road wagon. The Brazilian minister, Senor Mendonca, is ont on horseback accompanied by his outriders, who wear a livery of dark green with flowers and cockades of yellow, the colors of the Brazilian legation. That gentleman in the "C" spring brougham, who is just getting out of the way of that pair of young fellows who are racing to the bridge, is Secretary of the Navy Tracy, who prefers his pair of coal blacks to the faster equines of his friends. F. M. Draney is the veteran of the road and has driven fast horses for the past twenty years. For a long time he drove his trotting stallion, Rutherford B. Hayes, who could go close to 2:30, and now he has some of Hayes' get. That handsome gentleman driving the pair of well-matched bay mares is Col. Ainsworth, of the war department, and beside him is his friend Frank Conger, who is enjoying himself immensely behind his bay mare!

BLACKWELL'S BULL DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO.

I'm an old smoker, and have at one time or another tried all the different Smoking Tobaccos, but for a good smoke Bull Durham beats 'em all.

A leading characteristic of Bull Durham has always been the hold which it takes on old and fastidious smokers. What its excellence first secured, its uniformity has always retained, and it is, therefore, to-day as twenty-five years ago, the most popular Smoking Tobacco in the world.

Never Tire.

Now let us fall in line at the rear of the procession, satisfied that there will be many other teams to follow us. Yes, there is the rumble of the heavy wheels of a victoria and we can see its single occupant as the carriage passes by. Do not stare! It is Madeline, the queen of the demi-monde. Is she not beautiful as she reclines gracefully upon the cushions of her trap, looking neither to the right nor to the left and recognizing no one? She will soon be out of sight, and out of sight out of mind, so let us turn our attention to the natural beauties of the drive. We are now nearing the ruins of the famous Glen Echo, that beautiful sylvan retreat o'er which poets raved but two summers ago. Nothing remains of the glory and splendor of this charming spot but the arched gateway of undressed pine boughs. There is nothing left to remind us of the beautiful parquet hall, which seemed a glimpse of fairyland with the fountain and flowers in the center and the band playing Wagnerian melodies and harmonies from the balcony. No longer does the Washington young man bring his best summer girl to stroll around the rustic bowers of this modern Arcadia on the banks of the Potomac. In one night the fire fiend destroyed the work of months. Nothing was spared. There is some talk of building a new Glen Echo, but the man who undertakes it will have to be very painstaking indeed to come up to the expectations of the thousands who have visited Glen Echo in the past and who will be satisfied with nothing short of their former amusement Mecca.

Only a few rods from the site of this river palace is the National Woman's Chautauqua, an educational institution much affected by ladies of uncertain age and given a wide berth by the rising generation. The aforementioned electric road which runs from Georgetown to the Chautauqua affords unlimited opportunities to the truly good to worship at the shrine of knowledge.

Leaving this classic atmosphere let us fall in line again behind this smart young man in the natty spring suit, who enjoys the proud distinction of having in his buckboard the prettiest girl on the road. The effect is somewhat spoiled, however, by the spectacle of two ragged country urchins hanging on to the rear of his trap. After leaving the Chautauqua the residences become scarcer and we can see the waters of the Potomac shining through the trees on the bank. At this point the river is quite shallow, being near the "Little falls," or, more properly speaking, the "Little rapids." At intervals along the way from Georgetown are road-houses with accommodations for man and beast where the thirsty travelers may be cared for.

Just up this hill and on to the level, we are in sight of the bridge. From where we now are it appears nothing more than the conduit road with stone railings on either side. As we drive on the bridge we are still unable to appreciate the magnitude of the arch. It requires a view from another point to realize the extent of this great stone structure. Looking from the parapet of the bridge to the chasm of Cabin Johns creek, 101 feet below, is very apt to make us dizzy, so we will cross to the opposite side, stable our horse and stop at the hotel for a few minutes. There is a crowd of thirsty visitors making for the bar to get a glass of the mint julep for which this hostelry is celebrated. "Very sorry, gentlemen, but we serve only soft drinks here; but if you will walk into the dining-room I have no doubt the waiter will be able to supply you with what you want, at a table." What a farce!

Out on the piazza we will take the flight of winding stairs leading down to the ravine of Cabin Johns creek, at the base of which we can examine the bridge at our leisure. It is erected of immense blocks of granite, and leaps the ravine at a single arch of 220 feet. It is a wonder in the history of bridge building, being the largest stone arch in the world. It was designed and erected under direction of Jefferson Davis when he was secretary of war, and his name was cut in the keystone of the arch at the time. During the war, however, some one with more ardor than discretion destroyed the inscription and it has never been replaced. The bridge cost the government $237,000. There is an opening in one corner, a dark hole like the entrance to the infernal regions. The few visitors who explore this cavern look relieved when they emerge from its gloomy interior into the bright sunshine of the summer afternoon.

SMITH D. FRY.

Perfectly Satisfied.

Little Bessie had been taken in to see her new baby brother for the first time.

"You think you will like him, Bessie?" asked her father.

"Why, yes," she said, clapping her hands delightedly. "There isn't any sawdust about him at all, is there! He's a real meat baby!"—Chicago Tribune.

Liked Children.

Neighbor No. 1—Does the noise of my children disturb you?

Neighbor No. 2—Oh, I like it.

"Do you, really?"

"Yes, indeed. My husband's relatives are rather nervous people, and they never stay longer than a day or two now."—Good News.

Why They Go to the Seaside.

Mr Williams (Fanny's admirer)—Is your sistah going to the seaside this summah, Tommy?

Tommy—That all depends on you. I heard ma say that if you and Fanny were engaged before the season opened, there wouldn't be any sense in her going.—Texas Siftings.

Knew His Own Weakness.

Deacon Bloodroot—The number of saloons in New York is simply appalling. Why, if you should walk up Broadway from Union square to Twenty-third street, how many dram shops do you think you would pass?

Dick Rounder—None.—Life.

How She Found Him Out.

Belle—When did you first suspect his inconstancy?

Blanche—When I received his first letter.

Belle—Why; was it cold?

Blanche—No; it was typewritten.—Texas Siftings.

Holding Back.

Witherby—There's a button almost off your coat, old man. You ought to call your wife's attention to it.

Von Blumer (sadly)—I'm going to, as soon as I can save up enough money to get her a new gown.—Puck.

Still They Come.

St. Peter—Who are you?

Shade—Hamlet, the Dane.

St. Peter—You come up pretty often

Shade—Well, I can't help it. Actors will persist in murdering me.—N. Y. Herald.

In Fashion.

Housekeeper—Those new potatoes you sent us are no bigger than hickorynuts.

Dealer—Yes'm; they're right in fashion, mum. They're what are called the "small and early," mum.—N. Y. Weekly.

No Doubt It Was.

Mrs. Hojack—Why Miss Gasket, you don't look as old as your sister.

Miss Gasket (coldly)—I am not as old as my sister.

Mrs. Hojack (calmly)—Perhaps that is the reason.—Judge.

Modern Conveniences.

Little Dick—What's mamma got her teeth in a tumbler for?

Little Dot—Mebby they ache. Wish I had that kind.—Good News.

Enough to Go Around.

"Charlie Wicks has only one arm, has he not?" asked Maude.

"Yes," returned May, "but it's a long one."—Puck.

His Action Approved.

Mrs. Gazzam (reading)—Orpheus struck the lyre.

Gazzam—That was the proper treatment.—Detroit Free Press.

IT DOES NOT ALWAYS FOLLOW.

—Brooklyn Life.

Change in the Weather.

Mrs. Spinks—Where is the money you have been saving up for a rainy day?

Mr. Spinks—In the Neverbreak savings bank.

Mrs. Spinks—Well, give me a check for some of it. I want a new waterproof.—N. Y. Weekly.

WHAT TO EAT

is a difficult problem with many people because but few articles of food agree with them. The doctor says

and the result is unpalatable food. The reason the physician objects to grease is because lard is the article most used, and every physician knows that hog lard in any shape is unhealthy and indigestible.

Every one interested in pure and healthful food hails with joy the new product which is composed of pure cottonseed oil and pure beef suet—nothing else—not even salt. It is better than either lard or butter for all cooking purposes, and one pound of Cottolene will do as much as two pounds of lard or butter, and it costs less than either.

Every housekeeper that tries Cottolene will find in it just what she wants.

Ranks of Homestead Strikers Unbroken.

EXPIRATION OF THE TIME LIMIT.

The Surrender of O'Donnell and Ross and Their Incarceration Create No Excitement--They Will Probably Be Released on Bail To-Day--Hungarians Who Are Occupying Company Houses to Be Evicted--Gov. Pattison Will Remain in Homestead Several Days Longer.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 22.—It is quieter here now than at any time since the 6th inst. The arrests of Hugh O'Donnell and Hugh Ross create no excitement among the working people, and the absence of inflammatory talk shows a lethargy that marks the beginning of the end. The leaders say that the rest of the battle must be fought in the courts.

Messrs. Weihe and Brennan, president and legal adviser respectively of the Amalgamated Association, were closeted with Governor Pattison for an hour in the afternoon. Governor Pattison refused to disclose the nature of the conference, and Messrs. Weihe and Brennan were equally reticent. Mr. Brennan said, however, that the object of the visit had seemingly been accomplished, and that if it has been successful the present trouble would be brought to an immediate conclusion.

Last night the limit of time fixed by the Carnegie Steel Company in which their old men might return to their old places in the Homestead mills expired. Up to the very last the officers of the company predicted that there would be a stampede, but it did not come. When the works shut down for the night it was authoritatively stated that only seven of the old men had come inside the fence.

The statement made by Gov. Pattison to a reporter directly after the conference, that he did not know how much longer he would remain in Homestead, would seem to indicate that he does not take a peaceful view of the situation, and will not leave until matters have assumed a more definite phase. The militiamen have received rations for five days, and it is almost certain that they will remain in Homestead for that period and probably longer.

It is the almost general belief here among persons interested that Weihe and Brennan failed to accomplish their mission. They went directly from headquarters to the railroad station and took a train for Pittsburg. They did not see any of the local leaders either before or after the conference.

Samuel Burkett, James Flanagan, Sylvester Critchlow and Anthony Flaherty, the four men accused of murdering Pinkerton men in the battle of July 6, are believed to be in Homestead. No attempt has been made to arrest them by Pittsburg constables since last Monday.

Burkett and Critchlow say they will surrender themselves if Hugh O'Donnell and Hugh Ross are admitted to bail. Flannagan and Flaherty are said to have determined not to give themselves up or allow themselves to be arrested under any circumstances. It is believed that warrants for the arrest of Homestead people for complicity in the Pinkerton repulse will be brought to Homestead for service within a few days.

The Carnegie Company has decided to evict the Hungarians and Poles who occupy the 25 company houses on Shanty Hill just back of Gen. Snowden's headquarters. The writs will be served to-day, and these tenants will then have ten days in which to move. The heads of these families are day laborers in the mill, and are now on strike.

Just what will become of these families when they are thrown out of doors is not known, as there are not 25 vacant houses in Homestead which they can obtain. The company intend to use the houses for non-union men, as they are within the lines of Camp Black and will be safe from molestation as long as the military remain.

A report reached Homestead this morning that Andrew Carnegie had decided to sail for America and take a hand in settling the present difficulties. Supt. Potter and other officers of the Carnegie Company deny it emphatically. They said he has not the slightest intention of returning to America for some time.

Three hundred strikers, formerly of the mechanical department of the Homestead works, have secured work in laying and grading the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad at Millvale, near Pittsburg. The railroad company applied for hands in Homestead and a notice stating that 300 men were wanted was posted at the headquarters of the locked-out mechanics and laborers. Applications were brisk and no difficulty was experienced in securing the requisite number.

Most of the men were of the poorer class of Poles and Slavs.

There is only a slight increase in the signs of activity around the Carnegie mill to-day. The greatest efforts are being made by the company to create the impression that the mill is in operation, but, including the carpenters and mechanics who have been smuggled into the works, there are only 200 men where 4,000 are usually employed.

The tug Tide left her wharf at 9:25 a. m. bound for Homestead. An official of the Carnegie Company was present and closely inspected the tickets held by the sixty-five or seventy workmen who were on the boat. Eight horses and another large supply of provisions were also taken on board.

When the Tide had arrived at the Carnegie Mill landing here, not near the number of men disembarked that were on board when the boat left Pittsburg.

It is likely that they deserted the boat as she passed through Lock 1.

THE TIME LIMIT EXPIRES.

Only a Few of the Pittsburg Strikers Return to Work.

PITTSBURG, July 22.—The time fixed by the Carnegie Steel Company for the return of their old men has expired and the company will give no further opportunity to them.

Only a few of the old men availed themselves of the opportunity to return.

The officials say every chance for the men to return to work was given and now no further regard will be paid to the old men; their places will be filled and the mills started.

It may take a few days longer than was expected to get the necessary repairs made, but it is asserted that the repairs are nearly completed, and that in spite of the statements to the contrary, the Homestead plant will be in operation before the week is out.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

O'DONNELL IN CUSTODY.

He and Hugh Ross Give Themselves Up to a Pittsburg Magistrate.

PITTSBURG, July 22.—The conditions surrounding the legal proceedings against the Homestead strikers are fast degenerating into a farce, and only a triumphant entry into the jail yard of the accused men in a circus chariot and with a brass band at their head, is needed to effect a fitting climax.

Hugh O'Donnell and his six associates, for whom warrants were issued, had no trouble in evading arrest, while at the same time, with exasperating coolness, they deliberately shoved themselves under the noses of the constables so anxious to take possession of their person.

It was given out by Attorney Cox Wednesday evening that the men would certainly come down to town within the next twenty-four hours and surrender, but only a portion of this programme was adhered to.

Five of the accused men, Andrew Flaherty, Samuel Turkett, James Flannagan, Hugh Ross and Sylvester Critchlow, came to town on an early morning train, while Hugh O'Donnell came in about nine o'clock.

The six first named took seats in different coaches, and instead of riding through to the Union Depot, they left the cars at the South Side station and proceeded to the city by separate routes, finally rounding up at the office of Attorney Brennan.

At 11:45 Hugh O'Donnell, accompanied by Hugh Ross, leisurely entered the Criminal Court building and presenting himself to Judge Magee, bowed and introduced himself to the judge and said that he understood that they were wanted and that they had come to surrender.

The Judge responded that he had no jurisdiction at this stage over their movements and that they should go forthwith to the Aldermen and surrender.

The two men then departed.

They had gone but a few steps when they were met by a reporter and stopped a moment to explain their mission.

"There is the Alderman crossing the street now to go to lunch," said the reporter. The men started off, O'Donnell being the first to intercept the functionary.

"My name is Hugh O'Donnell," he began.

"Glad to see you, Mr. O'Donnell, glad to see you," responded the magistrate, his face beaming with smiles as he grasped the hand of the strikers' leader and shook it warmly. "And this is Mr. Ross," continued O'Donnell.

"Won't you gentlemen kindly step over to my office?" said the magistrate.

"Certainly," replied O'Donnell. "That's what we are here for."

The trio proceeded to the private office of the magistrate, where a hearing was waived; the committments were made out and in five minutes Constable Webber, looking as if he had achieved the victory of his life, had delivered the men for safekeeping to Warden McAleese in the County Jail.

HUGH O'DONNELL'S MISSION.

He Does Not Deny That He Consulted With Republican Leaders.

PITTSBURG, July 22.—Hugh O'Donnell says his destination on his recent mysterious mission, was New York. What he accomplished, he believes, will tend towards settling the strike.

He does not deny the suggestion that he consulted with the members of the National Republican Committee.

Gen. Butler on the Homestead Trouble.

BOSTON, July 22.—To a reporter yesterday Gen. Butler said, as to the extradition of Andrew Carnegie, that he could not see how a man could be taken in a foreign country for acts said to be done in this country during his absence. The General was very strong in expressing his conviction that legislation should be had that would cause the disbandment of the Pinkertons and the prevention of such riots hereafter. Personally he had no correspondence with the strikers, and he had heard nothing whatever as to his being engaged as counsel.

Financial Support Only.

MCKEESPORT, Pa., July 22.—The workmen in the National rolling mills of McKeesport have published a letter denying a report that they would quit work out of sympathy for the workmen of Carnegie Company. They declare that while they sympathize with the locked-out men of Homestead, there being no grievance of any kind in any of the mills connected with the company of McKeesport, they cannot afford, nor either have they any desire to quit work, having no cause to do so. Their sympathy will be extended in a financial manner.

Wouldn't Use Carnegie Spikes.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 22.—The carpenters employed by the City Marshalls to lay sidewalks struck yesterday because the spikes provided were from the Carnegie works. New spikes were promptly found with a different brand on the keg, and the men went back to work. The Carpenters' Union had declared against anything coming from Carnegie, and will enforce the boycott.

Investigating Supposed Murders.

CATALDO, Idaho, July 22. — Lieut. Smith, who was sent to investigate the supposed murders in the Fourth of July Canyon, has returned and reports that he found a large area that had been burned over. The ashes resembled bone ashes, and some which were in the form of bones crumbled upon being touched. The ashes were brought here for examination by an expert.

A Wealthy Sugar Refiner Dead.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 22.—E. C. Knight, the wealthy sugar refiner of Philadelphia, who has been lying ill at his cottage here for several weeks past, died early in the morning. Mr. Knight was 79 years of age.

CHAIRMAN HARRITY.

He Was the Unanimous Choice of the Democratic Committee.

NEW YORK, July 22.—At noon the Democratic National Committee met at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, Chairman Brice presiding. There was a large attendance, but few proxies appearing on the roll.

Before the meeting there was a little discussion about the Chairmanship. For two days there was a tacit agreement that William F. Harrity should be elected Chairman unanimously. Mr. Harrity said that he did not seek the place, but he would not refuse it if it were thrust upon him.

It was generally agreed by the Committeemen that Mr. Harrity would be elected to the position without opposition.

When the Committee got down to work there was little time lost and everything went through without a hitch.

The name of W. F. Harrity, of Pennsylvania, was proposed for chairman, and his selection was unanimous.

S. P. Sheerin, of Indiana, was re-elected Secretary unanimously, as was Robert B. Roosevelt, of New York, for Treasurer, to succeed Charles J. Canda.

The Committee appointed by the State Executive Committee of Illinois to work for the establishment of a branch headquarters at Chicago was on the ground.

It was headed by Washington Hesing.

The Committee came here full of confidence, but after talking with the National Committee and making a thorough canvass of the situation it was found that a majority of the National men were opposed to the scheme. It was then decided not to press the matter before the National Committee, but to make an appeal later to the Executive Committee.

Mr. Hesing held a conference with Mr. Cleveland on the question, together with other members of the Committee.

Mr. Harrity was born at Wilmington, Del., in October, 1850. He was graduated from La Salle College, Philadelphia, in 1870, at the head of his class. After teaching for a year he entered the law offices of Lewis C. Cassidy and Pierce Archer. He was admitted to the bar in 1875, remaining in the offices of Cassidy and Pierce until 1880. In that year he formed a partnership with James Gay Gordon, now one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia.

In 1882, when the Democracy of Philadelphia was disorganized, he was made Chairman of the Democratic City Executive Committee. The Democracy won that year. In 1884 he was a delegate to the National Convention. Mr. Cleveland made him postmaster, last year Governor Pattison appointed him Secretary of State. Mr. Harrity has a wife and four children.

CYCLONE IN THE WEST.

Great Destruction of Property — Lives Reported Lost.

CHICAGO, July 22.—A severe wind storm accompanied by heavy rain and lightning swept over Central and Southern Illinois and Southern Indiana Wednesday night. At Galesburg, Ill., many buildings were damaged and several persons were seriously injured.

At Henderson nearly every building in town was damaged and some were completely wrecked.

At Jacksonville, Monmouth and Fairbury the damage was considerable. The greatest loss, however, will be to crops, which are reported ruined in many localities.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 22.—A great hurricane swept over a large portion of South Dakota and Southern Minnesota Wednesday. Houses and barns were unroofed and wheat and other crops almost totally ruined.

At Gettysburg Mrs. Harriett Herron was instantly killed, and a dozen houses were demolished. Eight or ten persons were seriously injured. At Cottonwood, Minn., buildings were blown about promiscuously. At Ellendale Mrs. T. H. Bunker was killed by lightning. William Necker lost his barn and six horses.

HURON, S. D., July 22.—A severe wind and rain storm visited this city and vicinity Wednesday, accompanied by terrific lightning. Part of the roof of the First National Bank and the Huronite building was blown off.

The windmill at Blume's brewery fell upon an adjacent building, crushing the roof. Smith's mammoth ice house was unroofed and his house damaged.

ABERDEEN, S. D., July 22.—A terrific wind and rain storm struck here Wednesday, doing considerable damage to crops and buildings. Portions of the gas works were uprooted and bricks were blown down, damaging the plant about $1,000. Several smaller buildings were blown down or the roofs torn off.

OTTUMWA, Ia., July 22.—The town of Hiteman was destroyed by a cyclone yesterday. Every house in the village was wrecked and several persons were injured, but none fatally. The storm extended over a wide area, doing great damage to crops. At Mason City eight houses were struck by lightning and burned.

CAPT. REDFORD SUSPENDED.

For Running the City of Chicago Ashore Near Kinsale.

LIVERPOOL, July 22. — The Board of Trade in the case of Capt. Redford, off the Inman line steamer City of Chicago, has announced its judgment.

It censures the captain for running his ship ashore near the Old Head of Kinsale and suspends his certificate for nine months.

The court found, having regard for the fact that the weather was intermittent and the fog very thick at times, that the vessel set nearer the land than the master expected, and that the log-book showed that he was traveling faster than he calculated.

The master was in default for not having used the lead with greater frequency and for allowing his vessel to proceed at full speed upon a course approaching land at a time when the weather was not such as to justify such a proceeding.

The master was also wrong in altering the course at 7:05 p. m. to east-northeast.

FOR A TRUST IN FLOUR

Combination of Five Big Milling Companies.

PRICES HAVE ALREADY ADVANCED.

Feed, Bran and Other Articles Produced by the Mills Will Be Affected by the Combine--The Companies Control All the Eastern Trade.

NEW YORK, July 22.—All the large flour milling companies in and about New York have pooled their issues and formed themselves into a single corporation to control the flour markets of the East. Articles of incorporation are now being drawn up in this city, and within the week they will be filed with the Secretary of State at Albany.

There are five great companies in the combine. They are the Hecker Company, the Jewell Milling Company, Holt & Co., Jones & Co., and Kings County Company. The Hecker Company owns the Croton mill on Cherry street, the Jewells operate what is known as the Brooklyn City Flour mills, Holt & Co. have their plant on Staten Island, and Jones & Co. run the New York City Roller Flour mills at No. 35 Broome street.

Securities will be issued by the new company aggregating $7,500,000. There will be issued $3,500,000 gold bonds bearing 6 per cent. interest, to run for a term of 30 years. The company retains the privilege, however, of redeeming the bonds after 10 years at 110 and accrued interest. The prospectus states that subscribers to the issue may take the bonds on August 1. The capital stock is to be of two classes—an issue of preferred stock of $3,000,000, to pay a dividend of 8 per cent., and $3,000,000 common stock.

The following will be the officers of the new company: John Y. Hecker, president; Eugene Jones, vice-president; Thos. A. McIntyre, treasurer; Herbert Jewell, secretary. Among the directors will be David Dows, W. A. Nash and Gen. Slocum and the officers of the company.

The New York millers have been engaged in an aggressive competition for several years. The Jones and Hecker companies began a cut-throat warfare several months ago which forced a drop in prices from $4.75 to $4.25 a barrel. The organization of the new company will prevent such a state of affairs in the future. Flour has advanced 10 cents per barrel within the last week owing to the consolidation of the warring interests. Feed, bran and other articles produced by the mills besides flour will be affected by the combination. The New York mills have a large trade in the West Indies and South America. Holt & Co. had a large business in Brazil, the yearly shipments to that country aggregating 1,500,000 barrels.

THE LEADERS TO BE ARRESTED.

Idaho Miners Threaten to Assassinate the Mine Masters.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, July 22.—A report was circulated here last evening that reliable information had been received by the officials stating that insurrectionists have made a threat to assassinate thirty of the leading mine-masters in the Coeur d'Alene district.

The officials pretend to take little notice of the threat, if such a one has actually been made.

United States Marshal Pinham has left here for Coeur d'Alene with warrants for eight of the rioters, charging them with contempt of the Federal Court in having violated an injunction restraining them from interfering with the operation of the mines.

It has been decided to proceed against the offenders in the District Court. Judge Beatty will be asked to a special term of the United States Circuit Court as soon as all of the arrests have been made.

As soon as order has been restored in Shoshone County, the leaders in the riot will be proceeded against, and charged with murder.

AN IMPORTANT INFANT.

On His Life Hinges the Disposition of $7,000,000.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—Mrs. J. Hooker Hammersley, of New York, gave birth to a son Wednesday. This announcement is fraught with the greatest importance to the parents of the child, to the Duchess of Marlborough and to the many charitable institutions to which she may be kindly disposed. For if this child be alive when the Duchess dies he will inherit the $7,000,000 left by Louis G. Hammersley, whose widow the Duchess was before she was allied to the nobility.

She is now enjoying the income of this fortune.

Should the child's father, who is a cousin of the testator, have no son living at the time of the Duchess' death the money will go to whatever charitable institutions she may designate in her will.

MRS. MACKAY SEEKS DIVORCE.

In South Dakota She Charges Her Husband With Desertion.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., July 22.—The most noted member of the Sioux Falls divorce colony at present is Mrs. Archie Mackay of New York. Mrs. Mackay came here a month ago, and shortly after her arrival she secured the services of Judge Palmer to secure a decree of divorce.

Before her marriage Mrs. Mackay was Miss Margaret Duncombe Hone, daughter of a wealthy merchant and a direct descendant of Philip Hone, once Mayor of New York. Her husband is a relative of Gen. Phil Kearney.

Mrs. Mackay will allege desertion as her cause for divorce.

Death of Hon. John Lynch.

PORTLAND, Me., July 22.—Hon. John Lynch, who represented the First Maine district in the 39th, 40th, 41st and 42d Congresses, is dead in this city of heart trouble. He had been sick for several weeks. He was a native of Portland and was engaged in business here early in life. He served in the Legislature of Maine in 1862 and 1864. He was editor of the Washington "Union" from 1876 to 1877. He leaves a widow and one son.

New Bicycle Record.

BALTIMORE, July 22.—The Baltimore Cycle Club had a red letter day yesterday. The event of particularly lurid glow was the breaking of the world's tandem record by Doratge and Fensgren, of the Buffalo Athletic Club, who went five miles in 12:14, lowering by 43 seconds the record established by Zimmerman and Bradbury in England on July 19, when they went the distance in 12:56.

CAD KIPLING AGAIN.

He Arrives at Montreal and Makes a Public Display of Rudeness.

MONTREAL, July 22.—Rudyard Kipling used to have a great many admirers in Montreal who intended to pay him honor and homage should he ever visit this city. He arrived at the Windsor Hotel yesterday with his wife, and made himself about as much detested as a man can in one day.

One of his many orders was that he should not be disturbed by anyone under any circumstances, and the many persons who called when they heard of his arrival were so told. One prominent merchant here, a great admirer of his, who also accosted him, was informed by Kipling that he did not wish for any new acquaintances.

The worst treatment was received by the Pen and Pencil Club, to which the principal artists and literary folks of the Dominion belong. They tendered a reception in their beautiful club rooms; but without even going to the trouble to inform them to that effect, he failed to appear and slighted them in a manner which will never be forgotten.

EXCITEMENT IN PARIS.

Ravachol's Friends Alleged to Have Concocted a Dynamite Plot.

PARIS, July 22.—It is asserted upon reliable authority, although the police claim to know nothing of the report, that an Anarchist plot has been discovered to destroy the Bourse and the Palace of Justice with dynamite.

It is known that ever since the execution of Ravachol the authorities have been keeping a vigilant lookout for any attempt at outrage. It is known that Ravachol up to the moment of his death expected that an attempt would be made to rescue him, and it is believed that he had secret information to that effect from his fellow-Anarchists in Paris.

The authorities have learned, it is said, that there was actually a scheme to rescue Ravachol, or at least to interfere with his execution, and it was only defeated by the thorough preparations made before the execution to prevent the access of undesirable person to Montbrison.

It is stated that for a week before Ravachol's execution, and for several days after, every person in Paris, who was under suspicion of Anarchist sympathies, and some of these persons considerably removed above the lowest classes, was watched by either a police agent or a private police spy.

There is no doubt that Paris is in imminent danger of a fresh outbreak of dynamitism, and this knowledge has caused renewed fear on the part of the people.

M'COMAS IS SECRETARY.

He Will Open the Republican Headquarters in New York.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Hon. Louis E. McComas of Maryland announces that he has accepted the Secretaryship of the National Republican Committee.

He has gone to his home at Hagerstown.

He will go from there to New York and will open the Republican headquarters there and will remain until the close of the campaign.

Plainfield Temperature Yesterday: Maximum, 87.8; Minimum, 58.6.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—A special sale of nut broken candy will take place to-morrow at Tier's.

—The pole of Gazelle engine was broken at yesterday's fire. A new pole was substituted.

—Poisonous gases from leaky gas mains have been killing off fine shade trees in Elizabeth.

—Packer is anxious to close out his stock of baby-carriages, and to that end will sacrifice them absolutely at wholesale prices.

—That free exhibition of what cottolene can do, at the store of the United Tea and Coffee Growers' association, is very interesting, and all should see and profit by it.

—The number of unmuzzled dogs running at large was lessened by 8 this morning, when detective Frisbie captured that number and escorted them to the dog-pound.

—The Telephone company is putting the most improved long-distance transmitters on the instruments of all its subscribers in this city and thus making absolutely perfect a service that under manager Runyon's care and attention has long been beyond criticism.

—Those who visit the Christian Endeavorers of the Park Avenue Baptist church this evening at 8 will enjoy a treat in listening to remarks by Mrs. Fernald on the subject of temperance, as well as reports of two or more sessions of the recent convention.

—Messrs. Hickey, Malone, and Henley have decided not to play with the Pond Juniors anymore, but will play hereafter with the Young Americans of Dunellen. The Pond team has not been weakened, however, as manager Burns has secured three other players who will play in their places Saturday afternoon.

—The Postal Telegraph office is to be removed from 5 Park avenue to Hotel Grenada, where a section on the ground floor has been leased by manager Pucci. This will make a fine office for the Postal, which gives the best telegraph service in the country. Manager Pucci is now issuing to subscribers every evening a printed bulletin of the winners of the day's races—including the names of the horses, the jocks and the betting quotations—the results of the league ball games, and other desired information about important events that happen after the evening papers are printed. A number of hotels and others in this city are already subscribers.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Schepflin left to-day for Manhattan Beach.

The Rev. P. H. Brooks will preach at the First Presbyterian church Sunday.

R. B. Rogers, of sea-food house, is ill at the home of his mother on Second street.

Mrs. John C. Stryker and daughter and Mrs. Arthur L. Stryker, are at Asbury Park for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Shann of Grandview avenue are spending a few days at the Mansion House, Atlantic City.

Messrs. D. M. Boe and H. C. Piker, the two plucky wheelmen who came from Plainfield yesterday through rain and over muddy highways, had a good rest at Hotel Alhambra after their long jaunt.—Asbury Park Journal.

Oscar S. Teale, of this city, delivered an address in New York, last night, before the New York division of the American League of Amateur Photographers. His remarks were well received by the large gathering of amateur photographers who were present.

Changes in the Central League Teams.

Manager Mack who, when the Central New Jersey base ball league was formed, spoke out against the "hiring of any George Gores", and advocated the playing of semi-professionals only, has in dire distress and forlorn hope gone and done the very thing he denunciated and has given official notification of the fact that he has signed George Gore of the New Yorks, as exclusively told in THE PRESS of yesterday. He has also signed Murray, late of the Elizabeths, and released Moorehead and Reese.

Elizabeth notifies the league that Coogan, Murray and Williams are released and Lufbery, Meyers and Crane are signed. Westfield and Somerville are welcome to the National League players they are paying $25 a day for. The Plainfield managers will not take such men. They do n't help win many games, and their clubs won't get much credit for any they may win. In the two games that Westfield with Sharrott has played against Plainfield, he made but one hit and that in a game that Westfield lost. $50 for one hit is rather expensive.

Chief Deane Visits the Capital.

The chief of the Plainfield Fire Department and his assistant gave an exhibition drill of the ladder service, on West Hanover street, yesterday. The drill was witnessed by a large number, and was spoken of in the most complimentary terms.—Trenton True American.

IRISH WAS N'T THE CAUSE.

One of Plainfield's Outraged Finest Tells in Plain Language Why Policeman Conde Left the Force.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—We policemen feel that the article published from Der Somerset Bote, in your paper in regard to ex-policeman Frank Conde, and said to be from his own pen, reflects on us. Conde says he resigned because there were too many Pats on the force, and that none but Irish was wanted. Now, Mr. Editor, there are not many Pats on the force, and if Plainfield never had any Franks on the force the records would stand better than they do to-day. Conde says he resigned. He did resign; that is so; but not until after he had a charge made against him and he was given the alternative of resigning or standing trial. He has been shielded perhaps more than he deserved, and he should reflect upon the mercies that have been shown to him, instead of ridiculing those who are honestly doing a public service which he disgraced. It is a serious matter for a man to betray his trust, and what must people think of one who is set to watch property and keep it secure from thieves and yet who stocks his own dooryard with choice plants and flowers from the garden he is employed to guard? There are no Pats, nor any other policemen on the force to-day, since Conde's leaving, that had such a charge against them. So as an ex-officer I think Conde would better be still, as the charge against him is still in the hands of the police board to-day, and may readily be prosecuted. But to save his credit, the chief or some other party in authority advised him to resign and settle the claims of the injured party, and avoid public disgrace and prosecution. This is his gratitude. I have been asked several times why Conde left, and my answer was "Tired of it!" But I am disgusted to think that Conde would come out and blackguard the force and give a false cause of his resignation. S. R. HOPE.

THE BIG RUN TO-MORROW.

How The Bicyclists Will Ride Through Plainfield.

The Century run of the M. A. C. C. from Newark to Princeton, and return will take place to-morrow as has been announced in these columns. The run will reach Plainfield at 6:30 a. m. and 4:45 p m. stopping 15 minutes each way at the wheelmen's headquarters for refreshments. The run will take the following route through this city: Front street from Scotch Plains to Richmond street, to Fifth street, to Park avenue, to Front street. Returning through Front street to Grant avenue, to Seventh street, to Madison avenue, to Fourth street, to Park avenue, to Fifth street. It is estimated that there will be about 300 participants in the run. The riders will be checked by number at various points on the route, so as to avoid confusion and misunderstanding in presenting the souvenir medals. The checking in this vicinity will be done as follows:

GOING.
H. H. Lowrie, jr., } Scotch Plains.
Fred. Freeman, }
W. G. Runyon, jr., Dunellen.

RETURNING.
Dr. C. B. Mathewson, Somerville.
E. H. Field, Plainfield.

Not the Street Railway Company's Fault.

The delay in the starting of the Plainfield electric street railway service is entirely due, as THE PRESS foretold, to the delay in the car shops of the J. G. Brill company at Philadelphia. The time fixed in the contract for the delivery of the cars in this city, was July 15. President Nevins was so vexed at the failure of the builders to do this, that he would have cancelled their order for the cars at once and placed it elsewhere if that would not have caused more delay. So he sent superintendent Passmore to the car shops with orders to stay there if necessary until the cars were finished and shipped.

There is one judgment above all others that Thomas Nevins of Orange is proud and watchful of, and that is that "His word is as good as a government bond." When he learned that the cars would not be here at the date contracted for, and that in consequence he would be placed in the undeserved position of having disappointed the people, he shut his eyes to all question of cost and took such steps as will bring about the starting of the Plainfield railway service at the earliest moment. The cars will be here probably in three weeks—finished and equipped, ready to start.

Plainfield's Coming Pastor.

The Rev. Isaac Newton Phelps, who will doubtless be called to the pastorate of the Park Avenue Baptist church in this city, has just closed his pastorate of three years and three months at the First Baptist church of Albany. During this time he has done a large work upon a peculiarly hard field, and his labors will not soon be forgotten. Mr. Phelps will rest during the summer, making his headquarters in Brooklyn, and will be ready to settle again in the autumn.

In this connection the Baptist Examiner says: "Mr. Phelps has received a very grateful expression of love and appreciation from the deacons of the First church in Albany, and we have every reason to believe that he is a man and preacher that any church would receive as a blessing who should call him to its pastorate. His address is now 99 Rodney street, Brooklyn."

A Campaign Bicycle Club.

The wheelmen's club that will be auxiliary to the Plainfield Republican association in the coming campaign was temporarily organized last night. Committees on by-laws and the selection of officers were appointed, and these will report next Tuesday evening, when a permanent organization will be effected. The credit for the idea of the wheelmen's organization is due to that clever campaigner, J. Fred MacDonald.

Plainfield Withdraws from the Race.

The Plainfield Bicycle club has withdrawn from competition in the Elizabeth Daily Journal trophy road races, owing to a disruption in its team caused by the absence from town of two of its best members.

CRACK MARKSMEN IN TOWN.

Many Targets Shattered at the Independent's Tournament.

The opening day of the Independent Gun club tournament on the grounds in North Plainfield, yesterday, was a brilliant success. The weather was beautiful, a pleasant breeze tempering the sun's rays, while the grounds presented a lively appearance with the number of spectators present. Among those in attendance were the Hon. J. L. Bumgardner of Staunton, Va.; Harry Hartlove and Charles Fehrenbath of Wilmington, Del.; F. R. Bissell of Chicago, Ill.; "Billy" Sigler of Montclair, Neaf Apgar and W. Fred. Quimby of New York, Charles M. Hedden and F. V. Vandyke of Newark, E. Collins of West Hoboken, Enoch M. Miller, the champion target shot of Springfield; "Tom" Brantingham, Thomas H. Keller, R. M. Manning, A. R. Soper, Charles Smith, Dan Terrey, Scott Terrey, Warry Squiers, and George Squiers of the home club.

The shooting was fast and furious throughout the day, all events being at blue-rock targets thrown from five blue-rock traps, and most of them under the rapid-firing system at known angles. The Plainfield marksmen acquitted themselves creditably and came in for good shares of the prize money in the several events. The tournament is continued to-day.

HYMENEAL.

Searing—Powers.

The wedding of Miss Lottie Powers to Edward C. Searing, which took place at 8 o'clock last evening at the rectory of St. Mary's church, was a very pretty event. The bride wore a handsome costume of pearl-gray henrietta cloth, en train, trimmed with Bengaline silk and chiffon lace. She carried a graceful bouquet of tea roses, smilax and sweet-pea blossoms. Her bridesmaid, Miss Sadie E. Connors, wore a dress of French cheviot of high color, trimmed with Guipure lace. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Father Stafford, and the best man was Edwin I Vroom.

Following the ceremony was a wedding reception to the immediate members of the families. It was a very pleasant event, and the happy young couple were the recipients of many hearty greetings and tokens of high regard.

Mr. and Mrs. Searing will reside at 41 B West Sixth street.

The groom is an esteemed employe of THE PRESS, and is popular among all his associates. He has the sincere congratulations and best wishes of THE PRESS and its entire staff, for himself and bride.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO PAY THE DEFICIT.

Park Avenue Church Trustees Adopt a Plan to Satisfy the Builders for Their Loss.

The recommendation of the investigating committee that the builders of the Park Avenue Baptist church be reimbursed for their loss on the building contract, has been considered by the board of trustees of the church. The board is of unanimous opinion, and wishes it distinctly understood, that the builders have neither legal nor moral claim on the church, but as an act of Christian equity the trustees deem it proper that the contractors' loss be made good. They have therefore appointed a committee to receive individual subscriptions to the reimbursement fund recommended, and as soon as the contributions reach the amount of the loss the builders will be paid. This adjustment of the difficulty will be highly satisfactory and creditable to all parties, and eminently characteristic of the church's reputation for fair and honorable dealing.

DEDICATED THE CHILD TO GOD.

Five Converts at the Salvation Holiness Convention.

The Salvation Army had a "grand holiness convention" at Elkwood hall last night, conducted by Staff Captain Marshall. The subject was "Wading Through Jordan". The hall was well filled with eager listeners of all classes. During the evening Capt. Tickner dedicated little Beatrice Louise Farrington to the Lord, the child's mother, Mrs. Eleanor Farrington, making the responses. The ceremony was very interesting, and the evening was made a notable event in army circles. An officer spoke enthusiastically to a PRESS reporter about the meeting, saying: "The power of God filled the hall and took hold of saints and sinners. At the close of the meeting five souls knelt at the mercy-seat for salvation and sanctification, and went away rejoicing in the God who had set them free."

Dwellings Saved from Fire.

The fire department was summoned by box 27, yesterday afternoon at 5:10, to extinguish a fiercely-burning brush-heap that endangered adjoining property. The citizens whose residences were thus protected give expression to their gratitude as follows:

We return thanks to the fire department for their promptness and efficiency in extinguishing the dangerous flames on Kensington avenue, yesterday afternoon. The old nursery of spruce trees of thirty years growth, closely adjoining our buildings, had been cut down last winter by some unknown parties without removing the logs or brush, excepting a few Christmas trimmings. This dense material, dried in the summer sun, burned yesterday like a dead pine forest, which is just what it was.

C. W. OPDYKE,
H. J. SPOONS.

They go together—the "cutting" of prices, and the substitution of inferior goods. Sometimes it's a fraudulent imitation of the genuine article—sometimes it's some cheap compound represented as "just as good;"—there's profit for a sharp dealer, even at "cut prices."

To prevent this kind of fraud and imposition, the genuine guaranteed medicines of Dr. R. V. Pierce are now sold only through druggists regularly authorized as agents, and always at these long-established prices:

Golden Medical Discovery (for the Liver, Blood, and Lungs), . . . $1.00.
Favorite Prescription (for woman's weaknesses and ailments), . . . $1.00.
Pleasant Pellets (for the liver), . . . 25 cents.

They're the cheapest medicine you can buy at any price, for you pay only for the good you get. They're guaranteed, in every case, to benefit or cure, or the money is returned.

Beware of the dilutions, imitations, and substitutes offered by unauthorized dealers at less than above prices.

OCTOBER 21 A HOLIDAY.

Let There Be a Deserving Celebration of Discovery Day in Plainfield.

President Harrison yesterday proclaimed Friday, October 21, 1892, the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, as a general holiday for the people of the United States.

"On that day"—he urges—"let the people so far as possible cease from toil and devote themselves to such exercises as may best express honor to the discoverer and their appreciation of the great achievements of the four completed centuries of American life.

"In the churches and in the other places of assembly of the people, let there be expressions of gratitude to Divine Providence for the devout faith of the discoverer, and for the Divine care and guidance which has directed our history and so abundantly blessed our people."

Now is Plainfield's opportunity for a fine show of patriotism. Let there be immediate preparation for such a celebration of Discovery Day in this city as so great an anniversary deserves, and such as will reflect credit on Plainfield's fair name.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I used Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

MISS BULKLEY MAY BE THE CHOICE.

Plainfield's Popular Ex-Principal Mentioned for Leading Honors at the Great World's Fair.

A notable feature of the great Columbian exposition at Chicago is to be a group of memorials of women prominently connected with the past or present history of each State of the Union. These memorials are to be placed in the building by the women of the respective States. The women of Connecticut have chosen Harriet Beecher Stowe for their representative, and a marble bust of that celebrated woman has been decided upon. An oil painting of Julia Ward Howe will represent Massachusetts in this respect. New York's testimonial will be to Emma Willard, the pioneer of female education, and will consist of a library. South Dakota will send a life-size statue of an Indian girl. New Jersey has not selected its heroine yet, but has a remarkable number from which to make a choice, and it is possible that the representative chosen will come from Plainfield. A list of the eligibles has been carefully prepared by the State woman's committee, who have winnowed the candidates down to the following:

Dorothea Lynde Dix, Mrs. Joel Parker, Molly Pitcher, Euphemia Smith Johnstone, Mrs. Ida V. Hoag, Miss Jeannette Gilder, Miss Ada L. Howard, Miss Helen A. Schafer, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Kinney, Mrs. Treat, the naturalist; Mrs. Hester M. Poole, Marion Harland, Mrs. Charlotte Emerson Brown, of Orange; Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, of New York; Miss Susan Hayes Ward, Newark; Miss Hetta Ward, Newark; Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, Scotch Plains; Miss Julia E. Bulkley, Plainfield; Miss C. B. Alexander, Hoboken; Mrs. Blackwell, Elmora; Mrs. J. H. Knowles, Newark; Mrs. B. Williamson, Elizabeth.

The selection of either Miss Bulkley or Mrs. Hall would be eminently deserving. Miss Bulkley is famous the world over for her development of the public-school system, and in her way she has done more than probably any other woman to the great and noble cause of of education. Mrs. Hall deserves high recognition for her contributions to literature. Both have been largely instrumental in developing a broad and higher plane of thought and action for human intellect.

The woman's committee of the State are determined that feminine agency in New Jersey's important contributions to the marts of industry, to the ranks of inventors, and to the advancement of charitable and philanthropic work, shall be given full recognition at the exposition. The committee have made a careful investigation into the subject of woman's work in the State, and report that in the lines of industries in this State where women are employed there are 836 factories, which employ 69,494 women. The most important of these are 113 silk mills, engaging the services of 9,056 women; sixty-nine shoe factories, giving employment to 1,744 women, and twenty shirt factories, requiring the help of 1,737 women. No account is given of the army of women employed as teachers, cashiers, book-keepers, typewriters, clerks, nurses, domestics and at other vocations.

"Nearly all the charities," says the report—"almshouses, reformatories, prisons, asylums, have in their government an equal or larger representation of women than men. In the public schools throughout the State there are more women teachers than men, and one who is qualified to judge says unhesitatingly that the women of New Jersey are in the front rank, everywhere."

During Centennial year New Jersey fostered but thirty-four associations in which women were interested. At present there are 300 clubs, circles, unions, secret societies and other organizations originated and officered by women, not to mention the evangelical connection of King's Daughters' foreign and domestic missionary societies which are in operation with every religious faith.

Two incidents pointing out certain avenues of employment only occasionally open to women, are described in the report. One speaks of a Newark jewelry factory which from time to time turns out handsome theater "favors" given at "anniversary performances" of plays having long runs. A woman takes charge of these matters for all the theaters and arranges the details for the manager. She has other employment of like nature, and is as shrewd, business-like and energetic as any man, while her womanly taste seldom fails.

The other incident is nothing short of a woman superintendent, where the employes are all men. The woman is a relative of the head of the concern, and it was owing to his breaking down from overwork that it became necessary that she should take charge. At first, it is said, the men grumbled, and the woman's ear caught mutterings of discontent. They declared "they would n't work for a woman". But with great dignity and tactful force the woman guided and directed, and gradually she won their confidence by her fairness and her wisdom.

A Plainfielder Talks on Loan Insurance.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Building and Loan association of New Jersey in Library Hall, Asbury Park, yesterday, an address was delivered by S. R. Struthers of this city, on "Building Loan Insurance". Mr. Struthers showed how life insurance can be combined with building and loan associations so that the borrower who has partly paid for his home may, in case of death, have the balance due liquidated. He stated in an interview with a reporter that a payment of 25 cents a share per month for the first year, and a decreasing rate per month during the succeeding years, would be ample to insure a borrower.

PLAINFIELD SHOULD GET THE BEST.

Here's a Chance for Speedy Wheelmen to Capture Fine Prizes.

The annual exhibition of the Somerset County Agricultural society will take place Sept. 13, 14, 15, 16. Last year the fair proved most successful under the new management, and this year the determination is to make the four days' exhibition of such character that great crowds will be attracted. Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 14, will be given up entirely to bicycle racing, for which the society has offered over $500 in prizes. There will be four races, the first being a one-mile novice race, open to the State; the three prizes offered are a gold watch, a diamond ring, and a gold medal. The second race is a one-mile safety handicap (open), with prizes of gold watch, diamond ring, and silver stop-watch. The third race will be a two-mile safety handicap (open); prizes, gold watch, diamond ring, diamond scarf pin. The last race will be a one-mile club team race (four men), open to State bicycle clubs, the first prize being a silver punch bowl, and the second prize a silk banner, the clubs making the most points taking the prizes. The winners of the finals will be awarded medals of gold, silver and bronze as they finish. The races will be run under the direction of the Somerset wheelmen and L. A. W. rules. F. P. Prial will do the official handicapping. In the club team race athletic clubs will be barred. There is no doubt that there will be a large number of entries from all parts of the State, and as the Somerville riders are young at the business there is a chance for some of the speedy bicyclists of Plainfield to walk away with some fine trophies. The events will be run on the half-mile track now used for trotting. The bicycle track will be about ten feet wide, laid next to the inside fence, with tan-bark rolled until it is as level as a floor.

CAPT. MARTIN'S COW BELL.

A Native Fireman from Somerville Thought 'Twas a Hook and Ladder Truck.

The five cyclers representing the Somerset wheelmen arrived home Wednesday from Washington after three days of the most delightful wheeling ever experienced by them. Captain Bird of the Somerset wheelmen was the only captain of a L. A. W. club from New Jersey among the State contingent, and at the suggestion af J. S. Holmes, ex-president of the Business Men's Cycling League of Newark, the New Jersey wheelmen—thirty-five in number—rode under the badge and title of the Somerset County club.

A very funny incident occured at the Bigg's House during the first dinner hour. Joshua Doughty, chief of the Somerville fire department, was setting next to Dr. Charles B. Mathewson, the hustling committeeman on transportation. Just as the first course was about being served, the loud ringing of a gong was heard in the street, followed by the rumble and rattle of a heavy vehicle over the pavements. Doughty, true to his life-saving instincts, leaped from his chair exclaiming "Good heavens! There must be a fire. There goes the hook and ladder truck." He rushed to the street, followed by the Somerville contingent, when to his amazement he saw Capt. Martin of the Plainfield Bicycle club, riding an antiquated bicycle about, and clanging away at a gong that sounded like a cow bell, to the great amusement of the rest of the boys. That bell was afterward stolen by the joke-loving Jerseymen. Of course the joke was on Doughty, and another joke came later, when he thought a storage-battery electric car, with its clatter and bell ringing, was a fire-engine. Those cars and their noise were something he could not get used to. He would wake up in the middle of the night thinking that the whole city was ablaze, only to be calmed by the gentle voice of "Dr. Charles", reassuring him of his safety.

NEWS NOTES FROM WESTFIELD.

What the Thrifty People of Ripleyville Are Doing.

Miss Mary Hall is ill with intermittent fever.

The Presbyterian church is to be lighted by electricity.

John Ingram, jr., of Stroudsburg, Pa., formerly of Westfield, is in town visiting his parents.

Miss Gertrude Ransom, of Newark, will spend the month of August with her aunt, Mrs. Newton Hoffman, of Mountain avenue.

The members of the Westfield Athletic club are preparing for the concert to be given at the opening of their new clubhouse in October.

The children of the boulevard will hold a fair for the benefit of the Westfield children's home next Thursday afternoon and evening, from 4 to 9, on the grounds of John J. Coger.

At a special meeting of the voters of School District No. 10, held last Tuesday evening, the trustees of the district were authorized to borrow $2,000, in anticipation of the taxes of 1892-3.

The executive committee of the Republican association met last Tuesday evening and decided to erect at the corner of Broad and Elm streets, a temporary building to be used as a headquarters for the association during the coming campaign.

Again Branding Honest Citizens.

No one seems to be safe from the villainous attacks of the self-styled "journalist" who runs the Somerset street sheet. Last night, its columns, seemingly with deliberate intent, published a paragraph whose purport is to make so highly respected a citizen as R. F. M. Chase a falsifier. The sheet says that it is not true that Mr. Chase has had a number of valuable animals poisoned. Now inasmuch as Mr. Chase himself told the facts of the poisoning and those facts were published in these columns July 19, it is, to say the least, unkind to Mr. Chase to brand that gentleman as the "journalist" sheet brands him by the publication of its sweeping denial.

MINISTERIAL NOMINEES

Life Sketches of Messrs. White, Snowden and Beale.

FIVE NAMED FOR CONSULAR POSTS.

Mr. White to Go to Russia, Mr. Snowden to Spain, and Mr. Beale to Greece—The Nominations Sent to the Senate Yesterday By the President.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Hon. Andrew D. White, ex-president of Cornell College, who was yesterday appointed Minister to Russia by President Harrison, is too well known as an educator and literateur to need any extended public notice. He brings to his position former experience in the diplomatic service, having been Secretary of the Legation at St. Petersburg; subsequently one of the commissioners appointed by President Grant in 1871 to visit Santo Domingo, and Minister to Germany under President Hayes, in all of which positions he distinguished himself by his great ability.

When Cornell was incorporated he contributed $100,000 to aid in its equipment, and in 1887 endowed a new school of History and Political Science in that institution with his library of 30,000 volumes and 10,000 pamphlets, which is valued at more than $100,000. It is known as "President White's School." He is the author of a number of books which deal principally with historical subjects.

Hon. A. Louden Snowden, of Pennsylvania, appointed Minister to Spain, is the present able representative at the courts of Greece, Roumania and Servia. He is a member of an old revolutionary family in Pennsylvania; has been postmaster at Philadelphia, and superintendent of the Mint in that city, both of which positions he filled with marked satisfaction to the government and the people. His promotion to Spain is a deserved recognition of the fitting manner in which he has discharged the duties of his present post.

Truxton Beale of California, appointed Minister to Greece, Roumania and Servia, is the son of Gen. E. F. Beale, the intimate friend of General Grant so long known and highly respected by the people of his State and of this city. Mr. Beale was appointed Minister to Persia by Mr. Blaine, and his present promotion is a recognition of his marked merit.

Mr. Truxton Beale's promotion from the Persian Ministry to that at Roumania, Servia and Greece, is a deserved recognition of his services to the Government in the East. He arrived at Teheran not more than a year ago, and his first action was to enlist the interest of the Shah's Government in the Chicago Exposition.

At his solicitation the export duty on goods for the exposition was abolished, and also the import duty on all goods bought at the exposition and imported into Persia. The Persian Commercial Association thanked him for this service. He also succeeded in having the government prohibition against the ownership of real estate by foreigners rescinded for the missionaries, and they may now hold in their own name. The Presbyterian missionary station at Teheran passed resolutions thanking him for this.

The President also appointed the following to be Consuls of the United States:

John A. Barnes of Illinois, at Chemnitz.

Darley B. Brush of South Dakota, at Messina.

Cyrus W. Field of New York, at Brunswick.

Carl B. Hurst of the District of Columbia, at Cantania.

Charles August Vortriede of Ohio, at Horgen.

ALICE HAD FLIRTATIONS.

Miss Johnson Cross-Examined in the Mitchell Murder Trial.

MEMPHIS, July 22.—At the cross-examination of Lillie Johnson at the trial of Alice Mitchell for the murder of Freda Ward, Miss Johnson detailed the history of the day on which Alice killed Freda, and told how she and Alice left the scene of the tragedy in a buggy after Alice had cut Freda's throat.

After the break between Freda and Alice, Miss Johnson and Joe Ward became enemies, and on being pressed by the State as to the reason for this estrangement, she said it was because Joe Ward had not answered her letters.

After a searching inquiry Miss Johnson admitted that she and Miss Mitchell flirted with an opera singer, J. L. Shotan, and also sent him flowers. The witness also admitted that she and Alice had flirted with several young men at the Chesapeake & Ohio depot.

She said Miss Mitchell was very proficient in music, and had taken two medals for proficiency in the art.

Frank Mitchell said that on the day of the departure of the boat on which Freda intended to go to Gold Dust, Alice called Freda into a stateroom and told her she was going to kill herself. Freda wanted to scream, and Alice told her if she loved her she would not cry out.

Freda then remained silent and Alice took part of the bottle of laudunum. She further stated that she carried the razor always when it was missed by the family. She had no regret for having committed the act and has no fear of the law.

Rhode Island Village Fire Swept.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 22.—Moosup, Connecticut, the principal manufacturing centre in Plainfield Township and a village of 2,000 inhabitants, was visited by a most destructive fire yesterday morning. The business centre of the village, including its hotel, the railroad station and freight house and six other buildings, among which were two dwellings, were burned. The loss is estimated at $80,000; partly insured.

Was It a Case of Cholera?

DETROIT, July 22.—James Cockburn came from Scotland on the steamer Furnesia and reached Detroit six weeks ago. Sunday night he died very suddenly from what was really an aggravated case of cholera morbus, but which presented all the characteristic symptoms of Asiatic cholera. The remains turned completely black. Health Officer Duffield insisted upon calling it a case of sporadic cholera and ordered a private funeral at night.

Palo Alto Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Palo Alto, the celebrated stallion, head of Senator Stanford's stud on the Palo Alto stock-farm near Mayfield, died of pneumonia yesterday. Other animals are suffering from the malady and it seems to be spreading rapidly.

A LITTLE GIRL RULER.

The Habits of Wilhelmina, the Pretty Queen of Holland.

Not long ago Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, visited Germany. Emperor William arranged a series of grand banquets and receptions in her honor, and the event was talked about in our own country as well as in every part of Europe, because the queen is only twelve years old—a little girl ruler.

Queen Wilhelmina herself would have liked better to play with her dolls, feed her pigeons, or drive her team of six ponies; but she is Holland's queen, and so must begin to take an interest in the pomp and splendor which is to surround her.

She is too young to actually assume all queenly duties, but every public act of the royal power is performed in the name of this little girl ruler.

These royal duties came to her in consequence of the death of her father. Queen Wilhelmina was the only child of King William and Queen Emma of Holland, and so the next heir to the Dutch throne.

The little Wilhelmina lives with her mother at the castle of Loo. The little queen leads a quiet, happy life. She rises at seven o'clock in the morning, and goes at once to kiss her mother. At eight o'clock the queen's breakfast is served; from nine o'clock until twelve she is busy with her studies, and at noon she enjoys a simple lunch of eggs, milk and fruit. At six she dines with her mother, and at eight o'clock the little Wilhelmina is sent promptly to bed.

Queen Wilhelmina has been taught to take an interest in her people, and this little girl ruler gives promise of being dearly loved by those whom she is to serve.—E. Addie Heath, in Our Little Men and Women.

HOW FISHES EAT.

Some Have Teeth, Others Masticate Food in Throat or Stomach.

The curious ways in which fishes eat form quite a study. Some fishes have teeth, and some have none at all. In some the teeth are found upon the tongue, in some in the throat and in some in the stomach. Some draw in their food by suction; the sturgeon is one of this class. The jelly-fish absorbs its food by wrapping its body around the prey it covets. The starfish fastens itself to its victim, turns its stomach wrong side out, and engulfs its dinner without the formality of swallowing it through a mouth first, much less of asking permission.

Then there is a peculiar little crab—the horseshoe crab—which chews up its food with its legs or claws before it passes the morsels over to its mouth. While other crabs and lobsters masticate their food with their jaws, and afterward complete the work with an extra set of teeth which they find conveniently located in their stomachs.

So there are all sorts of methods for those regularly toothless, and the fishes which have teeth show almost as great a diversity in the number, style and arrangement of them. The ray or skate "has a mouth set transversely across its head, the jaws working with a rolling motion like two hands set back to back. In the jaws are three rows of flat teeth, set like a mosaic pavement, and between these rolling jaws the fish crushes oysters and other mollusks like so many nuts.

The carp's teeth are set back in the pharynyx, so that it actually masticates its food in its throat; while the sea-urchin has five teeth surrounding its stomach, and working with a peculiar centralized motion, which makes them do as good service as if they numbered hundreds.

And these are only a very few of the odd methods in which fishes eat.—Harper's Young People.

Now or Never.

There is hardly anything so bad that a wise person cannot get some good out of it. Indeed, it is one of the principal marks of a philosopher that he reaps an advantage even from misfortune.

A little Boston girl, according to the Herald, had for some time wanted a dog. Finally she was taken very ill with pneumonia. One day, when she had begun to get better, she told her mamma how very much she wanted a dog, and begged her to ask grandpa to buy her one.

Mamma answered that grandpa did not like dogs, and probably would not be willing to buy one. Then, seeing the little invalid look sadly disappointed, she said:

"Wait till you get well, my dear; then we will see."

"Oh no," answered the child, whose few years had taught her a little wisdom, "the sicker I am the more likely he will be to buy it for me."

Her Reason.

Even an artistic judgment depends on the "point of view." A lady who saw that her servant girl seemed to take a certain interest in the objects of art in her parlor, said to her:

"Which one of these figures do you like best, Mary?"

"This one, mum," said Mary, pointing to the armless Venus of Milo.

"And why do you like the Venus best?"

"Sure, it's the aisiest to doost, mum!" answered the girl.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

FOR NEBRASKA EXHIBITS.

One of the Neatest State Buildings at the Great Chicago Fair.

The Nebraska state building faces south on Fifty-seventh street, on the east on a magnificent boulevard, the west front borders on a large lake, and the north front faces the North Dakota building. The Nebraska building covers 6,000 square feet and has 12,000 square feet of floor space. Its dimensions are 60 by 100 feet, two stories high. The style of architecture is strictly classical, of the Corinthian order. The east and west fronts have wide porticoes and there are large wide steps on all sides, which cover one-third of the length of the building. Each portico is supported by six massive columns which run the full length of both floors and to the under side of the cornice. Over each portico and resting on the columns is a large gable on a line with the main cornice. In the gable in bas relief is the Nebraska state seal, five feet in diameter.

NEBRASKA'S BUILDING TO COST $15,000.

The cornice is five feet high with wide projections supported by medalions, and is similar to the cornice of the Pantheon of Rome.

The whole exterior will be covered with staff. A fireproof composition will cover the roof.

Large double oak doors open from the porticoes into the exhibit room, which is 60x70 feet. Opening off from the main exhibition hall is a reception room 30x30 feet, and next to this will be the general office for the use of the commissioners. Post office, toilet and check rooms also occupy space on this floor.

A magnificent double staircase nine feet wide will lead from the exhibit room to the second floor. An exhibit room of the same dimensions as the one below will be used as an art exhibit. Women's reception and toilet rooms and a smoking room for men will occupy the rest of the second floor space.

The building will cost $15,000.

MISS HATTIE BLAINE.

The Bright and Popular Daughter of the Ex-Secretary.

Ex-Secretary Blaine does not possess all of the popularity of the Blaine family. His daughter, Miss Hattie, has an abundance of it in her own right. And she deserves it. Few young ladies of her age have been in so conspicuous a position and acquitted themselves with such marked success as Miss Blaine. During the past season she has accompanied her father on all his social rounds, and at the dinners and receptions given at the Blaine mansion she has played the hostess with marked success. The fact that she is the daughter of a most distinguished statesman has had no ill effect upon her equilibrium. She has comported herself with a grace and a winning dignity worthy in the highest degree of her famous father.

Miss Blaine is very tall, and of slender build. She has the large eyes of her father and a smile which, when brought into play, displays a set of remarkably fine teeth and spreads a radiance throughout her usually serious face. Her conversation partakes of the brilliancy of her father. And her knowledge of public affairs would put many a member of congress of years of service to the blush. Her father is uncommonly fond of her and never did he look more contented than when, with her by his side, he took a constitutional along the shady avenues of Washington. She is a curious favorite, withal.

CHOLERA IN CAMP.

Harrowing Experience of the Eighteenth Kansas Cavalry.

Terrible Hardships Endured by Volunteer Soldiers During the Indian War of 1867—Startling Mortality at Fort Harker.

[Special Kansas Letter.]

The periodical talk of the approach of a cholera epidemic from Europe recalls to the writer the terrible suffering, depressing experience and great mortality among the men of the battalion of Kansas cavalry, organized for service against the Indians during the summer of 1867. This organization, consisting of four companies, "A," "B," "C" and "D," was raised under a special call, authorized by the general government, to aid the scant force of the regular army, then available on the western Kansas border, in driving back the hostile Cheyennes, Arapahoes and Comanches, who were creating a reign of terror among the settlers in the Saline, Republican and Solomon valleys.

The call was made the latter part of June and by the 6th of July the four companies of one hundred men each were rendezvoused on the bank of the Smoky Hill river, near Fort Harker, for muster-in and equipment for service.

The previous year, 1866, cholera had raged to some extent in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and many smaller places, and the year before New York and other Atlantic seaboard cities had been visited by the dread disease. It was the genuine Asiatic cholera, and appeared to move westward in a regular wave, visiting about the same number of degrees of latitude each season.

The first intimation the Kansas volunteers had of the fearful malady, a dozen or more men in each company were down, with intense griping and diarrhœa, but owing to the absence of any medical officer in the command, no one realized the true nature of the complaint until several men had died. The volunteers were in ordinary V tents, with poor rations and using the hot and almost stagnant river water, and they were not visited by the Ft. Harker post surgeon until the third day after the disease broke out. The ravages of the disorder were rapid and up to this time four men had died, and half the command were complaining. The surgeon at once told the nature of the disease, and informed the officers that the cholera had been raging among the regulars for over a week, the mortality in a colored regiment at the post being especially heavy. This information appeared to increase the ravages of the disease, and created a perfect panic. Men were suddenly taken down, while on guard or drill, and many died within a few hours after being taken to their quarters.

The first sergeant of Company "C," Henry Saunders, a splendid example of physical manhood, and who had been a captain in an Ohio regiment during the civil war, died in fearful agony on the fourth day within two hours after he had returned from drilling a squad of men, and he was followed closely by eight more of the same company. From every tent in the camp groans and imprecations could be heard at all hours of the day and night, the officers' quarters furnishing no exceptions. There were scarcely enough well men to care for the sick; yet comrades stood bravely by as long as they were able and rendered every assistance possible. The favorite remedy prescribed by the post surgeon in the early stages of the disease was calomel; then brandy and cayenne pepper was given. The intense agony that this medicine caused can never be forgotten by those who witnessed it. As Sergt. Saunders said, with almost his last breath: "It is like swallowing molten lead," and the muscles of the suffering victims would cord up in knots and pass in contortionate waves from the stomach down the limbs. Many were saved, even after the cholera had got a firm hold of them, but few recovered after they had reached the stage of "black vomit." There was great difficulty in procuring even the rough pine coffins for the dead, and at one time nine bodies lay in the tents awaiting burial.

One officer who had just returned from some mounted duty, was suddenly taken before he got off his boots and spurs, and, after rolling around in misery for several hours without relief, he ordered his servant to saddle his horse again and bring it to the tent. Then, by superhuman exertion, he got out of his tent and insisted upon being put in the saddle. His order was obeyed, and after mounting he put spurs to his horse and dashed away at full speed. He rode in this way three or four miles, and when he stopped the cholera had left him; but he was so weak that his orderly, who had followed him barebacked, had to hold him in the saddle, while great drops of cold sweat dripped from his face in a torrent. The exertion had created an active circulation of the blood, and prevented that congestion of the bowels which precedes the fatal collapse.

When the men fully realized the nature of the fatal disease they became perfectly panic-stricken, and many made efforts to desert, and no less than a score succeeded. So wild did they become that the officers had to walk the company stables with revolvers in hand to prevent their men from saddling their horses to flee from the fatal camp. The total mortality in the battalion during the cholera ravages was as follows:

Six men from Company A.
Nine men from Company B.
Thirteen men from Company C.
Seven men from Company D.

One lieutenant from Company D and Dr. Powers, a young doctor who had been detailed as the assistant surgeon of the regiment, also died, while over half of the entire command had been sick. On the eighth day orders were issued to march the battalion to a new camp some six miles west, and after the change the disease subsided, though several men had cholera a week later. Notwithstanding this terrible experience, the command completely recovered from the effects of the panic, and rendered most efficient service against the Indians, a portion of it fighting the battle of Prairie Dog creek, on the 22d of the next month (August), and killing nearly 100 of the hostiles; but no man who passed through that cholera siege on the banks of the Smoky Hill will ever forget its miseries and wretched sights. GEORGE B. JENNESS.

TAKING A RIDE TO AVOID A COLLAPSE.

Primrose Day in England.

The origin of the Primrose league is attributed to Sir Henry Wolff, or some other member of the quartette known as the "Fourth Party." The rise of the league has been remarkable, and with the adoption of a Primrose day, in honor of Lord Beaconsfield, it has grown vastly in popularity. The true origin of Primrose day is said to be the idea of a particular friend of Lord Disraeli, who conceived the idea of having the great man's admirers wear primroses, which were his favorite flower, on the anniversary of his death. Communicating the idea to a few friends they set about systematically to suggest to the flower dealers that they keep a large supply of the flowers on hand that day, and then to suggest to their acquaintances that it would be a beautiful tribute to the memory of one of the nation's most eminent citizens to wear the flower which he loved most. The little plan met with enthusiastic approval and now it is one of the established customs of the year, and while thousands wear the pretty rose others gather round the statue of Lord Beaconsfield at Westminster to lay thereon their offerings of wreaths.—Chicago Graphic.

A Fathomless Lake in West Virginia.

A strange condition of affairs is reported from Noble county, W. Va. Two thousand feet under ground there seems to be a fathomless sea composed of salt water and oil, from which gas escapes with a tremendous roar. Nearly twenty years ago a well was drilled here to the depth of nineteen hundred feet, but as no results were apparent it was abandoned. Some years after water and gas escaped from the hole with great pressure, tearing out the tubing and cutting a cavern apparently hundreds of feet deep and forty feet in diameter. After some years it ceased to flow, and a farmer named Martz filled it up and built a barn over it, resting one pillar on the filled ground. A few days ago a terrific report at the barn announced the explosion of the well, and oil and water poured out in abundance. In a short time the pillar under the barn began to sink and was soon out of sight. In the course of a day the hole had become fathomless and again nearly forty feet wide. The oil, when separated from the salt water, is valuable.—N. O. Picayune.

Value of a Mustache.

"If I had a mustache, it would be worth over sixty dollars a month to me! Yes, sir! a rapping big mustache like yours would be worth that to me," said a bright young man of eighteen to a companion.

"How's that, Will?" the other b. y. m. asked.

"I'm first assistant bookkeeper in the office I'm in, and, in fact, do much of what should be the regular work of the head bookkeeper. I'm his under-study; that is, I take his place, you know, if he is away sick for a day or two. Now I happen to know that he is going to be sent to open a branch in Albany for our house. I'm next to him in order of promotion, and ought to have his place when he leaves. But I look too young, and I'm afraid they will put in an outsider. If I had a handsome mustache like yours, and looked twenty-two, they might try me. As the head bookkeeper gets sixty dollars a month more than I, a corking big mustache like yours would bring me just that much more."—N. Y. Ledger.

Now Here Is a Busy Woman.

Mrs. Emma Drew, of South Norridgewock, Me., according to the Kennebec Journal, carries on a farm, keeps a horse and cow, makes butter for market, and sells eggs, besides doing her housework and caring for five little children. After her household duties are completed in the morning, she puts up the dinners for the children, harnesses her horse, takes two of her children, and drives to Martin Stream, where she has a school of seventeen children that she teaches every day in the week but Saturdays. She is also engaged in canvassing for different publications, and her spare moments are probably spent in making flannel shirts for the heathens in Africa. She is about forty years of age.

THE DEADLY GUILLOTINE.

It Has Now Been in Use a Century, in La Belle France.

A very interesting centenary fell on April 25 last. Little was said about it and there was no public rejoicing. Yet the thing that might have been honored in some way was a creditable invention, although it has a discreditable history. It is the guillotine. On April 25, 1792, the highwayman Pelletier was executed on the Place de Greve, in Paris, and the humanitarian invention of Dr. Louis was put in use for the first time.

It is a common and natural impression that this instrument was designed by Dr. Guillotin, whose name it bears. But it is now pretty well established that this is not so. Dr. Louis, the permanent secretary of the academy of medicine, was the inventor of it. There was a general desire for a more merciful way of inflicting the death penalty. Dr. Louis was filled with this desire as much as anyone, and designed the first model of the guillotine after a rougher Italian contrivance. It was made by one Schmidt, manufacturer of musical instruments to Queen Marie Antoinette. Two years afterward the guillotine made from his model was used to cut off the heads of his royal patroness and her husband. Marie Antoinette was interested in the condition of prisoners and was also in favor of reforming the methods of capital punishment. Nobles were usually decapitated with the ax and common persons in various other ways.

Dr. Guillotin wrote a pamphlet urging the adoption of the invention of his friend, Dr. Louis. He was elected member of the national assembly in consequence of the attention he drew to himself through his advocacy of this instrument. It was at first called the Louison or Louisette, but the name of its warmest advocate was soon given to it. Dr. Guillotin always protested against this use of his name. He did not die by the guillotine, as has been frequently stated. He passed away in 1814 at a good old age.

At the time of the introduction and adoption of the guillotine the wheel was still used in some of the southern provinces. Twenty years before Damiens had been broken on the wheel, with many horrible details of torture, for his attempt on the life of Louis XV. The invention was, therefore, entirely due to humane motives. The fact that noble persons were decapitated and others hanged by the neck was also repugnant to growing democratic sentiment.

People Who Borrow Books.

Book-borrowers are, probably, the greatest nuisance in the world, and there is no reason why they should exist at all in these days of cheap literature, of public free libraries, of Mudie's and other establishments of a similar nature. Book-borrowers are usually lazy people, who will not take the trouble to go and buy a book for themselves if they can get it from a friend for nothing. I really do not see why a man should lend his books any more than he should his chairs or dining-room table. You might do without the second and the third, but you could scarcely exist without the first. If you like to give anyone a book by all means do so; but if you lend a book, it generally means losing it, for which you receive no thanks or even an apology. I have long ago given up lending books, for I have always found, if a friend borrows a volume—which he probably does not look at for a fortnight—you immediately want to refer to it the moment he has left the house. I once heard of a fine old bibliophile who had the price put inside all his volumes. When asked to lend one, he would look inside it and say: "Yes, with great pleasure. I see the price is thirty shillings, which will be refunded when the volume is returned." He argued that if the book is really required, the money would be cheerfully paid; but he found these occasions were few and far between, and, what is more, he never lost any of his books, or had them returned in dilapidated condition.—London Graphic.

Where Navajos and Christians Differ.

"That your girl?"

"Yes."

"What'll you take for her?"

"Diez caballos" (ten horses), answered the crone, holding up her ten fingers. "Sta mucho bonita."

I admitted that the girl was "bonita," but I didn't have the ten horses with me and guessed I would not buy.

Such is maternal affection among the Navajos—so different from our Christian mothers, who never think of wealth, title or position, but always of the moral virtues and intellectual decorations of a prospective son-in-law.—Lummis—A Tramp Across the Continent.

EACH SIDE OF THE CASE

The Advisory Committee Issues an Address.

TESTIMONY OF THE PINKERTONS.

The Congressional Investigating Committee Has Finished Its Work, and Will Report Very Soon—Workmen Evicted from Their Houses by the Carnegie Company—Many of the Men Say They Will Return to Work—Carnegie to Blame for the Delay on Government Vessels.

HOMESTEAD, July 23.—The Advisory Committee on the Homestead lock-out has prepared a statement in which it says that the most evident characteristic of our time and country is the phenomenon of our industrial centralization, which is putting the control of each of our great national industries into the hands of one or a few men, and giving these men an enormous and despotic power over the lives and fortunes of their employes and subordinates.

This is said to directly antagonize the spirit of universal history in its world-wide struggle after lawful liberty, and is coming to mean in effect nothing less than the right of employers to manage the country to suit themselves. The statement proceeds to point out that the employes in the mill of Carnegie, Phipps & Co. at Homestead have built there a town, and have invested thousands of dollars of their savings in the mill in the expectation of spending their lives in Homestead and of working in the mill during the period of their efficiency.

The committee, therefore, desires to express to the public as its firm belief that both the public and the employes aforesaid have equitable rights and interests in the said mill which cannot be modified or diverted without due process of law, and that it is against public policy and subversive of the fundamental principles of American liberty that a whole community of workers should be denied employment or suffer any other social detriment on account of membership in a church, a political party or a trades union. It is also claimed by the committee it that is their duty as American citizens to resist by every legal and ordinary means the unconstitutional, anarchic and revolutionary policy of the Carnegie Company.

Notices of eviction have been served on the families who occupy the Carnegie houses on Shanty Hill. The tenants are given ten days in which to move out. There are between 30 and 48 families in these houses. The men have been on strike since the mill closed and they failed to return in response to the notice sent out by the company.

They have paid their rents right along, but the company wants the houses for non-union men and the leases give the company the right to eject tenants upon ten days' notice at any time. The men will now be given the option of returning to work or being turned out of the company's houses.

Many of the men say this morning that they will return to work in the mills rather than be put out of their homes. One of the leaders of the strike announces that quarters will be provided for all the families now in the Carnegie houses.

THE PINKERTON INVESTIGATION.

No More Testimony Regarding the Agency Will be Taken.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Before the Pinkertons, Robert A. and William, were excused from testifying before the Congressional Committee, Chairman Oates thanked them for the evidence they had given. Robert Pinkerton in turn thanked the committee for its kindness to them and stated that he wished the committee could visit Chicago and examine the books and papers of the agency.

Representative Oates will probably make his report on the Homestead matter early next week, and it is not likely that any more testimony will be taken regarding the Pinkerton agency unless some new matter regarding it is brought to the attention of the committee.

Robert Pinkerton, in replying to questions put by Chairman Oates, said that the number of persons employed by the Pinkerton agency does not exceed 600 in all parts of the country, including clerks and stenographers, and the number of men employed never exceed 800 at one time.

The only authority exercised over their men was that of an employer. Their men were not required to bear arms and were at liberty to refuse to go to a place to which they were ordered, if they chose.

Mr. Pinkerton, at the advice of his counsel, refused to give the contracts with his men. He said that the request was made by the Carnegie Company to send them about 300 watchmen. His men had been engaged by Mr. Frick during the coke strike in Pennsylvania, when they sent about 150 watchmen. They were sworn in as deputy marshals.

Mr. Pinkerton said that the Carnegie Company wanted 300 men by July 5. The men were furnished, and came from New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. They knew for what they were wanted. He did not know personally anything about the barges, but thought they were ordinary barges used in transportation. He did not believe they were lined with iron and proof against small firearms. He would not have allowed his men to go on them if he thought they would have been attacked.

The barges were employed so as to land the men upon the company's property without causing any breach of the peace. The sole desire was to avoid a riot. There were about 310 men on the barges, about 250 rifles, 300 pistols, ammunition and night clubs. About two-thirds of the men had previously been in the Pinkerton employ. All were under the charge of F. H. Hines. About 120 men were sent from Chicago, 78 from Philadelphia and 120 from New York. All met at Ashtabula, O., and went from there to a point near Youngstown, O., where they were put on barges.

Positive instructions were given that the arms should not be given to the men until they had been sworn in by the sheriff. The men were not instructed to fire upon the strikers and would not have fired upon them had they not been attacked. It was understood that the men were going to Homestead with the consent of the sheriff. The Pinkertons had never attempted to send an armed body anywhere.

In twenty years three men had been killed by their watchmen up to the time of the Homestead affair.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

In reply to a question by Mr. Bostner, Mr. Pinkerton said that the arms used at Homestead were shipped from Chicago to the Union Supply Company. He supposed that they were delivered to the barges by order of Mr. Frick. He said that if the Homestead workers had come into the works and tried to put his men out they would not then have used their arms. The men would probably fight, using what is called "night clubs."

Mr. Pinkerton denied the statement that women had been killed by his men, and also said that he employed women as detectives.

In reply to further questions, Mr. Pinkerton said that he never knew of a strike where the labor organizations did not attack and injure non-union men.

He did not know of a single case where his men had begun the trouble, and he challenged the labor people to show such a case.

CARNEGIE TO BLAME.

Work on the Government Vessels Delayed by the Strike.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—A government inspector at Cramp's ship yard says that work on the armored cruiser New York is delayed on account of the armor not being received from the contractors, the Carnegie Steel Company, Limited.

The Homestead plant is the only one at which armor can be made. Half of the side armor for the New York has been received but none has been put in place, because it is so uncertain when the remainder will come. The vessel is ready for the barbette and side armor, and work cannot be pushed ahead without it.

The Inspector also said:

"The Pirate, which will be launched next week, will have no side or barbette armor. The sponsons can be put on any time after she is launched. The Carnegie Steel Company has the contract to furnish this armor also.

"The Bethlehem Iron Company has the contract to furnish the armor for the battleship Indiana. All of her 14-inch diagonal armor has been received, and the diagonal armor is all that can be put on before the vessel is launched.

"The Carnegies have the contract for all of the armor for the battleship Massachusetts. None of it has been received. She is nearly ready for the diagonal armor, which is put on before launching. If it was expected the ship could be made ready for it in about six weeks.

"The armor for the vessels is contracted for and furnished by the Government, and the builders have nothing to do with it but put it in place."

DUQUESNE MEN OUT.

300 of the 800 Non-Union Men Had Joined the Association.

PITTSBURG, July 23.—The leaders of the Amalgamated Association are in high feather over the strike of the men at Duquesne.

The Amalgamated leaders were busy at work there all this week organizing a lodge of the association, the mill being non-union, and succeeded so well that 300 of the 800 workmen there went out when the time for the night turn to go on arrived, out of sympathy for the Homestead workers. This new strike greatly complicates matters.

Putting in the Block Signals.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 23.—It is expected that within a week or so the Central will begin erecting the houses and apparatus for the block system of signals between this city and Buffalo. Bids have been received for the 104 cabins to be placed at various points between the cities named. The foundations of these have been laid by the Central and the bids are merely for the superstructures. Seventy-three bridges will be required to span the four tracks between here and Buffalo. They will be lightly built of iron and on them will be placed the signalling apparatus and seventy-six of the cabins for the operators.

Statement by Secretary Foster.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Secretary Foster of the Treasury Department makes the following statement: "The President and the Secretary of the Treasury have not been in conference on the subject of how to increase the gold reserve in the Treasury, either yesterday or any other time. The Secretary does not contemplate any change in the financial policy of the government. The Treasury Department will continue to redeem the obligations of the government in the future as it has in the past. The gold balance is increasing and is likely to continue to increase."

Nominations by the President.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The President has sent the following nominations to the Senate:

Charles F. Mackell, of Maryland, to be secretary of the Legation of the United States at Brazil.

Adam Eberly, of Pennsylvania, to be Consul of the United States at Birmingham.

John Ramsey, of New York, to be Assistant Collector of Customs at Jersey City, N. J., in the District of New York.

A Government Survey Stopped.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., July 23.—The Government Geological Survey of the Connecticut Valley, conducted by Prof. William North Rice of Wesleyan University in collaboration with Prof. Davis, of Harvard, has stopped. The suspension is due to the action of the senate in scaling down the appropriations. Six weeks more of continued work of the professor and his assistants would have completed the survey.

The Silver Question in Italy.

ROME, July 23.—The directors of five banks are in conference as to means for checking the rise of gold and restricting the exports of silver. The silver question becomes more acute here daily and it is now exceedingly difficult to get notes exchanged.

2,500 WERE KILLED.

Official Reports of the Volcanic Eruption at Sangir.

HAGUE, July 23.—Official confirmation has been received here from Batavia of the reported volcanic eruption on the island of Sangir in the Celebes Sea, between Celebes and Miudano. The eruption came from a volcano known as Gunona Awn. It took place just after nightfall. The inhabitants of the northwestern part of the island had felt occasional earthquakes throughout the day, and during the preceding night steam and fire were seen issuing from the volcano. Such threatening phenomena have been frequent on the island for the last three or four years and little apprehension was felt.

About two hours after sundown the whole island was shaken so violently that huts and houses collapsed and great rifts appeared in the rocky formation at the northwestern end. Several sailing vessels from other islands were anchored off the coast. Their crews hastily weighed anchor, but before they could get out to see the eruption came. Great stones and showers of ashes filled the air, three great tidal waves ebbed and flowed along the shore. The eruption had come with such suddenness that few realized the nature of the danger. In the darkness all the boats went ashore.

Just before the storm of ashes and stones, several Dutch traders had seen the volcano belch up a great mass of flame and started to give the alarm, but before they got half a mile the blackness began to close around them. They seized a row boat and pulled out to sea whence they watched the eruption, and where they drifted about until picked up by a Dutch vessel, which took them to Batavia. They say that the whole northwestern end of the island was buried in ashes and lava.

The loss of life on the northwestern end was at least 2,500.

WILL BE ALL RIGHT.

Washington Officials Think Ryder Will be Vindicated.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The State Department has received no information about the alleged arrest of Consul Ryder at Copenhagen for fraud, and doesn't know whether there is any truth in the story or not.

It is known, however, that Mr. Ryder has been having some trouble over the settlement of an estate, and it is quite likely that he may have been prosecuted. The Department officials are certain that there will be no trouble in establishing an absolute vindication of the Consul.

It appears that Consul Ryder was called upon to settle up an estate, including a small bequest of something less than $100—the testator dying in America.

In the settlement the relatives claim that they did not receive $35, which was due them. On the other hand, Consul Ryder has receipts and papers from them covering the whole transaction. There has been some correspondence on the subject between the State Department and the Danish Minister, and their investigation effectually cleared the Consul of any wrongdoing. The officials of the Department also point to the fact that Mr. Ryder has given very satisfactory service in the Consular field for more than 20 years, and say that it is not likely now that he would go astray for a paltry sum of $35.

WESTERN RATE WAR.

Railroads Centering in St. Louis Fighting Each Other.

ST. LOUIS, July 23.—The opening gun has been fired in what will probably result in the liveliest rate war that Western railroads have engaged in for some years. The announcement that the Santa Fe and San Francisco lines had made a rate of $12 from Chicago and St. Louis to Denver and return was quickly followed by similar action on the part of the Missouri Pacific, Chicago & Alton, and Wabash railroads.

Each of these roads has posted the $12 rate and it is intimated that the war may be "carried into Africa." The action of the Santa Fe line is regarded as uncalled for and is in violation of the Western Traffic Association agreement. This violation nullifies all contracts and it will not be surprising if competing lines will inaugurate a rate war to the west, south and southwest that will exceed the rate war of former years.

Cardinal Gibbons' 58th Birthday.

BALTIMORE, July 23.—Cardinal Gibbons yesterday celebrated his 58th birthday. No special observance of the occasion was made at the Arch-episcopal residence owing to the absence of his Eminence, who is summering at Halifax, Nova Scotia, where he is the guest of Archbishop O'Brien. A number of congratulatory telegrams were sent by the clergy and his many friends in Baltimore during the day. Advices from Nova Scotia state that the Cardinal is in good health and thoroughly enjoying his vacation.

Charged With Murder.

OMAHA, July 23.—Charges of alleged fraud and deception have been brought against Chancellor C. F. Creighton of the Nebraska Wesleyan University. A. Cropsey, formerly of Lincoln, but later of Utah, alleges a deal on the part of the chancellor in connection with several real estate men at the time the university was planned, whereby Cropsey was defrauded out of several thousand dollars. The old charge against Chancellor Creighton, that he killed his aunt, has also been revived, and the whole thing will be laid before Presiding Elder Sleethe for a thorough investigation.

New York Won't Give Up Rusie.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Manager Powers of the New York baseball club denies the statement credited to Manager Comiskey of the Cincinnatis that he had obtained the services of Pitcher Amos Rusie in exchange for Mallane. Mr. Powers says that he would not change Rusie for any pitcher in the profession.

THE DEFENSE IS WEAK

Alice Mitchell's Insanity Not Yet Proven.

SHE HAD NUMEROUS FLIRTATIONS.

Important Testimony of Freda Ward's Brother-in-Law—Alice Was Unaffected When Her Sister Broke Down Utterly on the Witness Stand.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 23.—The defense is not making as creditable a showing in proving Alice Mitchell insane as it hoped to do. That point in the hypothetical case as to Miss Mitchell not caring for the society of young men is discredited by more than one authority.

Miss Addie Mitchell, a charming looking young lady, Alice's sister, nearest her in age, when put on the stand, seemed to feel her sister's disgrace very keenly and was visibly affected while giving her testimony. Her evidence was largely cumulative, she telling of her younger sister's boyish traits and masculine likes and dislikes. The cigar box in which Alice had kept her love letters was identified by the witness. The witness was asked to detail what took place immediately after the tragedy. Here she broke down and wept bitterly, but Alice was unmoved by her sister's show of misery. She said further that Alice had made great preparation in the way of dress for the trial.

James Johnson, a brother of Lillie Johnson, swore that Alice and he and Lillie Johnson went to a picnic and that she would have nothing to do with the boys and refused introduction to young men.

William H. Volkmer is the principal witness for the State, yet the defense introduced him. He is the brother-in-law of Freda Ward. It was at his house near Gold Dust that Alice visited Freda. He saw nothing unusual on the occasion of the first visit, but he intercepted letters between the two young ladies and gave them to his wife. He thought Alie and Miss Johnson were both very fast, as they flirted with anything in the shape of a man. He objected to Alice remaining longer in Gold Dust, thinking she was not a fit companion for Freda.

Speaking of Freda's proposed elopement he thought there was a man in it, and he stood around that night ready to fill any person full of buckshot that attempted to assist the young lady to leave. He finally discovered the whole plot and promised Freda he would say nothing about it if she did not attempt to repeat her performance.

Coming back to the flirtation he said that Alice and Lillie Johnson flirted with married, as well as with single young men.

Miss Jo Ward, the dead girl's sister, also the victim of a slash from the festive Alice's razor, was the next to testify. She told the story of the tragedy as she saw it, and descanted on Alice's love for young men.

The witness explained who Freda Myra Ward was. She was a fiction of Alice Mitchell's own mind, and Alice wrote to Freda under that girl's name. Once she wrote to Freda telling her Freda Myra Ward was dead, and Freda grieved terribly. The myth was supposed to have died in New York; but after a time Alice wrote again to Freda from Chicago, telling her that Freda Myra Ward had not died, that it was all a mistake.

THE STORM AT SYRACUSE.

Great Damage Done by Lightning, Wind and Rain.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 23.—The storm here was the most terrific of the season. Trees were blown down all over the city and a dozen buildings were more or less damaged. The lightning struck the tower of the new City Hall and tore a huge chunk of stone from the apex. Pieces of slate were also torn from the roof and scattered in all directions. The Methodist church in the Huntley track was nearly demolished. The roof was torn from Rubin's Hall on Grape street, and also from a house in the same vicinity. D. McCarty & Sons, drygoods dealers, suffered to the extent of $10,000. The lightning ripped up the tin roof of the building, making an opening for the rain, which for half an hour poured down in a perfect torrent.

Many Huts Destroyed by Lava.

ROME, July 23.—The eruptions of Mt. Etna are increasing in violence, especially on the western side of the mountain. Villages at the foot of the mountain are shaken almost continually by earthquakes. The inhabitants pass hours daily in prayer in the open streets. The stream of lava approaching Nicolosi lost force last night, but it has again begun flowing toward the town. The lava streams have already destroyed many mountain huts. King Humbert has sent 30,000 francs to be distributed among the poor who have lost their homes or have been driven from them by fear.

The St. Lawrence Smuggler.

OTTAWA, July 23.—Bouchard, the smuggler, has cached his contraband liquors on the Isle aux Coudres. When the customs officers visited the island they were put to rout. The affair was reported to the authorities at this place and the Minister of Militia ordered that forty men, properly officered, should be sent to the island to vindicate the majesty of the law and seize the smugglers. There may be bloodshed, as Bouchard seems to have kept his followers well primed with whisky.

No Americans Killed.

PARIS, July 23.—Owing to the untrue report that Mr. and Mrs. Hostkecher of New York had lost their lives in the St. Gervais-les-Bains disaster, inquiries have been made to ascertain if any Americans perished in that calamity, and it has been learned that none lost their lives.

Mountain Air Her Physician.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., July 23.—The dry mountain air continues to have a beneficial effect upon Mrs. Harrison. She is steadily regaining her health. During pleasant weather she spends much of her time upon the porch, and even takes short walks.

CREEDMOOR TO SEA GIRT.

The Coming Rifle Contests Promise a Revival of Interest in That Sport.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 23.—What promises to be the greatest military shooting affair held in this country is listed for this place in September. It is the second fall meeting of the New Jersey State Rifle Association, and crack marksmen are expected from all over the United States and Canada.

The meeting will begin on Monday, September 5, and continue five days. Among the events will be the contests for the Interstate and the Hilton trophies, which from 1878 to 1891 were shot for at Creedmoor. These matches are the most important ever held in America, and until two years ago attracted some of the finest teams known in rifle ranks. A dozen or more States have already signified their intention of sending representative marksmen to the meet, and riflemen are sanguine of making Sea Girt what Creedmoor once was—the national shooting range of the country.

The individual contest known as the Judd match, for military rifles, heretofore one of the attractions of the Creedmoor range, will also be shot here, as well as the Barney Walther team match.

DEATH OF JACOB WYCKOFF.

He Was An Old Employe of the Jersey Central, and Had a Plainfield Son.

Jacob P. Wyckoff died Thursday at his home, 322 East Jersey street, Elizabeth, aged 72 years.

Mr. Wyckoff was a native of Hunterdon county, and went to Elizabeth about twenty-four years ago. He was one of the oldest employes in the carpenter shop of the Jersey Central railroad, a good citizen, and very highly esteemed. He was a member of the Marshall Street Presbyterian church

Mr. Wyckoff's illness was of short duration. Last Monday he accompanied Capt. Bullinger on a trip on a steam tug, and in the evening first complained of feeling ill. Heart trouble is the cause to which his death is attributed.

Mr. Wyckoff leaves a widow, three sons and two daughters. The sons are Isaac N., a resident of Plainfield, George, living at Bound Brook, and John. The daughters are Mrs. John R. Jones and Miss Phymelia Wyckoff.

The funeral services took place this afternoon at 2 from the late residence of the deceased.

TOOK LESS THAN HALF.

Dunellen Burglars Frightened Away Before Finishing Their Job.

Burglars entered Adam Dealaman's grocery store at Dunellen last night and stole about $30 in cash from the money drawer. They evidently were frightened away before finishing their work, as they left about $40 untouched in the same drawer. After this they entered the butcher store belonging to W. H. Carman, but got nothing there for their trouble. A Dunellen person is suspected.

Heavy Damage by Lightning.

The storm that visited this section last night was very violent. The lightning crashes were terrific, and the electric fluid did more or less damage to trees and buildings in various quarters. At South Sterling lightning struck and set fire to the barn of Squire Frazee. All of the out buildings were burned with their entire contents, including a large quantity of hay and grain and a number of horses, cows and sheep.

Plainfield's Company Gets the Work, While Others Wrangle.

Three persons have been looking Westfield over with a view of submitting an estimate for putting in a water plant. Meanwhile, just as was done in Plainfield while other water schemes were being dallied with, the company with its plant in actual operation is getting all the business, and private consumers are making connections with the Union Water company's mains connecting with the Netherwood pumping-station.

Base-Ball Notes.

Charley Brady, late of the Albany team, will play right field for the Crescents this afternoon in place of Hammill.

Sneeden pitched a game this week in spite of the fact that he's only a one-game pitcher; so, in consequence, he will probably be without his speed this afternoon, and the Crescents' new pitcher Murphy may be given a trial.

Settling an Old Debt.

The difficulty in the Westfield fire department concerning a note for $800 has at last been arranged to the satisfaction of both companies. The old debt covered by the note is to be mutually borne by the disputants.

THE PLAINFIELD TOURNAMENT.

Fine Weather and Good Shooting at Blue-Rock Targets.

The tournament of the Independent Gun club was continued on the club grounds in North Plainfield yesterday. Though the weather was exceptionally fine, the attendance was not nearly so large as on the opening day. Many of those here Thursday were obliged to leave for their homes, and few new shooters put in an appearance. The programme was much the same as that of Thursday. All events were at blue-rock targets, with three and four divisions of the purses, and all ties were divided.

The first event of the day was a team match at ten targets per man, in which Neaf Apgar and Dutchy Smith were opposed to each other with teams of three men. Apgar's team won easily as follows: Apgar, 9; Hartlove, 7; Squier, 9; total, 25. Smith's team—Smith, 6; Keller, 10; Bilderback, 6; total, 22.

A similar match with four men on a side was then shot, in which the opposing team was victorious. Smith, 9; Keller, 8; Bilderback, 9; Thurman, 8; total, 34. Apgar, 6; Hartlove, 7; Squier, 9; Lindsley, 9; total, 31. In the individual events the Plainfield marksmen captured good shares of prize money by skillful shooting.

The success of the tournament reflects credit on managers Smith and Keller.

The Century Riders Through Plainfield.

The cyclists on to-day's century run from Newark to Princeton and return numbered 117 as they passed through Park avenue this morning, after a pause for refreshments at Martin's Wheelmen's Headquarters. Among the number were several young women and three or four colored men. Capt. F. L. C. Martin, accompanied by a member of the local women's club, rode at the head of the column to escort the riders on to Dunellen. The roads to Plainfield were very fine, the heavy rain of last night having benefited the hard macadam. Beyond Dunellen, however, the roads are very heavy.

Death of the General's Widow.

Mrs. Anna S. Fay, widow of Gen. J. Augutus Fay, died at the family homestead, Rahway avenue, Elizabeth, yesterday, after some weeks' illness with malarial fever. Mrs. Fay was a highly-accomplished woman, a member of the Society of Daughters of the Revolution, and a lineal descendant of Jonathan Dayton, first Speaker of the House of Representatives. Her family was one of the oldest in New Jersey. She was a daughter of Judge Nelson Wood, of Morristown, where she was born in 1841. She was married in 1870 to Gen. Fay, then the foremost lawyer in Union county. They had no children.

Sued for Railroad Damages.

Suit has been instituted by liveryman Barton of Westfield against C. Wyckoff to secure payment for a carriage Wyckoff hired, but of which he only returned the dashboard. Wyckoff claims that the horse broke the tiestrap and wandered on the railroad track, where the wagon was struck by a train and all ever recovered was the dashboard. The horse was not harmed. It is said that the horse has a trick of breaking his hitching strap. Barton claims that the fault for the accident was with Wyckoff.

A Good Substitute, and a Plainfield Boy Besides.

Manager Keller has taken on as a substitute and tenth man Charles O. Pearson, an amateur who has been playing good ball for the last three years as second baseman for the "White Caps" of this city. He is a left-handed batter, is a good base runner, and always keeps his head. He is like his father, counselor W. W. Pearson, an enthusiast on the subject of base-ball, and should the opportunity be offered him he will undoubtedly be heard from.

The highest place, among all blood-medicines, belongs to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. See if you don't think so, when you consider how it's sold to you. It's guaranteed—and no other medicine of the kind is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. Wouldn't every medicine make the same terms if it could do as much good?

But the "Discovery" acts differently, just as it's sold differently. It's not like the sarsaparillas, which claim to do good in March, April, and May. All the year round, with equal benefit, it cleanses, purifies and invigorates the whole system. All Blood, Skin and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. For Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands, Tumors, and Swellings, it's a remedy that nothing can equal.

It's the cheapest one, too. With this, you pay only for the good you get. Refuse worthless substitutes.

FANWOOD DROPS OUT.

Unable to Hold Its Own Against the Other Whist Teams.

The clubs of the American Whist League contesting for the Hamilton club trophy resumed play yesterday morning at 11 at the Manhattan Athletic club house, Forty-fifth street and Madison avenue, New York. Play was narrowed down to six clubs, the Fanwood club having lost two games and retired from the contest, and interest increased with the approach of the end of the contest. The clubs playing were Milwaukee against University, Hamilton against Amrita, and Capital against St. Paul.

The Milwaukee club beat the University by 7 points, Hamilton won from Amrita after a short struggle by a single point, and Capital beat St. Paul by four points.

This result dropped out of the race the University, Amrita, and St. Paul clubs, leaving but three clubs to play. Of these, the Hamilton and Capital have each lost one game, and by the rules must fall out upon losing a second. The Milwaukee has a clean record of consecutive victories. The evening play was between the Hamilton and the Capital clubs, Milwaukee standing "by." The play resulted in favor of the Capital club by 9 points.

The business meeting of the league was held yesterday afternoon at 3. The committee on nominations reported a list of officers for the ensuing year which was unanimously adopted.

The committee on the revision of the playing code reported, and after much discussion the code, amended as recommended was adopted. It was much shortened and simplified, and now expresses the laws of the American Whist league in unmistakable terms. The code was reduced from sixty rules to forty, and the language rendered more terse.

A BRIGHT YOUNG MAN.

Remarkably Successful Career of the Late Emmons Blaine.

Emmons Blaine, son of the illustrious ex-secretary, died at Chicago recently at the age of thirty-eight years. He was educated at Harvard and also took a post graduate course in law. He was formerly assistant general freight agent of the Northwestern road. This position he resigned in December, 1887, to accept that of general freight and passenger agent of the Chicago, Santa Fe & California road, which was then being built between Chicago and Kansas City. In the spring of 1889 this road was reincorporated by the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe and Mr. Blaine was called to the vice presidency of the West Virginia Central & Pittsburgh road, which was controlled by Mr. Elkins and in which his father, then secretary of state, had a financial interest. This road was operated for the purpose of shipping coal from the Cumberland and other valleys, and Mr. Blaine's headquarters were at Baltimore.

While there Mr. Blaine married Miss Anita McCormick, of Chicago, daughter of the late Cyrus McCormick. The wedding took place at Richland Springs, N.

Y., September 26, 1889. It was celebrated at the country home of Mrs. McCormick. After the birth of their son, McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Blaine returned to Chicago and have since occupied the McCormick residence, No. 135 Rush street.

With the change of residence came a change of position and Mr. Blaine was made general western manager of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad system. Six weeks before his death he was elected president of the Chicago Shipbuilding Company, which was organized by the Illinois Steel Company, and he had scarcely entered upon the duties of his new office.

He Was Busy.

"Nellie, you shouldn't bring all the children into the parlor. Don't you see I have callers?" said the mother, reprovingly.

"He is busy, I presume, and wishes to be alone."

"Yes, I guess so. He keeps throwin' cards in little piles all round the table and then he looks at the piles and says 'darn!' "—Chicago Tribune.

Grant Had Nerves of Iron.

"Grant was entirely destitute of nerves," said Capt. J. C. Hawley, of Peoria, Ill., to the Globe-Democrat Gossiper. "I saw a six-inch shell explode within four feet of him at the siege of Vicksburg, and he never missed a puff at his cigar or looked in the least startled. He was standing watching the placing of a gun, and when the shell cracked a dozen men near him ran their noses into the ground. A horse was killed and the gun dismounted, but not a man was hurt, and when we looked up and saw Grant puffing away so unconcernedly we felt sheepish enough I can tell you. Gen. Custer, as brave a man as ever charged a battery, was all 'nerves,' and Fighting Joe Hooker would start like a schoolgirl at the snapping of a tent-rope."

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

ADVICE FOR PLAINFELD BATHERS.

Don't Blow Your Nose in the Surf—Other Salt Water Wisdom.

Here's some excellent advice to Plainfield excursionists and those who spend the summer by the sea. It is given by a prominent eye and ear specialist, and a most expert bather as well. The Asbury Park Journal tells the story:

A writer on the Journal staff, recently seeking shelter from a sudden shower in the quaint little studio, a point on the sandy beach east of Asbury Park's big Auditorium, happened on a compact convention of high medical authority. Sea baths were under consideration. These doctors—specialists, prominent in particular branches of medical science—were men whose names are respected as best authority, although time's silver trace is only faintly visible among their darker locks of hair.

The Eye and Ear Specialist held in his hand and cursorily examined a studio property—the skull of Hanaa Nal Erst, a character unfavorably known as an appreciator, under some circumstances, of missionaries.

"The worst thing to do when bathing" said the Doctor—"except possibly to wear fashion's under-bodice, is to blow the nose."

"Hullo!" said the artist.

"Fact"—emphasized the Doctor—"When surf-bathing, considerable water frequently enters the outer portals of the head. Bow the head slightly, and the water escapes harmlessly; but blow the nose vigorously, and you can have little idea of the force with which the sea water is driven through the Eustachian tubes into the delicate construction of the inner ear, to probably do an injury which sends them eventually to me, to learn what it costs not to be civil, and bow to old Neptune. Not to go into details, sensitive ears should always be protected by little packs of vaselined cotton, before entering the surf.

"About the eyes? Salt water is excellent. In some cases, nothing is better."

The discussion became more general. The ex-Army Surgeon and his confrere, a specialist on nervous maladies, coincided, that moderate sea bathing benefited sufferers from muscular rheumatism; and even people with weak heart action could safely bathe, in moderation, with probability of benefit—anything which builds up the system, aids in the restoration of an afflicted part.

"We frequently send patients"—one of them said—"to Asbury Park as the first step toward treatment, because it is a safe place for the restoration of general health. Persons with mitral affection in heart action may bathe freely. A case with aortic affection of the heart will best prolong inevitably short lives by resting on the beach, where people with softening of the brain must also be content to stay, and not plunge into sea water which," according to the doctors, "is some two pounds heavier to the cubic foot than fresh water; but do n't stay in it after realizing a chilly feeling."

Except the dead sea, North Atlantic water is richer in salt than other oceans. It has sixty-two volumes carbonic acid in 1,000 of sea water and four to five ounces of salt to the gallon—equal to 1-33; its weight divided thus: Muriate of soda, first, and by far the predominent salt; muriate of magnesia, second; sulphate of soda third; muriate of lime, last.

The Artist, ever ready with good words for Asbury Park, broke into the convention's proceedings with some interesting experiences of the famous lifesave, the late Capt. Dominic J. Ryder, who after a critical examination of the beach at Asbury Park said: "The equipment of your bathing grounds, the arrangement and quality of houses and office convenience, are unequaled elsewhere. The character of the men selected to guard and watch for the bathers' safety is of high standard."

New Jersey's Oldest Odd Fellow.

Abram P. Provost, of New Brunswick, dropped dead yesterday afternoon in front of the Y. M. C. A. rooms in that city. He had been to Bayonne, on a visit, and the exertion of the trip is supposed to have caused heart failure.

He came of an old Revolutionary family and was born in Middlesex county, in 1804. He was formerly an active Democratic politician, was for ten years a lay judge, and for ten years a member of the board of education and a commissioner of appeals.

He learned the trade of shoemaker with an uncle of the late Horace H. Day, the rubber manufacturer. Later he did work for the Harlem, Housatonic, and New Jersey railroads as a contractor. He started the first parcel express between New Brunswick and New York, and afterwards engaged in the grocery and auction business.

He was twice married; and his second wife, a son, and a daughter, Mrs. R. F. Focke of New York city, survive him.

He belonged to both the Masonic and Odd Fellows' orders, and was a member of the Reformed church. He was widely known as the oldest Odd Fellow in the State.

A Wonderful Machine.

There is no doubt that man is a fine mechanism, but like every other machine he wears off by friction. It is said he is born again every two or three years. His body is virtually re-made from food. To retard this making over is radically wrong as a man loses so much vitality in the delayed process that it takes a long time to recuperate. The process of making anew is so accelerated by purging with BRANDRETH'S PILLS that a new man, as it were, may be made in two or three months, and the change in the mechanism is such that the worn out part is replaced by the new without the usual running down of the entire machine. You don't have to stop for repairs. Purge away with BRANDRETH'S PILLS the old diseased and worn-out body. They are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

An Explanation.

"How do you come to sell your red wine cheaper than your white wine?" asked a customer of the new waiter at a Broadway restaurant.

ANXIOUS TO ADJOURN

Congressmen Want to Get At Campaign Work.

DOUBT REGARDING THE SITUATION.

The Most Capable Men Confess That They Know Nothing About It—Distribution of Campaign Literature Already Begun. The Leading Documents.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—There is a general anxiety to adjourn Congress and close up the records so that the campaign work may begin seriously. At this moment the members of the two houses of Congress in both parties are absolutely blind as to the situation, and the only well defined sentiment any one has is that of fear that his party may be weak.

The situation is one that cannot be tested by any of the old-fashioned political rules. There are strong men of both parties in Congress who do not hesitate to say that the party opposed has the best of the situation at this time, and they have no foundation for the fear except the impression which has grown out of their ignorance of the temper of public sentiment. Conscious of their ignorance and fearful of the dangers which they know not of they are very anxious to get away from Washington and out among the people to learn something.

It appears to be absolutely impossible to get a clear opinion of the outlook from any one. Those whose partisanship alone governs their expressions, make the most extravagant claims on one side or the other, while the most capable men confess that they know nothing about it.

The fact that the nominations were controlled by popular sentiment among the common people of the two parties contrary to political plans accounts for this bewilderment of the politicians, but the politicians have got to take hold of the management of the machinery of the campaign, and they feel the necessity for getting into the field as soon as possible. The feeling of doubt and anxiety is not confined to the National ticket, but extends to the Congressional districts, and it is, in fact, the latter which excites the most interest in Congress.

The two committee organizations are sending out an immense amount of literature now, but for the most part it is a revision of the literature of the last Congressional campaign.

Tom Johnson has circulated about 1,000,000 copies of his Congressional reprint of Henry George's book, which is liable to create the impression in many quarters that the single tax theory is being advanced by that party as one of the issues of the campaign. He contemplates the circulation of 2,000,000 in all.

Mr. Aldrich's speech on the tariff, which he expects to deliver on Monday, will be the leading document of the campaign on the Republican side, and the Democratic features will be the tariff speeches which have been delivered in the House this session, chief among them that of Mr. Montgomery on the Wool bill, and a speech to be delivered reviewing the work of the Congress.

In addition to this, Mr. Holman will make a speech in which he will undertake to show that, while this Congress has not been the model of economy he desired it to be, it is the fault of the last Congress that it has not been, and he will claim that the record is very fair.

AMATEUR OARSMEN.

The Annual Regatta to Open at Saratoga Next Tuesday.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 23.—The 20th annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen will open at Saratoga Lake on Tuesday next, weather permitting.

Nearly all the oarsmen are here, in practice. The programme includes entries for eight events: Junior and senior singles, double scull, pair oars, junior and senior four oars and junior and senior eight oars. The junior eight will be rowed for the first time this year.

The entry list is very large and the prominence of some of the oarsmen and crews make it very probable that the majority of the events will be very closely contested.

The races will occur at the north end of Saratoga Lake. The start will be a short distance off shore, and the whole course is plainly visible from the sharply rising land. The executive committee have decided that all the races, except the 8-oared event, shall be a mile and a half with a turn, instead of a mile and a half straight-away as heretofore.

The entries include 16 singles, 12 junior singles, 5 pairs, 11 doubles, 4 eights, 7 senior fours and 6 junior fours. One sculler from Texas is among the entries.

Charged With Customs Frauds.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 23.—If the city authorities convict Linderfelt, the defaulting public librarian, and bring him back, the United States authorities will have a charge against him which will place him in prison. It was found that in importing books for private individuals, Linderfelt made affidavit at the Custom House that the books were intended solely for the public library and not for private use, thus escaping the payment of the duties, which amount in instances where intended for other than public libraries to 40 per cent. of the cost price.

Two Trainmen Killed.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 23.—In an accident on the Norfolk & Western Railroad near Rileytown, Va., John Stoffer, freight conductor, and Alvin Funk, flagman, were killed. The accident was caused by the breaking of an axle of a freight car. The two men were in the caboose and both jumped. Funk was 30 years old and leaves a wife and two children. Stoffer was 30 years of age and unmarried.

Died From Eating Bluefish.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 23.—Mrs. David Webster, aged 73, and Mrs. William Sanborn, of this city, went to Salisbury Beach and had bluefish for dinner. They returned home in the evening, were shortly afterward violently ill and both died in great agony. They are supposed to have been poisoned by the fish.

Four Men Asphyxiated.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Four men were asphyxiated in a "Junk" at Louis Huck & Sons' tannery. Three of them are dead and the other one is in such a precarious condition that he cannot recover.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. MISSISSIPPI JUSTICE.

Although It Deals with Grave Things This Tale Is Funny.

How a Justice of the Peace Condemned a Man to Death Without Any Indictment—Rescued by Gov. Matthews.

Some seventy years ago, as gray-haired pioneers report, there was in Mississippi a justice of the peace who needed no clerk to write him down as an ass. He attended to that clerical duty himself, says the chronicler of the Atlanta Constitution. His district was in the interior and remote from the centers of intelligence. It was far away in the wild woods. No lawyer dwelt in those parts, and the prevalent idea of justice and the modes of administering it were primitive and somewhat arbitrary. There were no railroads, telegraphs or rapid mails to spread intelligence as in these palmy days.

A man in the neighborhood of this modern Dogberry had the misfortune to take the life of a fellow man, and the functionary had him brought up for trial. He examined the witnesses on both sides, made up his mind that the homicide was unjustifiable, and condemned the prisoner to be hanged by the neck until dead. The sentence allowed the man but a few days more of life, and the condemned begged for a little more time. He told the court tearfully that his crop was about ready to be harvested, and he hoped that for the sake of his wife and children his honor would spare his life until that duty could be performed. It was the last service he should ever render to those nearest and dearest to him. Friends interceded, and the judge relented. He granted the doomed man a respite of thirty days, and discharged him on his own recognizance, after exacting a solemn pledge that he would appear promptly on the day appointed and be hanged.

A political campaign was in progress that fall. Gov. Matthews, a popular stumper, was in the field, and happened to have an appointment at the time and place fixed for the execution. While he was chatting with a group of rustic adherents a wagon, drawn by two oxen, was observed slowly approaching. As it drew near it was seen to be occupied by a man, a woman and several children. They were all weeping bitterly, and the wife clung to the husband's neck. The latter was pale and haggard. He stopped the wagon as a bystander (he was the justice) called out:

"So you've kept your word, Charley?"

"Yes," said the condemned man with a deep sob. "I'm a man of my word; I'm ready to die." Here the wails of the wife and the little ones became heartrending.

"Why, what's all this?" said Gov. Matthews.

"It's a hangin'," some one answered.

"But is it all regular?" said the governor, who was a good criminal lawyer.

"Oh! yes, it's all right. Judge Smith knows what he's about."

"Who's Judge Smith?"

"He's our jestis uv the peace."

"And did he try this man?" continued Matthews, becoming very much interested in the proceedings. But he could get no attention, for the procession was now forming to convey the prisoner to the place of execution. The governor followed along, half dazed by the amusing procedure, and half believing it was all a practical joke. But it was all in dead earnest. A gallows had been erected, and when the place was reached the prisoner was made to stand up, and the justice, assisted by his nervous constable, tied his hands behind his back, bandaged his eyes and was beginning to adjust the noose when Gov. Matthews called, in a loud voice:

"Hold on, there, Mr. Justice! Will you listen to me, just a moment?"

"Well, what is it, guv'ner?"

"What is the man's crime?"

"Kill'n another man."

"How was he tried?"

"I tried him and sentenced him to die. He's guilty, guv'ner. It's all right."

"But it's not all right," answered Matthews. "It's all wrong. Don't you know that a grand jury must indict a man before he can be tried for homicide? Don't you know he can only be tried in the circuit court? Don't you know that you can only send him to jail or bind him over to await the action of the grand jury? Don't you know that if you take this man's life you will be indicted for murder yourself?"

"Is that so, guv'ner?" said the justice, as soon as he could recover breath. And he slowly turned the prisoner loose.

The Crystal Palace.

The Crystal palace in London covers an area of 603,672 square feet, is 1,608 feet long by 384 feet wide; height, 147 feet, and, including the grounds, it covers 989 acres of land. The glass used weighed 500 tons, had an area of 25 acres, and if the panes were laid singly end to end they would extend to the enormous length of 243 miles.

Falling Asleep.

Few are aware that the human body falls asleep by degrees. A French physiologist conceives that the sense of sight sleeps first, then the sense of taste, next the sense of smell, next that of hearing, and lastly that of touch.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. MORGAN AND HARLAN.

Appointed Behring Sea Arbitrators by the President.

Both Are Able Men and Thoroughly Patriotic—The Interests of the United States Will Be Protected at All Hazards.

President Harrison's selection of Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, and John M. Harlan, of Kentucky, associate justice of the supreme court, to be arbitrators on behalf of the United States in the controversy between this country and Great Britain, concerning the jurisdictional rights of the United

SENATOR JOHN T. MORGAN, OF ALABAMA.

States in the waters of Behring sea, has met with almost universal approval, says the New York Sun.

There is no higher democratic authority on the subject of international law and no more honorable and fair-minded man in public and private life than Senator Morgan. He is a lawyer by profession, and has been a member of the senate for fifteen years, during that time rendering long service as a member of the committee on foreign relations. He is now, as he has been for many years, the leader of the minority in that important committee. Although one of the much-talked-of confederate brigadiers of congress, Senator Morgan knows no politics when an international or non-partisan subject is before the senate for discussion, and on several occasions he has sustained the administration, regardless of whether it was democratic or republican, and has often been found in hearty accord with Senator Sherman, the chairman, and the other republican members of the committee on foreign relations. Mr. Morgan is reputed to be one of the most lucid and able lawyers in the south. He is a close and constant student, a man of the simplest habits, who spends his nights in studying up the questions that arise in the senate and his days in the senate chamber, where he is always found ready to act as the spokesman of his party. His public speeches are logical and eloquent, and it is no task for the Alabama senator to address the senate for two or three days at a time, when he considers the subject of sufficient importance. It is said at the state department and at the white house that Mr. Morgan was selected as arbitrator for two reasons, first, because it was proper that one democrat should be chosen, and, secondly, because he was thought to be the man best fitted by ability, habit and knowledge of the Behring sea controversy for the difficult and delicate duties of the post.

Justice Harlan was selected for much the same reason as applied in the case of Senator Morgan. He is a lawyer who has made a specialty of international law, and as he is a friend of many years' standing of both the president and Secretary Blaine, his name was decided upon without consultation with him and without the exertion of outside influence in his behalf. Justice Harlan has been a hard worker during all the years that he has been on the supreme court bench, and, being without any income whatever, except his annual salary, has been unable to enjoy the benefits of travel as he would like to do. The president and Mr. Blaine, therefore, were very glad of the opportunity to confer upon him an appointment that would be an honor to him as a public man, and would afford some creature comforts as well. It is said that when the question of making the appointments first arose, the president expressed a desire to have one of the supreme court justices chosen, and the selection of Justice Harlan instead of one of his eight colleagues possesses no significance beyond the fact that he was a stanch republican and personally friendly with the president. He possessed all the qualifications necessary for a representative of the government in such a distinguished commission, and it was known that the opportunity to go abroad as the representative of his government would be very grateful to him. Since the appointment of Justice Harlan and Senator Morgan, the president has been very much gratified by the many assurances that have come to him that these gentlemen will do honor to the cause of the United States, even if the arbitration of the Behring sea question goes against them, as it undoubtedly will.

Enough Said.

HARD-WORKING DOGS.

The Canine Steeds of the Peasant Women in Austria.

The center of attraction at Linz was the market place, says the New York Morning Journal. There were to be seen every morning scores of the queer teams composed of peasant-women and big work-dogs that so offend the American eye in Austria.

Women and dogs! Why are these two, the only two of God's creations that are capable of giving themselves, entirely and unreservedly, over to man's service; the only two capable of kissing his hand if he strikes, and of loving even the foot that brutally kicks—why are they so often coupled together in their humiliation?

In the churches of holy Russia there is an inner santuary where men and boys may go at will, but which is "forbidden to women and dogs." And here in Austria, stronghold of haughty and "chivalrous aristocracy," of imperial pomp and conservative pride of race, one of the saddest and commonest sights of the road are the two, literally harnessed together, toiling along with wagons loaded with country produce or city merchandise, sometimes with huge cans of milk.

The dogs always seemed to me to be pulling under protest, and out of fear of a cutting little whip which is ever in the woman's hand, hanging above them like the sword of Damocles, writes a traveler in Outing. After stopping they usually bark excitedly when ordered to resume their task. The Austrian tells you this barking is for joy, and because they positively love to pull.

Gammon! A dog toiling along harnessed to a wagon is a painful sight, and this most devoted of man's four-footed friends, when in that position, wears the unmistakable stamp of the degradation of slavery. He has descended to a scale of society immeasurably lower than that to which he, by virtue of his character and intelligence, belongs.

THE DOG STEED OF AN AUSTRIAN WOMAN.

Somehow, one's sympathies go out to the dog, even more than to the woman. One unconsciously reasons the matter out on a descending scale. The woman is her good man's slave and helpmate, but the work-dog looks the very slave of a slave. The woman with the whip seems to be revenging herself on him for the humiliation of her own position

PALACIO AND CRESPO.

The Events Which Led to the Present Revolution in Venezuela.

The troubles which are racking the South American republic of Venezuela throughout its length and breadth have attracted the attention of the whole world, and public sentiment has been active in taking the side of one or the other of the parties. Like other South American peoples, the Venezuelans are exceedingly capricious, and inclined to secure by a resort to force and dictatorial methods what is elsewhere accomplished by diplomacy.

The origin of the present insurrection is found in the action of President Palacio, who caused the members of the supreme court to be imprisoned because the court had rendered a decision declaring that certain acts of the president were without sanction of the law, and therefore illegal. Having adopted a policy, the president felt that he could not turn back, and took extreme measures to compel recognition of his power, without considering its antagonism to the constitution of the republic. This course so aroused the loyal adherents of constitutional government and law that an army was organized for the purpose of compelling the dictator to resign. The leader of the insurgents is Gen. Crespo, one of the most distinguished soldiers and statesmen of the republic. Popular sympathy in South and North America appears to be with Crespo and his insurgent forces, and it is the general belief that he must ultimately triumph over the dictator, Palacio. Some of the priests of the church were known to sympathize with the revolutionists and Palacio has ordered the archbishop to council them to cease their opposition to him on pain of dissolution of the church and state. This threat has awakened great indignation among the priests and leading churchmen, and is gaining Crespo many influential followers.

The latest reports received by the department of state at Washington state that Dictator Palacio has resigned and left the republic for his own and his country's good. The executive authority of the state has been assumed by the federal council until such time as congress can be convened for the purpose of electing a successor to the presidency.

1 cup molasses, 1 teaspoonful soda,
½ " sugar, 1 " cinnamon,
½ " butter, 1 tablespoonful ginger,

About 5 cups of flour—work in four, then add cautiously. Stir butter, sugar, molasses and spice together to a light cream. Warm slightly on range. Beat eggs well, then add to the warmed mixture, milk, cream soda, and last flour. Beat very hard for 10 minutes and bake at once in loaf or small tins.

USE

FRICK NOT YET OUT OF DANGER

But His Splendid Constitution Will Probably Pull Him Through.

THE AFFAIR WILL NOT CHANGE HIS POLICY ONE IOTA.

A SOLDIER'S SEVERE PUNISHMENT.

Private Iams, Who Proposed Three Cheers in Camp for the Man Who Shot Frick, and Refused to Retract, Has the Buttons of His Uniform Cut Off By His Colonel--Is Strung Up By the Thumbs Until He Becomes Unconscious--Afterward, With His Face and Head Half Shaven, He is Drummed Out of Camp to Music of the "Rogue's March"--More Cuts Found on Frick's Body--Career of the Anarchist, Berkmann--He Talks in Jail--Frick's Remarkable Nerve.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 25.—Henry C. Frick's splendid constitution is standing him in good stead. Very few men, so say the doctors, could have survived for many hours the terrible injuries which he received at the hands of the Russian Anarchist, to say nothing of the loss of blood and the shock to the nervous system. Yet he passed a good day and night, notwithstanding the fact that it was the most sweltering one of the season. This morning, however, the surgeons will not say he is completely out of danger.

There were many callers at the family mansion every hour during the day, but only a few close intimates were admitted, owing to the desire of the family to be left alone in their affliction as much as possible. For the same reason the telephone was disconnected, and very little information was given out by those who had charge of the door. One or another of the surgeons was in constant attendance during the day, and the injured man's wounds were frequently dressed.

HENRY CLAY FRICK.

The medical men were gratified yesterday to find that so far there was no indication of inflamation or blood-poisoning. At no time since the shooting has the wounded man lost consciousness from pain.

About 1 o'clock Dr. Litchfield dressed the cuts made by Berkman's dagger. There are no less than six of these cuts of greater or lesser degree. In addition to the two serious ones on the right side, there was a deep one in the calf of the left leg which was not discovered till Mr. Frick was undressed at home. This wound was made, Mr. Frick thought, when he tried to force Berkmann against the wall while he tried to disarm him. Besides this there are two long cuts on the upper part of the left leg and a slight cut on the right hip.

There has been and is a good deal of talk and speculation regarding the possible effect of the shooting upon the management and affairs of the Carnegie Company as well as upon the Homestead and kindred strikes. In this connection a gentleman who stands very close to the corporation, and who knows whereof he speaks from his long intimacy with Mr. Frick, said this morning, "So long as Mr. Frick retains possession of his faculties there will be no necessity for a temporary chairman or even for the vice chairman to assume control. Mr. Frick, on his back to-day, is the same Mr. Frick that sat in his revolving chair in his office Saturday morning. Every detail of every section of the gigantic interests under his care are at his fingers' ends, and the corporation will be run from his sick room with the same promptitude and same unerring judgment, the same instantaneous grasp of the situation, the same autocracy that has always distinguished him." This was evidenced Sraturday by his pluck in insisting that the surgeons should stop probing for the bullets in order that he might append his signature to important documents, as well as by his action in calling all his head men into the office and giving them instructions for to-day's work."

"As to the Homestead strike, I am confident that this affair will not change his policy one iota. He will go on the path he has laid out, although it may be necessary to call in others to do work that, under different circumstances, he would have done himself."

The would-be murderer, Alexander Berkmann, spent last night in cell No. 4 of the Central Station, and, awakening bright and early, asked for some breakfast, particularly requesting that it should include some eggs. A good meal was given him, and after cleaning the plates he put on a clean, laundered shirt, and standup collar and a light tie, then he lit a cigarette. He smokes incessantly.

One of his first questions to the guard was concerning the condition of Mr. Frick; and when told that he was doing very well, shrugged his shoulders and said that he had nothing to say. Presently he asked what the people, laying stress upon the point that he did not mean the newspapers, thought of the affair. On being told that it was the general opinion that he had no ground for his action, he replied energetically: "All the people will soon think as I do. They say I am against the law, but I say that man was against the law. He was against the people, and when he is against the people he is against the State and therefore against the law."

He refused to say whether he was an Anarchist, or having known Herr Most, and laughed heartily when asked if he had lived on 42d street in New York. "Why, I am not rich enough to live there," he said. "All rich people—the big men live there. I do not belong to them." He went on to say that he had worked on a Russian, as well as some other German papers, in New York, but would not give their names, although he reeled off the names of the proprietor and editors of the "Staats Zeitung." He said that he left New York Thursday morning over the B. & O. R. R. When asked if he came with the express intention of killing Mr. Frick, he replied: "Well, I say that Frick has killed many men, and has to suffer for it."

Berkman expressed surprise when told that he could not be tried before September, saying that he would like an earlier trial, and asked if he would be allowed to defend himself. He was told that he could speak all day if he wished, to which he replied: "I believe I could get through in a day, but my English would give out in a long speech and I would want interpreters. The prisoner was more cool and collected than yesterday, and did not look so much like a maniac as at the time of his arrest. There was apparently no gleam of insanity in his eye, but he insisted on wearing glasses, and these in a measure helped to change his appearance.

His appearance is not very prepossessing. The most remarkable part of his facial characteristics is the mouth. It is certainly forebiding. His lower lip and his upper lip are double, remarkably so, even in the eyes of detectives, who have had to study these characteristics. He has a short growth of beard, has large ears, and his forehead is narrow.

No date has yet been fixed for his preliminary hearing. A photograph of Mr. Frick's private office, showing the position of the furniture and the blood stains on the carpet, has been taken for the use of the prosecution.

Frick Cool Through It All.

The sangfroid exhibited by Mr. Frick during and after his hand-to-hand struggle with the man who sought his life bordered on the incredible. Hours after the tragedy, and when the startled and excited clerks and attaches had in a measure regained their equilibrium, they got together and compared notes of their recollections. In this way it came out for the first time that the would-be assassin came dangerously near shooting Mr. Frank F. Leishmann, Vice-Chairman of the Carnegie Steel Company, and Mr. Frick's right hand support.

The Vice-Chairman was the first to rush into the office, and the crazy Russian immediately pointed his revolver in Mr. Leishmann's direction.

In a moment, notwithstanding that the blood was flowing in a stream from his pistol wounds, Mr. Frick jumped from his chair, knocked up his arm and then catching him by the back of the neck forced him to the floor.

It was then that the fellow, half turning around, inflicted the knife wounds.

All this had transpired in a few seconds.

One of his clerks, who followed close behind Mr. F. Leishmann, not realizing the situation of affairs, drew a revolver and was about to shoot the assailant, when Mr. Frick shouted in his usual peremptory tone: "Let that man alone."

Berkmann freed himself just then and made his break for the elevator where he was captured.

It was six hours to the minute from the time the first shot was heard to Mr. Frick's removal from the blood-stained office to the ambulance in waiting, and all of this time, although suffering intense agonies while the corps of surgeons examined and operated upon his wounds, he maintained his self-possession and was in fact as cool as if nothing had happened.

The surgeons were anxious that he should be put under the influence of chloroform, but he strenuously protested, and while they were probing for the balls he gave many hints and suggestions as to where they would be likely to find them. Hundreds of his business and personal friends called at the office while the doctors were at work, and, more than a score were admitted by his orders. To one of them, James B. Scott, of Johnstown fame, he said that he did not propose that his wounds should bother him much; that he expected to be at the office on Monday.

Just after the ball had been dug out of his shoulder blade he suddenly recollected that he had left several letters on his desk, that it was important they should go out in the night mail, and, calling a clerk, he instructed that he should bring them in, persuading the doctors to prop him up.

Although this accelerated the flow of blood, he attached his signature to the various sheets.

Then he was placed on a couch and soon fell into a sound sleep.

Awakening shortly before 6 o'clock he summoned all the heads of the various departments and gave them full and explicit instructions regarding matters that should be attended to on Monday.

He then expressed a desire to be removed to his home.

He had previously requested that his wife, who is in delicate health, should not be brought to the office, and his sister, who was one of the early arrivals, was kindly but firmly requested to refrain from indulging in any hysterical show of emotion.

The ambulance from Mercy Hospital was summoned and the patient was gently carried down stairs on a cot. He was covered with blankets, and out of the bandages that swathed his head and face, his two eyes peeped with what seemed to be a half amused expression.

As he passed Inspector of Police Sylvus, who was at the front door of the building in command of a squad of officers, he glimpsed his eyes in his direction and remarked:

"I'll be back on Monday."

He was then lifted into the ambulance, three surgeons took positions beside him, the curtains were drawn, Secretary Lovejoy mounted the seat with the driver, and the vehicle was driven rapidly away towards Homewood.

A crowd of over 3,000 people saw the departure and there were many exclamations of pity and sorrow as the unfortunate man was being carried across the sidewalk.

Berkmann's Attempt at Suicide.

When Berkmann was searched on his arrival at the station, a small dynamite cartridge was found in his vest pocket. Not much attention was paid to the fact in the prevailing excitement.

About 4 o'clock he was taken from his cell to the gymnasium, where four photographs were taken of him in as many positions.

After the examination was concluded, he was ordered to open his mouth, but instead he set his teeth firmly. The order was repeated, but with the same result. The Superintendent attempted to force the jaws of the prisoner open with his fingers, but finding this impossible, he asked the assistance of Dr. Mercer, who was standing by, and between the two of them the fellow's mouth was pried open with a tablespoon.

It was seen that he had something inside.

He was told to spit it out. He refused. The tablespoon was again brought into play and after some difficulty a dynamite cartridge, similar to the one found in his vest pocket, was taken from beneath his tongue. It was at once submitted to Arthur Kirk, an expert on explosives, who pronounced it the identical kind of a bomb cartridge used by Louis Lingg, the Chicago Anarchist when he committed suicide in the county jail while awaiting execution for complicity in the Haymarket massacre.

It contained enough dynamite, he said, not only to blow the man exploding it to pieces, but to kill or maim those in his immediate vicinity, and it was supposed to explode from the prick of a pin or the bite of a tooth.

Some imperfection in its manufacture, however, had made it of no effect.

After this report had been received, it was remembered that the elevator man in the Carnegie building had noticed the prisoner nervously moving his teeth after the tragedy and that he was also noticed to be grinding his molars after being brought to the Central Station.

From this it appeared to be clearly evident that it was the prisoner's intention after killing or maiming his victim to blow his own head off and he was only prevented by a defect in the cartridge from carrying out this design.

He was given a suit of prison clothes in place of his own garments and shortly afterwards was identified by the night clerk of the Merchant's Hotel as having stopped at that place under the name of Simon Backman. The straw hat which he wore bore the label of Marquella, No. 20 Stanton street, New York city.

When supper was served him he asked for a knife and fork, but was told that prisoners were refused the use of those things. He then disposed of the food with avidity.

Strikers Express Sorrow.

A guard has been placed at his cell door to prevent any possibility of his attempting suicide.

Among the strikers at the Union Mills and at Duquesne, as well as at Braddock, the news of the shooting was received with expressions of regret.

A proclamation signed by Sheriff McCleary commanding order and obedience to the law has been posted at Duquesne and deputy sheriffs have also been placed in charge of Carnegie's plant. A troop of cavalry has arrived from Homestead and its appearance created considerable bitterness and angry talk on the part of the strikers.

The fact that Hess Most was in this city a couple of weeks ago and made several addresses is regarded by many people as significant in view of the fact that Most recognized his former employe as having been with him in his New York office.

It is also suggested in some quarters that the events of Saturday might be associated with Hugh O'Donnell's recent trip to New York, but by the great majority of people this was scouted at as something more than absurd.

CLOSE WATCH ON ANARCHISTS.

An Important Arrest May Be Made in Connection With the Frick Shooting.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Inspector Steers, on the strength of a despatch from the Chief of Police of Pittsburg, asking him to locate some of the confederates of Alexander Berkmann, assailant of H. C. Frick, detailed two detectives to the special duty of mingling among the anarchists on the East side of this city.

It is possible the detectives may make an important arrest.

Berkmann was a printer's apprentice when he arrived in this country several years ago. In Vienna he was associated with Joseph Peukert, an Austrian, who has posed as a rabid anarchist for many years in different parts of the world.

Berkmann was of late years one of his most devoted pupils.

Berkmann secured a job as compositor in John Most's office at No. 167 William street, in the spring of this year. Up to that time he had worked at odd jobs all over the country.

That he had traveled a great deal was shown by his talk to his associates and friends.

Most kept Berkmann from April 1 until July 4. Then he discharged him for incompetency. Since then Berkmann has been doing nothing, but is said to have been drinking a good deal.

Just when Berkmann left New York on his errand of assassination was not to be learned here to-day. Possibly the errand suggested itself to him at the mass meeting of Socialists at Union Square on July 11, when resolutions were passed demanding that Mr. Frick be tried and executed without leaving the trial jury any discretion in the matter.

MAY GET OUT TO-DAY.

Believed That O'Donnell Was Kept in Jail to Avert Trouble.

PITTSBURG, July 25.—The action of Judge Magee in withholding his decision in the application for bail for Hugh O'Donnell, and in keeping the strike leader in jail over Sunday was very likely a wise move.

There is little doubt that O'Donnell will be released, but the officials believing that if he was liberated on Saturday evening when the case closed and the workmen at Homestead should carry out their programme of his reception, while the excitement over the attempted assassination of Mr. Frick was yet so intense, an encounter between the workmen and the militia would surely occur.

O'Donnell was seen in jail to-day by a reporter. He expressed the greatest regret for the shooting of Mr. Frick, and said that he hoped his wounds would not prove serious.

When told that the news of the shooting had been received by some of the workmen at Homestead with undisguised expressions of approval, Mr. O'Donnell said: "My God, is it possible that any one can rejoice over such a terrible deed as this."

Strikers Appeal for Aid.

BUFFALO, July 25.—A circular from the strikers at Homestead appealing for aid has been received by the Central Labor Union here. It was referred to the Executive session. Bricklayers and Stonemasons' Union No. 36 has voted $25 in aid of the strikers.

Devlin Admits the Row With Oates.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Mr. Devlin, of the Executive Committee K. of L., who accused Chairman Oates, of the Committee Investigating the Homestead trouble, of favoring the Pinkertons in the investigation, was seen by a reporter at the National Hotel. He admitted that he made the charge as alleged and also that Mr. Oates called him a liar, but denied that blows were exchanged or that he was ejected from the House.

DRUMMED OUT OF CAMP.

Severe Punishment of a Soldier Who Cheered Berkmann.

PITTSBURG, July 25.—The sensation of the camp yesterday was the drumming out of town of Private Iams, of Company C, Tenth Regiment, who shouted when the report of the attempted assassination of Mr. Frick reached the Provisional Brigade for three cheers for the assassin.

Col. Streator, from his quarters, heard the incendiary shout. He hurried into camp and ordered the regiment to be paraded in double-quick time.

When his command was drawn up he recited to the soldiers the remark he had heard.

"I heard the voice distinctly," the Colonel said: "I think I recognized, and I want the man who made the statement to advance two paces."

The Colonel had recognized Iams' voice, and he was standing directly in front of the accused when he was talking.

Immediately Private Iams stepped to the front. He was trembling like an aspen leaf, and he seemed unable to hold his gun.

"You offered three cheers for the killing of Mr. Frick, did you not?" the Colonel asked.

Iams didn't answer, but he hung his head and nodded in the affirmative; he was ordered to the guardhouse. The Colonel and his staff, including the surgeon, then went to the guardhouse.

The officer of the day took charge of the culprit and at the Colonel's orders he was hung up by the thumbs for thirty minutes.

The surgeons remained with the unfortunate during all his punishment. One of them kept watch on his pulse, while another looked after his heart, and at the end of thirty minutes Surgeon Neff ordered him taken down.

When released young Iams was limp and apparently unconscious. The surgeons remained with him for another hour, when he was taken to his quarters.

Yesterday one side of his head was shaved and one side of his beard and mustache cut off, and his uniform was taken from him.

A civilian's dress was given him and he was then given in charge of twenty men and a drum corps and marched out of town a mile and a half to the tune of the "Rogue's March."

The guards were given strict orders in his presence to shoot him if he turned to the right or left.

He was also disfranchised and will hereafter be "a man without a country."

The punishment, although severe, is in accord with a law passed in 1887, and is generally commended.

Iams is a traveling salesman and lives in Waynesburgh.

HE WORKED FOR MOST.

A Man Named Berkman Was Formerly Employed By the Anarchist.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Nothing is apparently known at the office of the Typographical Unions in this city regarding the identity of the man who shot Mr. Frick.

Secretary Ferguson, of Typographical Union No. 6, said that no such name as Alexander Berkman or Bauman was to be found on their roll.

John Feierabend, Secretary of the Executive Committee of Typographical Union No. 274, generally known as the German Union No. 7, made a similar statement as to his organization. A member of the Union who was in the office said that he had known an Anarchist named Berkman who was a hanger-on around printing offices in Chicago about the time of the Haymarket trouble, but he did not know his first name.

Peter J. Bannigan, President of the Pressman's Union No. 9, said he knew no such man, nor does either Berkman or Bauman appear on the roll of the Adams and Cylinder Press Printer's Association.

At the office of John Most's "Freiheit" it was said that over a year ago a young man named Berkman worked there as a sort of an apprentice. He seldom made more than $8 or $9 a week, and he was an avowed Anarchist of the most violent type. He was an "Individualist Anarchist," and not a "Socialist Anarchist," and as such he did not get on well with some of his associates on the "Freiheit." His name appeared on the payroll for the last time on July 4, 1891.

The Small-pox Fright on Block Island.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., July 25.—The small-pox fright at Block Island is practically over. Dr. Fisher, secretary of the State Board of Health, has issued a circular in which he says that he visited the island and personally inspected the premises of the Hotel Manisses and finds no further development of the disease, and that under the present circumstances and in view of the rigid enforcement of the quarantine law, there is no immediate danger of the disease spreading. There are several guests locked up in the Manisses Hotel, where the disease originated, and they will not be permitted to leave for fifteen days, a constant patrol being maintained about the building. There were five cases in all, but none have proved serious. Many guests have left the island, but the exodus has practically ceased.

SINKING OF THE ALVA

Narrow Escape of W. K. Vanderbilt and His Party.

RUN DOWN BY A BIG STEAMSHIP

The Yacht Was at Anchor on Nantucket Shoals During a Fog—All on Board Saved—The Alva Was the Finest Pleasure Boat in Existence.

HYANNIS, Mass., July 25.—While at anchor, in the fog on Nantucket Shoals yesterday, W. K. Vanderbilt's yacht, Alva, was run into by the steamer H. F. Dimock and sunk. All on board the Alva, including W. K. Vanderbilt and party, were saved and taken on board the Dimock. They were landed at Boston.

The fog was thick over the Nantucket Shoals and the look-outs on both vessels could not have seen half a knot ahead to save their lives.

Shouts of sailors and the Vanderbilt party and the blowing of the whistles of both boats made a pandemonium within a few seconds of the accident.

The sharp prow of the iron steamer Dimock had penetrated about seven feet into the yacht's side. The big vessel was at half speed on account of the fog, and it was due to this that all of W. K. Vanderbilt's party were saved.

In the wild confusion that followed the contact of the vessels the crews of both retained their presence of mind. The fifty five members of the Alva crew rushed aft and swung ropes to the crew of the steamer.

Just as Mr. Vanderbilt appeared from the cabin gangway pale, but self-possessed, and with a lady on each arm, the captain of the Alva raised the warning cry: "She is sinking."

Not a moment was lost in hurrying Mr. Vanderbilt and the dozen or so of his guests aboard the Dimock. The crew scrambled quickly after them, and hardly had the last man clambered aboard when with a rush the two hundred foot yacht careened and sank from view. There were so few minutes elapsing between the collision and the sinking that it was like a dream to the millionaire and his friends.

In the scramble for life wearing apparel and jewelry had been neglected, and none of the magnificent furnishings of the yacht were saved. The passengers and crew of the ill-fated Alva were afforded every help and consideration by the captain of the Dimock and his officers.

While regretting the loss of his magnificent yacht and its sumptuous furniture and equipment, Mr. Vanderbilt was very thankful that no loss of life had occurred.

On Nantucket Shoals the skeletons of hundreds of good vessels lie. Mr. Vanderbilt has not yet determined whether or not he will make an effort to raise the Alva. Owing to the amount of plate in her commissariat an effort will undoubtedly be made to raise her.

PARK AVENUE'S PASTOR.

Considerable Doubt as to the Probable Choice—Carter Helm Jones Wanted.

Opinion seems to be divided among the people of the Park Avenue Baptist church over the question of selecting a pastor. Although the Rev. Isaac Newton Phelps is in high favor, there are those who want to hear other candidates before deciding whom to select. The Rev. Mr. Lockwood, who is to preach in the church in August, is preferred by a number. But there are still others who are anxious to have the call extended to the Rev. Carter Helm Jones, and who are working hard to secure him as pastor. Mr. Jones is a popular preacher, especially among the young people, and has many warm friends in Plainfield. He would be decidedly an acquisition to the church.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Journal. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

DARING ROBBERY.

Watchman Gagged, Safe Blown Up, and $5,000 Taken.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

ASBURY PARK, July 25.—One of the boldest robberies ever perpetrated in this city was done here last night. Shortly after 2 o'clock this morning nightwatchman Henry Dickman, who is in the employ of the Seashore Electric railway at this place, was murderously assaulted, bound, gagged, and thrown into a small room, while three burglars quietly drilled in a hole in the Marvin safe and then blew it open, making off with the contents without leaving the slightest clew to their identity.

Dickman was this morning in a precarious condition, the result of his wounds.

The burgars secured over $5,000 in cash from the safe, the total receipts of the electric railway for Saturday and Sunday.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE.

THE PRESS as Usual Keeps the Public Posted.

The shooting of H. C. Frick, Saturday, did not occur until after that day's edition of THE PRESS was on the press and nearly all printed, and the employes had nearly all left the office to enjoy their weekly half-holiday. Just as soon as the news of the shooting was flashed over the wires an extra bulletin was displayed in front of the office, which immediately became the centre of an excited crowd of people, all eager for further particulars. THE PRESS was kept posted by special correspondents in Pittsburg and Homestead of all developments of the affair, and its telegrams and long-distance telephone dispatches were bulletined before the eager throng as fast as they came in. Commuters from New York did not know of the shooting until they read THE PRESS bulletins, as none of the New York papers contained the news except in late extras.

The usual base-ball bulletins of THE PRESS were displayed, to the gratification of the public, who were thus kept informed of the result of each innings of the championship games as fast as played. These bulletins are a regular feature, and are greatly appreciated.

STABBED THE DOG CATCHER.

Hackman Keeley in Serious Trouble for Interfering with an Officer in the Discharge of His Duty.

Detective Frisble of the dog-pound staff has a serious grievance against hackman Patrick Keeley. A few days ago Frisble captured one of Keeley's dogs, which aroused Keeley's enmity. Yesterday the officer found one of the hackman's horses running at large, and caught it to take to the pound. Keeley ran out and cut the halter, so that the horse was freed. Then Frisble arrested the hackman for double violation of the stray-animals ordinance. Keeley resisted. A tussle ensued, in which Keeley struck a fierce blow at Frisble with his knife. The policeman warded the blow with his forearm and received a bad gash in the hand. Then he struck Keeley and knocked him down. Keeley's wife and daughter came to the rescue and belabored Frisble with horsewhips. The officer called for help, but as none came he beat a retreat. He has a very sore hand. Judge Codington will hear his complaint against the Keeleys at 3 this afternoon.

OBITUARY.

Maria Winsor.

Simply and quietly as she had lived, so was buried in the family plot at Bound Brook on Friday last, one of God's faithful workers—Maria, daughter of George Winsor, aged 72 years.

The last forty years of her life were of constant self-denial and toilsome devotion to others, in conjunction with her equally great hearted sister.

There are many now living who owe their early education, their first start in life and subsequent assistance, to Maria and Joanna Winsor; and others now dead to whom, when broken down with infirmity and adversity, their home was freely offered as a refuge.

With boundless hospitality upon very limited means these two noble women pursued "the even tenor of their way" for nearly half a century—and long after the surviving sister shall have joined the companion of her life, will their memory be cherished by the descendants of those whom they have befriended. Their good deeds will never die! R. H. D.

Elizabeth Cyclers Win the Run.

The century run of Saturday finished in Newark at 7:30 in the evening. It was considered a highly successful event by the cyclers. Nearly all of the starters finished, including Mrs. W. E. Martin, wife of one of the Newark riders.

The association prize was won by the Elizabeth Wheelmen bringing home ten men out of twelve starters. The Atalantas won the first outside prize with seventeen out of eighteen men, and the Newark Business Men's Cycling League won the second prize outside.

Frank L. C. Martin of Plainfield was one of the pacemakers.

Four Plainfield riders entered the run, Capt. F. L. C. Martin, A. S Fritts, L. S. Darling and F. L. Metcalf. Darling had his wheel smashed in a collision at Bound Brook, and Metcalf's bicycle was wrecked near Princeton. The two riders returned to Plainfield and got other wheels in time to ride to Newark for the supper in the evening. Martin and Fritts rode the entire run, making 120 miles in all. Darling made 111, and Metcalf 100.

Dr. Probasco Attends a Wounded Cyclist.

GREAT DAMAGE BY STORM.

Six Big Fires by Lightning Within a Radius of Ten Miles—Crops Ruined by Hail.

The storm of wind and rain that broke over this section at 10 o'clock Friday night, was the heaviest that had visited this locality in several years. It was accompanied by the most terrific thunder and lightning. The rain, which fell in torrents for nearly an hour, was more like a water-spout than anything else.

At Somerville the gutters and waste-water pipes were wholly inadequate in taking off the water, and the principal streets were flooded from curb to curb. On Main street in front of the brick hotel the water backed up over the sidewalk, and for a time was fully three feet deep, making foot travel impossible. The hailstones which fell during the storm were by actual measurement from an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. Considerable damage was done by the storm to the truck farms just outside the town. Trees and electric wires were blown down by the high wind. Reports from the upper counties say that the peach crop will be greatly damaged by the wind and hail. During the storm a large fire supposed to be barns and outbuildings was seen north of Somerville. It is impossible at the present time to estimate the loss to the crops, but the damage will be large.

Inquiry at the insurance offices elicited the fact that six fires occured within a radius of ten miles from Somerville. John L. Hageman, who lives at South Branch, lost his barn and out-buildings, but saved his stock. Dr. A. C. TenEyck of North Branch lost his barn, hovels, three horses, four cows and ten tons of hay. This is the second time in two years that Dr. TenEyck's buildings have been struck by lightning, thus disproving the idea that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. John Allen, of Liberty Corner had his barn burned. A large fire occured at Bedminister, a fifth near Millstone, and the last was the barn of Al. Snyder, who lives on the mountain back of Somerville. All of these fires occured within an hour and were plainly seen from the top of the Raritan woolen mills, the highest point in Somerville.

In the central telephone exchange in Plainfield the lightning burned out every fuse on the distributing board, rendering all instruments useless until the hustlers under manager Runyon replaced the burned-out fuses with new ones.

The burning of the huge paraffine works adjoining the oil tanks at Constable Hook, by lightning, Friday night, was witnessed by a number of Plainfielders on a late train. The great fire made a magnificent spectacle.

KILLED BY A FALL.

A Sterling Citizen of Warren Township Meets With Fatal Injury.

Hiram Tunison, a well-known resident of Somerset county, and a former collector of Warren township, met with an accident a short time ago, that terminated fatally. He went up in a cherry tree to pick some cherries. The limb on which he was standing broke, letting him fall to the ground. He, being a very heavy man, received a severe shock. He was carried to the house, not being able to help himself, and medical aid was summoned, when it was found that his spine was broken just below the shoulder-blade. No hope could be held out to the injured man or his family, for his recovery; but everything that loving hearts could dictate or willing hands do, was done, and he received the best of medical aid. His last days were thus made comfortable.

By his sterling Christian character and honest dealing, he made a host of friends.

After lingering two weeks, death found him cheerful and ready to meet the Saviour whom he had so long followed.

Mr. Tunison was a Democrat in politics, but so great was the respect for him that the Republicans made no nomination whenever he could be induced to take an office; but pressure of other business kept him back often when his name would be mentioned for nomination.

Mr. Thompson leaves a wife and family to mourn the loss of a kind parent and an honest man.

A Somerville Policeman Attacked.

Late on Thursday evening last while officer W. W. Dorland was patroling Main street, Somerville, and when opposite the Somerset county bank, he was set upon by a gang of hoodlums and severely handled. The roughs threw him down, and but for the arrival of officer Crow, Dorland would have been choked to death. Upon Crow's appearance the toughs ran away but after a hard chase the blue coats succeeded in catching one, James Fallon, who bears an unsavory reputation. Fallon was held in $300 bail for the grand jury.

Popular Netherwood.

(New York Evening Post.)

Hotel Netherwood, Netherwood Heights, overlooking Plainfield, N. J., is one of the most popular of suburban resorts with New Yorkers who want to get into a pleasant country without sparing to much time for the trip. A short drive brings one to New Market Lake or to Washington Rock, from which the towers of Brooklyn Bridge can be seen on a clear day, or to Glen Side Park.

"Looks like a ghost!" That's what they say of the pale, thin, weak woman who's "run-down" and overworked. Probably she knows it herself. But there's one thing she can't know, or she wouldn't feel so and look so—and that is, that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is guaranteed to help her.

It's a legitimate medicine, made especially for woman's needs; an invigorating, restorative tonic and a soothing and strengthening nervine, imparting tone and vigor to the whole system.

But it isn't a mere stimulant. It's a remedy, safe and sure, for all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that make women suffer. In "female complaints" of every kind, periodical pains, internal inflammation, ulceration, and kindred ailments, it's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money is returned.

No other medicine for women is sold on a Proof that nothing else is "just as good."

DEACON SUES FOR DIVORCE.

If He is Successful Mrs. Deacon May Go to Jail.

PARIS, July 25.—Mr. Edward Parker Deacon, who is serving a one year sentence at Grasse for shooting and killing M. Abeille at the Hotel Splendide, has opened a proceeding against his wife for adultery with M. Abeille.

This action is taken by Mr. Deacon in consequence of Mrs. Deacon's application summoning her husband to permit her to have access to the children. According to the French law, if Mrs. Deacon is found guilty of the charge her husband makes against her she will be liable to a term of imprisonment.

The custody of the children was given to Mr. Deacon, and they are now in charge of his brother. The statement that they are now living with their mother at the Convent of Our Lady of the Assumption is disproved by the action taken by Mrs. Deacon for a legal order allowing her to see them.

Fate of a Pennsylvania Party.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 25.—A telephone message received from Campo states that the body of C. W. Breedlove, the third of a party that went in search of reported gold mines in the desert, had been found a long distance from the bodies of the elder Breedlove and the Philadelphia capitalist, Fish. The latter's wife, mother and sister are here from Meadville, Pa. His brother is also in the city, and will at once arrange to have the bodies brought in. The heat on the desert is intense at present.

LONDON, July 25.—Mrs Antonio J. de Navarro (Mary Anderson) writes a letter to the press in which she denounces as untrue the reports which have been current of late that she intends to return to the stage. The Navarros will pass the autumn in Scotland and the winter in Italy.

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head—for a week at a time I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured. It is wonderful how quick it helped me. Mrs. Georgie S. Judson, Hartford, Conn.

For three weeks I was suffering from a severe cold in my head, accompanied by a pain in the temples. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me. After only six applications of the Balm every trace of my cold was removed. Henry C. Clarke, New York Appraiser's office.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

SURE WINNERS NOW!

KELLER'S BOYS HAVE TAKEN THE LEAD FOR GOOD.

Sneeden Pitches the Star Game of the Championship Series, and the Players Behind Him Put Up an Errorless Contest.

One little hit by Hughes, and one little run by the same because of one little overthrow to first by Sneeden, was all the Elizabeth ball team got of credit to themselves upon their visit to Plainfield, Saturday.

The Crescents played a perfect game. Sneeden's throw four feet over Jones's head, was the only error of the day. He pitched the record game of the series, however—only one hit being made off his delivery. But as he said himself: "I never have a chance to shut 'em out that I do n't spoil it myself!"

There has n't been a more pleasurable game for the Plainfield team's admirers to witness, this season; yet it would not make an interesting story. The Elizabeth team had an off day at the bat, and that is all there is to it. Captain Bowes, who has succeeded captain Williams, tried hard to lead his men to victory, and he, himself, never gave up the game until he, himself, the last man at the bat, was out. Meyers, who takes Williams place at third, put up a far better game than his predecessor has in years. He had seven chances and played them all to perfection. At the bat he got his first on balls once, and drove the ball into center and right field respectively upon other occasions. Crane who took Lufbery's place in right field, was of no sort of use. Two runs were scored on his muff of a long fly of Murphy's in the fifth inning, and at the bat he only once pushed the ball outside of the diamond. As to the others, there is nothing special to say except that Rafferty played that same kind of a gilt-edged game that ranks him so high among the Central league catchers; and Berry, who promised to make a hit, was so unfortunate as to be twice caught out on a foul tip.

Of the Crescents, almost all distinguished themselves. "Gentle" Willie again had on his batting clothes. He made a three-bagger, a single and a drive so far into right field that it was dropped and two runs were scored for Plainfield. Mr. Murphy, in the opinion of THE PRESS, will make Mr. Gore hustle so before the season is out for a batting average, that the latter will wish he had never entered the Central league."

Daley, too, made a couple of beauty hits, Saturday, and even Hofford refused to accept a base on balls for the first time probably in his life, and hit for fair whenever he had a chance. Behind the bat, also, Chic was unusually full of ginger, and Turner handled six chances in great style besides making one safe hit, a base on balls and long flys to right field and center.

But the "feature" of the day, again, was Bonner's playing. He covered both the left and right infields, and cut off no less than five low hits that otherwise would have been safe drives into the outfield. Leidy gobbled three and Murphy one high flyers, but none was as fine a catch as that of Brady's in the third inning. This new accession, whose coming was exclusively told in Saturday's PRESS, fielded his position beyond criticism.

Shiloh's Cough Cure

Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

OH! THAT LUCKY SEVENTH!

The West Ends Pull Themselves Together and Get Out of a Disagreeable Hole.

In the seventh and eighth innings, Saturday at Westfield, the West Ends made the ball look like a pancake and won a neat victory from the Westfields. Mack's men put the ball nine times where the Westfield fielders could n't have got it on horseback, and seven men scored.

The Westfielders made seven safe drives off of Anderson but were kept guessing all the time. Base-ball cranks of Somerville will roll this sweet morsel under their tongues for the next seven days to come: that all hope of winning had been given up; that during six innings it was possible to make but one hit off of Clare; that then Kennedy started the ball rolling with a corking single to right; that Murray, Cadmus, Anderson and Carbonell followed suit, and the game was won.

If there is a slower man than the slim Westfielder pitching ball to-day, he must be hiding in the woods. Mr. Clare is from the country where everything is done deliberately. He counts the stitches in the ball before sending it over the rubber, and upon receiving it from the catcher he goes through a series of motions that makes one's head feel like an electric fan. This smooth-faced young man has gained a reputation for throwing curves so deceptively that opposing batsmen sometimes think of using snow shovels to save themselves from striking out. Saturday he was speedy and for the first six innings out of sight. But after that he fell away just as he did when he pitched his first game, June 28, and the Elizabeths hit him for five doubles and eight singles.

When Jack Sharrott jumped over the fence inclosing the Westfield grounds, Saturday, and started to walk across to the bench, the first man he saw was one of his old comrades of the defunct New Yorks, George Gore, who stood at the plate batting the ball to the outfielders. Walking up to him Sharrott grasped Gore by the hand and said: "Well, old man, we meet again but we can't pull together. I am sorry to be obliged to do you up to-day." Gore with a smile which made every hair in his brown mustache quiver, replied: "Why, I guess not! I came out here on purpose to lead the West End team to victory. I did it in Plainfield two years ago, and I guess I can accomplish as much now." He made three of the eight runs; his first circuit tied the score in the second inning; his fielding was good; twice when he came to the bat he got his first on balls; the third time, Howe was so rattled at being the recipient of a Gore hit, that he threw way over Smith's head; then in the eighth, Gore hit one to Sharrott which was juggled until Gore stood on first. This fumble nearly broke the Westfield third-baseman's heart, and after the game not a word he spoke, but left the grounds with a haggard look on his face such as sometimes a young man wears when his best girl promises to be a sister to him.

George Cadmus played a great game at third. He captured ground balls that were scorchers, and his throwing over to first was as straight as an arrow. The West Ends go up against the Plainfield stars next Saturday, and the consequences ought to be exciting. George Gore came home with the boys Saturday night and was entertained at the West End club until a late hour. He will play with the team during the remainder of the season. This is official. Manager Mack stuck out his New Jersey breast like a bay window when he gave the information to the newspaper boys. The score:

BASE-BALL BABBLE.

Bonner is playing great ball but that is the very reason he should be well taken care of. He and Sneeden have earned a rest on the bench to-morrow.

Murphy, the Crescents' new pitcher, will be given a trial to-morrow against the Cuban Giants who include all the strong players of the late Gorham team.

What kind of financiering is this? Gore was paid $35 Saturday by Somerville and he could n't hit the ball! Cadmus was paid $10 and made a three-bagger, a two-bagger and a single.

On the 9th inst., at Elizabeth, Francis made the pitcher's record by holding the Somerville team down to two hits. But Sneeden's work in the box for Plainfield, Saturday, surpassed it.

There are good and sufficient reasons to expect that a lot of the first-rate players on the Somerville team will kick at getting so much less money than is paid George Gore whom Tierney, of the Elizabeths, sized up Saturday as a "Third-class stuff".

THE PRESS does not agree with the Sun that "It is quite a slide down the toboggan for Gore from the National league to the Central New Jersey league". The majority of the fielders in the latter league are far superior to him and such men as Murphy can far outbat him.

Manager Mack is on the still hunt for "Buck" Ewing, and should that played-out catcher and first baseman leave the New Yorks he will be snapped up at once for Somerville at a price far above what he is worth. What will Kennedy and Harkins think about that? Either is a better player than Ewing, yet they will be working for less money.

Since Bonner was brought in from the outfield, his place has not been filled. Leidy has covered all the ground he could travel over in a way that has n't been equaled anywhere this season, and Murphy has done his share, but it was not until Saturday that the Crescents seemed to have found a man worthy to keep company with their center-fielder.

The New York Sun says: "The pace set for the New Jersey Central League by the Crescents of Plainfield has been so hot that the managers of other teams in the league are in danger of bankrupting themselves in their endeavor to down the leaders. Somerville has gone to the extreme in signing George Gore, recently released by the New Yorks."

If the pennant that Spalding & Bros. give the winner, is no better than the balls the firm furnish to play with, Somerville won't lose much. An inspection of the balls and an estimate of their cost to the makers, subtracted from what the league teams will pay for them before the series is finished, shows that the Spaldings will be in about $50 over the cost of the flag.

Charles W. Gennett, teller of the Binghampton Savings bank, in a private letter last week to a relative in this city, said: "That Keeler is a dandy. We could n't get along without him. I saw him make two three-baggers yesterday and that is not an uncommon occurrence with him. He plays the third base in great form. I consider him the most valuable man in the nine. You can unload more like him on us—if you have any."

The Cuban Giants who are to play the Crescents here to-morrow, defeated the Brooklyn Ridgewoods yesterday by the score of 12 to 2. This is exactly the same score by which the Crescents defeated the Ridgewoods on Decoration Day morning. Consequently it would seem that the teams which will meet on the grounds over the brook to-morrow, are evenly matched, but the Giants with Williams, Stovey, Jackson and others of the Gorham's best players is a much stronger team than even the one that made nine hits off of Sneeden, May 18, and beat the Crescents 6 to 5.

Juvenile Base-Ball.

The Arlingtons defeated the Eagles Saturday morning on the Park avenue ball grounds by the score of 10 to 17. The game was full of base hits, and errors. The Arlingtons won the game in the third inning. Following is the score by innings:

Arlingtons..2 7 3 2 1 1 1 0 *—17
Eagles.....1 5 0 1 2 1 0 0 0—10

Batteries—Eagles—Carter and Conelly; Arlingtons—VanHorn and Sutphen.

The Arlingtons will play the Giants of North Plainfield on the Park avenue ball grounds to-morrow morning at 10.

The Fourth Ward Athletics defeated a picked nine on the Plainfield avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon by the score of 18 to 6. The batteries were: Fourth Wards—Mack and Cahill; Picked Nines—Lawlor and Shattel.

HORRIBLE DEATH IN THE HAY-FIELD.

Louis Concher Frightfully Mangled by a Mowing Machine—The Top of His Head Cut Off.

Louis Concher, of Myersville, a hamlet back of Passaic Valley, met his death by a singular accident. He hitched his team to a mowing machine and went to the meadow to cut hay. The knives became clogged by the undermath, which necessitated his getting off the machine to clean the guards. While he was doing so, his team backed up, tripping him and thus throwing him in front of the moving knives. He then let go of the lines, and the horses, finding themselves free, started up before Mr. Concher could help himself. One of the sharp guards pierced his skull, and the knife cut a part of the skull off. Death was instantaneous. When the body was found, a large portion of the brain was exposed.

His funeral was attended by a large number of his friends and neighbors, in whose esteem he was highly held. The little church of which he was a member for so many years was crowded by them.

Mr. Concher, with a number of other Germans, settled in the locality many years ago. They and their families have made it a thriving farming locality. He was the last of the old settlers, and his untimely end has cast a gloom over the whole community.

He was 76 years of age. He leaves a large family of grown children.

Sleator could not swim. He was struggling in the water when Carpenter attempted to save his life and both were drowned.

PERHAPS THE LAST WEEK.

Likelihood that Congress Will Adjourn in a Short Time.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—This will probably be the last week of Congress if definite action is taken on the Sundry Civil and General Deficiency Appropriation bills. It is idle to predict the fate of these measures, which is enveloped in doubt.

In the House to-day the conferees on the Sundry Civil bill will submit their reports and a vote may be taken on the items in dispute, including the vexed Senate amendment relating to the Columbian Exposition. It is possible, however, that consideration will be postponed until to-morrow in order that the resolutions reported from the special committee on the Pension Office investigation may be taken up. These will likely occasion a long debate, as, it is said, the Republicans intend to resort to filibustering tactics to prevent the adoption of any resolution regarding the dismissal of Commissioner Raum.

After this matter and the appropriation bills are disposed of the remainder of the week will be accorded to the various committees to call up, for one hour each, the measures reported on the calendar, subject only to conference reports.

It is not among improbabilities that Congress will adjourn without voting an appropriation to the Exposition, as the opposition to it in the House is well organized for a prolonged fight.

One week's solid oratory on the anti-Option bill in the Senate has not afforded any clue to the probable termination of the debate. That is to say, to a termination by natural causes, by an agreement to take a vote. A majority vote can, of course, postpone the bill at any time.

Mr. Washburn, in charge of the bill, has not yet ventured to hint when he shall ask unanimous consent that debate shall close.

Another week of hard work may possibly dispose of both the Deficiency and the Sundry Civil bill, though there are grave questions in dispute between the two Houses on both measures which involve many millions of dollars. The Senate conferees would have asked permission to enter into a third and probably a final conference on the Deficiency bill Saturday afternoon, but discovered, while Mr. Allison had the motion pending, that the parliamentary condition required the House to make the first move, and the House had adjourned without doing so.

If this bill and the Sundry Civil bill, which includes the World's Fair project, should be put into such shape as to permit of an agreement upon them, without any great backdown by either branch of Congress by the end of the week, such a move for adjournment will be started that Mr. Washburn will find it difficult to hold the Senate in session longer than a day or two further on his anti-Option bill, and may be forced to submit to a postponement of action until December.

DISCONTENT IN CUBA.

A Native Says the People of the Island Are Ripe for Revolution.

CHICAGO, July 25.—R. G. Sorocco, a Cuban now in Chicago, and recently Secretary of the Council of Presidents of Cuban Clubs at Key West, says that a revolution in the island of Cuba is likely to take place at any moment.

"We intend," said he, "to fly the Cuban flag from Morro Castle in the port of Havana by next fall. The State of affairs in Cuba is ripe for revolution. The discontent is general by reason of the government's exactions. Spain is a poor nation to pay its debts, and all the debts it has contracted within the last century it is taking out of Cuba.

"It has too many men who have to be supported in office, and when it cannot do better it sends them to Cuba. These 'carpet-baggers,' as you would call them in America, know that the first change in government at home will throw them out; so while their tenure of office lasts they try to wring as much as possible out of the people.

"The Cubans have to submit to the domination of a race inferior to themselves or emigrate. But whether they remain at home or leave, they are still resolved to put down this oppression of their country."

LYNCHED THE RUGGLESES.

Tired of the Law's Delay, a Mob Hangs the Two Stage Robbers.

REDDING, Cal., July 25.—The wrath of the people here against the coddling of stage robbers and murderers and the needless delay of their trial burst all bounds yesterday morning, and ended in the lynching of John D. and Charles Ruggles, who robbed the Redding stage in May last, secured $6,000 in bullion and killed Wells-Fargo Express manager Buck Montgomery. Both men were young and of good family. They had no motive for their crime, except the pure deviltry of the elder brother, who thought he was a dime novel hero.

Packing Warehouse to Change Hands.

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—It is stated that the large packing warehouse of Whitaker & Co., at the National Stock Yards, East St. Louis, is to change hands. Swift & Armour, the Chicago packing house owners, will be the owners of the Whitaker plant. The Whitaker packing house is one of the largest in the West and has a large output when operated to its fullest capacity.

LIFE IN DAMASCUS.

A City Well Named the "Necklace" of Beauty.

Traveling Along the Road Where Paul Heard the Voice from Heaven—Bartering in the Bazars—Street Barbers —The Shouting Dervishes.

[Special Damascus (Syria) Letter.]

Damascus is praised by the Arab poets as the "Pearl of the Orient," "The feather from the bird of paradise," "The necklace of beauty," "The eye of the Orient." No wonder such lavish praise is bestowed, for the city is, compared with the great Syrian desert, a paradise indeed. A most delightful surprise is it to the traveler to find right up against the broad, uninteresting plain to the west or the desert on the east a region of swiftly rushing streams and sparkling fountains, where luxuriant foliage and fragrant flowers delight the eye and charm the senses. Riding into the city one immediately meets the limpid streams of the Barada, the ancient Abana. Rising on the slopes of Anti-Lebanon it divides at Damascus into seven branches, two of which supply the fountains of the city and five irrigate the gardens. You ride between mud walls for some distance with gardens on each side, where the walnut tree, the apricot tree, the pomegranate, the lemon, the jasmine abound. At length the city, with its mosques and bazars, is reached, and the wonderful panorama of Oriental life lies before you. Remember, here is a city whose continuous life goes clear back to the time of the old Pharoahs. Athens, Rome, are young compared with Damascus. It was the "Eye of the Orient" far beyond the times of Abraham. To this point Abraham and his trained servants chased the marauding chieftains who captured his nephew Lot. From Damascus came the bands who were accustomed to pounce upon the fertile valleys of Israel. Here came David, the warrior, conquering the city and establishing a garrison. In Christian history the city is memorable—along the very road we traveled a few days ago, the proud Pharisee was unhorsed, falling to the ground as the light of Heaven shone about him and the voice sounded in his ears: "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?" A fragment of the old wall still remains from which the now converted and zealous Paul was let down in a basket.

AT PRAYERS IN THE MOSQUE.

As a center of Mohammedan culture it has been a sacred spot. Here was buried Fatima, the favorite wife of the prophet. Here the faithful yearly start on the pilgrimage to Mecca. Until Cairo took away her greatest scholars Damascus was preeminent as a seat of Arabic learning. Like an opal in a setting of emerald lies this interesting old city in its marvelous gardens, the attractive center for all Oriental tourists.

STREET BARBER IN DAMASCUS.

The entire Christian world has reason to remember the fanatical outburst of the Mohammedans and Druses in Damascus in 1860 when 14,000 Christians were massacred in Damascus and vicinity. The fearful scene began on the 9th of July, 1860. Many fugitives were received at the English and Prussian consulates, and others sought refuge in the citadel. The whole Christian quarter was converted into a heap of ruins. All the consulates, except the English and the Prussian, were burned down and the most savage excesses were committed by the infuriated assassins. Many Christians had sought a refuge in the houses of the Muslims; but on July 11 the populace began to seek for and to murder them. More than 6,000 Christians were murdered in Damascus alone. It was not until aroused from its apathy by the indignation of Europe that the Turkish government attempted to interfere in the matter. A number of the ringleaders were beheaded, and the pasha himself suffered the same fate. A French army of ten thousand soldiers appeared on the scene, and the Muslim felt the aroused sense of the Christian nations, which insisted on reparation and the swift punishment of the murderers.

Oriental life in its motley character and peculiar customs greets us in its real coloring in Damascus. The streets are cleaner there than in most Oriental cities, for the limpid streams are abundant, yet there is too much dirt for our personal comfort. Houses are not seen from the street. There is no front street in the western sense. You go up a dirty alley and if you succeed in getting the entry to a private house you will knock at a wooden gate opening on to the alley; passing through, you are ushered into a court paved with beautifully-covered marbles. In the center is an elegant fountain, around which are trees and flowers. On the south side, opening toward the north, there is usually a lofty open colonnade with pointed arches called the liwan, bordered with soft couches and forming a delightful summer sitting-room. If your host is gracious he will invite you to a seat on his divan and coffee will be served you in tiny cups and the narghilyeh, or water pipe, handed you. The interior of many of the Damascene houses is luxurious to the last degree, elegant sculpture, soft divans, fragrant flowers, flowing fountains, singing birds and numerous servants.

The entire city seemed crowded into the bazars. Here is a rare opportunity for the lover of antiques—in this bazar. Old blunderbusses, cutlasses, daggers, coats of mail, in one corner. In another, fine old Persian rugs, many of which have a peculiar value because of their age and their use in prayer rugs. Here repousse brass work of all styles. Here beautiful tables of inlaid pearl, yonder all kinds of bric-a-brac; further, embroidered silks for all purposes. All trades are carried on in these little cells; the turner sits at his bench holding his chisel in his toes; the weaver drives his shuttle, the confectioner boils his sirups, the coppersmith deafens you with his din, the grocer squats in the midst of his spices, the dry goods merchant seems packed in with his dress goods. Try your hand at bargaining. What is the price of this dagger? Fifteen francs. You object. He insists. You persist that it is too dear. He swears by Allah that it will ruin him to take less. Back and forth goes the chatter. The outcome is that we buy the dagger for two francs and a half, or fifty cents, instead of three dollars. You learn after awhile that every merchant has his first price and his last price. He gives his first price from 10 to 15 times higher than the last price. This is the method in all the bazars. It is perfectly ridiculous. He will get out of you all he can.

MOHAMMEDAN DERVISH.

The garbs, the streets, the scenes are full of rare interest. Mohammedan women with veiled faces and high-heeled shoes waddle past. Those men with turbans and fur-lined cloaks have been to Mecca, the fur lining indicates that. Here is a Bedawy just from the desert, in his abbah and kufiyeh. Yonder man with green peaked hat, ragged clothing, matted hair, is a dervish, a very holy man. He begs from booth to booth and everyone gives him something. Another dervish clad in sheepskin and holding in his hand a live snake, shouting as he moves along, passes about as a man entitled to consideration. The snake holds a piece of bread in his mouth. Everyone throws something into the dervish's tankard.

The vender of refreshments plies his trade in the streets carrying a two-handled wide jar, with a narrow neck, or a vessel made of glass, on his back. In his hands he holds brazen cups which he rattles, shouting: "Refresh thy heart," or, "Allay the heart." The seller of raisin water shouts: "Well cleared, my child;" while the purveyor of a kind of drink made of raisins, oranges, apricots, etc., extols its coolness, in the words: "Take care of your teeth." Liquorice water and plain water are carried about in goat skins. When anyone is desirous of doing a charitable deed he pays for the contents of a water skin and desires the carrier to dispense it gratuitously to all comers. Water bearers with good voices are selected for the purpose, and they loudly invite applicants with: "O, thirsty one, the distribution." The seller of flowers holds up a tempting bunch of roses and cries out: "Appease your mother-in-law." Opening out from these bazars now and then you catch a glimpse through the open door into a mosque where the faithful are at prayer. There are about two hundred and fifty mosques in Cairo, great and small. Their domes and graceful minarets form an attractive feature of the view of the city. At night around the balustrade of the minarets lamps are hung. Morning, noon and night rings out from these towers the muezzin, the call to prayer. "There is but one God and Mohammed is his prophet—to prayer."

A Misconception.

"Johnny," said the elder little brother, "you must be sure not to ask for any of the wild duck twice."

"Why?"

"Because I heard father tell the company that they would have a little game with a limit to it."—Washington Star.

Saving Clause.

"Gone forever!" he sighed, laying down his last coin, a ten dollar gold piece. "There goes my only eagle, wings and all!"

"Yes," said the business-like man who had called, as he handed over a receipted document, "but you can keep the bill, you know."—Chicago Tribune.

THE MODERN UNICORN.

It Is Fairly Abundant in the Waters of Alaska.

Its Commercial Value, However, Is So Great That It Is Gradually Approaching Extinction—Habits of the Queer Creature.

The narwhal, or sea unicorn (Monodon monoceros), whose long and screw like tusk is supposed to have been the original of the fabled unicorn of song and story, is yet fairly abundant in the waters of Alaska, the only part of the United States where, according to the Detroit Free Press, it is found at present.

It disappeared from Europe nearly a century ago, the last one seen in the German ocean being in the year 1720, and on the British coast in 1800, so the only specimens to be met there now are those that are stuffed and laid on shelves in the various museums.

THE MODERN UNICORN.

The sea unicorn, can, at present, be found only in arctic waters, it being comparatively free from foes there and possessing an inexaustible commissariat from which to draw its supplies. Gentle, if not timid, and comparatively defenseless, it is not fitted to fight the battle of life in regions where foes are numerous and the lord of creation can put forth all his power. Numbers are killed annually by the Aleuts and Esquimaux and their tusks sold to the captains of whalers, who pay for them in goods and provisions. A tusk is worth all the way from $10 to $50 in American and European markets, but the man who first secures it does not, in all probability, get $5 for the finest specimens.

Most of the narwhal ivory found in the markets of the Atlantic states is imported from Denmark, Copenhagen being the principal shipping point.

An adult narwhal ranges from ten to sixteen feet in length; is blackish in hue, and has the caudal fin and much the form of the white whale. It is inclined to become mottled or whitish as it advances in years, and also more cautious, an old male being very difficult to approach and a female with young more so.

It is said to lose its teeth at an early age and to be therefore compelled to live on fish which it can easily overtake and can masticate readily, not having a stump left with which to cut its food. The tusk, which is in reality a modified tooth, extends from the left side of the upper jaw to a length of ten or more feet and is its sole weapon of offense and defense. Fighting not being a prominent trait of its character, it is not compelled to use its lance very much, yet when the occasion arises it can give a Prussian uhlan of the guard a few points in thrust and parry.

It is almost irresistible in a charge, owing to its strength, weight and speed, and any enemy it may hit is likely to receive a mortal thrust, as the point of its lance is very sharp and the blade strong enough to go through a whale.

It has been known to force its tooth through the side of a whaling boat, and more than one case is on record where it disabled an Esquimaux canoe and made its occupants flee for their lives to a convenient iceberg or broken, floating ice, over which it could not scramble.

It is the only animal known that fights foes with a single tooth and, as it is usually victorious against all of them except man, it deserves much credit for its courage.

The single-toothed creature cannot travel on land, its pectoral fins being rather long and flexible and its tail broad and too bifurcated to be of much use in terrestrial locomotion. Its disappearance from Europe and the greater portion of this continent would indicate that it is doomed to early extinction, and the probability is that it will be as rare as the great auk or mastodon in a hundred years from now. A member of the cetaceans, its flesh and fat are appreciated by savages and its tusks by white men, so that it has every quality requisite for its early extermination.

Duststorms on the Atlantic.

Ships crossing the Atlantic in the latitude of the Cape Verde islands often encounter duststorms of longer or shorter duration. One of the most remarkable of these paradoxical storms swept down on the German steamer "Argentine" in the summer of 1889. It lasted for four days, during which time the air was so full of dust particles as to make high noonday almost as dark as the blackest midnight. When the "storm" was at its height the sailors were kept busy shoveling the dust from the steamer's decks. The machinery was made to work with great difficulty, and at one time the captain, J. G. Scheon, had grave apprehensions that they would be dashed upon the Cape Verde reefs. As mentioned in the opening, duststorms frequently occur on the Atlantic, but the above is the only instance of a regular dust blizzard of four days' duration in the memory of the oldest sea captains.

Diet of Worms.

A German living at Pottstown, Pa., ate one dozen angle worms on a wager recently. He says he learned to eat them when a lad, and that they are as palatable as raw oysters, especially when eaten with vinegar, pepper and salt.

Bertha—You seem very happy, Dora.

Dora—Ah, yes: I have every reason to be. We have a beautiful home, two lovely children, a snug sum in the bank, my husband's life is insured for twenty thousand dollars, and his health is very far from robust.—Tanglil's Punch.

CONSPIRATORS UNDER ARREST

Believed that Frick's Shooting Was a Plot of the Reds.

BERKMAN STOPPED A WEEK WITH ONE OF THEM.

The First Clue Obtained Through An Express Package—Startling Developments Expected Soon—Frick's Condition Unchanged—The Case of the Millionaire Iams Making a Great Stir—Many of the National Guard Say They Will Not Re-Enlist—The Release of O'Donnell and the Other Leaders On Bail.

PITTSBURG, July 26.—The murderous attack upon Henry C. Frick, chairman of the Carnegie Company, was not the work of a crazy Anarchist acting solely upon his own impulses, and imbued with the idea that he was doing the country a service by ridding it of a great iron-master.

Instead, it was an outcome of a conspiracy of the worst elements of the Russian Anarchists deliberately conceived, and Berkman, the would-be assassin, was either the tool or the willing ally of the conspirators.

This is the conclusion that the leading police authorities of Pittsburg have arrived at, and they claim to be supported in it by advices from New York, which they refuse to make public at present, for fear that justice may be thwarted.

The first important link in the chain of evidence pointing toward this conclusion was forged yesterday, in the arrest of a local Anarchist with whom Berkman had been living for more than a week, and to whose abode he appears to have gone at the suggestion of the notorious Herr Most. The man's name is Karl Knold, and he lives on Cherry street, a small thoroughfare across the river in Allegheny.

Knold protests, of course that he had no knowledge of Berkman's plans, but there are many other damaging circumstances He admits that Berkman came to his house on the 14th of July.

He says that Berkman told him he had come to Pittsburg to seek employment and told him he knew Herr Most.

The authorities, it is believed, have documentary evidence that not only strongly connects Knold with Berkman, but will justify other arrests. The developments to-day are likely to be startling.

The information that led to the arrest of Anarchist Knold was gained through the arrival of an express package addressed to Berkman in care of Knold.

Conrad Echard, another rampant Anarchist, is also in jail charged with complicity.

Mr. Frick's Condition.

There is no change in the condition of H. C. Frick that would indicate that his chances for recovery are other than excellent.

Reports from his residence this morning are to the effect that he passed a restful night despite the closeness of the atmosphere.

His extraordinary vitality was strikingly demonstrated yesterday, for although it was the hottest day that Pittsburg has experienced in nearly ten years, his wounds gave him apparently little trouble while mentally he was bright and active.

His wounds were examined and dressed this morning, but there was not the faintest trace of blood poisoning or of any great amount of inflammation than would be expected under the circumstances, and the results of the examination were decidedly encouraging both to the surgeons and their patient.

As to the future of the sufferer, the surgeons say that it will not be possible for him to leave his bed, even to walk about the room, for at least a month or six weeks at the earliest.

The action of Judge Magee in admitting O'Donnell to bail is just what has been anticipated by those who heard the evidence adduced by the prosecution on Saturday.

The Court reviewed this evidence at length, cited the law on the question and announced as his conclusion that no case of murder in the first degree could be made out against the prisoner.

It was apparent, he said, that O'Donnell was not an actual participant in the action, though there are grounds for the belief that he was a sympathizer, but there was evidence enough to justify an indictment for murder in the second degree. He hoped, however, that when the defendant came to trial he would be able to show that he was in no wise guilty of participation in an affray that had resulted in the loss of so many lives.

It was the court's imperative duty to admit the defendant to bail, and that bail would be fixed at $10,000.

The decision was received with a buzz of satisfaction from the court room, and it was fully a minute before the tipstaffs could secure silence.

It was then announced that no evidence would be offered against Ross, Foy and Allen, and bail in the same amount was fixed for each man. Bail was promptly given for all four defendants, and they were released.

Robert Sterling, the starved, shabbily dressed young fellow from Chicago, who was arrested on Second avenue late Sunday night while telling a small crowd that he had walked all the way from that city to kill Andrew Carnegie, has been sent to the workhouse.

When taken to the station he fainted for the want of food, and afterwards admitted that he had eaten nothing since Friday. He says he has lived in Chicago for years, had worked on one of the cable lines, and was in the Haymarket Square during the riot. The pockets of his clothing were entirely empty, save an ugly looking knife.

The orders signed by Mr. Frick and posted at the Homestead works this morning, to the effect that men returning to work would be insured against removal, is regarded as the final peace offering of the firm to the strikers. In this connection a representative of the firm makes an important statement:

"Even if Mr. Frick should die," he said, "the policy of the management in the present crisis will be strictly adhered to. The statement that Mr. Carnegie is not in full accord with Mr. Frick in the course the latter has pursued of late, is absolutely and unqualifiedly untrue. It can be proven beyond peradventure if necessary, that Mr. Frick has been but carrying out the plans formulated by Mr. Carnegie himself."

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE CASE OF IAMS.

It Is the Great Topic of Discussion—Feeling in the National Guard.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 26.—An indirect result of the shooting of Mr. Frick gives Homestead its one existing topic of discussion. It is the case of W. L. Iams, the private of Co. K, Tenth Regiment, who shouted "Hurrah for the man who did it," when told of the act of Berkman, and as a punishment was strung up by his thumbs, had one side of his head and half his moustache shaved and was drummed out of camp. In addition to this disgrace the sentence carries with it dishonorable discharge from the National Guard and denial of the right to enlist in the Federal army and the rights of citizenship.

The Iams case threatens to become national. Homestead people talk of nothing else. Even the return of Hugh O'Donnell after his release from prison was subordinated by it. Letters and telegrams denouncing the treatment of the young man have been received in Homestead, in Pittsburg, and by the Governor of Pennsylvania. One of the protests to Gov. Pattison was from the Washington correspondents of Pennsylvania asking for the removal of Lieut.-Col. Streator, who ordered the punishment to Iams.

When Col. Streator was told of this last night, he said if those correspondents came over to his camp and made any such treasonable remarks as those made by Iams, he would treat them in the same way he had treated Iams.

Young Iams threatens to bring suit against Col. Streator and Major-Gen. Snowden, but this is by no means the most serious aspect of the case if reports be true. It has caused much feeling in the National Guard, particularly among the rank and file, and members of the Tenth Regiment are authority for the statement that Co. K, to which Iams belonged, will have to be disbanded, because its men do not intend to re-enlist after their present terms of enlistment have expired.

Several Tenth Regiment men made this statement. They say that Iams was not popular, but they wish to show their disapproval of his punishment by leaving the militia.

Officers of the troops almost generally approve Col. Streator's action. Col. Case, of the Fourth Regiment, told his men that if any of them indulged in any jubilation over Berkman's crime he would treat them the same way. But if Col. Case had heard the expressions of some of his soldiers to a reporter he would have discovered that they do not share his views in approving the humiliating punishment accorded to Private Iams.

They condemned Iams' remark, but thought his punishment brutal and outrageous. Officers of Iams' regiment, the Tenth, were seemingly a unit in upholding Col. Streator. They grew heated in their condemnation of the disgraced private and lauded their commander for his action. If many of the officers think Iams was treated harshly, they failed to say so. A few of them, however, made comments not flattering to Streator's action.

Iams, the disgraced man, came to Homestead yesterday from Pittsburg, where he spent the night. He was looking for Col. Streator. He crossed the river to the camp of the Tenth and was told that Col. Streator had crossed to the other side. Iams came back, but did not find the colonel. He then went back to Pittsburg.

Planning a Big Strike.

ST. LOUIS, July 26.—Last night at a meeting of carpenters a number of addresses were made advocating a strike in the near future, if every demand of organized labor in this city is not acceded to. A committee was appointed to order a strike if the boss-builders do not cease using non-union made doors, frames, etc. The situation in the building trade looks serious, as it is not improbable that during the coming week there will be a general strike of carpenters in support of the planing mill employes. With the carpenters and the planing mill employes on a strike the other trades would be obliged to quit work.

Funds to Employ Strikers' Counsel.

ST. PAUL, July 26.—A meeting has been called here for the purpose of forming an organization to raise funds to supply the arrested Homestead workmen with counsel when they are put on trial on the charge of murder. Two prominent lawyers, W. H. Erwin, of St. Paul, and George W. Arno, of Sioux City, have declared that they will appear for the defense of the Homestead men if their expenses are paid. It is thought a large fund will be obtained, and that other prominent lawyers will be secured.

Died from Their Injuries.

BOSTON, July 26.—William Scott, of East Boston, a fireman on the Grand Junction railroad, who was mangled between moving cars Saturday, is dead, at the City Hospital. Alexander Tatris, aged 35, a brakeman on the Fitchburg railroad, who was run over Saturday night, is dead at the Massachusetts General Hospital. John McCaughlin, aged 28, a seaman, who was knocked down by a Union freight railroad car Saturday night, has died of his injuries.

Killed by an Italian Boy.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Last evening an Italian boy named Luppie, first name and residence unknown, was stabbed in the left breast by Nicollini Vencenzo, aged 19 years, in Rocco Tocizza's barber shop, Sixth avenue, where both were employed. Luppie was removed to St. Vincent's Hospital, where he died soon after. The murderer escaped.

Quarrymen's Strike Over.

QUINCY, Mass., July 26.—The quarrymen's strike is about over in this city and the men are returning to work every day. The lockout of the granite cutters still continues, and there are no signs of weakening on either side.

THE HOT WAVE.

Many Prostrations From the Excessive Heat Reported.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Yesterday was the hottest 25th of July since 1885, when the temperature reached 91 degrees, and the hottest day of the year.

At 11 o'clock the thermometer registered 87 with 82 per cent. of humidity, 10 per cent. more than normal.

At 2 p. m. the mercury reached 93, but a shower came up suddenly and the mercury went down to 90. After the storm it again began to rise and at 4 p. m. was at 91.

"The warm wave rolled easterly from Kansas," said Mr. Dunn, the weather man

"Yesterday was the warmest day of the year, generally, east of the Ohio Valley.

"New York was favored at 8 o'clock by two degrees less of heat than any other Atlantic city had. It was 78 deg. here. At Portland, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and Lynchburg the thermometer registered 80 deg. In fact, all over the Atlantic States the thermometer registered between 80 deg. and 82 deg.

"St. Louis was the warmest place. It was 82 deg. there. In the Upper Lake region it was cooler, ranging from 66 deg. to 68 deg.

"This warm spell will last until Wednesday night, at least," was Mr. Dunn's discomforting prediction.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Since Saturday twenty-four sudden deaths, all attributable to the intense heat, have been reported. Twelve cases were reported yesterday, and two on Saturday. Fred Brukate, a carpenter, was overcome by the heat while at work, and fell to the pavement. His neck was broken. Kate Mullenhill died at her home. John McGrath dropped dead on the street. James Kean died in an ambulance. Seven unknown persons were found dead.

DETROIT, Mich., July 26.—Fifteen cases of heat prostration, three of which will prove fatal, have been reported as a result of the hottest day of the year in this city. At 2 o'clock yesterday thermometers registered 102 degrees in the shade, while the mercury in the weather bureau office, at the top of a ten-story building, rose to 96 degrees. The heat has been frightful, unaccompanied by the slightest cooling breezes.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 26.—The thermometer in the signal service observatory yesterday registered 101, while on the street the mercury touched 110. There were nearly a hundred prostrations, and many of them will, it is feared, terminate fatally.

ROME, N. Y., July 26.—Yesterday was the hottest day of the season, the thermometer registering 99 in the shade. To-day the air is humid. Thermometer at noon was 85.

LYNCHED A WIFE MURDERER.

He Tried to Commit Suicide, but a Mob Inflicted Another Kind of Death.

NASHVILLE, July 26.—J. H. Wynne, who resided near Burns, a small town thirty-seven miles from Nashville, on the Nashville, Chatanooga and St. Louis Railway, and who murdered his wife, mortally wounded his step-daughter, Miss Anderson, and afterwards attempted to take his own life, after he had told his son the story of his crime, was arrested yesterday morning and while being taken to jail was taken from the officers by a mob and hanged.

Wynne attacked his wife and step-daughter while they were asleep, between 8 and 9 o'clock. His little son, who was asleep in another room and was not molested, was the only other person in the house at the time. Stealing into the room, he struck his wife two blows on the side of the head with an axe. Either blow would have been fatal. Wynne immediately turned his attention to Miss Anderson, striking her once on the right side of the head above the ear, and once on the right side and back of the neck, cutting to the bone. Two or three fingers of the left hand were cut off by the sharp blade of the axe.

Believing that he had killed Miss Anderson as well as his wife, Wynne broke all of the lamps, leaving the house in darkness. He then closed the doors, locked the gate, and, going to Colesburg, two miles distant, told what he had done. He then drew a knife and inflicted a severe wound four inches deep in his neck. The excitement that followed the confession of Wynne was intense. Neighbors visited the house and found Mrs. Wynne dead and her daughter in a dying condition.

When the officers were taking Wynne to jail they were overpowered and the prisoner was taken away from them. He was hurried to a tree near by and hanged.

Violent Electrical Storm.

CORNING, N. Y., July 26.—One of the most violent electrical storms ever experienced in this section occurred between 3 and 5 o'clock in the morning. For a long time the heavens presented a dazzling sight. At the Erwin Crossing of Erie and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, three miles west of this place, the lightning danced around the signal tower, Operator Cahill making his escape just as the tower was struck. In a few minutes it was burned to the ground. Mr. Cahill was thrown to the ground and stunned by the force of the shock.

Killed While at Play.

NEWARK, N. J., July 26.—Charles Robinson was accidentally killed in the after noon while fooling with Victor Stahle a, an employe of Wolters & Co., of Mulberry street. Robinson, who suffered from heart disease, was struck in the chest and fell dead. Stahlem gave himself up and was held on the charge of murder.

Fatally Hurt By a Belt.

NEWARK, N. J., July 26.—Martin Dallman, 133 Hamburg place, employed in Heller & Merz's Blue Works, was caught by the belt in the afternoon and his right arm was torn from the socket, two of his ribs were broken, and his body was so badly mangled that he will die.

OARSMEN AT SARATOGA

Opening Day of the National Association's Regatta.

NEARLY 5,000 AMATEURS PRESENT

Some of the Crack Events—The Race in Singles for Senior Oarsmen Will Attract the Most Attention—The Senior Eight-Oared Contest.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 26.—This is the first day of America's biggest rowing regatta, and hundreds of young men who have been building a frame of muscle and since the last three months will learn their fate to-day or to-morrow in the National Association races. There are 4,500 oarsmen in town, and such a grand sight as they make, with their bright colors and lusty club calls, has taken the entire watering place by storm.

Every train lands a small army of oarsmen from New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Newark, Yonkers, and the suburbs of the great metropolis. A big delegation is here from Chicago. They are representatives of the Farragut, Catlin, Union and Iroquois boat clubs. An immense delegation from the Modoc Boat Club of St. Louis, the Ottumwa Oarsmen of Ottumwa, Iowa, the Garfield Boat Club of Salt Lake City, the Minnesota Boat Club of St. Paul, and the Detroit Boat Club of Detroit is also present.

The star event of the regatta will be the race in singles for senior oarsmen. It is a great many years since the ruling body secured as many distinguished seat sliders for this event. Hawkins, who lives here, but who carries the colors of the Manhattan Athletic Club, divides with Hedley the attention as a probable winner.

These men have met so many times with such varying results that it is now a toss-up as to which will win. Hedley likes rough water. It was in rough water that he learned to row on the Delaware River. The Philadelphia crowd is here strong, and they believe that their man will defeat the Saratogian to a moral certainty. It will be the one race of the year in which both men will have to row a heart-straining race from start to finish. It will forever settle the question of supremacy between the two men.

But it isn't settled that either will win. There is another man who may have a great deal to say when it comes to fast strokes. He is Edward Durnan, and he is a member of the Sunnyside Boat Club of Toronto, Ont. He is a nephew of Ned Hanlan, and last year in the West he won the junior and senior championships at Mississippi Valley and Northwestern regattas in the same day. Hanlan says he will beat the best amateur in the world in time. The question is whether his time has come.

The Lau brothers, of the Atalanta Boat Club, Harlem, are already listed as winners. They are in fine shape, and unless their plans are interfered with by Coly and Delaney, of the Nonpareil Rowing Club, also from the Harlem, they should win. Several years' winter wrestling has left the elder Lau in excellent shape, and their friends are willing to bet 2 to 1 that they will win.

Aside from the senior single-scull shell race, the chief interest in the regatta will center in the senior eight-oared shell contest. The four crews entered for the event are the best in the country. Three of them—the Atalanta, Manhattan Athletic and the New York Athletic—come from New York city. The other, the Malta, represents Philadelphia and the Schuylkill Navy.

The Atalanta eight, with two exceptions, is the same representation which held the championship and beat the pick of America three seasons ago. The men in this boat are a trifle rusty now, and should they start stand very little chance of winning.

The Malta crew is somewhat of an unknown quantity in the race, but the talent does not think for a second that the Quaker City lads will beat either the Cherry Diamond or Winged Foot representation. The betting is lively on these two crews. Both have an army of supporters, and they are not a bit afraid of producing the stuff that makes the mare go. There is not a sick man in either crew. All are brawny and ready to row for a man's life. The crew of the New York Club was originally known as the Chippie crew, and are rowing in first class form.

To-night the Executive Committee of the association will meet to elect delegates in the place of those whose terms will have expired. Every club in the association has a vote, and there will be few absentees. With a few exceptions, all the clubs will be represented by active delegates.

The committee has decided to call the first race at 3 o'clock to-day instead of 4.

Some of Harrity's Pians.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 26.—William F. Harrity, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, arrived in this city last night and immediately went to the State Department, where he took up his duties as Secretary of the Commonwealth. He is not ready to appoint the different committees he says, but will likely do so when he goes to New York to-morrow. Mr. Harrity has completed all arrangements to take up his residence in the vicinity of Long Branch, so as to be close to both Philadelphia and New York.

Severe Storm at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—The storm at noon was a regular tornado at Port Richmond. The Philadelphia & Reading car repair shops, a square in length, were demolished and a number of workmen were injured. One hundred and twenty-five men were employed at the plant and the majority escaped injury by crawling under freight cars. The frame structure was crushed in as though it had been an egg shell.

Killed by Lightning.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 26.—James Lee, aged 18 years, was struck by lightning at noon in Barret's spar yard and instantly killed. The left leg of his pantaloons and his left shoe were torn from his body. There was a livid streak down the left side where the electric current had passed. The flesh all over the body soon turned blue.

MAY ESCAPE THE GALLOWS.

Strenuous Efforts Being Made in Col. H. C. King's Behalf.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 26.—It is generally believed here that the application for a writ of habeas corpus filed by the attorneys of Col. Henry Clay King before United States Circuit Judge Jackson, will result in favor of Colonel King and that he will escape the death penalty.

Colonel H. Clay King is under sentence to be hanged on August 12 for the murder of David H. Poston. He is now confined in an iron ribbed cell in the Memphis jail within sight of the one occupied by Alice Mitchell, the pretty and petite murderess of her lover friend, Freda Ward.

It was the morning of March 10, 1891, when the deed was done. Mr. Poston was walking along the street in the very heart of the city, where everybody knew him. He had just lifted his hat to a lady, when King, wild eyed with rage and maddened by drink, sprang out upon the sidewalk. Poston held out his hand, but it was dashed aside, and King, pressing the muzzle of a heavy revolver against Poston's body, pulled the trigger and sent a bullet clean through his victim. It was a cowardly shot and as deadly as cowardly.

Poston staggered but a few paces, and fell into the arms of a friend. He was carried home and died on the second day after receiving his wound.

After King had fired the fatal shot he made no effort to escape, but gave himself up to the authorities. The excitement around the scene of the tragedy was intense, and threats of lynching became so ominous that the wretched prisoner begged to be permitted to retain his revolver for self defense until he reached the shelter of the jail, and this was accorded him.

For the Haswell Murder.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 26.—Two men giving the names of George and Charles La Force have been arrested at Lousdale on suspicion of being concerned in the Haswell murder in East Providence. The men claim to be Boston peddlers and explain their being in the woods near Lousdale was for the reason that they had been drinking since they left Boston. The Lousdale police believe they have made an important capture.

Death of a County Treasurer.

KINGSTON, N. Y., July 26.—Nicholas E. Brodhead, treasurer of Ulster county, is dead of heart disease. He was also treasurer of the Ulster County Savings Institution, lately wrecked, and it was through him that the crookedness of Cadrander and Trumpbour, the bank wreckers, was first discovered.

A Bridgeport Church Burned.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 26.—The Congregational church in Huntington was burned during the morning. The origin of the flames is unknown. Two other buildings near by were somewhat damaged by sparks. The total loss is estimated at $10,000, and there is no insurance.

A Murderer Dies Before Execution.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—Early in the morning Henry Davis, colored, sentenced to be hanged on September 8 for the murder of Job Haas, the coal dealer, died in his cell of consumption. When the death warrant was read some two weeks ago it was noticed that Davis was fast yielding to the fatal disease, and it was doubted then if he would live until the day fixed for his execution. Davis was convicted on circumstantial evidence, but recently, it is said, confessed having committed the deed to a fellow prisoner.

Cyclone at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 26.—A small cyclone swept over Asbury Park and Ocean Grove yesterday afternoon. The rain fell in torrents, accompanied by lightning. All the streets near the ocean front were rendered impassable and the cellars filled with water. The Asbury Park Electric Railway stopped running trains. Lightning struck in several places, and a number of persons were injured but none fatally.

The Cable House Poisoning Cases.

SALISBURY BEACH, Mass., July 26.—In the cases of John Montgomery, landlord of the Cable House, William Batchelder, one of his employes, and John W. Smith, one of his guests, all victims of the recent mysterious poisoning, there was no cessation of the pain yesterday, and the patients hourly grew weaker. The doctor said last evening that these three patients are in the most critical condition. The other patients appear to be improving and, it is thought, will recover.

Disagreed on Shiras's Nomination.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The Senate Judiciary Committee could not reach an agreement on the nomination of Judge Shiras, as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and decided to report the nomination to the Senate without recommendation.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Gypsies are encamped on Park avenue near the Campbell club-house.

—A Plainfield builder, H. M. Clarke, has begun the erection of a $4,000 house for H. L. Fink, at Westfield.

—A carload of Fresh-Air fund children passed through Plainfield this afternoon on their way to the Pennsylvania mountains.

—To-day is hotter even than yesterday, and the hottest on record this year. The mercury on the shady side of Plainfield's streets registers 97.

—It is now possible that the Plainfield street cars may begin to run Saturday, August 6. General superintendent Passmore, who has just returned from the car shops, saw them almost completed and their painting begun.

—Policemen Mattox and Hope chased three suspicious characters away from Dr. Hurlbut's house last night. They came near capturing the loiterers, but the fellows had a good start, and got away in the darkness, fleeing up the railroad track and crossing over so that a long train shut them off from the pursuers.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Misses Bradshaw are home from a vacation trip.

The Rev. W. R. Richards has gone away for the heated term.

The Rev. Dr. Richards and family have left Plainfield for an absence of six weeks. They will go to Litchfield, Conn., and subsequently to Andover, Mass.

A reliable thermometer in the shade at the Central pharmacy, Front street and Park ave, registered 105½ at 3 p. m. today. The heat in the sun on the streets is far above that.

Captain Hubbard and Lieutenant Mulford had a call to-day from Frederick Becker, who served under them just 30 years ago. This is the first time they have met since those stirring days of the war.

The report in the Courier that lawyer W. A. Coddington is ill and in consequence unable to attend to business is untrue. Mr. Coddington is in good health, and is attending faithfully to the many duties of his deservedly large and growing practice.

The Rev. Dr. Charles B. Mitchell and wife left town this afternoon for a month's stay at Nantucket. During his absence Dr. Mitchell's pulpit will be occupied as follows: July 31, Bishop J. P. Newman; Aug. 7, Rev. W. C. Snodgrass of Newark; Aug. 14, Rev. Dr. J. M. King of New York; Aug. 21, Rev. J. E. Adams of Morristown; Aug. 28, Prof. Edwin Lewis, Ph. D.

The Men Won, of Course, but the Young Women Did Well.

The Plainfield colony at Lake Hopatcong enjoyed witnessing an interesting two-mile boat race on the lake last evening. The race was made a notable society and boating event, and the crowd of spectators was large and enthusiastic. Four boats were rowed. Miss Ida Neslage and Miss Julia Luyster, both of New York, covered the distance in 12 minutes 24 seconds. Miss Blanche Bryant of High Bridge, and Miss Jeanette Luyster of New York were four seconds quicker. Messrs. Lawrence Miller of Philadelphia and Rezeau Brown of Somerville were the winners, in 9:45. Wm. Roe of Newark and Robert Bryant of High Bridge dalled near the finish, and their time was 10:40, when it might just as well have been half a minute quicker. The victors were heartily cheered, but sincere applause was also given to the feminine contestants.

A Big Time Saturday Night.

Every loyal Democrat should go to Union Village Saturday evening. The good Democrats there are going to have a great banner raising, with portraits of the candidates, and there will be speech-making and fireworks galore. James Martine, Plainfield's famous farmer orator, and other prominent speakers, will address the voters.

THE TRUTH ABOUT A SERMON.

Here Is Dr. Mitchell's Exact Language, Effectually Repudiating Unjust Misquotations.

Dr. Mitchell's sermon in the Methodist Episcopal church last Sabbath morning has been the cause of considerable discussion. He made reference to the Homestead strike, and what he said in regard to that affair has been variously quoted. THE PRESS felt assured that the clergyman had not said some things which were attributed to him, and hence asked him for the exact statement he made. The following is a verbatim quotation from his manuscript, which he kindly furnished the reporter:

"I was speaking"—he said, by way of preface—"of God's forgiveness, and was showing that forgiveness was not an evidence of weakness but rather of strength. It would be an easy thing for God to subject a sinner to eternal penalty; but it would be a far more difficult thing to bring him back to light and love and Himself. It is far easier to coerce than to reconcile. I then illustrated the point by reference to the Homestead strike in these exact words:

"There are two ways of settling the labor troubles at Homestead, Pa. One way is for the Pennsylvania State militia to turn its gatling guns upon the homes of the strikers, and compel them, by force of superior arms, to return to work on the terms of the Carnegie company. The other way is to bring the workmen to see that they are pursuing an unlawful course in refusing the company its natural and legal right to secure other workmen who may be satisfied with the wages, and that it is both criminal and suicidal to pursue their present course of opposition to other men who desire to take the places they have voluntarily vacated. To bring the men and the company to peaceful and successful arbitration of the difficult problem—that is the other way. I do not ask which of these ways is the wiser, the more statesmanlike; but which is the more difficult; which involves more care and pains, more toil of brain, more of that rarest of all sorts of courage, which consists in pursuing a high policy in the teeth of misrepresentation and resistance? Which, in fact, involves more strength? Is it not the latter.

"God had two ways of overcoming sin which had blackened His world. He might have stamped it out by the might of His omnipotence. The other way was not to slight sin, nor condone it, but to change it; and to bring, out of the moral chaos, light and beauty. This latter plan God adopted, and it required more real strength than if Sin and the sinner had been annihilated."

HYMENEAL.

Leggett—Fisher.

The marriage of J. Howard Leggett, the popular manager of the Central pharmacy, and Miss Carrie Parker Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Fisher, took place at 6 o'clock last evening, at the home of the bride's parents, 20 West Fourth street.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles B. Mitchell, assisted by the Rev. James Leggett, brother of the groom, pastor of the Methodist church at Millersville, Pa.

The bride and groom were preceded into the parlors, where the invited witnesses were assembled, by two nieces, the Misses Mildred and Jessie Gifford, of Brooklyn.

The bride's costume was of white India silk, with pearl trimmings and chantilly lace. Her bridal bouquet was of white sweet-pea blossoms, and the floral decorations throughout the house were of the same sweet-scented and beautiful bloom.

The wedding was a very pretty home event. Invitations had been issued to none but the immediate relatives of the family.

The groom's gift to the bride was a very handsome set of diamond earrings, with diamond brooch. There were many valuable tokens of esteem from the countless friends of the happy couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Leggett left for Philadelphia last evening. They will visit various places along the Atlantic coast, and on their return will occupy their new home at 104 West Front street.

Overcome in the Fireman's Cab.

The fireman on one of the fast Philadelphia and Reading railroad trains was prostrated with the intense heat yesterday, and when the engineer went to the fireman's cab at the rear of the "camel back" engine, when nearing Bound Brook, he found the sufferer unconscious. There was scarcely enough steam to run the engine, and while the neglected fire was being rebuilt the train was delayed nearly an hour. The fireman was taken to a hospital and a substitute was procured.

Hackman Keeley in the Toils.

Dog-catcher Frisbie had hackman Patrick Keeley arrested yesterday afternoon for assaulting him with a knife as told exclusively in these columns. Keeley waived examination on the assault charge, and furnished bail in $200 before justice Nash for the action of the grand jury.

On the charges of letting his horse run at large, and resisting an officer, Keeley will be tried by judge Codington Monday.

Destruction of Lard-Oil Works in Elizabeth.

The large lard-oil works of Cooke Bros. in Elizabeth, on South Front street, along Staten Island sound, was totally destroyed by fire this morning at 1:15. The loss is put at $75,000. The origin of the fire is unknown. The entire fire department was called out. The works will be rebuilt at once.

Winn Found Partially Guilty.

The jury considering the case of young Peter Schneiderwinn, alias Peter Winn, acquitted him yesterday of the charges of intoxication and assaulting officer Krinney, but found him guilty of disturbing the peace. He will be sentenced Thursday. The jury, through foreman John H. French, urged judge Codington to be merciful.

DID N'T WORK BOTH WAYS.

The Cranford Water Company Could n't Get an Injunction Against Kean & Company, Although the Plainfield Water Company in Kean's Hands Got All the Injunctions It Wanted.

John Kean and his troop of lawyers—he boasts that he owns all the good ones there are in the State—had no difficulty in getting the necessary injunctions and certorari to stop anyone interfering with their intents and purposes as owners of the Plainfield Water company. But when the shoe is on the other foot, and John Kean is accused of interfering with the rights of the Cranford Water company, his troop of lawyers step in and the court appears to see the case differently.

Chancellor McGill, sitting at Jersey City yesterday morning, decided the case which began last October by Alden D. Bigelow in the name of the Union Water company of Cranford against John Kean, jr., Frank Bergen, Foster M. Voorhees and others for an injunction to restrain them from using the name and exercising the franchises of the company conferred by its charter. The chancellor decided that the Bigelow concern was not entitled to an injunction, and directed an order to be entered to that effect.

The case was argued in the early part of November last by Senator Schenck, of New Brunswick, for Mr. Bigelow, and by R. V. Lindabury, of Elizabeth, for the company. Additional affidavits were presented on the part of Mr. Bigelow yesterday morning by Senator Schenck stating that Mr. Kean and his associates claiming to constitute the company had been extensively engaged since the argument of the case in laying mains and appurtenances, and making contracts and supplying water, and were about to make other contracts with individuals, towns and villages along the line of the mains. The affidavits claimed that this action was in derogation of the rights of Mr. Bigelow and his alleged company, and should be stopped. After hearing Mr. Schenck the chancellor stated that he would not grant an injunction, and that an order might be entered denying the writ, and that he would file an opinion in the course of a few days.

BASE-BALL BABBLE.

After making the bad break of getting Gore—for which manager Mack was charged with bad faith by his brother managers, and received no credit from the public—the Somervilles lose him after one game. Yesterday secretary George Munson of the St. Louis club came to New York and signed Gore for center field.

Being called upon after each game to praise some one or another of the Crescent team for batting better than before or fielding unusually well, the newspapers are guilty of overlooking the steady, earnest and errorless work of Jones at first base. That bag has never been covered better since Plainfield had a ball team, and the position is not played as sure and satisfactory by any other first baseman in the league. At the bat, also, he is determined to do his best and gets in many a safe hit or a sacrifice when most needed. His drive at the opening of the third inning, that struck Francis in the hip and caromed into the third baseman's hands, was one of the hardest hit balls of the day.

Close Inspection.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and uncqualled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

PRESIDENT MURRAY ON HIS TRAVELS.

He Writes a Graceful Letter Home, to Plainfield Friends, of His Delightful Journey Across the Continent.

HOTEL VANCOUVER,
VANCOUVER, B. C., July 16, 1892.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—At last our long transcontinental journey is ended, and here we are 3,000 miles from home, in as comfortable quarters as the most fastidious could wish. This is the strongest, biggest five-year-old town I ever saw; it has almost as many people as Plainfield, is lighted by electricity, has a fire-alarm system, water-supply, a trolley road, and other improvements. The characteristic features are plank roads and low buildings—land and wood being abundant. And then there are swarms of young men—all their men are young, in fact; they have n't been here long enough to grow old. And for these men they are now erecting a $50,000 Y. M. C. A. building—not as fine as ours is to be, but good. Things cost more here: pressed brick, for instance, costing $70 a thousand. I presume I have noticed the Young Men's Christian association, as I came along, more than one not so deeply interested in it would, but it really seems as if everywhere I had seen signs of its good work. In Hamilton I saw a splendid building; in Toronto, on the chief street, one of the finest buildings belongs to the Y. M. C. A.; at the station at Winnipeg, Manitoba, far out on the plains as that city is, a large sign announced a welcome to all at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association; and here beside me as I write is a young Japanese on his way home from Yale, with his heart set on establishing a Y. M. C. A. in the school in Tokio, from which he came. May our own lovely city do her part in this grand work!

Some of your readers may be interested in knowing what we have been doing. Well, it's easy to fill up the paper, but it's hard to describe such a pleasant journey as we have had. Leaving New York on the first of the month, we had two delightful days at Niagara Falls, and then a visit at Toronto. By the way, all the Canadians with whom I have talked, except one, have been in favor of annexation. They think their natural advantages need our energy for their development. The one exception was the venerable Dr. King, president of the Manitoba college at Winnipeg. He is an old Scotch Presbyterian, and his objection was for sentimental reasons. Leaving Toronto, we had a ride of four hours to Owen Sound, on Lake Huron. There we found a fine little steamer, on which we sailed for forty-eight hours through the two lakes, Huron and Superior, being lifted into the latter at the lock at Sault St. Marie. This was a delightful sail; the water was smooth as glass. It gave us a new notion about the size of these inland seas, for more than once we were out of sight of land.

The steamer landed us at Fort William, where our long ride of two days and three nights began. While most of this time was consumed in going over the level prairie, it was not tiresome, for our quarters were luxurious, our fellow-passengers were agreeable, and there was a plenty to amuse and entertain us. As there is but one train a day each way, nearly every station is a stopping place, and most of them are interesting. Cowboys were plentiful, lots of ignoble red men were seen, selling buffalo horns or loafing near their tapering tents. These horns and piles of bones, gathered to be ground, are the last of the buffalo. Prairie-dogs scampered into their holes as we approached, and before us was spread the luxuriant growth of prairie flowers of every shade and hue.

The really grand part of the railroad ride began when Banff was reached. This is a lovely spot in the Rocky Mountains, and there, 5,000 feet above the sea, the Central Pacific railroad has built a palatial hotel. On every side rise the snow-streaked, jagged peaks which have earned for this range the appropriate name of Rocky. As I sat there by the roaring wood fire, surrounded by visitors from Hong Kong, Shanghai, Chicago, Berlin, Edinboro, Japan, and I know not where else, I read again that delightful book of Dr. Holmes's, "Over the Tea Cups", and as I read my eyes fell on these lines:

"If every leaf on every shrub and tree
Turned to a sheet of foolscap; every sea
Were changed to ink, and all earth's living tribes
Had nothing else to do but act as scribes,
And for ten thousand ages, day and night,
The human race should write, and write, and write,"

I doubt if they would succeed in conveying to one who had not seen it the wonders that the Creator has spread with lavish hand in this part of His creation.

But even grander is the scene when one enters the Selkirks. I know not how these great mountains impress others, but as I looked upon the monarchs I felt like falling upon my knees to worship. In the heart of these superb mountains the Central Pacific railroad has built another hotel, at Glacier, and here, in full view from the road, is the great glacier of the Selkirks, an eternal river of ice, flowing down from the side of Sir Donald over ten thousand feet high. Beyond rises the Hermit range; and the higher one goes, the wider becomes the horizon, bounded everywhere by vast snow-fields. Strange to say, and unpleasant to endure, mosquitoes abound here in such numbers as to drive one indoors.

From Glacier to Vancouver the scenery is different, but as beautiful; for the railroad goes through Fraser and Thompson canyons, a marvelous engineering feat. But time does not permit to tell more. I might write of the thousands of Chinamen we have seen at work along the Central Pacific railroad, of the Indians living by the river, and the blood-red salmon hung on frames to dry; of the beautiful Empress of China on which we embark tomorrow, and of a thousand and one things which have so well repaid us for our long journey, but time is up, and I must cease.

Yours sincerely,
WM. D. MURRAY.

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head—for a week at a time I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured. It is wonderful how quick it helped me. Mrs. Georgie S. Judson, Hartford, Conn.

For three weeks I was suffering from a severe cold in my head, accompanied by a pain in the temples. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me. After only six applications of the Balm every trace of my cold was removed. Henry C. Clarke, New York Appraiser's office.

QUEEN OF ALL FAIRS.

The Great Inter-State at Trenton—Its Receipts and Attendance, and Its Possessions and Prosperity.

The prize list for the Great Inter-State Fair at Trenton, which is held this year Sept. 26 to 30, is out. Copies may be had upon application by mail to John Guild Muirhead, Trenton. This is the only truly genuine fair in the State now, and probably the equal of any in the country. This year that brisk, original and genial young hustler, H. C. Taylor, again has charge of its introduction to the public.

The gross receipts last year were $63,-994.92, and the association now owns free and clear in real estate, buildings and improvements, and furniture and fixtures, $145,071.34. The attendance of the fair last year as registered by the turn-stiles, was 93,100, being an increase of 15,195 over that of 1890. This increase was largely made up of a patronage from points at a considerable distance and included many of the best people of Philadelphia and towns in the southern part of the State, as well as many from points east of Trenton, on the New York division, and from this city as well. The attendance from the Belvidere division was also largely increased, as was that from points in Bucks county; considered as a whole, the patronage was certainly a very glowing compliment to the attractive qualities of the exhibition.

The permanent improvements to the plant, made since the year before, consist of two new barns for the show horse department, covering fifty stalls 10x15, and sixty stalls 10x12, with necessary grading and digging of wells to supply water; a new enclosed cattle stable for the accommodation of the milk breeds, containing sixty-four stalls, 7x10; fencing the additional area to accommodate these buildings; placing additional fixtures in poultry building and in exhibition buildings No. 1 and No. 3, for the accommodation of the exhibits therein; the purchase of a large tent, 50x125, for shelter, and the erection of lunch tables, etc., in the grove.

There have also been constructed accommodations at the south end of the grand stand, relieving to some extent the crowded condition of that structure. In addition to these permanent improvements, careful attention has been given to the maintenance of the plant. The farm house, exhibition buildings, the poultry building, judges' stand, etc., have been repainted, and all the buildings thoroughly repaired where needed. The total cost of permanent improvements and betterments for the year was $15,-552 44.

ANGLERS NOW ARE HAPPY.

Plenty of Sport for Plainfield Fishermen, Conveniently Near Home.

Fishermen have been agreeably surprised during the week at the abundance of fish in all the resorts of reputation on the salt water near the city. Not only have the blue and weak fish been running well, but the striped bass have taken a spurt, and the anglers have been taking them in great style. Small fish, such as the sea bass and blackfish, have been biting fast and often. Altogether, it has been the best week of the season for those who love salt water angling, and Plainfield anglers have had good sport at convenient resorts.

Weakfish are doing their part in making the angler happy. Around in the Kill, between New Jersey and Staten Island, the weakfish are reported as being very prevalent. Here the fishing is in the channel with a good length of line. The fish run very well in size, however, and a three-pounder is not infrequent. The fish are a little way above Perth Amboy. Many go to Sewaren and fish right off from the dock there, only a short distance from the shore.

There is another thing that has caused the angler much satisfaction this season, and that is the fact that soft-shelled crabs, the best bait for the game fish, are abundant, and that the pocketbook is not completely wrecked in getting a supply for a day's fishing.

VARYING PRICES FOR COAL.

An Increase in Inverse Ratio to the Distance from the Mines.

Residents of Plainfield and other central New Jersey towns are puzzled over the peculiar method adopted by the coal companies in increasing the price of coal. It seems as though the tactics were to make heavy increases in price to towns near the mines, and lower rates to cities farther away. In Flemington, Hunterdon county, coal retails for $5.75 a ton. At Somerville the ruling price is $5 50. Bound Brook is farther away from the mines, but coal there sells for $5.40. Plainfield people are even more distant, and buy their coal for $5 25. All of these places are on direct railroad lines. All of the prices are said to be subject to another increase in August.

A Wonderful Machine.

There is no doubt that man is a fine mechanism, but like every other machine he wears off by friction. It is said he is born again every two or three years. His body is virtually re-made from food. To retard this making over is radically wrong as a man loses so much vitality in the delayed process that it takes a long time to recuperate. The process of making anew is so accelerated by purging with BRANDRETH'S PILLS that a new man, as it were, may be made in two or three months, and the change in the mechanism is such that the worn out part is replaced by the new without the usual running down of the entire machine. You don't have to stop for repairs. Purge away with BRANDRETH'S PILLS the old diseased and worn-out body. They are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

WITHDRAWING THE TROOPS.

Manager Frick Out of Danger—600 Men at Work in the Homestead Mills.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 26.—The withdrawal of soldiers from Homestead has begun. Wildly enthusiastic cheering today among the white tents on Shanty Hill proclaimed the fact to the strikers in their homes at the foot of the slope. The first to get marching orders were the members of the Eighth Regiment.

It is believed that the troops will gradually be removed until only two regiments remain. These two regiments will be held until there is no further danger of trouble.

PITTSBURG, July 26.—Mr. Frick is now out of danger; every symptom is favorable, and Mr. Carnegie will not return until sent for. There are now 600 men at work in the Homestead mills.

FIREMEN BAFFLED FOR THREE HOURS.

Fierce and Destructive Flames Make a Big Hole in the Cracker Trust Headquarters.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

NEW YORK, July 26.—The biggest cracker baking establishment in the United States, owned by the New York Biscuit company, and situated in Tenth avenue, extending from Fifteenth to Sixteenth streets, which was completed only three months ago, was on fire early today, causing the partial destruction of the building and involving a loss of nearly $500,000.

The fire was a fierce and a dangerous one, and severely taxed the efforts of the fire department. For three hours the firemen were baffled, and the flames were subdued only by great effort. Besides the hundreds of thousands of dollars in property burned, ten thousand barrels of flour were turned to dough.

A JERSEYMAN IN COLORADO.

Senator Keys of Somerset County Will Establish an Extensive Stock Ranch at Ridgway.

(Ridgway, Col., Herald.)

Senator W. J. Keys, of Somerset county, New Jersey, has been making an extended trip through the West, and is here making a visit with Col. C. H. Nix, Mrs. Keys and Mrs. Nix being relatives. The senator has become very favorably impressed with our town and people, and has decided to establish an extensive ranch here, interesting with him, perhaps, several of our leading men.

Senator Keys will ship from his well-known Ellis stock farm at South Branch, New Jersey, several standard bred trotting stallions, including the blood of "Jay Gould", record 2:20½; "Bayonne Prince", 2:21½; "Smuggler", 2:15½ (the fastest stallion in the world for years); "Black Dutchman", "Wedgewood", and other very choice horses. Also some grand bred, standard brood mares—by "Happy Medium", Harry Clay 45; "Daniel Lambert", Hambletonian 10, and others equally as well-bred that would be a credit to this country. They are all, in fact, horses that are famous throughout the East.

With such men as the senator, we shall have a boom in horse-flesh and other enterprises. The senator is a man of vast wealth, wide acquaintance, and extensive influence. His advent into our midst as an interested party and investor, will give our town an impetus such as it has never had before. Not only can the senator benefit us individually, but his influence will bring other monied men to Ridgway.

Ho for Northfield!

The tenth general conference for the promotion of Christian life and service will be held at East Northfield, Mass., from August 4, to August 15.

Among the speakers who will be present are: The Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., of Boston; the Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Regent's Park chapel, London; Dr. Arthur T. Pierson; the Rev. R. A. Torrey, of Chicago; the Rev. James M. Gray, of Boston; the Rev. Hermann Warzariack, of New York.

Arrangements have been made to furnish board and lodging in the Seminary building, to all who remain to the close of the meetings, at $1 per day, and reduced railroad rates will also be secured.

'Twas a Straightforward Transaction.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

The trustees of the Park Avenue Baptist church of Plainfield have agreed to adopt the suggestion of the committee of arbitration that the church make a gift to the builders of five hundred dollars to cover their loss on the contract. The church was erected several years ago. One of the contracting firm is still a member of the church, and has declined to be reimbursed, as he holds that the settlement was a straightforward business transaction agreed to by all parties to the contract.

That Game That Sneeden Pitched.

Just before the game Saturday, Tierney of the Elizabeths asked his captain: "Whose goin' ter pitch fer 'em, Bowsey?" "Sneeden!" answered the first baseman. "Oh! he's dead easy. We'll win in one inning."

When Berry was at the bat in the second inning, Bowes shouted to him: "Now look who's up! Kill it Berry! He can't pitch a little bit! Why he can't pitch pennies!" And the voice of the umpire floated back this answer: "Strike three! Batter out!"

Thank Goodness Plainfield is Not to be Cursed With the Deadly Horse Car.

Kate Rice, 36 years old, of 603 East 106th street, New York, crossing First avenue at Ninety-second street, Sunday night, was knocked down by the horses attached to car 400. The wheels of the car passed over her, breaking both legs. She was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital.

Bad Smells at the Gravel Pit.

The board of health found a heap of foul-smelling rubbish at the gravel pit last night, and set fire to it as the best way of getting rid of it. The stench of the smoke was so bad that the residents of the neighborhood lost their night's sleep and were almost driven away.

New Fire Whistle in the Borough.

The new fire gong for North Plainfield has been received and is now on exhibition at J. J. Stahl's, 108 Somerset street. It is taller than Plainfield's but of a different style, and will not make so loud a noise, nor of the same tone.

A BLUE-JAY'S JABBERINGS.

What He Knows About the Habits of Various Bird Families.

Quee! Did you hear me scolding just now? We blue-jays scold a great deal, you know, anyway, for somehow there is always enough to scold about if one only gets into the habit of it. But the thing that I have been scolding about now is something new. The Buddhists, I have just heard, have been telling something about us blue-jays—something that is not true. I should like to know how long such a story has been going around. A great many years, I dare say. Men do not know very much about us birds. The Buddhists say this: "There are four kinds of beings who fear when there is no danger," and among the four they mention "the bird kirala, or blue-jay, that hatches its eggs with its feet upwards, that, if the sky should fall, it may be ready to support it."

Now, did you ever hear of such nonsense as that about a bird? Do you suppose that I am so silly as to hatch my eggs with my feet upward? I am not a bit more afraid that the sky will fall than you are, and I should like to tell those ridiculous Buddhists that they had better find some blue-jays and observe their habits before telling any more such stories. Do you wonder that I scold?

However, I have company in my affliction, for the Buddhists go on to say that another of the "beings who fear when there is no danger" is the bird "kos lihiniya, the curlew, that treads with all gentleness lest it should shake the earth."

Now I am not very well acquainted with Mr. Curlew, but I am going to ask him, the very next time I see him, if that is not a story, too. I am sure he is not afraid of shaking the earth. The only thing that he is afraid of is that he will not find worms and mollusks enough for his dinner.

If people could understand all that we birds say, folks might not be very much pleased with our remarks always. The Jewish rabbis used to say that Solomon could understand all that the birds sang, and he would amuse himself listening to the wise remarks that were made. And this is what the rabbis said that Solomon heard the peacock say: "With what measure thou judgest others, thou shalt thyself be judged."

What they said the raven croaked was: "The farther from man the happier I."

In Scotland some of the people pretend to know what a bird, called the Black-throated Diver, says. The people say the bird's word's are "Deoch! deoch! deoch! tha'n loch a traoghadh!" which means in your language: "Drink! drink! drink! the lake is nearly dried up!"

Did you know that one of the pyramids of Egypt, called Sakkara, used to be sacred to a bird? The bird's name is the Ibis. The Arabs now believe that bird to be sacred, and a naturalist who visited Egypt said that if he or any other naturalist should take an egg or two from an ibis, or should kill a bird of that sort for scientific purposes, the Arabs believe that trouble would be sure to overtake him. People have odd notions about birds.—Mary E. Bamford, in Our Little Men and Women.

Hard to Suit.

Not all farmers are constitutional grumblers, by any means, but perhaps some of the most inveterate fault-finders in the world are to be found in their ranks.

"Well, Mr. Pease," said a visitor to a farmer one fine August day, "how do things go with you?"

"Bad 'nough! bad 'nough!" said the farmer. "Look at that corn sufferin' 'here; needs hot and dry weather to ripen it. Too rainy and cool fer it!"

"But this is a beautiful warm day to-day."

"Yes, plague take it. Look at that great field of rowen over there, that I'm jest dependin' upon for feed. I tell ye 'taint had half 'nough rain to fetch it along—too warm an' dry fer it!"

The Speaking Trumpet.

The speaking trumpet is formed of a conical tube furnished with a mouthpiece, and terminating in a wide-spreading cup. It is much used at sea to surmount the noise of the wind and wave, and formerly the watchman used it to give warning of fires and to call laborers to their work. The speaking trumpet was invented by Samuel Morland in 1670. He had several models made in glass and copper, which were exhibited before King Charles II. In one experiment at Deal, with an instrument five feet in length, the voice was carried over three miles.

FOR QUAKER CHURCHES.

A New Device for Taking Up the Inevitable Collection.

The Idea Taken from the Cash Railways and Toboggan Slides in Big Retail Shops—Buttons Will Produce a Nasty Grunt.

The vestry of a wealthy Philadelphia church, which will soon be redecorated and improved at a large expense, has decided, after a lengthened controversy, which was marked by no inconsiderable amount of warm argument and bitterness of feeling, to introduce, among other innovations, into the outfitting of a sacred edifice, the complete system of the invention known as Wattlesmith's automatic climax contribution collector.

The invention, which is somewhat elaborate and intricate, until the operator becomes thoroughly acquainted with its working, has been placed in but few churches in the eastern part of the country as yet, but has found a firm foothold in many cities and towns of the west, southwest and distant northwest, and, indeed, it was through the influence of one of the leading vestrymen of the Philadelphia church in question, who saw the system in operation in Walla Walla, Wash., that this city is to have the experiment tried within its borders.

In speaking of the invention, the vestryman who has successfully urged a trial of Mr. Wattlesmith's scheme for collecting the contributions of churchgoers automatically, said to a Record reporter: "It was very natural that my plan of introducing the invention in our church should have met with strong opposition, because the idea is naturally so extremely radical a one that any gathering of church officers would naturally be rather startled at the proposition to adopt it; but, after much argument and many personal appeals, I succeeded in gaining my point, and the early autumn will find us thoroughly equipped with the Wattlesmith system. That it will be voted a great success I have not the slightest doubt.

"Wattlesmith's idea, as he himself candidly admits, is taken from the cash railways and toboggan slides used in the big retail shops; but he has used a great many improvements in working out his plan, and it embodies the use of compressed air, gravitation and electricity. To describe it in detail would involve me in the use of so many purely technical terms that I shall merely say that the idea is to send a number of beautifully decorated little baskets of brass wire through the congregation at collection time, each basket, of course, following a different course, and moving at so solemn and sedate a pace that the most careless member of the congregation can be taken by surprise by its arrival, yet have ample time to get out his pocketbook and contribute. In case, however, that anyone should not be ready a second trip, made at a more rapid rate of speed, will be made by each basket.

"By a singularly clever and delicate adjustment of hair springs and dynometic accentuatorics the invention of the renowned Spanish scientist, Don Dondorado, of Upper Rolobombasto, each basket can correctly register on a dial in the vestry room each coin or banknote as it is deposited, so that when a basket returns the exact sum it contains is already plainly in view of the keeper of the accounts. You can easily imagine that the mechanism needed to attain this result is very expensive, but that did not deter us from contracting for the plant.

"Another clever idea is the manner in which the basket receives the contributions. Attached to it is a musical signal box, a very small affair, but one which seems to possess almost human intelligence. If a cent is deposited it will grunt a loud, dissatisfied grunt, and will emit the same sound when buttons or other spurious contributions are passed off on it. A series of musical sounds will be given forth for quarters, halves, dollars and bills, sweet in proportion to their value, and when a check is deposited—checks generally being for larger sums than twenty dollars—a long whistle, as of gratified surprise, will proclaim the event throughout the church.

"Therefore, I repeat that I consider we have done a good thing in adopting Wattlesmith's automatic climax contribution collector."

Drunkenness in Japan.

Sake drinking, according to a writer in the American Antiquarian, is one of the great curses of Japan. In 1879 the amount of rice converted into sake amounted to 15,000,000 bushels. Pledges to abstain from the habit are frequent among the picture offerings in Japanese temples.

Drama at the Sea Side.

She—Here comes Masher; why is he so cool to you now?

He—Because he tried to cut me out with the girl I've since married.

She—But why are you so savage with him?

He—Because he didn't succeed.—Brooklyn Life.

Easy Enough.

Miss Bagley—Yes; but now you must forgive and forget.

Miss Faraway—Oh, I can forgive, but it's not so easy to forget.

Miss Bagley—Nonsense! I can tell you a hundred things I've forgotten.—Harper's Bazar.

Still a Gay Deceiver.

"How little things sometimes affect men," observed the Charming Widow, meditatively.

"Yes?" queried the Other Widow.

"I was reminded of it by Mr. Oldhand's proposal this morning."

"What did he say?"

"That I was the only woman he had ever really and truly loved."

"And the queer thing about it?" with a questioning inflection.

"Why, that such a little thing as that should have mattered. He has been married three times already."—Chicago News.

Profiting by the Standard.

He (literary)—Since Van Pushe has gone into fashionable society he has become quite distinguished.

She (artistic)—I always considered him as having merely an ordinary mental outfit.

He—That's what enables him to shine in that particular field.—Life.

A Sensible Suggestion.

Mrs. Spendem (trying on a new bonnet)—Dear me! how small the bonnets are this season. This doesn't suit my face at all, it's such a little thing!

Mr. Spendem (examining paper)—Better wear the bill, that seems big enough!—Brooklyn Life.

Placing Him.

Little Robby—Are you a lawyer, like papa?

Doctor—No, my boy; I am a physician.

Robby—Oh, yes; you're the gentleman that comes to see sick people before they die!—Puck.

In Boston.

"Who was called the father of his country, Miss Beacon?"

"George Washington was called the father of his country; but this was an erroneous idea, for it has been proven that to Adam belongs the ignominy."—Life.

Raising Fowls.

"What is the best way to keep chickens?" asked a newly arrived farmer of an old Texan.

"Eat 'em up before the colored brother gets a chance to steal 'em."—Texas Siftings.

No Engagement.

Blind Beggar—Say, Duffy, let's take a night off an' see this serpentine dance at the theater.

Deaf and Dumb Beggar—I can't to-night. I'm going to hear Patti.—Brooklyn Life.

Accounted For.

"We're about five minutes late this morning," said the passenger.

"No, sir," said the conductor. "You forget that you are on the last car of a very long train."—Harper's Bazar.

The Point of View.

Miss Goseldom (at the theater)—How lifelike he acts! He seems to me so forcible, so terrible, so—so realistic!

Mr. Gofrequent—He is. Real stick.—Chicago Tribune.

Appreciative.

Sweet Little Girl (singing)—I want to be an angel.

Mr. Nicefello—Have patience. You'll grow.—Good News.

Near Enough.

She—You say that you have never been in love. How near have you come to it?

He—I was married once.—Life.

Loss of Memory.

Mollie—How old is Miss Maidish?

Her Sister—So old she's forgotten her self.—Chicago News.

Baby Wanted.

Mrs. Bingo (on the corner)—There, you didn't shout half loud enough for that car, or we might have caught it.

Bingo—I shouted as loud as I could. I only wish that baby were here.—Judge.

More Durable Than China.

Snodgrass—There is one queer thing about silence.

Snively—Name it.

Snodgrass—When silence falls it is not necessarily broken.—Detroit Free Press.

Dr. Freshe's Discovery.

"I have studied the mortality among children," said the young doctor, "and I have never yet seen or heard of a case where a child has died of old age. It's curious."—Brooklyn Life.

In the Same Business.

Jimmie—My pa's a doctor; what's your pa?

Johnnie—My dad's an alderman.

Willie—Is that so? Why my pa's a saloonkeeper, too!—Chicago News.

Heroic Measures.

"My son is in love with my wife's maid, doctor. Is there any possible cure?"

"Yes. Let him marry her. He'll get over it."—Truth.

A Neat Way Out.

"You asked her for a kiss," she sobbed.
"You love her, too, of course."
"No, no," he cried, "'twas only this—
I saw you two exchange a kiss—
The one I asked was yours."
—Brooklyn Life.

The Groves of Blarney.

Mary—Cover your head, Mr. Costigan, or it's sunstruck you'll be!

Mr. C.—Cover those purty eyes of yours, darlint, or it's worse 'n sunstruck I'll be!—Life.

An Ardent Adherent.

Miss Anna Virumque—Which is your favorite college, Mr. Rahrah; Yale or Harvard?

Charlie Rahrah (promptly)—Neither; Vassar!—Puck.

"GETTING IT DOWN PAT."

—Life.

The Usual Result.

She (wearily)—My head aches awfully.

He—What have you been doing?

She—I've been trying to decide whether that bargain I got to-day at a bargain-counter is a bargain or not.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Clever Piece of Business.

"Is Smithins a smart lawyer?"

"Very. Man went to him with a case involving $150. Said he was willing to spend $1,500 to get it back. Smithins made him out a bill right off for $1,350."—Jury.

For Instance.

Editor—The only way to succeed in the newspaper business is to give the people what they want.

Friend—Have you got a ten-dollar bill you can let me have?—Truth.

Dante Never Saw It.

Jinks—I don't believe Dante's description of the Inferno is correct.

Winks—Why not?

Jinks—Not one of the shades said to any other shade: "Is this hot enough for you?"—N. Y. Weekly.

The Lunar Census.

Teacher—Is the moon inhabited?

Bright Scholar—Yes.

Teacher (sarcastically)—What is the population?

Bright Scholar—One.—Kate Field's Washington.

Not so Mean as That.

Old Goldacre (to young Spendfast)—Well, I suppose you want to take my daughter away from me?

Young Spendfast—Oh, no; not so bad as that. I only want to marry her.—Judge.

Up with the Times.

Farmer (to new farm hand from the city)—What hev ye done with all this morning's milk?

New Hand—Poured it down the well, of course!—Brooklyn Life.

Wrongly Named.

Butcher Boy—I don't see why they call these scales steelyards.

Butcher—Why don't ye?

Boy—They don't steal yards, they steal ounces.—Good News.

Identified.

"The Countess de Rigeur," I heard,
"American—some western town—
The reigning belle"—I looked and knew
My old schoolmate, Samantha Brown.
—Puck.

Moral Instruction.

"Mamma," said Willie, "what makes the lamp smoke?"

"Because it is wicked, my son."—Jury.

if it is made with Cottolene, the new pure substitute for lard. Cottolene is simply pure cottonseed oil and pure beef suet, two of the healthiest foods known.

Properly combined they are better than lard for all kinds of shortening, and everyone can eat, digest, and enjoy food cooked with it. Food that was indigestible when cooked with lard is easily digested when cooked with Cottolene, and many of the leading housekeepers of the land say they can make nicer bread, rolls, biscuit, cakes, cookies, ginger bread, pies, patties, tarts, griddle cakes, croquettes with Cottolene than with either lard or butter. Get it of your grocer and try it. Beware of imitations.

TO BLOW UP THE MILLS

Anarchist Bauer Had Contemplated Such an Act.

ANOTHER MILL WORKER ARRESTED.

Ten More Warrants Still to Be Served—Claimed that Nearly 800 Men Are Now at Work—Frick's Condition Satisfactory—Gen. Butler Scores Col. Streator for the Treatment Young Iams Received—O'Donnell and His Mission.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—No additional arrests have been made this morning in connection with the Frick shooting, although detectives are still at work and the Anarchist colony in Allegheny is being closely watched. Knold and Bauer are still confined in separate cells at the Central Police station. Preliminary investigations have been made against them, charging them with having aided and abetted the crime. Bauer was arrested yesterday.

It has been ascertained that in a barber shop in Allegheny, a few days ago, Bauer had considerable to say regarding the feasibility of blowing up the Homestead mills with dynamite, and told how little of the compound it would take to accomplish that purpose. It is believed by the police that some such scheme was contemplated by the Allegheny Anarchists, but that it was forestalled by the arrival of Berkman from New York to perform his bloody mission.

At the Central Police station the officials state that they regard the arrest of Bauer as the most important since the shooting. He is a professional agitator, drawing his support from the Anarchist groups and devotes his time to the distribution of the revolutionary literature received from Chicago. He lives with a shoemaker at 73 Spring Garden street, Allegheny, where he was captured.

On Sunday he was seen entering Knold's house with a parcel.

He has been partially identified as a man who was with Berkman in the corridor of the Carnegie Company's building on Saturday just before the shooting and handed Berkman a small package just as he entered the elevator.

This package is supposed to have been either the revolver or the cartridges afterwards found in Berkman's pockets.

This development has so far been kept secret by the police although it is admitted that the second man was seen in company with Berkman on the street.

Since the declaration of Chief Murphy that Herr Most would probably be arrested before to-night, no additional information of the intentions of the authorities toward the head centre of the Anarchists has been vouchsafed, and everybody in authority has shut up like a clam on the subject. Chief Murphy has decided that it is not necessary to send a special officer after Mollick, the Long Branch suspect, and he will be brought back in custody of Superintendent O'Mara, who is now in New York.

James Close, the young mill worker, arrested in Homestead in the afternoon by Constable Price on the charge of murder, was brought to the city last night and lodged in jail. The arrest was effected on one of the suppressed informations sworn out last week by Secretary Lovejoy. There are ten or more warrants, based upon similar informations that are still to be served, but the names of the accused men will not be made public.

Officials of the Carnegie Company claim that between 500 and 600 men, many of them skilled men are now at work in Homestead mills, and that the plates being rolled are of the finest character. They have, they say, over 1,000 applications on file and new men will be sent up from day to day until the mill is fully manned.

Berkman is beginning to chafe under the strict regimen and frugal fare of the county jail, and he is more ugly and morose in his disposition than ever.

Leader Hugh O'Donnell left on the noon train for New York, to complete the mission that was interrupted by the issue of the warrant against him last week.

Before returning he will spend a month at the seaside to regain his health.

He will retain counsel while absent to take proceedings against the Washington "Post" for suggesting that he was identified with Berkman.

The report from Mr. Frick's residence this morning is very encouraging. Although suffering some pain, he had rested comparatively easy during the night, and the progress of the wounds toward healing is eminently satisfactory to the surgeons in attendance. The sick chamber has been fitted up with elaborate cooling mechanism, and can now be kept at a cool and even temperature. All possibility of the intense heat producing inflammation in the wounds is thus avoided.

Men in the Mill Prisoners.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—James Hadley, a roller, and two engineers named Elliott and Rook, say they were brought here from Philadelphia last Friday to work in the Homestead mills, under false representations. They were told the trouble at Homestead was over, and that most of the old workmen had gone back to work. When they got to the mills they discovered things were anything but lovely, and that they were in fact prisoners. They found there from 250 to 300 men, many of them negroes and Hungarians. In the room they slept in the first night 160 men were quartered. The food was abundant, and there would have been no fault had they not found the Homestead men were on strike. Nothing is being done at the mill except making repairs.

Seeking for Arbitration.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—A petition is to be presented to the County Court asking it to appoint a tribunal of arbitration to settle the Homestead trouble. The petition has been in circulation since Friday last. It is necessary for the employes of five firms to sign the petition in order that the court may have jurisdiction, and this has been complied with. The consent of the Carnegie Steel Company is, however, necessary before the County Court can act in the matter.

Baner Makes an Admission.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—Baner has admitted that he is the man who distributed the anarchistic literature among the militia and strikers at Homestead. He also admits that he met and talked with Berkman at Knold's house last week. He has also been identified as the man who was loafing about the entrance to the Duquesne Club house on Sixth avenue last week.

GEN. BUTLER INDIGNANT.

He Denounces the Treatment Accorded to Militiaman Iams.

BOSTON, July 27.—Gen. Butler, in an interview, expresses himself very forcibly against the recent punishment of Private Iams, at Homestead.

Said he: "That punishment was not permitted in the war by any rule of war that I know of. Cruel and unusual punishments are as much prohibited by the Constitution in the time of war as in the time of peace, and that prohibition should cover every case.

"I know of no law, either in war or peace, that prevents a private soldier from expressing his sentiments upon any question whatever, provided it is not done in such a boisterous manner as to disturb the peace, and I know of no proceeding which will justify punishing a man cruelly and excessively for expressing his sentiments by the Colonel, and then trying him by court-martial and punishing him again for the same offense.

"The proceeding is barbarous, cruel and unjustifiable by any law in peace or in war, and if it is not reprobated so fully and thoroughly by public sentiment that it will never occur again, it will do much to disorganize our State militia and prevent them from coming out when called upon, because no man will go out voluntarily to perform duty where such punishments may follow if he disagrees with his colonel in political, social, moral or religious sentiments."

"Has Private Iams any redress in this case?"

"If there is an honest jury in Pennsylvania, he has. It was wholly unjustifiable.

"In the first place the colonel should be tried by a military commission of the National Guards, and his punishment by that tribunal can only extend so far as to take away his commission.

"Then he should be tried by a jury for a cruel assault and put in jail or fined, and then he should be sued by the man and made to pay many thousand dollars, if he can pay it, for the outrage. That is all that ought to happen to the colonel that I can think of now."

DEPARTURE OF TROOPS.

Two Regiments Leave Homestead—Three Will Remain.

HOMESTEAD, July 27.—The City Troop of Philadelphia was the first to leave Camp Black, Homestead. At 2:30 o'clock the troop was started on its journey home over the Pennsylvania Railroad. The 8th Regiment, under Col. Magee, struck its tents and marched to City Farm station of the Pennsylvania road.

The 14th Regiment will go home today and the 13th may not be 24 hours behind it. Gen. Snowden has been given discretion by Gov. Pattison to dispose of his troops as he sees fit, and he will probably send home a regiment or two a day until all but three regiments have gone.

WINNERS AT SARATOGA.

Great Racing by the National Amateur Oarsmen's Association.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 27.—It was after 5 o'clock in the afternoon when Referee Stimpson decided that the lake surface was calm enough to allow the rowing races of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen to begin. Three o'clock was the hour set but the high wind prevailing did not permit the start.

When the water calmed down there was a little delay caused by the executive committee listening to protests against Edward Durnan, the Canadian oarsman, who is a cousin of Edward Hanlan. The committee decided to rule him out altogether, although the Canadians protested loudly.

The races showed a surprising lot of crack amateurs, and the heats so far as rowed were closely contested.

Charles Courtney, Ellis Ward, Edward Hanlan and Henry Rogers were among the famous professionals who witnessed the races. Hanlan and Rogers appearing in rowing attire in their shells.

All the races sat down on the programme were rowed except the senior four, darkness preventing that. The races were chiefly remarkable from the fact that favorites in most instances came in the rear of the procession.

One heat of the junior singles and both heats of the doubles were close and exciting, and in some of the heats anybody was a winner until close to the finish. Each race was 1 1-2 mile with a turn. The winners were as follows:

Senior singles—First heat, Edwin Hedley, Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia.

Second heat—William Caffrey, Crescent Boat Club of Boston.

Third heat—John J. Ryan, Sunnyside Boat Club of Toronto, Canada.

Junior singles—James Hurley, Don Rowing Club of Toronto.

Second heat—Peter Lehaney, Albany Rowing Club.

Third heat—H. W. Cady, New York Manhattan Club.

Double sculls—First heat, Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia.

Second heat—Catlin Boat Club of Chicago.

Colby is said to be one of the members of the Monmouth County Law and Order League, which is waging a ceaseless war against the bookmakers.

"THE PIRATE" LAUNCHED.

Now to Be Known in Naval Chronicles as the Columbia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—The new government cruiser Columbia, familiarly known as "The Pirate," was launched at 3:50 yesterday afternoon.

Among those present, besides a number of naval experts, Senators and Representatives, and agents of foreign governments, were Vice-President Morton, Secretary Tracy, Assistant Secretary of State Grinnell, Senator Hiscock, Commodore Wilson and Naval Constructors Bowles and Woodward, Mrs. Morton and Miss Edith Morton.

The last named young lady performed in a graceful manner the act of christening the new vessel "Columbia".

The cruiser is in many respects a unique vessel and is the fastest commerce destroyer ever launched in the waters, and for the purpose intended, the most effective engine of destruction the world ever saw.

She is 400 feet long, has a speed of 21 knots, is made entirely of American material and cost $2,785,000.

Cruiser No. 12, when completed, will not only be a triumph of ship building but will embody all the essentials of propulsion, offensiveness and defensiveness which have long been recognized as combining the factors necessary to a maximum efficiency in naval architecture.

She is termed "The 7300-ton, three-screw commerce destroyer" in the Congressional Appropriation bill.

She is primarily designed for speed, for her chief function will be to sweep an enemy's commerce from the seas. To do this she must be able to overhaul in an ocean race the swiftest passenger steamships between New York and Queenstown.

The trans-Atlantic record being five days, nineteen hours and five minutes, she must break it down to five days and a fraction of an hour.

A combination of perfected machinery such as has never before been designed will accomplish this end.

The cruiser is full of intricate mechanism and has ten boilers, six of which are double-ended, fifteen and a half feet in diameter by 21 1-4 feet long. Eight of the largest are built in air and water-tight compartments into which is forced a draught of 216,500 cubic feet of air per minute when running at full speed.

The engines are three in number consisting of vertical triple-expansion cylinders each of which develops 7,000 horse power and drives a separate screw.

Under full pressure each of the three screws should turn at the rate of 128 revolutions per minute. Ninety revolutions was the maximum of the City of Paris when she broke the record. The cruiser's shafts are made of forged steel 16.5 inches in diameter. Steel is used wherever possible, lightness being the essential to speed.

The vital portions of the vessel are protected by an armored deck four inches thick on the slopes and two and one-half inches on the flat. The space between the deck and the gun deck will be minutely subdivided by coal bunkers and storerooms.

In addition there will be a cofferdam five feet wide running next to the ship's side throughout her entire length. The bunkers not used for coal will be filled with a patent substance of such solidity as to form a wall five feet thick and having all the advantages of an inner and supplemental armor.

Forward and abaft of the coal bunkers the cofferdam will be filled with a water-excluding substance similar to woodite. In one wake of the eight 4-inch and machine guns the ship's sides will be armored with 4 and 2 inch plating. The six-inch guns, which are four in number, will be mounted on the open deck, and protected by heavy shields attached as in the new ships, to the gun-carriages. The coal capacity of the cruiser is 2,000 tons. At ten knots speed per hour this will give her an endurance of 100 days, a radius of action of 20,340 knots and she will be able to steam around the world in 109 days without recoaling, thus breaking all records for speed, economy and capacity.

IN THE KILL VON KULL

A Girl's Body Found Floating Near Woodbridge, N. J.

HER IDENTITY STILL A MYSTERY.

Nothing on Her Person By Which Her Name Could Be Learned—Cards of a Plainfield, N. J., Business Man Found in Her Pocket—Is It Murder?

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., July 27.—Another mysterious death that is probably a murder has been unearthed hardly three miles from where Mary Anderson met her death.

The body of a young girl was found yesterday afternoon in the Kill von Kull and appearances indicate that she was murdered. The body was found by an oysterman, off Leibig's Chemical Works, near Carteret. It was that of a young girl about 15 years of age and had been in the water, from appearances, about 36 hours.

The features were those of a remarkably pretty young girl and the body was clad in expensive and fine clothing. The girl had dark hair, large dark eyes and a good complexion. She was dressed in a brow nsilk dress of fashionable make. Her underclothing was expensive, as were also her shoes.

In the pocket of the dead girl's dress was found a business card of John Lindsay, gardener and florist, at Plainfield, N. J. There was also a card in the girl's pocket of Mrs. Lindsay's employment agency. Another card was found on the remains, but the printing on it had been so blurred by the water that it is extremely difficult to decipher. The printing looks like, as near as can be made out, "Miss Van Busker, No. 76 West Seventh street."

County Physician Dynohue, of Middlesex county, was notified of the finding of the body and he ordered it to be taken to Drake's morgue.

Upon a second examination of the clothing of the dead girl there was discovered a circular of an excursion. The excursion was from Plainfield to Asbury Park and the circular was dated July 10.

The scene of the supposed murder is within three miles from where Mary Anderson was so foully murdered on June 8. It is in a portion of the country where at least five murders of defenseless women have been committed within the past two years, and this makes the sixth, if it proves to be a crime.

TARIFF IN THE SENATE.

Speech of Chairman Aldrich—The Anti-Option Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The Senate, with the temperature ranging between 90 and 100, passed the day in discussing the tariff. Mr. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, chairman of the sub-Committe of Finance, which during the summer has been investigating the effect of the McKinley bill upon the costs of the necessaries of life, made an elaborate and carefully prepared protection speech. He was replied to in part by Mr. Vest, of Missouri, and a further reply was promised from Mr. Carlisle, of Kentucky, "before adjournment."

The Senate took an important step in the direction of adjournment by adopting the report of its conferees on the Deficiency bill, leaving only the Sundry Civil bill to be disposed of. Anti-Option was shelved for the day, but it is expected that to-day a vote will be taken on the Wolcott resolution to postpone the question till next December.

A reverberating peal of thunder followed. A number of people in the neighborhood were stunned by the force of the bolt. Lightning did great damage in the city, several houses and barns being fired.

SIX BURIED IN THE DEBRIS.

Terrible Gas Explosion in a St. Louis Sewer.

ST. LOUIS, July 27.—An explosion of coal oil gas occurred in the Mill Creek sewer about 4 p. m., tearing up Chouteau avenue from the levee to Broadway. The gas ignited the alcoholic gases in Furch's whisky distilling company. Six pedestrians are known to be buried in the wrecked sewer.

One fireman, caught between the debris of the falling walls, is in a critical condition. Along the Chouteau avenue tracks of the Iron Mountain Railroad several trains and empty passenger coaches were blown to pieces. Furch's distillery was the building most affected by the explosion. The first and second floors fell, carrying the workmen to the cellars. One workman in the distillery has been carried to the hospital in a critical condition. R. J. Tunstall was also severely injured.

SAD DEATH OF MISS RANDOLPH.

Brooding Over Affliction Results in Insanity and Death.

Miss Rachel F. Randolph, a middle-aged lady of about 50 years, died by her own hand last night. Miss Randolph had for years been a member of the Price household at New Brunswick. Two months ago she was informed that she was afflicted with an incurable tumor, and she came to Plainfield to spend the remaining days quietly at the home of Andrew J. Stewart, 23 West Fifth street, where she could be near her cousin, Mrs. T. O. Doane. The unfortunate woman brooded constantly over her affliction, until her mind was seriously affected. Her friends sadly noticed that she was becoming demented, and by advice of Dr. Hunt of Rahway, who was sent for by Miss Randolph's cousin, Miss Prall, to examine her, preparations were being made for her removal to the asylum.

The poor sufferer's troubles were greater than she could bear, however, and during last night insanity drove her to suicide. She took a sheet from her bed, and wound it three times about the tall bed post and her neck, and hung there so that suffocation ensued.

This morning Mrs. Stewart went to Miss Randolph's door to summon her to breakfast. There was no response to her repeated rappings and knockings, and in alarm she summoned help. Together they entered the room and found that the poor woman had ended her sufferings, and that the body was cold in death.

The deceased was a woman of most estimable qualities, beloved by all who knew her. Only disease and a disordered brain could have prompted her to take her own life.

CRESCENTS WIN IN THE MUD.

The Cuban Maids Lose in a Record and Were Outplayed at Every Point.

The Crescents knocked the heart out of the Cuban Giants yesterday by giving them their worst defeat of the season. The Plainfielders outplayed their dusky opponents at every point, and the game was so absolutely in their control that they did n't have to try to win. The Giants' captain did all he could to break the spell that was on his men by changing them about as fast as one made an error, but all manipulation was useless. The Crescents gave a fine exhibition of ball playing, and the Giants raised made some beautiful individual plays. Watson and Daley each made a marvelous one-hand running back-and catch, and won many plaudits from the spectators. Boyd nearly broke his neck in a triple somersault after a great running catch of Jones's big fly, but he held on the ball all the time he was rolling over in the mud. Daley had a rare opportunity to show what was in him, and he gave a wonderful exhibition of how third base should be covered. He fielded faultlessly everything within reach and a good many foul flies that were next to impossible to capture. Jones has as usual perfection at first, and Brady proved himself just the right one to succeed for right field. The crowd will be glad to know that the latter young fellow is to stay here permanently. Murphy the new pitcher seems to be a decided acquisition. He pitched an excellent game, and Meehan the last will whenever needed. The thunderstorm preceding the game made the ground very muddy and the ball very slippery, which accounts for the errors of the Cubans. The fair was utterly uncontrollable and the wonder is that more errors were not made. Score by innings:

FRAUD DISCLOSED TO THE COURT.

Signal Victory of Plainfield Lawyers After a Contest of Years—The Five Years—Prosecution Wrung from a Reluctant Referee.

In the case of Hand vs. Runyon, recently decided in the court of chancery, through the skill and perseverance of Plainfield lawyers one of those deep-laid and ingenious plans evidently intended to defeat an old woman out of her just rights was discovered and clearly demonstrated to the court, the Plainfield counselors thus achieving a triumph which should afford satisfaction to all lovers of justice, and which [illegible] sure to record.

It seems that in 1884 one Rhoda Runyon [illegible] to [illegible], recovered a judgment in the court of [illegible] Reune Runyon, deceased, for $2,100, on a bond given by him to her in his lifetime. The defendant in this Runyon case was one Daniel Vanderpool, formerly of Passaic, Long Island, a sharp, shrewd business man. Reune Runyon died [illegible] years previous to the judgment, left considerable real estate in Plainfield. This real estate Daniel P. had all put in his name and had conveyed to one Provost, a resident of Long Island, so that, when the judgment was obtained no real estate whatever stood on the record in the name or in the right of the children of the deceased, Hester Runyon. A partial settlement of the judgment was made with Daniel P. [illegible] and paid a certain sum, and the judgment was made to confirm the [illegible] to have the real estate put in his own name. Here he made a fatal mistake, as his astute legal adversaries then included in their [illegible] and kept into the fight. They got on track of a secret deed of trust, never held or recorded, by which it appeared he held the lands in trust for the others as well as himself. A bill in chancery was promptly filed, and notice of lis pendens preventing any transfer of the property was placed on record in the county clerk's office and now after five years' bitterly contested lawsuit in which numerous non-resident counsel were engaged, the court of chancery declares that the interest of the four defendants in the land in question must be sold and applied to the payment of the judgment, since assigned to and now held by Charles Hand, nephew of Rhoda Runyon.

The lawyers to whom the credit for this victory is due are the firm of Jackson & Dodington of this city.

NO WATER TO PUT OUT THIS FIRE.

The Board of Health Hampered in Inhabiting Its Own Quarters.

It transpires that the board of health is guiltless of setting fire to the rubbish in the old gravel pit.

The pit is an abandoned gravel quarry near St. Mary's cemetery, along the former course of Green brook. It is a hollow, in the eastern part of the city, for a long time its gate offense because of the [illegible] accumulations of water in the bottom. [illegible] residents of the locality complained to the board of health [illegible] to have the pit filled up. The board [illegible] to do so, but [illegible] the pit [illegible] a dumping ground, as the easiest means of getting it filled up. Recently [illegible] set fire to the rubbish, and [illegible] taken the place of the water, and a terrible stench [illegible] the result. The board of health is doing all in its power to abate the nuisance, and has been trying to put out the fire. The pit is a very hot place to work in, however, and it is difficult to get men to withstand the heat and the smell. The difficulty is that the nearest water is 1,500 feet away, and the board may have to put into service the entire hose of the fire department before the nuisance can be abated.

In addition there will [illegible] delay of a moment, and the game proceeded with this [illegible] second [illegible] the last [illegible] and [illegible] the ball [illegible] and retired in great shape for first [illegible] was retired out.

THOUGHT TO BE FROM PLAINFIELD.

The Body of a Woman Found Floating in the Sound.

While oysterman David H. VanPelt of Elizabethport was at work in the Kill von Kull just off the Liebig fertilizer factory at Carteret yesterday morning he noticed a human body floating near his oyster stake some distance out in the Sound. He brought it ashore.

It was that of a woman about 40 years old. She wore a dress of brown silk, a jockey cap to match, new high gaiters, and well-made underclothing. There was no jewelry except a pair of cheap earrings. At Drake's morgue at Woodbridge an examination of the clothing was made to find marks of identification. There was none whatever on the clothes.

In the pocket of the dress was found a business card of John Lindsay, gardener and florist, of Plainfield. There was also a card of Mrs. Lindsay's employment agency. Another card was found of Mrs. VanBoskerck of 76 West Seventh street, Plainfield. There was also a circular of an excursion from Plainfield.

County physician Donohue was notified. He left New Brunswick shortly before noon. When he arrived at Woodbridge he made a superficial examination of the body. He found there were no marks of violence. He said the body had been in the water about twelve hours, and that he thought it was a case of suicide.

Some women say they heard screams in the direction of the kills about 10 o'clock Monday night, and shortly after this information was received that William Green recognized the woman as one he had met on the road Monday afternoon. At that time she was strolling along in the direction of Carteret, reading a newspaper. He had never seen her before. The supposition is that she went to that part of the country with some of the excursionists that were there Monday. There were 4,000 persons from New York at Boynton Beach Monday afternoon. They came up in two barges towed by the Cygnus. The Blackbird brought a third barge, with a thousand more merry makers, up to Maurer's, a pleasure ground a mile below. The woman may have wandered away from one of these parties. It is not believed that she belongs in that immediate district. County physician Donohue is to make an autopsy to-day.

When VanPelt first saw the body there were four parcels with it, but he let them float away.

Inquiry at the home of Mrs. VanBoskerck elicited the information that nothing was known there of any woman answering to the description of the dead person. Mrs. Lindsay, however, said that she judged the woman to be Eliza Brady, a domestic who had been to her several times for employment. The description corresponded exactly. Eliza was in delicate health, and was not able to keep a position long, on account of her inability to do much work. She was therefore very despondent of late, and often said that life had no more interest for her.

PLAINFIELD PEOPLE AT THE LAKE.

How the Happy Days Are Passed at Nature's Fairy Garden-Spot.

The number of Plainfielders at Lake Hopatcong of late has been considerable. The Crescent city colony have delightful quarters, most of them favoring the Van Over House. How happily the days are spent is told by one of them in the following letter home to THE PRESS:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—All are well, and enjoying ourselves to our hearts' content, and we begin to count with regret the few remaining days of our outing. To those who love nature as I do, this is a glorious spot. At daybreak I am awakened by the sweet songs of the birds, and as a rule I am out doors and enjoying a walk and romp with our noble dog "Nip", coming in to breakfast with a keen appetite. After that duty is attended to, my "side partner" and I hasten to our boat, and are off over the clear, sparkling waters of the lake to some favorite spot, where we endeavor to entice the finny denizens of the waters to our lines, with varying success. At 12 o'clock comes the row home to dinner. That disposed of, we read the daily World to ascertain what has been going on. By 4 o'clock we are out on the lake again with rod and reel and do not show up to supper until dark. Then we are entertained by the ladies with music, we men tell all our big fish stories over again, recounting how we lost the "big one" as usual, and are all in our little beds by 10 o'clock, and sleep the sleep of the righteous until next morn. I tell you it puts muscle in your frame and makes the brain clear and health perfect by such an outing. The ladies amuse themselves by walking, boating, making fancy work, visiting the picnic grounds to see the excursionists, etc. The fishing has not been as good as I would like, and the great trouble is to keep them alive until we can get good messes to send away.

A Former Plainfielder Will Contribute If Issue Will Sue Streator.

Charles G. Burgoyne, a former well-known resident of this city, sent the following despatch yesterday:

Lent—Oh Brady, Hamilton, Ont.

Law-abiding men who believe that every man is entitled to trial before condemnation and punishment will agree with me that the outrage perpetrated by you, endorsed by your superior officers, and participated in by your regimental surgeons, is a crime only paralleled by the crimes of a mob. My check for a good round sum is at the disposal of any Pennsylvania lawyer who will undertake to bring you to justice. Believe me, there are many men in this city, not only humble citizens like myself, but military men, as well, who are willing to loosen their purse strings that such a monumental crime may not go unpunished.

C. G. BURGOYNE.

Mr. Burgoyne served with a Pennsylvania regiment in the late war.

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head—for a week at a time I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured. It is wonderful how quick it helped me.—Mrs. Georgia Sedgwick, Hartford, Conn.

For three weeks I was suffering from a severe cold in my head, accompanied by a pain in the temples. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me. I applied it freely. Within an hour my head was relieved. Mary G. Carter, 204 E. 61st Sprainer's corner.

NEW FERRIES FOR THE READING.

Passengers to Be Landed at the Battery by a Speedy Passenger Ferryboats.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company has completed arrangements whereby it will be enabled to get a much larger share of the passenger traffic than it now controls. Contracts have just been signed between the Reading and the Staten Island Rapid-Transit companies by which the Reading will be able to land its passengers at the Battery, and whereby the Rapid-Transit company will be able to send its passengers over the Royal Blue line without going out of the Staten Island ferry-house.

Briefly told, the plan of the Reading company is to carry passengers by two new boats from Jersey City to the Battery, using the Staten Island ferry-house as a landing-place. It is thought that this move on the part of the Reading people will result in a great increase in its passenger traffic. Officers of the company say that persons will find the new system a great convenience, inasmuch as passengers will not have to cross the city as they now are obliged to do. On landing at the Battery they can take either the Sixth, Ninth, Second, or Third avenue elevated line or the Broadway cable road, which it is thought may be in operation when the boats are put in service next spring.

The Reading company also expects to establish a service to Brooklyn and to the upper part of New York city. Application has already been made to the city for the privilege of leasing a slip at Twenty-fourth street.

The boats which the Reading will put into service will be, it is said, the finest ever built in this country. They will differ in many respects from those now in use. The boats will be about the length of the present style of North River ferry-boats, but will not be more than two-thirds as wide, as only passengers will be carried. There will be two decks, with landing-ways on each. The decorations will be unusual, and every effort will be made to make the boats attractive. Special attention will be paid to speed, and it is said that in this particular the two boats will rival the Sandy Hook boats.

While no plans have yet been made with regard to selling through tickets from points on Staten Island to points on the Royal Blue line, it is very probable that this will be done. It has been decided to establish a ticket-office in the Staten Island ferry-house, however, for the convenience of residents of Staten Island, and it is stated that it will be merely a question of time when the ticket-agents along the line of the Staten Island Rapid-Transit company will be allowed to sell through tickets to Philadelphia, Washington, and Baltimore.

The new boats, it is thought, will be running by the first of next May. Under the new arrangements Plainfielders will have a continuous route to Staten Island ball games, and will find the Battery ferry a convenient means of reaching the shopping district, by way of the elevated roads or the Broadway cable line, and will have the advantage of finding abundant room in the cars from the Battery starting-point.

CAPT. MARTIN VINDICATED.

He Regrets Plainfield's Withdrawal from the Race, and Did All He Could to Prevent It.

(Elizabeth Journal).

There has been a great deal of guesswork and not a little unwarranted comment because the Plainfield Bicycle club suddenly withdrew from the Journal trophy series. Several unauthorized stories were printed that discredited Capt. F. L. C. Martin, and that were in no way complimentary to the Plainfield cyclers. That the facts in the case would ultimately come to the surface was certain, and the Journal therefore stated the plain fact [as did THE PRESS] that the team had disbanded, and made no comments. Yesterday Capt. Martin was interviewed on the subject, and he says that it was a complete surprise to him when he returned from the Washington meet to learn that the team had disbanded. Some papers stated that Capt. Martin was not allowed to ride on the team, and in consequence was in some degree responsible for the breaking up. On the contrary, he did all he possibly could to get the team together again, but he found it impossible. In the first place one of the best riders, the man who was coaching the team, was suddenly called to Europe, and sailed at a late Saturday morning. Another member of the team had a very bad fall recently, and was so severely injured that he has been unable to do any training since. In the third place one of the men relied upon for a substitute was found to be disqualified. The team was thus literally broken up, not at all by Capt. Martin, but during his absence at Washington, and the club decided that as they could not put in the team they relied on they would not put in any team at all. Capt. Martin tried to get them to reverse this decision, but did not succeed. The club expected to put eighteen men in the century race, but were so demoralized by the facts above stated that only four went in. Captain Martin says that now, since the Plainfield club is not of the race, he does not hesitate to say that his men were riding splendidly. They were making better time than has been made by any team this year, and felt not only sure of beating the field, but were expecting either to capture the trophy or come so near to it that the winners would get it only by the hardest kind of work and record breaking trips. No one is more sorry than the Plainfield club that their team is necessarily disbanded; but next year they will be in it at a better pace than ever.

NEW OCEAN RECORD.

The City of Paris Queen of the Ocean Wave Record Smashed by 23 Minutes.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

NEW YORK, July 27.—The City of Paris, still flying the British flag, though practically admitted to American registry, won back the record pennant this morning on her arrival at the bar two minutes after one o'clock. She had crossed the Atlantic in 5 days 15 hours and 23 minutes, 33 minutes less than the best previous record, thus remaining queen of records between this port and England.

The best previous record was 5 days, 16 hours and 31 minutes, and was made by the Majestic of the same line in August, 1891. On this trip on two different days the City of Paris also broke the best record for the greatest number of miles traveled in one day. On July 21 she speeded 519 miles, and on the 26th 520 miles. Up to these days the Teutonic held the record for the best day's work, with 517 miles, which distance was covered in August last year. The record was broken by 33 minutes.

Additional interest is given to the record by the facts that it is thus once more restored to the Inman Line (now called the American Line), and is likely to be fought for more earnestly than ever by the White Star people, and that the Clyde shipbuilders are again raised above their Irish rivals, the makers of the Teutonic and Majestic.

Had the City of Paris maintained the speed of her best day through the trip she would have crossed the ocean in five days eight hours and thirty-two minutes.

M'GONEGAL AGAIN.

The Slayer of Annie Goodwin Arrested on a Similar Charge—His Victim a Mrs. Webb.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

LONG ISLAND CITY, July 27.—The police here this morning arrested Dr. Henry G. McGonegal, who was convicted of causing the death of Annie Goodwin in Harlem by a criminal operation, and who has been out on bail for some time pending an appeal to the court of appeals.

McGonegal is now charged with having performed a criminal operation on Mrs. Louisa Webb, wife of Frank Webb of 400 Hamilton street, Ravenswood.

Mrs. Webb, who died yesterday, was the daughter of the late Esquire Parsell, who was a well-known politician and official in Long Island City. Mrs. Parsell, mother of Mrs. Webb, notified the police of Long Island City yesterday that her daughter had died from the effects of an operation, and implicated Dr. McGonegal and a midwife of the name of Alice M. Bale of 251 West 125th street, New York city.

Mrs. Webb's husband and the midwife were arrested as accomplices.

CHARLES PAGE SHOT DEAD.

Reported to Have Been Killed by a Customer, Who Then Committed Suicide.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 27.—It is reported that Charles Page, of E. D. Page & Brother, members of the New York Exchange, was shot by a customer here this morning and that the customer then committed suicide.

Mr. Page is reported dead.

ANOTHER ROUTE FOR THE BOROUGH.

North Plainfield to Have a New Duer Street Outlet into Plainfield City.

It now seems absolutely certain that the enterprise which was referred to in these columns some weeks ago to connect Madison avenue and Duer street, is bound to succeed soon, long before the consummation of the Peace street project. The prime movers in the enterprise are George H. Babcock and William M. Stillman. Mr. Babcock has secured by purchase a large tract of land on Front street at the head of Madison avenue, including Laing's hotel and stables. He needs only the land where the engine-house stands to complete his block, and for the control of this he has for some time been negotiating. His plan is to extend Madison avenue directly through his property to the brook, provided the city will give up its engine-house and land. He agrees further to give the city a lot on the new street, directly along the brook, for its engine-house, and to pay $25 a front foot for the engine-house land. The fire department estimates its building to be worth $5,000, and thinks the 30-foot lot is worth $250 a foot. Its valuation of the engine-house property is therefore $12,500, and it thinks that in view of the extremely satisfactory terms on which Mr. Babcock acquired the other property he can afford to be more generous to the city than he has been in his present offer. The department further says that the proposed engine-house site by the brook would be inconvenient and unreasonably out of the way. It has its eye on a fine site, the location of which is kept secret, as it makes a difference whether the city is buying or selling. If an owner thinks the city is after his land, up jumps the price.

The Methodist church people and the West Front street merchants are petitioning to have the engine-house removed in accordance with Mr. Babcock's proposition. The plan of Mr. Babcock is to build flats on the Madison avenue extension to the brook, with other flats and stores fronting on Front street. Duer street residents will, of course, be pleased with the improvement. The only block that will present property in the way of the proposed street is that of J. D. Dyer, who will have a word in store for the public improvement. It is understood that Mr. Dyer's resident to the plan has already been obtained, and the enterprise will go through with hello-go. Then when the new extension is completed and Madison avenue is widened from Front street to the railroad the avenue will be made one of the finest thoroughfares in town, and a main artery of traffic between city and borough.

What Did She Mean?

The car was not half full, but the youth in the new spring suit plumped himself down by the side of the handsome girl in gray.

"Possibly," he said, with a chuckle, "for some gentleman?"

And the youth in the new spring suit presently got up and wandered on into the next car ahead.—Demorest's Magazine.

A GREAT CURIOSITY.

How Five Little Ash Trees Were Turned Into One.

One of the greatest attractions in the Jardin d'Acclimatation, in Paris, is a curiously-shaped tree, leaning for support against a light iron framework.

Five little ash trees growing within a few inches of one another were grafted into one thick stem when about a foot from the ground. The trees took kindly to the companionship, and grew up together for more than ten inches, when the partnership was dissolved, and the stem separated into two parts. Each part was forced to travel for a short distance in opposite directions and at right angles to the main stem,

A QUEER ASH TREE.

when the course was changed to a perpendicular one. Then each stem turned three times around, forming three beautiful spirals, and when both had mounted a little higher they were turned inward and united. Again they were parted, and again met, after having formed a triangle. Up they grew in close companionship for quite a distance, when another evolution had to be performed, this time in the shape of a graceful loop. Meeting again, the trees took a longer journey together, but their trainer parted them once again. This time they were trained into a new shape, as you can see in the picture I send you, and the five little ash trees were once more united. Then, as if in celebration of this last grand union, the trees threw out numerous leafy branches, surmounting the whole with a globe of beautiful green foliage. I rather suspect they had eventually to perform more contortions, for on visiting them one cold day, when the leaves were gone, I noticed that the upper branches were bent inward at the top as if some other change might yet be made.—St. Nicholas.

Juvenile Arithmetic.

In the mental arithmetic class the teacher had a great deal of trouble in making Johnny Jones understand the simplest mathematical ideas, though he seemed to be a boy of much natural good sense.

"Six from six leaves how many?" asked the teacher.

"Huh?" asked Johnny, apparently astonished at the question.

"If you have six cents in your pocket and you lose them all how many do you have left?"

Johnny put on a scornful look at this and answered: "One, I suppose."

"Johnny Jones, how could you have one of your six cents left when you lost them all?"

"I didn't mean that I'd have one cent left."

"One what, then?"

"One hole, I guess," said Johnny. "There's got to be sunthin."

Sound Advice.

A sensible bit of advice was given by a colored man, not long ago, to a quarrelsome friend. It was in a brickyard, and two of the workmen had a dispute which ended with blows.

In the skirmish one of them was hurt, and the employer, who saw the end of the fight, and was a man of more temper than discretion, advised him to get a warrant for the other's arrest.

While the matter was under discussion, a colored man who had seen the whole affair made his way to the injured party and said:

"You don' want t' get no warrant, Jim! You get yo'self two pieces o' plarster, good big ones, an' put one piece on yo' hade, an' de oder on yo' mouf, an' you'll be all right!"

A Cat Concert.

A curious old volume tells of a cat concert, which was part of the entertainment at a great religious festival at Brussels in Ascension week in 1549. A bear played the organ. This organ was composed of twenty cats shut in narrow boxes; their tails were tied to cords connected with the notes of the organ. Each time the bear struck the keys he pulled the tail of a poor cat, and forced it to mew in tune. Historians also tell us of such organs with pigs and cats together. It is related that an ancient German king was cured of a deep melancholy by having played to him an organ composed of cats, their voices, attached to their tails, being arranged in scales, and their tails pinched to make them give the proper notes.

A Child's Question.

Children will ask puzzling and sometimes mortifying questions. In "Ethics for Young People," Prof. C. C. Everett tells of a question he asked when a small boy. He says:

A lady was talking with me about "easily besetting sins." She said that her besetting sin was pride. I looked at her in innocent wonder, and exclaimed: "Why, what have you to be proud of?" I saw at once by her confusion that I had made a very impudent and unlucky speech.

We cannot ask this question of others; but if anyone who is disposed to be proud should ask himself the question: "What have you to be proud of?" and answer it truly, it might do him good.

Not Doing.

"How do you do?" said mamma's caller to little Fay.

"I don't do anything," answered Fay. "It's vacation, and mamma said I could have a rest."—Harper's Young People.

Not Used to It.

She—Your English friend seems to be dreadfully uneasy.

He—Yes. He has on a suit of American clothes that fits him and it makes him uncomfortable.—Judge.

Why He Stole It.

Mamma (severely)—Johnny, what made you steal that cake?

Johnny—My appetite.—Brooklyn Life.

A Clear Case.

She—Who do you think could have picked my pocket?

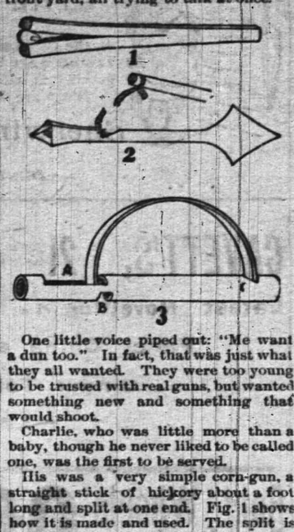
He—Nobody in the world but your dressmaker.—Life.

TOYS FOR THE BOYS.

Four Simple Contrivances That Will Shoot as Well as Any Gun.

Uncle Malon had no boys of his own, but he took great delight in his half-dozen or more little nephews, who always thought it a great treat to spend a day with him, for he had lived several years in the Rocky mountains, and was never without a story for them. He could tell them all about Indians, how they make bows and arrows and lots of other things interesting to boys.

It was mean, but that's just the way big brothers always do. Tom and Harry and Will had all gone off for a walk and left the younger ones to amuse themselves as best they could, and in the emergency they had sought out Uncle Malon. I can see them yet, as it were, as they stood together in the front yard, all trying to talk at once.



One little voice piped out: "Me want a dun too." In fact, that was just what they all wanted. They were too young to be trusted with real guns, but wanted something new and something that would shoot.

Charlie, who was little more than a baby, though he never liked to be called one, was the first to be served.

His was a very simple corn-gun, a straight stick of hickory about a foot long and split at one end. Fig. 1 shows how it is made and used. The split is pulled apart, and a grain of corn put in, then by pressing on it the grain is made to fly out with considerable force.

It worked so well that all the other boys wanted to make corn-guns too, but Uncle Malon said he had something better for them.

Several, at his request, went to hunt some pine shingles, which were soon found. These were cut into darts with a thin diamond-shaped tail and slim tapering shaft, sharpened to a point at the larger end as in Fig. 2.

They were then balanced on the edge of a penknife so that the tail end just tipped down, and from this place a notch, n, was cut upward in the shaft to receive the string, which had a knot at one end.

This string is two or three feet long, and fastened to a stick, by which the dart is thrown.

In throwing, the dart will pass from behind you forward, the knot slipping out of the notch, leaving it free to sail far away almost out of sight.

Once the dart is made so as to hang with the point upward, you will find no difficulty in learning to throw it.

Fig. 3 shows a very clever spring-gun which he next made. The boys had brought several good strong stalks of elder, Sambucus Canadensis. Now don't try to remember this big Latin name. Every country boy knows better what is meant by elderberry, which we will call it for the present.

These, as you know, are hollow stems filled with pith. Cut out a section between the joints, about ten inches long if possible, and remove the pith by running a small round stick through them.

About half an inch from one end cut out a piece, A, two inches long, and another, B, one-half inch long, in the under side and just a trifle farther back than the former. Near the other end on the upper side should be a notch, C. Lastly, procure a good piece of tough hickory or ash for a spring. It should be about one foot long by one-fourth of an inch wide, and thin enough to bend readily. A flat piece of spring steel is excellent if you have it.

One end of this spring is thrust into the notch at C and the other bent around and passed through the larger opening, and so that the end just projects through the lower one, as is plainly shown in the illustration.

Beans and corn grains furnish the best ammunition, but small pebbles will serve. Now, with the spring in position, place a bean against it, then with the forefinger of the left hand push the spring up from below until it is out of the notch, when, quick as a wink, it will "go off."

Last of all, Uncle Malon made a sling of a piece of leather and some string, but cautioned them against carelessness with it. A diamond-shaped piece of leather with a small hole in the center has two strings about eighteen inches long fastened to it as seen at Fig. 4.

Wrap the end of one string securely around the forefinger of the right hand and hold the other between the thumb and forefinger. Lay a small stone in the piece of leather and whirl it around several times, letting go of the free string at just the right time, and you will be astonished to see how far you can throw.

Of all these toys I think the dart is really the best, for it flies so far and so gracefully, but the spring gun will probably afford more enjoyment to most boys.

But, boys, be careful how you use them, and don't shoot about the house and scatter beans and corn grains over the floor for mother to pick up.—J. Marion Shull, in Harper's Young People.

An Unpleasant Duty Performed.

"Brother Lastly," said the spokesman, clearing his throat, "I have an unpleasant duty to perform. There is a report to the effect that you have said one of the best and most worthy members of our congregation is unable to attend services often on account of not having good enough clothes. We have come to ask the name of that member. We don't know of any such person, and a report of that kind is likely to reflect upon us as a congregation that does not look after its poor but worthy members. Will you tell us who it is?"

"Certainly, brethren," replied Rev. Mr. Lastly, with a brave attempt to be cheerful. "It's my wife."—Chicago Tribune.

Preparing for an Emergency.

Lieutenant (to his orderly)—Johann, go to the restaurant and bring me a beefsteak with onions.

Orderly—Lieutenant, I take the liberty of reminding you that you are invited out to dinner to-day.

"Where have I been invited out to dinner?"

"You have been invited to dine with the privy councilor, Von Schmidt."

"So I have to dine with the old miser. I must not go there unprepared. Johann, go to the restaurant and bring me two beefsteaks with onions."—From the German.

Despair.

"Miss Hinkley, will you be my wife?"

"Why, surely, Mr. Sappy, you must know I am engaged to Harry Watkins."

"Great Scott! Is there a girl in town that isn't engaged? You are the seventh I've asked this week."—Harper's Bazar.

Not a Tyrant.

"You have got a new hired girl, I see, Mrs. Youngwife."

"Yes; I got her about a week ago."

"How do you like her?"

"Very much indeed. She lets me do almost as I like about the house."—N. Y. Press.

A Husband's Jurisdiction.

Frank—No; my wife runs that.

Pryor—Ah, I see, you run the office.

Frank—No; the janitor runs that.

Pryor—What in thunder do you run?

He Might Marry Her.

Mrs. De Korum—I heard you kissing my son.

Servant—No, ma'am, he was kissing me.

Mrs. De Korum—Worse and worse. You must go at once.—Texas Siftings.

Appreciation.

"And then, Waldo dear, Adam and Eve were compelled to leave the Garden of Eden forever. Now was not that awful?"

"I don't know, mamma. Couldn't they have come to Boston?"—Jury.

Adding Torture to Punishment.

Teacher (who has just chastised Tommy in the usual place)—Now go and sit down!

Tommy—Oh! boo-hoo! Don't you think you have punished me enough already?—Puck.

Not Afraid.

Husband—If you don't stop using those cosmetics, you'll have facial paralysis.

Wife—Well, you've often said my features look best in repose.—N. Y. Weekly.

Guilty.

"Sullivan was arrested for having his hands in his pockets the other day."

"How could they arrest him for that?"

"Carrying concealed weapons."—Puck.

The Extent of His Ability.

"Is Barrows a bright writer?"

"Well, I don't like to say that he isn't. He's just the man for the words for a pantomime."—Judge.

In Sunday-School.

"Why should we say to Satan 'Get thee behind me!'" asked the teacher.

"So that we shall get ahead of him," returned the bright boy.—Puck.

BOMBS IN PITTSBURG

Anarchists Making Them in Large Quantities.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP A MILL.

Narrow Escape of Workmen at the Carnegie Works at 29th Street in That City—More of the Reds Under Arrest—36 More Warrants for Homestead Workmen Were Issued Yesterday.

PITTSBURG, July 28.—The police, to-day, have come into possession of facts leading them to believe that bombs are now being made in this city. A merchant on Smithfield street reports to the police that within the past three days he has sold unusually large quantities of small glass tubes and other materials that are used in the construction of the usual Anarchist bomb.

The merchant's customers have been mostly foreigners of repulsive appearance and, he says, Russian Jews, having every appearance of Anarchists.

A remarkable escape from almost certain death on the part of the 144 workmen in the forge department of the Carnegie 29th street mill has just been made public, while the perpetrator of the fiendish act is yet unknown.

An attempt was made Monday evening to blow up the boiler and engine departments of the lower Union mills at 29th street. The engineer in charge of the machinery had left his post but a few minutes. The water man, whose duty it is to keep guard of the gates, fires and water, left his position to breathe the fresh air on the outside of the building.

When he left his post the gas was burning under the boilers. When the waterman returned he noticed that there was no fire under the boilers. He threw a piece of lighted waste into one of the grates. A slight explosion occurred.

The quick return of the water man doubtless saved many lives. Five minutes delay on his part would have permitted an accumulation of gas sufficient to blow the building to atoms and the workmen to eternity. Supt. Dillon was seen this morning and confirms the report.

A sensation in the Private Iams case was brought out when members of the Randall Club announced that they would take steps to have Lieut.-Col. Streator expelled from the Randall Club.

Call Finster of Troy Hill, and August Turnopk of Allegheny, two supposed Anarchists, were arrested by Detective McTighe yesterday afternoon. Shortly before that hour the two men came to the Central police station and asked to see Bauer. Their actions were so suspicious that they were locked up. When searched nothing was found on them. The houses of both men will probably be searched. The police think they are important arrests.

Unless one of the Anarchists now in the Central station can be induced to make a confession, it is very doubtful whether the police at this end can accomplish much more in the direction of unraveling the meshes of the conspiracy surrounding the attack upon the life of Chairman Frick.

The imprisoned men, contrary to the general habits or practices of the element, have for once taken the precaution to cover their tracks behind them, and a thorough examination of the correspondence found in the rooms of Knold and Bauer developes the fact that not a scrap of it bears a date within the past six weeks.

Yet it can be proven by the postoffice officials that the mail of both men during that period has been much larger than for some time before.

Detective Shore, who is chief of the corps in charge of the case, is satisfied that the anarchists had anticipated that a general search for damaging documents would follow the attempt upon Frick's life, and that consequently they took time by the forelock in putting all such criminating evidence out of the way.

The list of Pittsburg millionaires and their residences, which was found among Bauer's papers, will, it is thought, prove an important piece of side evidence at the trial, as indicating that they have had some sinister designs in view, which were directed against persons whose names had been recorded. Among these names are those of Mr. Frick, Henry Phipps, of Carnegie, Phipps & Co.; B. F. Jones and H. W. Oliver, the big iron operators; E. F. Vandergrift, the oil man, and two women whose wealth exceeds a million.

WARRANTS FOR HOMESTEADERS.

Thirty-Six More Informations Sworn to By Secretary Lovejoy.

PITTSBURG, July 28.—When Henry C. Frick was shot last Saturday he said, while the doctors were engaged in probing the wounds, that the tragedy would have no effect whatever upon the policy of the company toward the Homestead troubles. That he meant what he said was evinced yesterday when Secretary Lovejoy appeared before Alderman McMasters and swore out 36 informations against as many of the ex-employes of the company, and upon which the warrants were immediately issued.

It is significant, however, that these informations make a change in the nature of the offense, the men being charged with aggravated riot, instead of with murder. It is taken as indicating that the company now doubts its ability to sustain the main charge against any of the men and has concluded to content itself by preferring a charge upon which there may be a chance of obtaining some convictions.

It is significant also that among the names of those included in the informations are those of nearly every ex-employe who has testified before the coroner's jury that the first shots fired on the morning of July 6 came from the Pinkertons. The fact that the company should have selected these men as victims, especially in view of the fact that as witnesses before the coroner's jury they will most likely be expected to testify in court, has created a great deal of comment and that not very favorable to the company.

The policy of suppression of names in the matter of informations was again carried out, and the majority of men against whom warrants were issued will have no knowledge of the fact until they are placed under arrest. Private information is also to the effect that the informations sworn out include the name of nearly every member of the Advisory Committee as well as some of those who have already been arrested on the charge of murder and released on bail.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Inspector McKelvey, who is acting Superintendent of Police, has been especially vigilant in watching the haunts of the Anarchists. The number, too, that the inspector has located—nearly 1,000 in the county—is quite a revelation to the citizens of Pittsburg. It has taken an extra supply of men and the work has been prosecuted day and night.

The Carnegie Company, after consultation with the District Attorney and its own criminal lawyers, has decided that there is no evidence sufficient to warrant any steps being taken against Herr Most at the present time.

It is just possible, however, that this is just a bluff for the purpose of throwing the New York suspects off the scent.

The only suspicious facts connected with Most are that he visited Knold in this city at different times during the two weeks commencing June 27, and told Knold that Berkman was coming here and that the latter, when he put in an appearance at Knold's house, said that the address had been given to him by Most. This is regarded as circumstancial evidence of a kind, but rather too circumstancial to be of any account in the present juncture, or until it is reinforced by future developments.

It is reported that James Flannigan, Anthony Flaherty and Samuel Burkett, who were named in the original information with O'Donnell and McLuckie, have left for parts unknown.

The force of non-Unionists in the Homestead mills was augmented this morning by the arrival of 150 men from the East. They were escorted from the station at Swissvale by Companies D and G of the Fourth Regiment and were taken across the river on the Little Bill.

A New York dispatch says Emma Goldman, the friend of Berkman, the would-be assassin of Mr. Frick, for whom the police have been hunting ever since the shooting, was found yesterday by a reporter at her apartments at No. 846 E. Fifth street.

She is a blonde German woman of medium stature, has a fine figure and an intelligent and rather pretty face, with large, clear blue eyes. She was dressed in white muslin and wore russet shoes and black stockings.

Miss Goldman was asked what she knew of Berkman, and said:

"I have known Berkman for a long time and have lived with him for the past two years. He is a quiet, studious, courageous fellow, who hates capitalists and tyrants."

"Did you know he was going to shoot Frick?" she was asked.

"I did not," she replied. "Berkman is a man who, once having made up his mind to do anything, does it without saying a word to anybody. He trusts nobody."

In answer to all questions relating to Berkman's crime she replied that she knew nothing about it, and that she did not know where he was going when she parted from him last week.

Miss Goldman said that there was no more conspiracy about the shooting of Mr. Frick than about any ordinary shooting. Berkman was prompted to do the deed by his own feelings.

"As for John Most or any other New York Anarchist having made him a tool, it's all nonsense. Most goes around telling how all capitalists ought to be put down, but he is too big a coward ever to have attempted or instigated any one to attempt such a deed as this."

When asked if she thought it was right to shoot Mr. Frick, she said:

"I think that all men who are tyrants ought to be put down, but not in that way."

Mr. Frick is now considered out of danger.

A Protest in the Iams Case.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 28.—Gov. Pattison received a communication from the Pennsylvania newspaper correspondents in Washington yesterday protesting against the punishment of Private Iams at Homestead. The Governor has not yet taken any action on the protest, and simply acknowledged its receipt.

O'Donnell Not Deposed as Leader.

HOMESTEAD, July 28.—There has been no compromise of the lockout. The millworkers are as determined as ever. O'Donnell has not been deposed from the leadership, and he denies that he offered unconditional surrender to the Carnegie Company.

PAWNED HIS WIFE'S WATCH.

Short Honeymoon of an Alleged Nephew of Cyrus W. Field.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, July 28.—Frank D. Field, who claims to be a nephew of Cyrus W. Field, created a sensation here by pawning his wife's watch and skipping out, leaving an unsettled board bill of $50 at Westminster Park.

Mrs. Field was a Mrs. Mary Kelley, who holds a $1,000 clerkship in the Pension Bureau, a position secured for her by President Harrison when he was in the Senate. She met Field for the first time at the Chicago convention last June, and two weeks later they were married by a Justice of the Peace at Detroit. They were spending their honeymoon here and moved in the best society circles.

The City of Paris Breaks the Record.

Stated That He Has a Proposition from the Homestead Men to Their Late Employer—Its Terms—Mr. Blaine Also Reported Interested.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Hugh O'Donnell, leader of the locked-out Homestead workmen, is now near this city and is awaiting the outcome of great efforts to win victory for his cause.

The men are willing to compromise. An offer has already been made to them, on which they are willing to go back to work.

Chauncey M. Depew sailed for England yesterday on the White Star steamer Majestic, and it is considered certain that he took with him a proposition from the locked-out men to Mr. Carnegie, to be delivered to the great steel manufacturer as President Depew sets foot on English soil.

The proposition for a cessation of the troubles provides that the workmen shall be given everything for which they have contended; will sign the reduced scale proposed by the Carnegie works, and will permit the scale agreement to expire in December instead of June, provided the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers is recognized as an association.

This is the one thing that Manager Frick has said he will never do. Before he was shot down he said he would never treat or confer with the Amalgamated Association as a body again.

That being the attitude of Manager Frick, the proposition of the workmen to Mr. Carnegie is understood to include and provide that Manager Frick shall retire from his position as head of the company, as the locked-out men are convinced he will never recognize their organization, and that therefore the only way to secure recognition is to displace Mr. Frick.

The men understood to have undertaken the settlement of the trouble are James G. Blaine, ex-Secretary of State, a close friend of Mr. Carnegie, and Chauncey M. Depew, who sailed for England yesterday. Numerous messages are said to have already passed between Mr. Carnegie and those interested in the settlement of the strike. It is even said that direct communication for that purpose has been established, since the shooting of Manager Frick, between Mr. Carnegie and this side.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE OUTLAWS.

A Sheriff's Posse Chasing the Cooley Gang—Their Latest Atrocity.

PITTSBURG, July 28.—A dispatch from Uniontown, Pa., this morning, says: A posse has started out in pursuit of the Cooley band of outlaws and it is not at all improbable that lynching will take place if the outlaws are apprehended.

The terrible mode of revenge adopted by the outlaws upon Wesley Sisler has caused the greatest excitement in this vicinity. Sisler's young daughter, who was the victim of the fiends' actions, is in a precarious condition and may not recover.

The full facts in the affair did not come out until yesterday.

Jack Cooley, leader of a notorious band of outlaws, was captured and shot last Friday. His last words were: "See that my death is avenged."

On Sunday Cooley was buried, and then his band began its work of revenge. Wesley Sisler, who aided in the capture of the leader, was overpowered at his home in Haydentown and pinioned. His only child, a young girl, was then assaulted by members of the band.

The helpless father's cries for help were stifled and his struggle for liberty ended by a blow from a musket butt.

The band then departed, apparently selecting this mode of revenge as of a more refined cruelty than physical punishment or death.

A man named Rankin, said to have succeeded Cooley as leader, has been arrested for sheep stealing.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

A Wilkesbarre Miner Kills His Wife and Then Himself.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 28.—A shocking murder and suicide was committed here last evening by Alexander Eggleston, a miner, who had been separated from his wife for the last six weeks. He went to the house where the woman lived and asked her if she intended to live with him again. The woman, who had an infant in her arms, made no reply.

Eggleston without warning pulled a revolver and the woman fell dead at the first shot, with the child still in her arms. The murderer then fired at his son, but without effect. He then pointed the weapon at his own head and fired.

The ball penetrated his skull and death followed in twenty minutes. Eight children are left orphans because of jealousy and drink.

National Committee Headquarters.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The Democratic National headquarters are to be at No. 130 Fifth avenue. Chairman Harrity says they will be occupied at once. The Republican National Committee will take formal possession of their headquarters at No. 518 Fifth avenue to-day.

Precautionary Measure Against Cholera.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—As a precautionary measure against the introduction of cholera, the Secretary of the Treasury has directed Collectors of Customs along the Atlantic seaboard to prohibit the landing of emigrants from France.

ALICE MITCHELL TESTIFIES.

Says She Wanted to Keep Freda Ward For Herself.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 28.—In the Mitchell murder case the defendant was called. She arose slowly from her chair and walked deliberately to the witness stand. She was not sworn and answered the questions of Gen. Peters in a low but firm voice.

She said she had known Freda as long as she could remember. She visited her at Gold Dust twice.

The last time she remained two weeks. She said she knew of nothing unpleasant between her and Mrs. Volkmar. She saw Ashley Roselle twice. She thought he was in love with Freda Ward. She knew the way Freda spoke of him that they were engaged.

"I didn't want Freda to marry any young man, but wanted her myself." The witness began to cry and continued, "Freda winked at me near the Custom House. That wink, with the right eye," said she, "meant 'I love you.'

"Lillie said to me as I started to kill Freda, 'Where are you going?' I replied I wanted see Freda once more."

Here the witness burst out crying again.

Who Gen. Peters asked that Alice be placed on the stand the defence made the objection that there was no precedent for such action. A hot argument ensued, and Gen. Wright made an eloquent plea to save the family from the humiliation of Alice making an exhibition of herself on the stand. After she had testified Gen. Peters stated that the State had nothing to offer. Gen. Wright said the defense was willing to submit the case without argument and Gen. Peters, after a moment's conversation with some of the junior counsel, said he did not care to argue the case on account of the proceedings in the Federal Court at Nashville in the H. Clay King murder case, in which Gen. Peters, Gen. Wright and Col. Gantt represented the State.

Judge Dubose will not charge the jury until to-morrow. Miss Mitchell was taken back to the jail, and as she left the courtroom she smiled and chatted with her father and the attorneys.

SEVERE STORM AT YORK, PA.

Lightning and Wind Do Great Damage—One Man Killed.

YORK, Pa., July 28.—York had another severe experience with a thunderstorm yesterday. It began about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and for half an hour the rain fell in torrents accompanied by a high wind, vivid lightning and heavy thunder.

The street car stables were demolished, and Samuel Rapp, a carpenter, was killed. The timbers of the building and rafters pinned him to the ground and his neck was broken. Nine street cars in the building were damaged, two of which are total wrecks. The company's loss is from $7,000 to $8,000.

Among the other places struck were the residences of B. C. Wilkinson and Samuel Long. The third story of William Bott's house was torn off. The roof was carried across the street, where it struck the roof of Pfaltsgraff's pottery and demolished it.

The roof of a big shed at the Lanius Coal Yard was carried several hundred feet, and a new frame house owned by Alexander Lehr was blown down. Several other buildings suffered from lightning and wind.

FROM BROODING OVER LOSSES.

Kennedy, Who Killed Broker Page and Then Himself, Was Insane.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—It is thought now that Ronald Kennedy, who shot and almost instantly killed Mr. Charles H. Page, of the firm of E. D. Page & Bro., stock brokers, 139 South Forth St., was insane from brooding over his losses. He was a customer who had been dealing in margins with the firm for the past two years. Immediately afterwards Kennedy, who was a Scotchman by birth and who lived at No. 110 North Eleventh Street, placed the pistol to his own head and sent a bullet into his brain, death being instantaneous.

The murderer and suicide is said to have lost between $15,000 and $20,000 since he began dealing with the firm.

Charles H. Page was 32 years of age, and lived at 2221 Locust street. His wife and child are at Cape May, to which place the murdered man made daily trips.

The broker's father and mother are traveling in Europe, and when last heard from were in the heart of Switzerland.

At the time of the tragedy Mr. Page was seated at his desk, busily engaged in writing.

Mr. Page lived only five minutes after the shot.

A Bogus Nobleman Arrested.

NEW YORK, July 28.—William Wilson, who, for two years past, has traveled over the country as Sir Edward Cook, cousin of Earl Dudley and Lord Mandeville, is a prisoner at Police Headquarters. Wilson, passing as an English nobleman, swindled extensively in the West. He came to this city and made a specialty of swindling jewelers. While it is not known how many firms were nipped, enough complaints have been found to insure the bogus nobleman a long term in prison.

Smallpox in a New York Hospital.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Through the removal to the Reception Hospital on North Brother Island of Isaac T. Walker, a patient from Ward G in the New York Hospital, the Board of Health made the discovery that since June 28 there have been six cases of smallpox in that institution. The disease was introduced into the ward by Paxton Deese, a negro who was admitted in June. A rigid investigation will be made.

Dr. McGonigle in Another Scrape.

LONG ISLAND CITY, July 28.—Dr. Henry C. McGonigle, of 257 W. 125th street, who was convicted of causing the death of Annie Goodwin in Harlem by a criminal operation, and who has been a fugitive from justice for many months, has just been arrested in this city charged with causing the death of Mrs. Louise Webb, of 400 Hamilton street, Ravenswood. Mrs. Webb died Tuesday, the autopsy showing, from the effects of malpractice.

A Desperate Burglar's Dead.

BOSTON, July 28.—The family of C. W. Whitman, on Wellington avenue, Somerville, were aroused from sleep soon after midnight to find that their house was on fire and that it had been ransacked by a burglar, who, on leaving, had started a fire in the cellar under the stairs. The flames were extinguished with a damage of $250 to house and furniture.

WILL FIGHT TO THE END

Opponents of the Fair Appropriation Very Bitter.

ITS SUPPORTERS ARE JUBILANT.

They Carry a Motion That the House Recede from Its Disagreement to the Senate Amendment—Filibustering Prevents Further Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Representative Durburrow, of Chicago, Ill., chairman of the Columbian Exposition Committee, said this morning, that although he had sent out telegrams to many friends of the amendment to the Sundry Civil bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the exposition, requesting them to come to Washington as soon as possible, he does not expect to get enough here to make a quorum if the filibustering keeps up.

He does hope, however, that some of the filibusterers will vote either for or against the measure, and thus make a quorum. He also says that the friends of the measure can stand the filibustering if the filibusterers can, and will fight the battle to the end.

Representative Outhwaite of Ohio, who led the forces against the amendment in the House yesterday, said this morning to a representative of the "United Press" that he and the gentlemen who are with him have made up their minds to fight it out to the bitter end, and if necessary, will stay in Washington until the snow flies before they will allow the appropriation to be adopted.

Mr. Outhwaite said that he is of the opinion that those members who are in favor of the appropriation will not be able to get a quorum voting. He also said that it was his opinion, even supposing for an instant that the bill should pass with the amendment, that it would require an act repealing the law of two years ago to make the bill legal and enable the World's Fair people to draw the money from the Treasury.

FILIBUSTERING IN THE HOUSE.

World's Fair Advocates Jubilant at the Result of Their Labors.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The House session yesterday will be long remembered as a red letter filibustering day and the World's Fair advocates have reason to feel gratified at the result. The crucial test vote of the day was on the motion of Mr. Bingham (Rep.), Pennsylvania, that the House should recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment appropriating $5,000,000 for the fair. This was carried—117 to 105.

At the beginning of the debate Mr. McMillin (Dem. Tenn.) opposed the appropriation and said the treasury was in a depleted condition and yet Congress was asked to vote $5,000,000 to Chicago in face of the fact that a solemn pledge was given when the proposition of a site was before the House that no money would be asked for. This closed the debate and the House proceeded to vote on the amendments.

The House insisted on its disagreement to the Senate amendments increasing the appropriation for the Government Exhibit from $315,500 to $500,000; that increasing the appropriation for the World's Columbian Commission from $95,500 to $320,000; increasing the item for the Board of Lady Managers from $35,000 to $138,000.

The $5,000,000 item being reached, parliamentary discussion ensued as to the right to submit amendments, and Mr. Cheatham (Rep. N. C.) was unable to offer his amendment to devote $50,000 for collecting statistics of the colored race.

Mr. Bankhead's (Dem. Ala.) amendment to appropriate five dollars in lieu of the five million asked for, was then submitted and the yeas and nays called for. The motion was lost, and then the proposition to recede from the former action of the House on the Senate amendment was carried, as stated above.

The filibustering then began. Mr. Holman moved to reconsider the vote. Mr. Bingham moved to lay Mr. Holman's motion on the table. Mr. Outhwaite (Dem.), Ohio, moved to adjourn, and pending that moved to adjourn until Friday. Mr. Bailey (Dem.), Texas, moved to adjourn until Saturday. No quorum voting on this motion a call of the House was ordered, 229 members answering to their names.

Mr. Bingham offered and the House adopted a resolution revoking all leaves of absence except for personal or family illness, and instructing the Sergeant-at-Arms to send for all absentees.

Mr. Burborrow, (Dem.,) Illinois, Chairman of the World's Fair Committee, has telegraphed to many absent members favoring the appropriation to return to Washington at once, and the deadlock is liable to continue for some time if the opponents of the measure keep up the filibustering tactics.

The Peach Crop Outlook.

TRENTON, N. J., July 28.—New York and Philadelphia peach buyers, commission men and dealers are enthusiastic over the outlook for the crop this year. Many representatives of these men are now traveling through the peach districts of this State and Delaware, buying up orchards and their prospective yields. Estimates based upon the "June drop," which is said to be the crucial test and which was not very large this year, show that there will be about a two-thirds crop. From present indications the fruit will be of a better quality this year than for a long time.

Gladstone Arrives in London.

LONDON, July 28.—Mr. Gladstone has arrived in London. He is looking remarkably hearty and vigorous. He wears dark glasses, rather as a comfort than as a necessity. He walked with a springy step on the platform of the Euston Station, where hundreds cheered him repeatedly. Mr. Gladstone was driven in a carriage to the residence of Mr. Stuart Rendal, Carlton House Terrace, where he will have his headquarters until installed in Downing street.

It appears to be a frog, but instead of webbed feet it has finger-like toes, on the tip of each of which is a sucker that enables it to walk as rapidly upside-down as otherwise.

—That which tells how to live and enjoy life is entitled to much more than ordinary consideration and support; and the great success of Table Talk is therefore not a matter for wonder. Runyon, and a sister-in-law of Frank S. Runyon, cashier of the First National Bank. She had of late been improving of her long illness, but the extreme hot weather overpowered her.

During this hot weather it has conducted a house-to-house inspection of all sess-pools, vaults and cellars, and has insisted that all dwellings be kept in strict sanitary condition.

THOSE "SPORTING EDITORS" AGAIN.

And Yet Such People Are Permitted to Intrude Themselves Among Newspaper Men.

According to the Courier—which makes a "specialty" of bicycle notes stolen from trade papers—Zimmerman the champion returned from England, Saturday, on the fourst Bismarck, loaded with souvenirs and greeted down the bay by a large party of his admirers. The fact is he did n't get in until yesterday and then aboard the City of Paris.

The Crescent team has a wonder beyond all teams in the world—that is, a center fielder who catches foul flys. The News of yesterday says the "only" brilliant play of Tuesday's game was "a long foul fly caught by Leidy in the ninth inning". The three outs in the ninth inning were on two strike-outs and one hit to first base.

Tuesday's Courier said "the Plainfield representatives in the century run after finishing at Newark Saturday night, raced home, making the distance in forty-four minutes. This is very good time."

We should say it was. The fastest 25-mile road record is a 3-minute pace, while the above is just a bit above Windle's track record of 2:15 to the mile, Newark, we believe, is eighteen miles away. Three times eighteen is—well, figure it out yourself. Won't somebody explain?

EVEN IN SOMERVILLE IT'S NOTICED

That THE PRESS Alone is Plainfield's Newspaper.

SOMERVILLE, July 26.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Somerville has the reputation of kicking, but only when there is a good and sufficient cause. That we have the right to do some energetic work of this kind is easily shown by reading the story of the West End-Westfield game last Saturday which appears in a newspaper called the "Courier" published in your city. Either the base-ball editor of the "Courier" did not see the game or else he was unable to score and follow a smartly played game such as that of Saturday last. The "Courier" said on Monday night: "That in the first inning Carbonell flew out at short; that Farrell died on first base; and that Gore's heavy hit to right field did not prevent him from giving up the ghost." Now what disposition does the brilliant "Courier" man make of Harkins in the first inning. In the score—which it is plain to be seen was copied out of the Sunday Sun—Harkins's name is ahead of Gore's, and yet the "Courier" says that Gore flew out to right field.

Ye gods and little fishes! George Gore did not come to the bat in the first inning at all, but made the run in the second inning which the "Courier" man says Harkins made. Also he says that in the seventh inning Harkins, Murray and Cadmus scored, but it was Gore who scored the first run in the seventh, and again he did the same thing in the eighth. Thus the "Courier" gives Harkins the credit of making two runs in the story, and yet in the score a nought appears opposite his name in the run column. There is surely a screw loose somewhere. Where is it? It really seems as if the sporting department of the "Courier" was deficient, or does it all come about because the base-ball man does not know how to make up the score and is compelled to copy from the Sun. I am glad to say that I have watched the PRESS reports this year and find them very fair and not tainted with partisan feeling. Let there be more newspapers like the PRESS and the people will be better off. M.

SERGEANT LYNCH AGGRIEVED.

A Drunken Man Insults Him in Public, and Is Punished.

The presence of Bethune Dunham in the prisoner's dock this morning put judge Codington in a quandary. Dunham had been up before him so often—he said—that he felt prompted to send him to the county jail. But he was satisfied that Dunham's wages were needed at home, and he did n't want to deprive the family of its support. Neither did he like to impose a heavy fine the payment of which would bring hardship on the wife and children.

Dunham has the hand and eye of an artist, and can make good wages at house decorating; but strong drink is his temptation, and it was liquor that got him into trouble again last night. He was intoxicated when he met sergeant Lynch on Park avenue. He greeted the officer derisively, wriggled his fingers at him from the tip of his nose, and called him a "damn sucker". Mr. Lynch resented the insult by locking Dunham in one of the cells of the building familiarly known as the cooler, but which might more properly be termed the heater.

This morning Dunham looked as though he had spent the night in a fiery furnace. He pleaded guilty to the offenses charged, and after some deliberation the court fined him $5. Sergeant Lynch played the part of the good Samaritan by granting Dunham parole so he could raise the money to pay his fine.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY BURIED HER.

The Woodbridge Suicide Undoubtedly Eliza Brady of Plainfield.

The body of the woman found in the Kill von Kull has been positively identified as that of Eliza Brady, the servant girl from Plainfield who was known at Mrs. Lindsay's intelligence office at despondent and tired of life.

Mrs. Lindsay reached Woodbridge at 2 yesterday afternoon, and positively identified the remains. Eliza Brady, she said, was an Irish woman, about 40 years of age. She had been in this country twenty-six years, and in Plainfield about four years. Mrs. Lindsay said she did not think the woman had any money or friends. The last time she saw her was on Saturday last. The Brady woman then said she was going out of town and would be back again on Monday. She was of a morose and despondent disposition, and Mrs. Lindsay believes that she committed suicide. Eliza had never been on the cars, and had a terror of them. She probably wandered away across country.

Dr. Donohue made a thorough examination of the body Wednesday morning and found no marks that would suggest that the woman had met with foul play. He left town before the arrival of Mrs. Lindsay, but said that he would issue a burial permit as soon as the woman was identified. As she had no friends, Middlesex county buried her, yesterday afternoon.

The Daily Dozer Takes a Nap.

The Newark Advertiser in times past won for itself the sobriquet of Daily Dozer. Since its change of management better things have been expected of it, but the following, which appeared in its columns last evening, shows that it has not yet fully shaken off its slumbering habits:

SAID TO BE A PLAINFIELD GIRL.

Special to the Daily Advertiser:

PLAINFIELD, July 27.—It is said that the woman whose body was found in the Sound near Woodbridge was Miss Van Buskirk, who belongs to a well-known family here.

She was a beautiful girl, prominent in society, and lived at No. 76 West Seventh street.

Ridiculous! Such stuff as that could come only from a dream. The Tiser's correspondent has been having nightmare, and the nodding Tiser was too sleepy to see through even so flimsy a fabrication.

Bible Conference at the Park.

The fifth inter-denominational Bible conference will be held in Educational hall, Asbury Park, August 11—19. The following distinguished preachers and teachers have promised to be present: James H. J. Erdman, D. D., and the Rev. D. M. Stearns. Sessions will be held each day at 10 a. m., 3 p. m., and 7:30 p. m.

The Color Line at Asbury Park, Once More.

Since the season opened, early in June, the colored people, many of whom are employed in the hotels and cottages, have been occupying some of the best seats in the pavilions and using a large part of founder Bradley's board-walk. The editor of the Asbury Park Journal, which was at one time Mr. Bradley's official organ, says: "Let the colored servants have all the sea-room they need, but let them take it at a time when the hotel guests are not obtrusively interfered with." The article created a big stir among the colored people. Four years ago similar complaints were made and Mr. Bradley set off a part of his beach at the foot of Second avenue as a bathing ground for the colored people. He cut down the regular rental of a bathing suit to 15 cents, and everything was serene again. Similar action will probably be taken this year by the founder.

Where the grasses are kissed by the wand'ring breeze,
And the fields are rich with the golden grain;
Where the schooner ploughs through the prairie seas,
To its destined port on the Western plain;
Where homes may never be sought in vain,
And hope is the thriftiest plant that grows;
Where man may ever his rights maintain,
And land is as free as the wind that blows.

The Deadly Horse Cars Again.

John Doriand, a newsboy for the Elizabeth Daily Leader, about twelve years old, was knocked down and badly hurt at Elizabethport last evening while trying to board a Jersey street horse car on the front platform. One of the wheels partly ran over the little fellow's stomach, and it is believed he is fatally injured internally.

Saved from Death by His Comrades.

A workman employed at Wilson's stone-crusher was overcome by the heat while at work on the steep side of the quarry, Tuesday, and fell backward. Had he not been caught, in falling, by two fellow-workmen, he must have been dashed to death on the rocks below.

Pushing the Madison Avenue Project.

It is now said that the North Plainfield authorities are opposed to considering the proposed Madison avenue extension until after the Peace street project is disposed of. They are reported as saying that one such matter is enough to bother about at one time. The promoters of the scheme, however, are pushing it through as rapidly as possible, and say that the authorities are compelled by law to put the new street through as soon as they present the requisite petition, which will soon be done.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

PROPELLOR STREET CARS.

Proposition Coming for Street Railway Service in North Plainfield, by a Screw System.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Having seen by the New York papers that the borough of North Plainfield, N. J., is about to have built a street railway, the use of which will be given free of charge to inventors on which to try new modes of street car propulsion other than electricity, I feel grateful for this opportunity of giving a fair public trial to the screw as a means of propulsion. The true spirit of encouragement is here displayed. Many desire new inventions to be tried, but wish the inventor to bear all the expense, which is not exactly fair. The genius gives all his time and energy and means to the perfecting of some great invention, and in many cases is impoverished thereby; and in order to bring his invention before the public must give the lion's share of the benefits to the monied men who furnish the capital.

I say it gives me great satisfaction to see the borough council exercise this philanthropic spirit, for though I am not exactly an impecunious inventor, yet the relief from an expenditure of several thousand dollars for the introduction of my inventions is very acceptable. I now see my way clear to hold on to much that I had expected to give for financial aid. The system I wish to introduce is the screw. It is so simple that little explanation is needed. Any schoolboy knows how the thread of the screw draws the screw into the wood. It is just as simple to reverse the order and let the wood travel on the thread of the screw. That is the general principle. The details of construction are a little more intricate. In order to give your readers an understanding of my invention and thereby gain their sympathy and support, I will elaborate somewhat.

The system is composed of four principal parts. The track is the same as any ordinary street railway track, with the exception of a conduit through the centre underneath the surface of the street with an open slot along its upper surface.

The car is the same as an ordinary street car but carrying the necessary appliances for connecting with the rotating screw within the conduit, which in its turn is connected with a stationary engine for giving it the necessary rotating motion.

This is all so simple that I will only show to your readers the power and speed that can be developed, and a few of its many advantages over horses, electricity, compressed-air, carbonic acid gas, naptha, the Connolly motor and the thousand and one other appliances for propelling street cars; all of which have proved themselves failures, excepting horses and my own recent inventions.

Its first advantage is the ease with which the car is managed, rendering it absolutely safe; for the driver has only to draw back a lever which releases the car from the revolving screw, thus cutting of absolutely the propulsion power, then by the simple application of the brake the car is brought to a standstill.

Secondly there is entire freedom from noise. The screw revolving on automatically lubricated bearings and the thread itself being well lubricated renders it entirely noiseless.

Thirdly there is no danger from explosion as with compressed air or gases, and none of the hissing sound of the exhaust.

Neither are there noxious and poisonous odors generated, as with the carbonic acid gas, and kindred contrivances.

Other advantages might also be cited which would all tend to give it increased favor with the public.

There is no difficulty in attaining a speed of twelve miles per hour, and as the power is applied gradually the car is started and stopped without jar or jerking.

The details of the construction of the endless screw, its mountings and connections, are too intricate for an article such as this and are also without interest to the general reader.

I would like to suggest that when the track is laid, the rails be placed on chairs and the cross-ties be put as deeply below the surface of the streets as possible, as it will make a saving of expense when I am ready to put in the conduits and screw.

I shall, however, furnish the borough council with the necessary details of construction, so they may make the facilities they offer as complete as possible.

Fewer Executions in Jersey.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

Recent investigations in seventeen counties in New Jersey show that capital punishment has been inflicted upon only a little more than forty per cent. of those who were indicted for murder in the first degree, during the last five years. Hudson, for example, has had a large number of murder trials, but only once has the death penalty been inflicted. Morris has had seven indictments, but no executions. Camden counts up eight indictments in the five years, but has executed no one. Union has indicted five, and has had no executions. Such statistics seem to be an indication that there is a silent growth of a sentiment averse to this form of punishment.

Oh, What a Cough!

Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. O'DONNELL DISAPPEARS.

The Strike Leader Left Homestead Secretly Last Night.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 28.—Mrs. O'Donnell said this morning that her husband had gone away on private business, but she did not know his whereabouts.

Great excitement was caused here yesterday evening when the report that O'Donnell had disappeared spread about the town.

A secret meeting of the Advisory Committee was held at a late hour, and the strike leader was absent. It was stated this morning that O'Donnell left on the Baltimore & Ohio for the East at 9:45 last night. Some think he will not return.

SISTARE A SUICIDE.

A Wall Street Broker Shoots Himself at the Manhattan Club-House.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

NEW YORK, July 27.—George K. Sistare, a Wall street broker, was found dead in a room on the first floor of Manhattan Club at 10:25 this morning. There was a bullet hole in the right side of his head, just back of the temple.

A five-chambered 38-calibre revolver was found by the dead man's side. Three of the chambers had been emptied.

The police of the Nineteenth precinct, who were summoned immediately after the shooting occurred, are in great doubt as to whether the case is one of suicide or murder, but the latter theory was declared absurd at the club. The dead man's firm failed two years ago.

THE PROTRACTED HEAT.

A Check in the Subsidence of the Warm Wave—Cooler Weather Coming.

The subsidence of the warm wave which seemed to begin yesterday and gave some promise of going on to-day with increased vigor after the slight showers of yesterday afternoon proved a false promise. As it turned out, the lower temperature, by two or three degrees, with which yesterday began was as far as the subsidence got; to-day opened as warm as yesterday, and with 30 per cent. more humidity. A westerly wind of some force mitigated the effects somewhat of the torrid rays, but the streets were very warm. The mercury climbed steadily during the forenoon, and is fully as high as yesterday. The humidity also continued fairly abundant, measuring in the neighborhood of 70 per cent. throughout the morning.

It is confidently predicted that the warm wave will recede this evening, but the fact that there is no abatement of the heat in the West is regarded as a discouraging feature. Already this period of torrid weather has been abnormally protracted, and this is taken to be a condition favorable to its termination.

A Landmark Gone.

The union station built at Elizabeth thirty-seven years ago for the use of the Central and Pennsylvania railroads, was razed to the ground yesterday afternoon. A big crowd saw the old landmark demolished, and many persons carried away bits of the wood for souvenirs. Two carpenters working on the job got hurt. One fell through the rafters of the roof into the waiting room; the other tumbled off the cornice of the building into a pile of timbers below and had his right ankle and wrist broken. The Pennsylvania railroad company officials yesterday morning took possession of the temporary station erected for their accommodation until the new one is built. The Central's officials moved into the stone station that has just been finished for that company.

Think It's a Clock for Somerville.

(From The Somerville Messenger.)

The West Ends still have eight championship games to play, but as four of them are with the Crescents, who are easy victims, the matter of winning the pennant should be a cinch for them.

It was to be hoped that when the Crescents and West Ends met on Saturday next it would be on an even footing, but the fates ordained otherwise, and the Crescents still lead by one point.

A Fine Team Ruined.

Thomas VanNest of South Plainfield had two fine horses ruined Monday. The animals got out on the Lehigh Valley railroad tracks, and the gravel train chased them along till they fell between the ties of a bridge crossing a stream. One horse was so badly hurt that it had to be shot to end its sufferings, and the other is crippled for life.

Proof of Merit.

The proof of the merits of a plaster is the cures it effects, and the voluntary testimonials of those who have used ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS during the past thirty years is unimpeachable evidence of their superiority and should convince the most skeptical. Self-praise is no recommendation, but certificates from those who have used them are.

FINE SPORT AT SARATOGA.

The "Chippie" Crew of New York Breaks the Record for Senior Eights.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 28.—It was proved yesterday that the National Association of Oarsmen system of having races with a turn must be abolished. Good oarsmen failed to make records because of the turn buoys being placed too close together. There were no less than four bad fouls, and eleven oarsmen were struggling in the water at different times.

Of the eight races rowed at least three will have to be rowed again because of the fouls at the turning buoy.

The last race of the day was the event of the programme, and the record of eight minutes for senior eights, mile and a half straightaway, is smashed and beaten by five seconds by the famous "Chippie" crew of the New York Athletic Club. Their time was 7:55. The water and conditions were perfect.

The Manhattan Club of New York were second and the Maltas of Philadelphia third.

ANARCHY IN INDIANA.

Five Hundred Drunken Italians Running Amuck About Star City.

STAR CITY, Ind., July 28.—Fifteen hundred Italians are employed in the immediate vicinity of this city laying a pipe line to Chicago. About one-third of them have been drunk for three or four days and are terrorizing this whole section of country.

Farmers have barricaded their houses, and no one ventures out unarmed alone. All work is suspended, saloons and stores are wrecked, women are assaulted, and in one instance they attempted to lynch a man who resisted their efforts to rob him. The officers are powerless and anarchy prevails.

Gen. Weaver's Opening Address.

DENVER, Col., July 28.—Gen. Weaver, the People's party candidate for President, made his opening address to a crowded meeting last night at Coliseum Hall. An overflow meeting was also held, which was addressed by Mrs. M. E. Lease, the woman reformer from Kansas. In the hall Gen. Weaver was made a present of a silver pen. B. Clark Wheeler, who presented the pen, said that Gen. Weaver, when elected, could use the pen to sign the Free Coinage bill. Gen. Weaver's address was enthusiastically received.

Trainmen Accused of Robbing Cars.

MEADVILLE, Pa., July 28.—Conductors Edward Jones and Alfred Gould and Brakeman Edward Coglan, if the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railway, have been arrested for robbing freight cars. The trio were held in court, and Jones and Gould in default of bail were lodged in jail. Jones is a prominent member of both the Conductors' and Trainmen's Brotherhoods, and has been several years chairman of the Grievance Committee.

Enticed to an Italian Boarding House.

NEWARK, N. J., July 28.—Fanny Snyder, aged 16 years, left her home on Passaic avenue early Sunday afternoon, with the intention of going to Sunday school. After three days' absence she was discovered in an Italian boarding house. She says she was enticed to the place by an Italian whose name the police refuse to reveal. The girl's golden hair had been cut off.

How They Differed.

Ex-Gov. Robert Taylor, of Tennessee, is reported by the Atlanta Journal as telling this story:

He was talking with an old colored man:

"Well, John," he said, "what are you doing these days?"

"I'se a zorter, now, Massa Bob."

"An exhorter, you mean."

"Yass, sir; a zorter—dat's it."

"I thought you were a preacher. What's the difference between a preacher and an exhorter?"

"Diffrence 'twixt er zorter an' er preacher is zachly this: Preacher he stick to de text, but zorter he hits all round."

A Quick-Witted Troubadour.

It is said that the troubadour Pierre de Chateauneuf, who lived in the thirteenth century, had a marvelous power over the feelings of his audience. Once, while upon a journey, he fell into the hands of robbers, who, after taking his money and stripping him, were about to kill him. The poet prayed them to let him sing one song before he died, and they consented. He improvised a song in praise of the brigand life, and when he had finished, his captors gave back his horse, his money and accoutrements, in their delight at the sweetness of his voice and his verse.

PLAYING COLUMBUS.

He stood on the deck of his vessel
(And that was the baby's high chair),
His glass was a roll made of paper;
The kitchen he scanned with great care.

His crew was a cat and the baby,
In a tub just behind him they sat;
The baby looked pleased and contented—
I can't say as much for the cat.

"I know there is land just before me,
And near the great treasures I am!"
His eyes, quite unconsciously, wandered
To certain high shelves, heaped with jam.

"Ah! here are some berries, like coral;
They must come from off shore, I know."
The baby looked hurt, when he shouted:
"A light! See, a light!" and "land, ho!"

Then puss, with a gentle "me-yeow"-ing,
Was glad that the voyage was o'er;
And, arching its back in a hurry,
Was first of the crew upon shore.

The high chair just here slightly tilted,
And, with a big bump on his head,
In spite of his gallant discovery,
Columbus was packed off to bed!

THE LYRE BIRD.

An Extraordinary Variety of the Feathered Tribes of Australia.

In the vast forests of New South Wales, broken up and intersected with rock and ravine, stream and plain, you may still meet with one of the most beautiful birds known to naturalists, that is, the lyre bird.

Looking at the illustration, it will be seen at once that the form and structure of the tail resembles an ancient Grecian lyre, hence the bird's name. The size of this bird is about that of the common hen; the eyes are dark hazel, large, mild in expression, and very beautiful; the wings short and concave, rendering great assistance when running, but of little use in flight. The bird's running powers are extraordinary, and it is not easily overtaken; the legs are rather long; the color of the body is a reddish brown, and the general appearance is exceedingly graceful. The bird is of gentle disposition and altogether harmless.

It is painful to know that the constant destruction of rare and beautiful birds, as well as animals, is going on even to extermination. An English writer is authority for the statement that the lyre bird will soon be lost to us forever. He says that the tail feathers were formerly sold in Sydney at a low price, but now that the beautiful creatures are nearly exterminated the price has risen greatly. Upon fashion and "sport," even more than the ignorant savages, he places the blame of their destruction, adding that the birds might easily have been domesticated and thus preserved.

THE FUNNY OWL.

It Does All Its Hunting for Food at Night.

Look at this dignified, sober creature, with its eyes almost shut up in the daytime, and wide open at night! This queer bird works just as watchmen do: does all its hunting for mice and other food in the dark.

If you want the rats caught in your barn, owls are better than all the cats in the world.

A live owl in the daylight has his head shrunk into his body, and is very stupid; but the moment night comes, his eyes are like living balls of fire, and he is all ready for work.

Owls have the edges of their wing-quills slightly turned back, and covered with fine hairs, so that they may fly very quietly. The only one without them is the hawk owl. Do you know why? Because it is the only one that flies in the daytime.

They cannot sing like other birds, but make a dismal cry which sounds like "T-whit, T-whoo!" Even the beautiful snowy owl of Greenland make the winters there lonely and sad with its frightful screech.

Most birds have some fun about them, but the owls haven't a bit.—Mrs. G. Hall, in Our Little Ones.

The Sky Had Fallen.

Georgie was taking a walk one damp day, when the fog was so dense that one could not see a yard before him on the sidewalk. After going a few blocks the child said: "Oh, see, the sky is on the sidewalk; we are walking through it."—Harper's Young People.

It Overgrew Her.

Grandma—I hear that you are to have a new dress.

Allie—Yes, I have got to have a bigger one. My old dress has outgrown me.—Harper's Young People.

FACING A BUFFALO.

It Requires a Great Deal of Courage and Presence of Mind.

Romolo Gessi Pasha, in his "Seven Years in the Soudan," describes his first experience in shooting "large game." He had used a gun from boyhood, but had never hunted anything larger than wild goats and wolves. Now he was in a buffalo country, and one day a soldier came in to say that he had seen several of the animals in the neighborhood. The temptation was too great, and, in spite of the excessive heat, Signor Gessi, with a servant and the soldier, sallied forth.

when I saw six fine male buffaloes. Hiding behind anthills, and taking advantage of the wind, which blew toward us, we slowly approached the animals. When we were within eight paces of them they scented the danger, and the two which were on guard fixed their eyes in our direction.

We waited behind a sugar-loaf anthill for half an hour, not daring to move for fear of scaring the game. Then I changed my mind, and tried to reach another anthill a hundred feet away, from which I could shoot sideways, as I supposed, taking advantage of the bushes.

Without being noticed by Haggi, to whom I had said nothing of my intention, I started for the place. When I was halfway between the two anthills I saw that Haggi was taking aim, and before I could call out to him the shot resounded.

The buffaloes looked up, uncertain whence came the danger. The grass where I stood was low, and I was plainly visible. One of the animals was wounded in the shoulder, too high to break the bone, and, foaming at the mouth, with his tail in the air, he rushed upon me.

I waited, motionless, until he was within twelve paces. Then I placed a ball in his head about an inch below the horns. He bent his hind legs, but recovered himself almost at once. I fired my second barrel, and he fell lifeless to the ground.

A BURGLAR ELEPHANT.

How Polly Robbed a Grocery Store in a Country Town.

Polly was a cunning old elephant, who belonged to a traveling circus. She went from town to town, performing for a night or two in each place. She knew a good many tricks and worked very hard for her living, performing with the clown in the circus every evening, and drawing the caravan along the road next day.

It was not a grand show that Polly belonged to, although she was the principal attraction. Perhaps she did not always get as much to eat as she would have liked. After awhile, as she grew more and more cunning, she began to slip away at night whenever she got the chance. She passed through the dark silent streets with her soft, noiseless footsteps, until she came to a house which her instinct told her was a grocery store. There she would stop, and with her clever, flexible trunk take down the shutters and effect an entrance.

Once inside, she had it all her own way. After a good rummage all round the shelves to find out what they contained she would feast until morning on jam, marmalade, biscuits, cheeses and sweets of any kind. Once she made herself ill, but that was when she ate up a large wedding cake, sugar ornaments and all.

At first she was careful to get back to her stable before daybreak, but at last she got overbold and was one morning caught in the very act, with the empty tins and jam pots strewn all around her. Her guilty, tell-tale trunk was smeared all over with raspberry jam and gingerbread!

Poor Polly! I am afraid after that her master was obliged to chain her up more securely at night and that her pleasant little rambles were put a stop to for awhile, much against Polly's own wishes.—A. M. Goodhart, in Our Little Ones.

What the Choir Said.

Singers in church and elsewhere are not always as careful as they ought to be to articulate their words distinctly. A little girl entered the meeting house not long ago—as related in the New York Tribune—just as the choir was singing the anthem.

"Hallelujah! Hallelujah!" said the singers; but the little girl, whose thoughts were somewhat preoccupied, we may imagine, did not catch the words correctly. After getting home she startled her aunt by saying:

"I never saw such a nice choir. They stopped right in the middle of the anthem and spoke to me."

"Why, my dear," said her auntie, "I didn't notice it."

"But they did. You know I wore my new cloak, and as soon as I came in the choir said: 'Hardly knew you! Hardly knew you!' two or three times."

Doll Fashion Notes.

Dolls' bonnets will be made this season out of straw taken from the hats their little girl mammas used to wear.

Dolls' hats will be trimmed with second-hand hair ribbons.

Mamma dolls will wear red napkins for shawls.

Baby dolls will wear lace caps made out of old silk mits.—Harper's Young People.

FUN FOR THE BOYS.

Two Experiments Which Are Instructive as Well as Amusing.

A pretty and simple experiment, quite easy to try now that the warm sun has brought so many flowers popping out on their little stems, is to change the colors of cut flowers. And, lovely and delicate as the colors are in their natural hues, they will alter to others as lovely without injury to the flower. Put five or ten cents' worth of ordinary aqua ammonia in a saucer, stand a small funnel, large end down, over this, and in the small end insert the flower you wish to change. Then be a little patient and you will see what you will see soon. I shall be glad to hear from the boys and girls who try this pretty trick, if they will write me all that happens. And can anyone tell why it happens?

Another experiment, rather more difficult to try and quite different, is to stand two glasses as nearly alike as possible close together on a wooden table. Fill them about one-quarter full of water, and then pour more water, little by little, into either one or the other until they both give out the same musical note when lightly touched with the blade of a knife. In other words, tune them together. Across the top of one glass place a piece of fine, thin wire, slightly bent at both ends; then make the second glass sing, by rubbing the rim with one wet finger, and in a moment you will see the wire on the first glass dancing and jumping about in a most amusing manner, keeping time to the music, and eliciting a castanet-like accompaniment the while. One glass vibrates because it is rubbed, the other quivers from sympathy, the water ripples in tiny waves, and the little wire gayly responds to the tune.—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

VEGETABLE COMPASS.

A Plant Which Is of Great Value to the Traveler on the Plains.

The compass plant grows in the prairies of western North America, and, as its name indicates, is of great value to the wanderer. It is a dwarf variety of the osier, is perennial, attains usually a height of three feet six inches and has a head of yellow flowers.

The help it renders the traveler arises from the fact that the long leaves at the base of the stem, which are placed, not flat, as in plants generally, but in a vertical position, present their edges north and south.

The peculiar propensity of the foliage of this plant is attributed to the fact that both surfaces of its leaves display an equal receptivity for light.

All the other known varieties of its class are characterized by the presence, on the lower surface of their leaves, of from twice to thrice as many respiratory vessels as are contained on the upper surface, which is therefore the most sensitive of the two to the influence of light.

But both surfaces of the compass plant are clothed alike, with an epidermis exceptionally receptive of light; and the same instinct of its leaves that prompts them to require an equal distribution of light upon either surface causes them to assume a vertical position, and to point their edges due north and south.

Travelers, on dark nights, are said to feel the edges of the leaves to ascertain the points of the compass, when no means are available for helping them on their way.

MOLLICK BEHIND BARS

The Long Branch Anarchist in a Pittsburg Cell.

SHARPSHOOTER CRITCHLOW'S CASE

A Great Sensation When the Judge Refused to Admit Him to Bail, and Held Him for Murder—Details of the Riot of Non-Union Men—Two Men Suspected of Being Anarchists Released—The Arrest of Chief Layton at Long Branch.

PITTSBURG, July 29.—Frederick Mollick, Berkman's alleged arch-conspirator, is behind the bars of the Central police station. He came in on the limited from Philadelphia last night in custody of Chief of Police O'Mara. Mollick is the baker arrested at Long Branch for complicity with Alexander Berkman in the attempt to assassinate Mr. Frick, and is known to have sent money to the would-be-assassin several days prior to the shooting.

When Chief O'Mara arrived with his prisoner a crowd of several hundred people, all eager to get a glimpse of the sallow-faced suspect, were in waiting, and followed the officer and culprit to the police station. Mollick was immediately placed behind the bars, and will be photographed to-day. An information charging him with being implicated in the dastardly plot to "remove" Frick has already been lodged against the baker to hold him until the court sits in his case.

Mollick is a typical Anarchist. He is under-sized, not being more than 5 feet 5 or 6 inches tall, is slightly built, has black, bushy whiskers, pompadour hair and smokes cigarettes incessantly. He is a dirty looking individual, and the one thing lacking to complete his Anarchistic appearance is a pair of spectacles.

Mollick denied all knowledge of the plot to kill Frick. He admitted his friendliness towards Berkman, however, and even went so far as to confess that he had sent the latter money. He explained this by saying that Berkman had once loaned him money when he was hard up and he returned the favor. Berkman wrote from Pittsburg for the loan. He said he had known Berkman for some time but had not seen him since last fall.

A singular fact that seems to add a link to the chain of evidence the police are weaving around the suspect is his acquaintance with Emma Goldman, Berkman's New York mistress. Among the articles found on Molleck was a telegram from the German woman reading: "Come to New York at once; not dangerous."

Inspector McKelvey said last night that they had evidence in their possession of a murder plot, of which Mr. Frick was to be only one of the victims. The police, he said, expected startling developments in a few days. "We were lucky to have captured these men when we did," he said, "as an attempt would have been made on several of our prominent citizens, and there is no telling where it would have ended." He said that the police expected that Knold would supply information to the police when he saw the lines drawn close about his fellow conspirators.

Paul Eckert, the Allegheny Anarchist, who lived in the house with Knold was a visitor at the Central Police station in the morning. He called to see Inspector McKelvey. They had a long conversation, but what the result of it was no one can tell but the parties interested. Eckert went to see Knold and they had a long talk.

Paul Finster and August Pirnack, the men arrested as suspicious characters because they inquired as to what cell Bauer, the Anarchist, occupied, have been discharged. There was not the slightest indication that they were in any way connected directly with Bauer. They are Germans and thought they would be permitted to see Bauer that they might collect some money he owed them.

The riot that occurred yesterday at Whitehall Station on the train on which non-union men were being brought from Cincinnati to work in the Homestead mills will likely get into court. Attorney Brennan, of the Amalgamated Association, said th s morning that within a few days charges of conspiracy would be made against the parties responsible for bringing the men to this city under misrepresentation.

In the melee one man was stabbed in the forehead with a bayonet in the hands of an armed guard. Another had a thumb chewed off, and nearly a score of others were badly bruised in an attempt to regain their liberty.

When the train reached Pittsburg there were only twenty-one men aboard, in addition to the armed guards, the other thirty-five having escaped from the train between the Whitehall station on the Wheeling division and the depot in this city.

When they left Cincinnati the men did not know they were being taken to Homestead, and when they found it out they rebelled.

This is how the riot had its inception.

They declare that the work was misrepresented to them in Cincinnati, and that the first suspicion they had that all was not right was when, a few miles out of Cincinnati, the car doors were locked and the windows fastened down, and although the cars were stifling hot they were not allowed to open the windows.

The man who employed them accompanied them on the train.

When they awoke after the night's ride they were surprised to find armed guards on the platform, and it was then that they demanded to know where they were to be taken and were told to Homestead.

The puddlers then gathered around the guard and demanded that the doors be unlocked and that they be allowed to leave the car.

The guard refused to let them pass and then the puddlers jumped on him.

Then there was a terrible scene. Every man in the car jumped from his seat, some making for the doors, others tried to break through the windows and some got into a fight.

The guard stuck one of the puddlers with the bayonet of his gun and cut a long gash across his forehead.

In their frantic efforts to get out of the car, the men got into a fight between themselves and for about half an hour there was a perfect reign of terror and many heads and noses were broken.

At Whitehall the guard was thrown from his position and the door was burst open. The men commenced to jump off and they kept dropping off all the way to the city.

Some of the men could not get away and were landed at Homestead.

Rev. Mrs. Amanda Deyo, of Scranton, Pa., is in Pittsburg as the accredited representative of the Universal Peace Union, to attempt the settlement of the Homestead strike. She is 40 years of age and is a pleasant faced woman. Her work here is jointly with the Rev. J. L. Andrews, a Universalist minister of Allegheny.

Yesterday the two called on Secretary Lovejoy, of the Carnegie Company, explained their mission, and gave him a list of rules employed in the settlement of the difficulty between the Reading railroad and its employes, saying they would pertinently fit the trouble.

The rules are called the "Bill of Rights." Mr. Lovejoy told Rev. Mrs. Deyo that his company had nothing to arbitrate. Afterward the lady went to Homestead and was courteously received by the strike committee.

Mrs. Deyo will call on Chairman Frick. She will ask the aid of Bishop Phelan and the Protestant clergy in her work. A public meeting will probably be called in this city.

The 9 a. m. bulletin issued by the surgeon in attendance upon Mr. H. C. Frick reports the patient as having passed a very comfortable night. His sleep was unbroken and he is apparently in an improved condition this morning with the pulse and respiration normal.

HELD FOR MURDER.

Bail Refused for Critchlow, One of the Homestead Workers.

PITTSBURG, July 29.—"Any man who stood by and saw men shoot and did not try to stop it is equally guilty with those who shot." This bitter sentence fell from Judge Magee's lips like a thunderbolt in Criminal Court when Sylvester Critchlow, a Homestead rioter, was refused bail on the charge of murder.

This is the first case in which the commonwealth succeeded in raising the presumption of murder in the first degree against any of the Homestead rioters. The result was a complete surprise to every one.

The most important testimony evolved against Critchlow was that of employes of the Carnegie firm. It was shown by clerks that on July 6, about 8:30 o'clock, Critchlow was seen going toward the river with a gun on his shoulder. Samuel Stewart swore that he saw the prisoner behind the iron barricade, where he loaded and fired his gun. T. J. Connors, for whose murder Critchlow was arrested, was shown to have met his death at 11:30 a. m. Judge Magee said:

"This is a very different case from O'Donnell's. Here you have a man with a gun who stood behind a barricade and fired a gun, and a man is killed in front of the barricade. I think I did no harm in permitting O'Donnell and Ross to go on bail. It has taught them a lesson. Here is a case where I am very much disinclined to take bail. When you get men with guns on their shoulders, shooting from behind barricades and men are killed, it comes close to murder in the first degree. Mr. O'Donnell's policy all the time was for peace. This man's case was all the time for war and bloodshed."

This decision completely crushed the tall, slender, flush-faced prisoner, who tottered to jail without one word either to counsel or friends.

CHIEF LAYTON'S ARREST.

He Is Charged With Permitting an Illegal Removal of Anarchist Mollick.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 29.—The arrest of Capt. James Layton, Chief of the Long Branch Police, on complaint of Lawyer Thomas P. Fay of Long Branch, has caused much comment in Monmouth county. The arrest of Chief Layton was made because he allowed Chief of Police O'Mara of Pittsburg to take Mollick, the alleged Anarchist, out of the State without a requisition.

Lawyer Fay says that Chief Layton is subject to a fine of $1,000 and also to a term of imprisonment.

It is understood that Chief Justice Beasley has expressed the opinion that both Capt. Layton and Chief O'Mara violated the law in taking Mollick out of the State in the manner they did.

Chief Layton was taken before Justice Van Doren and furnished bail for his own appearance for examination on Aug. 2.

To Denounce Iams' Punishment.

LONDON, July 29.—A circular couched in extreme language has been issued, announcing that a meeting will be held in the East End, on Saturday next, to denounce, the circular says, the brutal murder of American workingmen of Carnegie, the millionaire, who is now enjoying himself on an estate in Scotland from which the tenants have been evicted, and to call attention to the cruel torture of an American soldier for expressing himself in favor of the strikers engaged in resisting a reduction of wages and the destruction of their union.

O'Donnell's Disappearance.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 29.—Mrs. O'Donnell said this morning that her husband had gone away on private business, but that she did not know his whereabouts. Great excitement was caused here when the report that O'Donnell had disappeared spread about the town. It was stated this morning that he had left on the Baltimore & Ohio for the East. Some think he will not return.

West Virginia Democratic Convention.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 29.—The State Democratic Convention was in session long after midnight balloting for a Gubernatorial candidate. At last a stampede began for Col. W. A. McCorkle, of Charleston, and on the second ballot the counties began to change their votes for him. In the midst of much cheering and enthusiasm a motion was made to make the nomination unanimous and it was done.

His Friends Thought Him Joking.

GLOUCESTER, N. J., July 29.—Joseph Foley, aged 22 years, an expert swimmer, was drowned last night in the Delaware River. He and several companions went in swimming after their days' work, and Foley swam 100 yards beyond the others. Then he waved his arms frantically, but his friends thought he was joking and did not go to his relief until it was too late.

HORRIBLE BUTCHERY IN WARSAW.

Seven Members of a Hebrew Family Murdered by Brigands.

WARSAW, July 29.—Burglars entered the house of a Hebrew family named Rubinstein during the night and demanded from the father his money. He refused to say where he kept it, and the burglars tried to move him by torture to change his mind.

They chopped off his fingers with an axe, but he still refused to tell. Then they brained him and turned their attention to Mrs. Rubinstein. She protested that she knew nothing as to the whereabouts of the money.

They did not believe her and, after torturing her also to no purpose, cut her throat.

The youngest daughter was killed in the same way, and three boys of 2, 3 and 5 years each, who had begun to cry, were dashed against the wall until dead. The eldest daughter was hung up by her feet until she told where her father had kept his money.

The burglars found about 800 roubles in the chimney to which she directed them. To prevent all chance of discovery they eventually stabbed her in the breast and left her for dead.

A neighbor called at the house and found the door open. On the floor of the first room was the eldest daughter, weak from loss of blood, but able to tell her story. The bodies of the other six had been thrown in a heap in the bedroom.

MAY BE A POISONER.

Dr. McGonigle Suspected of Killing Yeo, Who "Tasted" Electric Wires.

NEW YORK, July 29.—If the story that has come out has any foundation in fact Dr. Henry G. McGonigle and Dr. Marion A. Dale, who are in jail in Long Island City, charged with having caused the death of Mrs. Louisa Webb of Ravenswood, may have to answer for a crime committed in this city.

Last month Arthur J. Yeo, an electrician, died at his home in Eighth avenue. His death certificate, signed by Dr. Dale, was such a curious document that it caused a great deal of attention. Dr. Dale claimed that Yeo had died of poisoning, and that the poison had lodged in his system because of his habit of "tasting" electric wires.

The father of the dead man says that his son formerly worked for Dr. McGonigle and knew much of the old man's business. McGonigle induced him to go to Costa Rica, but Yeo returned very ill with chills and fever. Drs. McGonigle and Dale treated him and used a big quantity of morphine.

The elder Yeo is satisfied that his son was poisoned by McGonigle and he will take steps to have the matter thoroughly investigated. He has already communicated with the police authorities and Coroner Shultze.

BULLET THROUGH HIS HEAD.

And Yet Murderer Eggleston, of Wilkesbarre, May Live.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 29.—Alexander Eggleston, who murdered his wife Wednesday night, shot at his son and then fired a bullet through his head, is still alive. He was pronounced dead and laid beside the body of his wife, but when the coroner reached the house, which had been locked pending his arrival, he found that Eggleston had thrown off the covering placed over him and had crawled to the door.

He was removed to the hospital, where his case was pronounced a remarkable one, as the bullet passed clear through his head.

A silver tube has been run through the furrow and there is a possibility of his living.

Cheer For Eastern Farmers.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 29.—The annual report of B. Walker McKeen, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, for 1891-'92 will be issued shortly. He says that the general outlook for farmers seems to be improving, and not only the tendency toward better times for agricultural products, but the farmers never seemed more hopeful than now. New outlets are everywhere opening for the sale of farm products, and the tide of Western immigration and Western speculation has slackened. More money is being put into circulation in the State than ever before.

The Kite Will Have a Hard Time.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—The British steamship Petunia, Capt. Owen, has just arrived here from Pilleys Island, Newfoundland, with a cargo of pyrite ore after a perilous voyage, having been imprisoned in the ice in the northern regions of the Bay of Notre Dame. From the description given by Capt. Owen of the ice blockade it is predicted that the relief steamer Kite, which has gone to the rescue of Lieut. Peary and party, will have a rough time working her way northward through the ice, and her crew may have to endure many hardships.

Big Oil Tank Fire.

PITTSBURG, July 29.—Tank No. 17, of the Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Line Company, six miles from Washington, was struck by lightning during a thunder storm Wednesday night. It contained 27,000 barrels of oil. When it burst the burning fluid spread to other tanks, and soon twenty in all were on fire. The flames are still raging, notwithstanding the efforts of some 300 men who have been fighting the flames since they began.

Colonel King Must Hang.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 29.—H. Clay King, the Memphis murderer, and his attorney pleaded for the petition of habeas corpus before Judge Jackson in the United States Court here yesterday. Sheriff McLindo of Shelby county appeared by Attorney-General Pickle for the State. The argument was based on the fact that the jury went into Arkansas. Judge Jackson denied the petition.

THE HOUSE DEADLOCK

Impossible to Predict When It Will Be Broken.

PROPOSALS TO COMPROMISE MADE.

These, However, Are Spurned by the World's Fair People—Filibustering is the Order of the Day—Judge Holman's Proposition Not Considered Feasible.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—It is impossible to predict how long the deadlock in the House will last. The opponents of the Fair appropriation have made overtures of a compromise. One proposition is that if a loan will be accepted it will be voted speedily and the House can then adjourn; another is to the effect that if the advocates of the appropriation will yield, a direct vote on it can be assured on the second Tuesday in December.

Those in favor of the appropriation naturally refuse any offers of a compromise and believe they have the battle won. It now appears to be simply a question of physical endurance.

The proceedings in the House yesterday were intensely stupid and filibustering motions on the World's Fair appropriation prevailed all day. The only motion now in order, until the deadlock is broken, is for adjournment and a call of the House.

The proposition credited to Judge Holman, if the deadlock on the World's Fair appropriation continues, to bring in a resolution extending for another year the appropriations made in the Sundry Civil bill for 1891-2, will not avoid the difficulty. So many new measures have been arranged for since that bill was passed that a continuation of its terms would be scarcely less than disastrous than a failure to pass the pending bill. Even if the Senate were disposed to accept that solution of the difficulty and agree to adjourn, it is said the President would feel compelled to issue a proclamation reconvening Congress to provide for carrying on the business that such a step would put a stop to.

When the House was called to order, Mr. Wheeler (Dem. Ala.) rose to a question of personal privilege, stating that the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Watson) had attacked him (Mr. Wheeler) Wednesday. The Speaker ruled him out of order, and was sustained by an appeal to the House.

Mr. McMillin called up the resolution from the committee on Ways and Means for final adjournment on July 4th and submitted an amendment substituting July 30th for the adjournment.

Mr. Hatch (Dem. Mo.) said he would oppose fixing any day for final adjournment until the Senate had fully considered the anti-option bill.

Mr. McMillin said there was no desire on the part of the committee to delay the consideration of the anti-option or any other bill. He thought Congress should get away as soon as possible, and he hoped the members would vote for the resolution.

Mr. Outhwaite, (Dem., of Ohio) said that there was an appropriation bill pending, containing an obnoxious amendment appropriating $5,000,000 for the World's Fair. It had been said that the Sundry Civil bill would be defeated if the appropriation was not made. He had no sympathy with that sort of talk, but as it was manifestly impossible to get through by Saturday, he hoped the resolution would be amended and August 1 inserted as the date.

Mr. Enloe, of Tennessee, thought Congress should not adjourn without first disposing of the resolution respecting the dismissal of Commissioner Raum.

Mr. Cummings, of New York, moved to make the date Monday, August 1.

Mr. McMillan then demanded the previous question. Ordered. Ayes, 153; Nays, 19. The vote on the motion of Mr. Cummings resulted ayes, 53; nays, 110.

Mr. Outhwaite, pursuing his filibustering tactics of Wednesday, demanded the yeas and nays. Refused.

Mr. Wheeler moved to take a recess until 2 o'clock. Lost. Ayes, 3; nays, 176.

Mr. Wheeler then demanded tellers, but voted alone. The entire House remained in their seats. Mr. Wheeler then called for the yeas and nays. Lost.

He then moved a short recess until 1:45, but being appealed to by Mr. McMillan to cease his filibustering he consented, and a vote was then taken on the resolution for adjournment Saturday, which resulted 121 to 51. Mr. Hatch (Dem. Mo.) demanded the yeas and nays. Refused, and the resolution was agreed to.

The regular order of business was then taken up, being Mr. Bingham's motion to lay on the table the motion of Mr. Holman to reconsider the vote of Wednesday by which the House decided to recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment on the World's Fair.

Mr. Bingham moved to lay Mr. Holman's motion on the table.

Mr. Outhwaite moved to adjourn, and pending this to adjourn until Friday.

Mr. Cummings moved to substitute Monday. The yeas and nays were demanded on the latter motion.

The vote resulted yeas 1, nays 164. No quorum.

Mr. Brown (Dem. Ind.) moved a call of the House. Refused.

Mr. Bushnell (Dem. Wis.) moved to adjourn. Lost 20 to 44.

Mr. Williams (Dem. Ills.) moved the call of the House. This vote resulted 31 to 29.

Mr. Outhwaite (Dem. Ohio) demanded tellers. Not ordered.

The call of the House then proceeded, 208 members answering to their names. Further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

Mr. Stump (Dem. Md.) submitted the majority report of the special committee on immigration, and Mr. White reported the views of the minority.

The roll was then called again on the motion to adjourn until Monday.

This vote resulted 1 to 131. No quorum.

Mr. Martin (Dem., Ind.) moved a call of the House and the Reading Clerk again went through the alphabet with the thermometer at 100 degrees.

The House then adjourned until to-day.

Agitated Over Retaliation Measures.

KINGSTON, N. Y., July 29.—Sir John Thompson and Hon. Mackenzie Bowell were here yesterday hastening to Ottawa from their holiday sojourn, and quite agitated over the retaliatory movement of the United States Government. Neither would discuss the matter.

CONCORD, N. H., July 29.—Congressman McKinney, of Manchester, has announced to friends that he has entered the field as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

NETTLETON ON THE REPORT.

He Says the Contractors Must Make Good Ellis Island Botch Work.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Assistant Secretary Nettleton, who was so severely scored by the report of a majority of the committee investigating the Ellis Island matters, which was presented yesterday, speaking of the committee's charges, this morning said:

"The Treasury Department is perfectly content to leave its action in the Ellis Island matter to the facts of record as they are fairly and temperately set forth in the minority report. These facts are a perfect vindication of its course in every particular.

"The foolishly unfair nature of the Stump report is sufficiently illustrated by a simple fact. It pretends that the buildings have been accepted by the Government and the contractors released, leaving defects to be corrected at public expense. Chairman Stump knows that not one such building has been so accepted, not one contractor released, and that an ample sum, as stated in the minority report, is withheld to cover every possible defect or shortage by contractors."

Cholera Reported in Vera Cruz.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 29.—The startling report reached here yesterday that the dreaded Asiatic cholera scourge had reached Vera Cruz, despite the strictest quarantine regulations that have been enforced at all ports by the Mexican government. The rumor was set afloat by an American tourist, named Haskell, who arrived from Vera Cruz. He stated that there were three deaths from the disease on the day previous to his departure, and that the authorities at Vera Cruz are making an effort to keep the information from the public. An inquiry was made here at the Board of Health headquarters and a denial of the report was authorized.

Ravachol's Executioner Warned.

PARIS, July 29.—M. Deibler, better known as "Monsieur de Haris" the headsman of Paris, has received from his landlord notice to leave. Since the execution of Ravachol, Deibler has received many letters threatening his life. On Monday his landlord was warned that Deibler's end was near and that, if the landlord would avoid suffering the loss of his property in the wreck, he must make the executioner move at once.

Henry Watterson Ill.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Henry Watterson of Louisville is at Richlieu suffering from an attack of tonsilitis of so severe a nature that his doctor would not allow him to see any one. It is questionable if Mr. Watterson will be able to keep his engagement to take part in the joint tariff debate with Gov. McKinley at Madison, Wis.

Two Boys Drowned.

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 29.—Samuel Kaufman, aged 15 years, and Thomas Fenton, aged 18 years, were drowned here while bathing. Fenton dove from a dock, his head striking the muddy bottom and firmly imbedding itself there.

Suicide of a New York Broker.

NEW YORK, July 29.—George K. Slater, aged 50, of the firm of Slater Bros., bankers, 18 Broad street, shot himself dead in his room at the Manhattan Club at an early morning hour.

Mitchell Eludes the Police.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 29.—Albert Mitchell, the absconding United States Express Company's messenger who was located in this city yesterday, learned of the search for him and he got away before the police could effect his capture. It is rumored that he is being taken care of in this city, and the police are still confident of capturing him.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Cooler at last, thank Heaven!

—There will be a special sale of mixed candies to-morrow at Tier's.

—It will be cooler to-morrow if the theory is correct that it is a cold day when Plainfield defeats Somerville at base-ball.

—To-morrow will be the last day entitling purchasers of cottolene to a World's Fair album free, at the store of the United Tea and Coffee Growers' association.

—As cool a spot as any in town is Williams's drug store at Front and Grove streets, and for cooling and refreshing qualities his soda-water is beyond compare. Get him to compound your prescriptions.

—A consecration meeting will be held by the Christian Endeavor society of the Park Avenue Baptist church this evening at 8. It will be made especially interesting by the reading of reports of the Friday morning and afternoon session of the New York convention. All will be welcome.

—It is the duty of every Plainfielder to stay away from the ball game at Somerville, to-morrow. The Indians who live there take your good money to buy professional ball players to beat you with, and treat you every time to a dose of Somerville manners—you know what they are.

—The camp-meeting in Hyde's grove is very popular. The sessions next Sunday will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Harris, of Port Richmond, and the Rev. J. A. K. Butler, D. D., of Providence. The attendance last night was large. The services are very attractive, and the grove makes a cool evening resort.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Minnie G. Morse is at Oriskany Falls, Oneida county, N. Y.

O. T. Waring and family left town this afternoon for Lake George.

The next afternoon tea of the Hillside Tennis club will be held Saturday, Aug. 6

Mrs. Andrew McCardell is visiting friends in Worcester, Providence and Boston.

The family of J. B. Drayton are at the Lake View House, Lake St. Catherine, Poultney, Vermont.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Baynon of East Orange are guests of Wm. C. Ayers of West Second street.

E. L. Walz and family, of LaGrande avenue, are enjoying the mountain breezes at Jackson, N. H.

Mrs. L. A. Martin, formerly a resident of Plainfield, is visiting Mrs. T. Schneider on Manning avenue. Mrs. Martin's residence is now Worcester, Mass.

The wedding of Andrew G. Carpenter, the popular young musician, and Miss Ida Miers Weaver, esteemed daughter of David R. Weaver, is announced to take place Aug. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Force of the Mansion House at Bound Brook are enjoying the summer delights at the Van-Over House, Lake Hopatcong. Their son John is an efficient landlord in their absence.

Bishop Newman, who used to crowd the great Metropolitan church in Washington, when he was its pastor and the pastor of President Grant and family, is to be in Plainfield Sunday, and preach twice in the Methodist church.

Ellen, the 4-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. McDonough, died to-day after an illness of but two days. The little one was the picture of health up to the moment she was taken sick. Cholera infantum, brought on by the excessive heat, was the cause.

Mrs. Susan M. Cogswell, wife of the late Colonel Milton Cogswell formerly of this city, died at her home on West Front street, yesterday, after a long illness. The remains will be interred beside those of her husband, in Washington, D. C. She is a sister of Mrs. Thomas B. Brooks, of North Plainfield.

SMASHUP ON FRONT STREET.

Women and a Child Tumbled Out, But No One Injured.

The flagging of the crosswalk across West Front street from the corner of Somerset has not been laid properly since the street railway tracks were put down, and this morning the crookedness of the flagging was responsible for an accident that might have been serious. Mrs. A. L. Cadmus of Plainfield avenue was driving an iron-gray horse. In the carriage with her were two other women and a little boy. One of the rear wheels of the wagon caught in a crack of the uneven pavement, and the wheel was twisted suddenly off. The occupants of the carriage were tumbled out into the roadway, and were dragged by bystanders from underneath the wagon. The little boy had a leg bruised by the horse stepping on it, but no one was seriously hurt. A new wheel was obtained from a wheelwright shop, and the party drove on home.

For three weeks I was suffering from a severe cold in my head, accompanied by a pain in the temples. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me. After only six applications of the Balm every trace of my cold was removed. Henry C Clarke, New York Appraiser's office.

ELECTRIC LIGHT CONSOLIDATION.

Dunellen's Plant Abandoned, and the North Plainfield Station's Facilities Increased—Sebring's Mills Water-Power Insufficient.

Drs. Cooley & Davis, the present owners of the Edison electric light plants of North Plainfield and Dunellen, have decided that it is useless to depend longer on the water-power at Sebring's Mills for their Dunellen lighting system, and last night the Sebring's Mills plant was abandoned. The machinery was removed to the North Plainfield station, and will be used there. At the North Plainfield station it is expected that the new boiler and engine will be started up this evening. Every facility for the proper lighting of both North Plainfield and Dunellen will be provided in the North Plainfield works. The company's aim is to give the best house and street lighting service in the State, and to make the service so popular that their increase of patronage will offset the disadvantage of having to cart their coal so far—an expense saved to the Plainfield company by having its plant directly on the line of the railroad, with a switch run into the yard.

The defects in the service of which Dunellen people have complained are to be abolished. They are all attributed to the insufficiency of the old water-power. The enlarged capacity of the North Plainfield works, and the efficiency of the steam-power, will, it is expected, overcome the difficulties of the increased circuit, so that the electric current will be sufficient for all the company's lamps in every section.

It is an interesting fact that the electric lighting of the Park clubhouse and of one of Rockview avenue's residences was all on the circuit of the Sebring's mills station. The consolidation of the two systems is expected to be a benefit to both.

THAT "WHEELMEN'S" CLUB.

Only a Crafty Scheme to Save Carfare for the Bosses' Purse, and Squeeze Hard Work from Young Voters.

The idea of having a campaign bicycle club in Plainfield may have some very attractive features, but there are those mean enough to say that the idea of the astute managers of the campaign pocket-book is to save expense by making the young voters work their passage to demonstrations in other cities and save carfare. The proposition to have the wheelmen parade, except by themselves, won't work. If an attempt is made to make marchers on foot go as fast as those mounted on wheels, or the cyclers go as slow as the walkers, there'll be great confusion in the ranks. The wheelmen in the club are a very small minority of the cyclists of the city. Indeed, the club seems to be a misdirected pet idea of Messrs. Thomas and Runyon of the Courier staff, neither of whom appears to have any more conception of the impossibilities of bicycles in campaign work than a blind cat in a cranberry bog has of the grandeur of Niagara Falls. It seems a pity to have a "wheelmen's club" run by those who can't distinguish a safety bicycle from a buzz-saw or a grindstone. The wheelmen who don't care to have their runs dictated by the ring rulers will stay out of the club. There's no reason why a legitimate pleasure should be ruined for selfish partisan purposes.

GIVING THE CITY A BLACK EYE.

But the Elizabeth Journal Tries to Smooth Over the Courier's Asininity.

For the last few days the Courier has kept up a comparison of false temperature records to show that Plainfield is the hottest place in the country. It has given as the heat of this city the highest register of any thermometer it could hear of, and has quoted as the heat of other places the low records that common sense newspapers have selected to print for the sake of the reputation of their town.

Such action calls for the prompt attention of the fool-killer, and causes even the papers of rival towns to smile in pity rather than to take advantage of their opportunity to slay. The Elizabeth Journal says:

Plainfield seems ambitious to get in the lead during this spell of weather. According to the Courier of that place, the temperature rose to 104 degrees yesterday. That was rather a serious reflection on the "Colorado of the East." Perhaps the reflection, however, was on the thermometer. That sometimes makes a difference in the register of the little instrument.

A CHANCE FOR A BOROUGH PARK.

Mr. Dyer Will Sacrifice His Home for the Public Good, But Wants Proper Reimbursement.

As has already been mentioned in these columns, if the proposed Madison avenue extension goes through to Duer street the land of J. C. Dyer, at 43 Craig place, will have to be appropriated for the purposes of the new highway. Mr. Dyer has a fine house there, and naturally regrets to part with it. He does not wish to stand in the way of any public improvement, but naturally feels that he ought to be fully reimbursed for the loss of his property. He has a pleasant little park adjoining his home, at the rear of the German church property, and alongside Green brook. He feels that if his home is to be broken up the purchasers ought to take all his land, and not leave the park useless on his hands. The acquisition would be a good one for the borough, as the land could be continued as a small public park, and would be a very acceptable breathing-spot, especially on hot evenings. At any rate, Mr. Dyer feels that he ought to be generously repaid for surrendering his home for the public good.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I seen Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

STAY AWAY FROM SOMERVILLE.

Don't Contribute Your Money to Buy Professional Players to Beat You!

Manager Mack of the West End baseball team has received a letter from John Highlands, the celebrated Harvard college pitcher, promising to be on hand to pitch against the Crescents at Somerville to-morrow.

A bid was made by the Somerville's backers for pitcher Espers of the Philadelphia National league team, but he was signed, it is said, by the Pittsburgs.

Fifty dollars is the price reported as offered Espers to pitch to-morrow's game against the Plainfield team.

Highlands is called an "amateur", however, and is not supposed to pitch for money although his services are often secured by the Boston Athletics and other crack semi-professional teams in the East, who have to pay well in some way for their players.

Such people as Highlands get over the "money" question by taking a present in the shape of a gold watch or a diamond ring. Every Plainfielder who goes to the game at Somerville to-morrow, contributes just so much in money towards the employment of players outside the class agreed upon for the Central League. These Gores and Sharrotts and Highlands are only purchased for the purpose of defeating illegitimately the Crescents of this city who are playing to-day the same team they started the season with, excepting that the loss of Keeler has been replaced with a new man in the field.

It is the duty of everybody in this city to stay away from Somerville to-morrow. Don't chip in your quarter to buy Mr. Highlands a watch to reward him for his efforts to beat you. You can see a great game at Elizabethport instead. The Westfields expect to rescue third place from Elizabeth to-morrow, and it will be a hard struggle.

THE EXTORTIONATE EXPRESSMAN.

A Plainfield Citizen Rescues an Elderly and Feeble Woman, From One.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Is it not high time that ladies of Plainfield when left unprotected during the hours their male representatives have to be at business, should be protected by public opinion against the imposition of unworthy representatives of the express agencies who take advantage of their sex to be extortionate, overbearing, and even impertinent. There is the same discrimination here in public service between respectable, fair and civil porters, and those who are impolite and exacting, as anywhere.

To-day I happened to be at home when one entered, and overhearing the ungentlemanly language used to a feeble and elderly lady while exacting from her double tariff (which he afterwards conceded to be extortionate) I had to eject him.

I refrain from giving names but think a reasonable statement may do something to awaken a right feeling toward wives and mothers left exposed to such treatment. PLAINFIELD CITIZEN.

The camp cry will be: "Hi-le-lu, Hi-le-lu, Camp Townsend, '92!"

Abating Borough Nuisances.

The North Plainfield board of health has for weeks been puzzled to know who was emptying garbage, refuse and night-soil on land where such nuisances are prohibited. The smells from the dumping-ground have been not only an annoyance to the neighborhood but detrimental to public health. After considerable detective work, the health board succeeded in discovering the perpetrator of the outrage. He was compelled to abate the nuisance, and given to understand that a repetition of his offense would result in revocation of his scavenger license. He will be forced to confine himself to the established dumping grounds.

Toughs Raid a Road-House.

Laurent's road-house on the county road near the Fanwood line, was raided last evening and two kegs of beer were stolen by a gang of toughs from Elizabethport, who rode up on a coal train. Laurent offered no resistance, as he was in fear of his life.

The Deadly Horse Car Must Go!

Last night, 7-year-old Frank Timms of 542 Union street, Brooklyn, was run over in Third avenue, near President street, by a Third avenue horse car and killed.

Get rid of it. If you have Catarrh. Don't merely relieve it for a time with poisonous, irritating snuffs and strong caustic solutions. While you seem to be getting help, you may be getting harm. Stopped in this way, it's usually only driven to the lungs. You're worse off than ever.

But you can get rid of it completely, with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. That's been proved over and over again, in thousands of the most hopeless cases. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Catarrh in the Head and all Catarrhal affections are perfectly and permanently cured.

Some physicians will tell you that Catarrh can't be cured. They mean that they can't cure it. Dr. Sage's Remedy can. And to prove that they believe it, the proprietors of this medicine will pay $500 for an incurable case of Catarrh. They don't see one often, but they'll pay the money when they do.

A Most Perfect Wife.

Since her marriage the life of Mrs. William M. Evarts, mother of Mrs. Edward C. Perkins of this city, has been so interwoven, her individuality so completely involved in that of her family, writes Lilian Wright in a charming sketch in the series of "Unknown Wives of Famous Men", in the August Ladies' Home Journal, that it is almost impossible to speak of her apart from it. Mrs. Evarts' good health, even disposition, absence of nervousness under trying circumstances, have made her an inestimable helpmate for an astute lawyer and active politician, as well as a judicious mother to her ten living children.

Mr. Evarts' business has been in New York, where they have a winter home; but "Runnymede", a beautiful estate of twelve hundred acres, is at Windsor, where they spend their summers. Formerly Mrs. Evarts remained there the greater part of the year in order to keep her children in the country. She has always been very careful of her children's health, believing no expenditure of time and money too great to secure to them strong and healthy bodies. Like the women of her generation Mrs. Evarts is a good needle-woman.

The Case of Hackman Keely.

The friends of hackman Patrick Keely are rallying to his support in his defense of the charges made against him by dog-catcher Frisbie, and will give him all the aid in their power to fight the case in the courts. They claim that Frisbie exceeded his authority; that the horse he captured was grazing on a lot rented by Keely, instead of on the public highway; and that the injuries received by Frisbie were only such as Keely was forced to inflict in self-defense. The facts are bound to come out at the hearing before judge Codington on Monday.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

MR. STILLMAN'S BRIEF.

He Feels Somewhat Responsible for Mr. Babcock's Interests, and Wants the City to Sell Him Its $9,000 Property for $8,000 Less.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I was astounded when I saw in your columns the other evening the value that you placed on the engine-house property on West Front street, of $12,500. The persons who furnished you with this information were to start with not correct as to the size of the property. According to the survey just made by Mr. Dunham the lot is 25 feet front and only 100 deep to edge of street. I had the building closely examined with a view for its possible removal and found the rear part a mere shell without any foundation and which would tumble down on attempting to touch it. The front part is only two stories high and 20 feet wide and the whole building is not worth $3,000, whatever it may have cost to build in high times. It could be replaced to-day for $3,500, so a good builder tells me, new. Mr. Babcock paid to Mr. Winter $140 a foot front for the land adjoining, 50 feet front by 300 deep, the highest price ever paid for land in this vicinity. Its depth is three times that of the engine property. At the highest therefore the engine property is not worth over $100 per foot front. $6,000 and not $12,500 is therefore the only honest and fair price for the city to charge.

I am thus particular because I feel somewhat responsible for Mr. Babcock's interest in this locality, having called his attention to the matter in the first place. He is a man that what he does at all, he does well and I know that what he seeks to do will redound to and enhance the beauty and prosperity of the town.

Certainly the value you mention must have been furnished you by some person or persons interested in preventing this improvement going through, and who hope by throwing dust on the matter, to confuse the good judgment of the city council and therefore lead them to put such a valuation upon the same as will prevent Mr. Babcock going ahead and taking the property and making the desired improvements.

If they succeed in holding the city to a high price, they will reach their ends; but what will be their gain will be the city's loss, for Mr. Babcock will refuse to touch it—he like other men, having no desire to be taken advantage of.

WILLIAM M. STILLMAN.

[THE PRESS never placed the value of the engine house property at $12,500 or anything else.* It will say now, however, that a fair price for it is $8,500 or $9,000. Mr. Babcock in an interview with THE PRESS yesterday, stated that he was willing to pay what was right, and his view of the proper price was $6,500. This he based on figures allowing twice as much per square foot as he paid for the land adjoining, and on what a new building would cost as good as the present old one. Mr. Babcock has also offered a lot free on his new street to which he will remove the present building. Mr. Stillman's statement above that the rear part of the building would fall over, is rather a libel on good mason John Emmons who built it. ED.]

THIS DOG IS A FIREMAN.

That's the Reason Detective Frisbie Doesn't Muzzle Him.

A smooth-coated big brown dog is a familiar sight on North avenue, and as it never wears a muzzle people have wondered why the dog-catcher did not capture it and put it in the pound. The reason is that the dog is an honored member of the Plainfield fire department, and is therefore exempt from taxation, muzzling, and all the other ills that those not firemen are heir to. The animal is a good-natured one, and never pays the least attention to anyone. He takes constitutional walks every day, up and down North avenue, by way of exercise to keep in trim for running to fires. When he thinks he has exercised enough, he trots placidly back to the engine house, never stopping for even a bone at a butcher shop. He is a well-behaved dog, and so thoroughly trained that he responds with alacrity to every alarm. He always accompanies the boys to fires, and seems to delight in the clanging of bells.

Hot Weather Notes.

There's little sleep for people during such heat as that of last night; and when one gets asleep, towards daylight, the tantalizing fly appears in droves and wakes suffering humanity with his bites.

Its pretty hot weather when the Chinamen have to stop work and seek for a cool spot on the shady side of the street. That's what the Orientals of the North avenue laundry did yesterday.

Mrs. Monet of 82 West Second street was prostrated by the heat yesterday, and is now under medical attendance.

On account of the intense heat yesterday all the men in the blacksmith shop at the Pond Machine Tool Works had to quit work.

Exhausted humanity raised a wasted but joyful countenance late yesterday afternoon to the blessed clouds that for a little while shut off the hateful sun and tempered the intolerable heat. There was a glorious promise of a sweet summer rain. A few drops did spatter the parched streets, and then everybody groaned to see the clouds roll by. The cup of promise had scarcely moistened the lips. It seemed as though the weather fiend had merely twisted the perspiration out of its shirt for a fresh effort at record-breaking.

ALL EYES ON UNION COUNTY.

Her Perfect Roads a Model for All the Nation—Praise for Westfield's Dr. Ripley.

[From The New York Christian Union.]

The improvement of our public roads has become a matter of National interest. New Jersey is well at the front in this important reform. In Union county of that State a system of improved roads has just been completed, opening up the entire county. One can drive a carriage, ride a bicycle, or go on foot from the county seat to any other city or township of the county on these Telford roads without soiling the tire of a wheel or the sole of his shoe. Burdens three times as heavy as heretofore can be hauled upon them with the same horse-power, with far less wear and tear to vehicles, and with much greater ease and comfort to draught animals and drivers. Since the construction of these improved roads, the country through which they pass has changed as if by magic, and central New Jersey is developing by reason of them at a rate before unknown for half a century. New impetus is given to every enterprise and industry along their lines. Agricultural lands have advanced in value twice the cost of the roads already; while lands suitable for villas and other building purposes have increased more largely in proportion. In some localities the advance has been as great as fifty per cent. on former values, and in others it has been even a hundred per cent. These excellent improved county roads are the pride of New Jersey and the admiration of all who travel them. There is not, we believe, in the United States anywhere else to be found another system of county roads so complete, so continuous, and so extensive. They extend from the city of Elizabeth west to the city of Plainfield; from the city of Rahway north to Springfield and Summit; making contact with all the other townships, intersecting at Westfield, the center of Union county.

One of the most influential men in accomplishing this road reform in New Jersey has been Chauncey B. Ripley, LL. D., a well-known lawyer of New York city who resides in Westfield, conducting his law practice in New York. He has spent a great deal of leisure time and much money in road reform for some years, and is said to have planted elms and maples enough along the sidewalks of his village to reach from his residence to the post-office in the city of New York. He has made addresses on the subject of road improvement, and has contributed articles to the papers on the same topic. The example of Dr. Ripley is one particularly worthy of attention at this time; it shows what one man of energy and enthusiasm, while carrying on his every-day business, can accomplish in the cause of social reform; for the improvement of our county roads may justly be called a social reform. This reform has been well inaugurated. The "Century Magazine", "Harper's Weekly", and many other periodicals have printed articles on the subject. The American people have only to come to a realization of the importance to National life of the country roads, and this reform will be carried on with enthusiasm and success. If the money and time which the nation now expends in useless "River and Harbor Bills" could be put into the scientific improvement and development of country roads, we should all—urbans, suburbans, and rustics—be the gainers.

Protection Paradoxes.

That taxing an article makes it cheaper.

That making an article cheaper enables its manufacturer to pay higher wages.

That taxing raw material cheapens cost to manufacturers and lowers prices to consumers.

That a tariff paying $175,000,000 a year into the public treasury does not increase the prices of the things taxed to produce this sum.

That foreigners pay the duties, and so largely support our Government, but that out of mercy to them the Reed-McKinley Congress spent only $1,000,000,000.

That the price of farm produce has gone up under McKinleyism while the cost of living has gone down.

That untaxing foreigners only is "reciprocity".

That high tariffs make high wages in the United States, but leave wages in every protectionist country in Europe lower than in free-trade England.

That our manufacturers produce staple articles more cheaply than they can be made abroad, but that we need a high tariff to enable them to do it.

That the older the infant industries grow the more protection they need.

That a party having more than 6,000,000 voters, nine-tenths of whom are workingmen, is an "enemy of labor".

That the protected manufacturers pay large sums into the Republican campaign fund, and maintain lobby-agents and subsidized newspapers to defend high duties, solely to raise wages in the United States. —New York World.

John Gives Nobody a Show at Anything.

A railroad war is about to break out in Elizabeth. Two weeks ago H. H. Isham, a capitalist, petitioned the city council for a charter to lay tracks for two new street-car lines; one from El Mora to Mt. Olivet cemetery and the other from Elizabethport to Union township. Ex-Congressman John Kean, jr., is the largest stockholder in one of the present horse-car lines, and has taken alarm at the attitude of the new company, and will extend the tracks of the East Jersey street line up Morris avenue to the city line, a distance of a mile, thus heading off the new line.

The charter for the new company has not yet been granted, and it is likely that the old company will have their tracks laid before it is, but not without some opposition by property-owners.

"THE CUCKOO" IS CRAZY.

The Combined Sufferings of Alcoholism and Heat Turn Her Brain—She Seeks Suicide, and Tears Her Clothes Off on the Street.

Katie Nolan, familiarly spoken of as "the Cuckoo", is always an ugly customer for the police to get hold of, but she never gave them more trouble than she did last night. Katie has long been addicted to looking upon the beer when it is brothy, when it foams in the growler, and for various hilarious and maudlin picnics in which she has indulged in times past she has paid penalty to the law as laid down by judge Codington.

But now, it seems, the combined effects of alcohol and insufferable heat have gone to her head and affected it permanently. She was absolutely crazy on the Plainfield streets last night, and was seeking to drown herself in the raceway at French's mills when the police caught her. She fought them viciously, and on the way to the police station succeeded in tearing her garments in shreds from her body, so that she was in a condition to keep comparatively cool when sergeant Lynch locked her in her cell and handed her one of his own Mother Hubbard night gowns to hide the undraped beauty of her figure.

Katie raved all night, and this morning judge Codington decided that there was so much question as to her sanity that he would send her to Elizabeth to have the jail physicians examine into her mental condition. She will doubtless be taken to the asylum.

Westfield's New Real-Estate Scheme.

For a month or more past the farmers between Westfield and the mountain have seen strange men walking over their farms with no apparent object, and if questioned as to their business the strangers would answer that they were "taking a walk". Yesterday the business they had in hand came out. It appears that a number of capitalists are looking over ground between Westfield and the mountain with a view to purchasing land to erect a large hotel and to lay out on the mountain side large pleasure grounds. Over the right of way they will secure they propose to run a narrow-gauge railway from Westfield to the grounds at the mountain side. This scheme is not a new one, but was talked of some years ago. Baltus Roll Hill is supposed to be the objective point on the mountain, though the place was not divulged. If the parties who have the scheme in hand this time mean business the people of Westfield are willing to give material aid.

WAS HE MURDERED?

The Strange Case of John Weidensane, at Shamokin, Pa.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., July 29.—The police are trying to get at the truth regarding the death of John Weidensane, a wealthy liveryman of Lewisburg. He was taken from a burning building on Saturday morning, and on investigation it was found that he was shot in the head.

The coroner's jury found that he had committed suicide.

The tragedy occurred in the house of his sweetheart, Miss Kate Neyhart.

Monday it was ascertained that his skull had been crushed by means of a blunt instrument.

This was the first intimation of foul play, although Miss Neyhart strenuously adhered to the original story of suicide.

More interest is added to the case by the report of the physicians who made the post mortem examination of Weidensane. They found that the bullet that penetrated the brain did not fit the chamber of the revolver found by the dead man's side.

This adds mystery to the case, and the authorities now believe that the man was murdered.

Wyoming Democratic Convention.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., July 29.—The platform adopted by the Democratic State Convention endorses the Chicago platform; declares against the enactmen of a force bill; declares in favor of both gold and silver as money and free coinage of silver; denounces the present State administration for its course in the cattle invasion, and demands Congress to investigate the United States Court and United States Marshal in connection with the raid. Dr. Osborne of Rawlins was nominated for Governor on the thirty-seventh ballot.

Consolidation of Electric Companies.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 29.—The Brush and Thomson-Houston Electric Light Companies of this city and the General Electric Company of New York have agreed upon a consolidation of their interests here and will be united under the name of the Buffalo General Electric Company. This step was found necessary in order to cut down expenses. One of the results will be the extension of incandescent lighting on a large scale. The capital stock of the new company will be $1,800,000.

Trouble Over a Smallpox Case.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 29.—A Hungarian died of smallpox at Mill Creek and was buried last night. His countrymen claimed that he had been poisoned, and attempted to dig up his body. The neighbors became alarmed and notified the authorities. A posse was sworn in and, armed with rifles, proceeded to the grave, where they dispersed the foreigners. A strong guard is now being maintained in the vicinity of the grave.

The Hot Wave.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The hot weather of the past few days has greatly swelled the death list in this city and vicinity. During the twenty-four hours ending at noon there were 176 deaths. Of these, 106 were children under 2 years of age, and nine resulted from heat. Dispatches from Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburg and many other cities also report numerous prostrations and deaths from heat.

Investigation of the Pottsville Horror.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 29.—The coroner's investigation into the cause of the York farm colliery disaster by which 15 lives were lost has ended. Miner Llewellyn, who fired the shot that fired the gas, Superintendent Leckie, Engineer Cockran and other officers were on the stand during the day. The jury exonerated the company.

Plead Guilty to Large Embezzlements.

LONDON, July 29.—Parry Lunt and John Wilson, manager and cashier respectively of the firm of Reynolds & Gibson, cotton brokers, Liverpool, plead guilty to embezzlement from the firm. Sentence was deferred. The embezzlements are said to have amounted to 150,000 pounds, and had been carried on for a long time.

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head—for a week at a time I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured. It is wonderful how quick it helped me. Mrs. Georgie S. Judson, Hartford, Conn.

Rectifying the Error.

"I bought a dozen eggs of you yesterday," said Gazzam to Mr. Peck, the grocer.

"Yes, sir, I remember selling them to you. Do you want another dozen?"

"No, I don't. I came in to say that half of those eggs had chickens in them."

"Indeed? I'm very glad that you told me. It will enable us to rectify the matter."

"Then you will give me six good eggs for the bad ones, I suppose?"

"No, indeed! I'll charge you three dollars more for the lot. Spring chickens are cheap at fifty cents each. Will you pay for them or shall I put it on your account?"—Brooklyn Life.

Tramp—I recall no such promise, madam.

"The idea! I told you I'd give you lunch if you'd saw some wood, and you agreed."

"Exactly. That's just what I said."

The Young Man Meant Business.

"Young man," said a stern parent, with the accent on the young, "do you intend to stay here all night holding my daughter's hand and looking her in the eyes like a sick calf?"

INKHAM'S PROVERBIAL PHILOSOPHY

A Defective Link Weakens a Strong Chain.

The female organization is a series of links, so to speak. Note the nervous irritability of one, the restlessness of another, the inability to sleep, and perhaps secret suffering. It means that a link of a chain is weakened. Those ailments are promptly overcome by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it conquers all those weaknesses and ailments so prevalent among our women.

DEAR FRIEND OF WOMEN.—I have derived so great benefit from the use of your Vegetable Compound that I recommend it in the strongest terms. I consider it superior to any other preparation for Female Complaints.—Mrs. E. A. BECK, 18 Willoughby Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Druggists sell it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00. An illustrated book, entitled "Guide to Health and Etiquette," by Lydia E. A GREAT CURIOSITY.

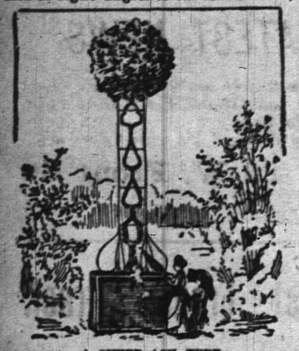
How Five Little Ash Trees Were Turned Into One.

One of the greatest attractions in the Jardin d'Acclimatation, in Paris, is a curiously-shaped tree, leaning for support against a light iron framework.

Five little ash trees growing within a few inches of one another were grafted into one thick stem when about a foot from the ground. The trees took kindly to the companionship, and grew up together for more than ten inches, when the partnership was dissolved, and the stem separated into two parts. Each part was forced to travel for a short distance in opposite directions and at right angles to the main stem,



A QUEER ASH TREE.

when the course was changed to a perpendicular one. Then each stem turned three times around, forming three beautiful spirals, and when both had mounted a little higher they were turned inward and united. Again they were parted, and again met, after having formed a triangle. Up they grew in close companionship for quite a distance, when another evolution had to be performed, this time in the shape of a graceful loop. Meeting again, the trees took a longer journey together, but their trainer parted them once again. This time they were trained into a new shape, as you can see in the picture I send you, and the five little ash trees were once more united. Then, as if in celebration of this last grand union, the trees threw out ... leafy branches, surmounting the whole with a globe of beautiful green foliage. I rather suspect they had eventually to perform more contortions, for on visiting them one cold day, when the leaves were gone, I noticed that the upper branches were bent inward at the top as if some other change might yet be made.—St. Nicholas.

Juvenile Arithmetic.

In the mental arithmetic class the teacher had a great deal of trouble in making Johnny Jones understand the simplest mathematical ideas, though he seemed to be a boy of much natural good sense.

"Six from six leaves how many?" asked the teacher.

"Huh?" asked Johnny, apparently astonished at the question.

"If you have six cents in your pocket and you lose them all how many do you have left?"

Johnny put on a scornful look at this and answered: "One, I suppose."

"Johnny Jones, how could you have one of your six cents left when you lost them all?"

"I didn't mean that I'd have one cent left."

"One what, then?"

"One hole, I guess," said Johnny. "There's got to be sunthin."

Sound Advice.

A sensible bit of advice was given by a colored man, not long ago, to a quarrelsome friend. It was in a brickyard, and two of the workmen had a dispute which ended with blows.

In the skirmish one of them was hurt, and the employer, who saw the end of the fight, and was a man of more temper than discretion, advised him to get a warrant for the other's arrest.

While the matter was under discussion, a colored man who had seen the whole affair made his way to the injured party and said:

"You don' want t' get no warrant, Jim! You get yo'self two pieces o' plarster, good big ones, an' put one piece on yo' hade, an' de oder on yo' mouf, an' you'll be all right!"

A Cat Concert.

A curious old volume tells of a cat concert, which was part of the entertainment at a great religious festival at Brussels in Ascension week in 1549. A bear played the organ. This organ was composed of twenty cats shut in narrow boxes; their tails were tied to cords connected with the notes of the organ. Each time the bear struck the keys he pulled the tail of a poor cat, and forced it to mew in tune. Historians also tell us of such organs with pigs and cats together. It is related that an ancient German king was cured of a deep melancholy by having played to him an organ composed of cats, their voices, attached to their tails, being arranged in scales, and their tails pinched to make them give the proper notes.

A Child's Question.

Children will ask puzzling and sometimes mortifying questions. In "Ethics for Young People," Prof. C. C. Everett tells of a question he asked when a small boy. He says:

A lady was talking with me about "easily besetting sins." She said that her besetting sin was pride. I looked at her in innocent wonder, and exclaimed: "Why, what have you to be proud of?" I saw at once by her confusion that I had made a very impudent and unlucky speech.

We cannot ask this question of others; but if anyone who is disposed to be proud should ask himself the question: "What have you to be proud of?" and answer it truly, it might do him good.

Not Doing.

"How do you do?" said mamma's caller to little Fay.

"I don't do anything," answered Fay. "It's vacation, and mamma said I could have a rest."—Harper's Young People.

Pins Probably.

George — Every time I put my arm around you I am tempted to hand you over to the police.

Ethel—How you frighten me. What crime do I commit?

George—You carry concealed weapons.—N. Y. Herald.

Put the Foe to Flight.

Mother—The grocer sends word that he gave you an extra dozen of eggs by mistake. Where are they?

Small Boy—I seed I had a dozen to spare, so I threw 'em at some boys wot was kiddin' me. You oughter seen 'em scoot.—Good News.

Poor Human Nature.

Mr. Chugwater had been reading aloud to his family the details of the terrible tornado in Minnesota.

"Is that all there is of it, Josiah?" asked Mrs. Chugwater.

"Yes," he replied, laying the newspaper down. "I've read to you the whole story, names of the killed and wounded and all."

"I know a great many people in Minnesota," rejoined Mrs. Chugwater, with a sigh of mild disappointment, "but none of those names sound familiar."—Chicago Tribune.

Liked Spelling.

Visitor—What do you study at school?

Little Girl—Readin', an' writin', an' rithmetic, an' spellin'.

"Well! Well! What a bright little girl you are. Now, which study do you like best?"

"Spellin'."

"Indeed! Most children do not. Why do you like spelling?"

"Cause every time I spell a word teacher laughs."—Good News.

A Financier.

The Bank Cashier—You insist on my having a fortune before I marry your daughter?

The Bank President—I do, sir.

The Bank Cashier (leaving)—Very well, sir; I shall have one before evening. And—by the way—you will have no objection to the ceremony taking place in Canada?—Life.

Worth Keeping.

Lady—I want you to take this dog back. He is handsome, I admit, but he can't be taught anything at all, and is of no earthly use.

Dealer (slowly)—Y-e-s, mum, I know, mum; but just think wot a fine rug he'll make when he's dead.—N. Y. Weekly.

What He Didn't Like.

Landlady—Why do you wish to leave my house, Mr. Starboarder? Don't you like the table?

Mr. S.—Oh, yes, very much indeed. I don't know that I ever saw a better one. It's what you put on it that I can't stand any longer.—Detroit Free Press.

A Hint to Many Others.

Mrs. Murray Hill—What! Not going to the beach this summer?

Mr. Murray Hill—No, my dear, money is too scarce; but we can get the same rural enjoyment by sleeping out in the back yard and daubing our faces with five cents' worth of walnut juice.—Texas Siftings.

A Hopeful View.

He (despondently) — Our marriage will have to be postponed. I have lost my situation and haven't any income at all.

She (hopefully)—That doesn't matter now, my dear. We won't need any. I've learned how to trim my own hats. —N. Y. Weekly.

The Old Man Was On.

"Well, Uncle Reuben, that's a fine pair of oxen you have."

"Ya-as."

"What have you named them?"

"Nigh one's Pilot an' th' off one's Rudder."

"Strange names, aren't they?"

"Not fur steers."—Puck.

At the Police Court.

Judge—You stole the pocketbook, but how is it that you did not appropriate the watch lying by the side of it?

Prisoner—You don't mean to say I was as daft as that? I couldn't have noticed it. You must excuse me, judge! —Texas Siftings.

An Expert.

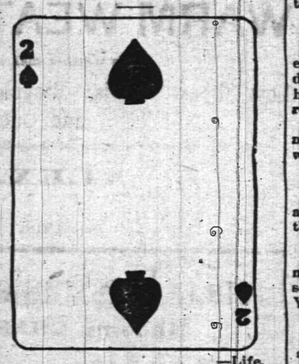
Baseball Captain—You say that you can catch?

Tramp—Yis, sorr.

B. Captain—You don't look like it. What kind of a catcher are you?

Tramp—Rat catcher, yer honner.—Jury.

"LOOKS LIKE THE DEUCE."



—Life.

On the Trade.

Tailor—I would like to jog up your memory a little, sir, on account of that last suit you ordered.

Customer—I'm afraid my memory resembles the suit too much.

Tailor—How so?

Customer—It has been fading away ever since I got it.—Clothier.

Be Calm, Repecca.

"Run for de doctor, quick! Help! help! Dot baby has swallowed a nickel!" exclaimed Mrs. Schaumburg.

"Mine gott! you make so much fuss as if it was a twenty-five dollar gold piece, Repecca," replied Mose.—Texas Siftings.

The Old Story.

Howson Lott—I see you have no servant girl at present. Did you fire your last one?

Morrison Essex—No; spontaneous combustion.—Puck.

At the Writers' Club.

"Are you acquainted with Mr. Yardwide Stripling, Mr. Forcelt?"

"I—aw—I think Mr. Stripling has met me," replied Mr. Forcelt.—Judge.

One on Bronson.

"Do you believe all you see, Hicks?"

"No. I see you whenever we meet, but I don't believe you more than a tenth of the time."—Brooklyn Life.

The First Photograph.

A French dealer, in Notes and Queries, has discovered that Fenelon, in 1690, foreshadowed the photograph, and that a less known author, Tiphaigne, in 1760, in his odd book called "Giphantie," described the photograph process very closely. He said: "The rays of light reflected from objects make a picture on all polished surfaces —the retina of the eye, glass, etc. Now, we have sought to fix this fugitive image; we have invented a substance, very delicate, viscous and quick to dry and harden; by means of this a picture is made in an instant. We then back this up with a piece of cloth and present it to the objects we wish to paint."

Saved Something.

Boggs — When Hawkins failed he made everything over to his wife, didn't he?

Creditor—All but his honor. He preserved that for us.—Judge.

On the Eve of the Funeral.

Briggs—I see that there is crape on the Binger door.

Griggs—Yes. Old man Binger bought himself a safety razor last week.—Judge.

Theory vs. Fact.

Professor—For anatomical reasons women cannot stand so long as men.

Young Lady—I guess you never saw a woman having a dress fitted.—N. Y. Weekly.

Dead Dog Best.

"How did you like the little dog I gave your wife?"

"I never saw one I liked better. It died the next day."—Demorest's Magazine.

His Normal State.

"They tell me old Fish drinks a good deal."

"Drinks! Why he's never decently sober till he's drunk."—Chicago News.

Reassuring.

"Have you ever had a wreck, captain?" asked the nervous passenger.

"No, ma'am!" replied the officer; "I'm a wreckless man."—Detroit Free Press.

Without a Shadow of Turning.

She—I thought you told me Mr. Nixon was a man of regular habits.

He—Well, he has been drinking steadily ever since I knew him.—Life.

Ungovernable.

Primus—Oh, you don't know me. I have a most ungovernable temper.

Secundus—Can't get mad when you ought to, eh?—Life.

A Limited Range.

"They say Green has been wandering in his mind lately."

"Well, he's safe enough; he can't get far."—Demorest's Magazine.

A Wise Parent.

He—Your father does not withhold his consent to our marriage because I am his employe, I hope?

She—Oh, no. He says he'll give his consent as soon as you get your salary raised.—Life.

Cheap Sympathy.

Dolly—When I told my rich uncle this afternoon my wretched financial condition, he actually shed tears.

Penelope—He did?

Dolly—Yes; but—but that was all. —Jury.

Their Trade Is Always Driving.

"There's quite a boom in the building trade just now."

"So I understand; but the most driving business in the city is being done by the cabmen."—Household Monthly.

Preparing for College.

Mamma—Why did you run off from school and spend the whole day rowing about the river?

Boy—Papa said he wanted me to prepare for college.—Good News.

Lost 'Em Both.

"Pity a poor orphan, sir!"

"Have you no father or mother?"

"No, sir; they was divorced last year." —Puck.

A Misconception.

"Johnny," said the elder little brother, "you must be sure not to ask for any of the wild duck twice."

"Why?"

"Because I heard father tell the company that they would have a little game with a limit to it."—Washington Star.

Saving Clause.

"Gone forever!" he sighed, laying down his last coin, a ten dollar gold piece. "There goes my only eagle, wings and all!"

"Yes," said the business-like man who had called, as he handed over a receipted document, "but you can keep the bill, you know."—Chicago Tribune.

Nip and Tuck.

Theatrical Manager—Rush off and engage the heroine of that fashionable divorce scandal for next season. Tell her we'll furnish the play, and wardrobe, and—

Assistant—Too late. The editor of a magazine has already started her to writing a novel.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Happy Plan.

Sammy—I wish that geographies and arithmetics had lots of pictures in them.

Teacher—Why so?

Sammy—Then there wouldn't be so much printing, and we wouldn't have so much to learn in each.—Harper's Young People.

The Little One's View.

"Mamma," said little May, "I'm afraid I'm naughty, because I've got an awful stomach-ache."

"It was the pie you ate, I think, May."

"Oh, no, mamma. The pie was too good to behave like that. It must be me."—Judge.

An Infant Industry.

De Writer—What are you doing now?

Scribbler—Writing ten thousand dollar prize stories for the Great North American Literary syndicate.

"What do they pay you?"

"Ten dollars a week."—N. Y. Weekly.

A Serious Defect.

Teacher in Kindergarten — You've omitted something, Mabel, in making your letter "i's." What is it?

Mabel—I guess I forgot to put eye brows over 'em.—Puck.

Fun For Two.

All children enjoy a drink of

Hires' Root Beer.

So does every other member of the family. A 25 cent package makes 5 gallons of this delicious drink. Don't be deceived if a dealer, for the sake of larger profit, tells you some other kind is "just as good." 'Tis false. No imitation is as good as the genuine HIRES'.

What is It?

A substitute for lard? Upsetting the customs, habits, and prejudices of centuries? Yes, all this and more. Cottolene is a new cooking product—it is better than lard or butter for cooking, so say such noted housekeepers as

Catharine Owen,
Christine Terhune Herrick,
Emma P. Ewing,

and many others; it is healthier—so says every thoughtful physician; and it is cheaper as every housekeeper knows when she finds that one-half the quantity answers every purpose.

BERKMAN'S PRELIMINARY HEARING.

Admitted to Bail in the Sum of $24,000—Remanded for Court Because He Could Not Furnish It—Gen. Snowden's Views on the Treatment of Iams.

PITTSBURG, July 30.—The bulletin issued by the attending surgeon indicates but little change in H. C. Frick's condition save in the direction of continued improvement. Mr. Frick's recovery from his very dangerous injuries has been so very rapid and satisfactory that his attendants are now compelled to admit that their judgment was in error as to the length of time that must necessarily elapse to complete the cure.

It is now thought that the iron master will be on his feet and again personally assume the direction of the varied interests of the Carnegie Steel Company in two or three weeks at the latest.

Would-be Assassin Berkman, who was given a preliminary hearing in the county jail office, was admitted to bail, aggregating $31,000. This was not furnished, and the guilty Anarchist is remanded for court. Police Justice Grip and Alderman McMasters presided at the hearing. Judge Grip examined witnesses on the charge of felonious assault, preferred by Superintendent of Police O'Mara, and held the prisoner in $10,000.

Alderman McMasters examined witnesses on three different charges—of entry of a building with intent to commit a felony, one charge of felonious assault and another charge of carrying concealed weapons. The bail fixed aggregates $14,000. The elevator man, David Fortney, of the "Chronicle-Telegraph" building and Chairman Leishmann of the Carnegie Company were the only witnesses examined. District-Attorney Burleigh was also present, and asked the prisoner if he intended to shoot Mr. Leishmann. He replied:

"No, I did not want to shoot anybody but Frick."

"Was it your intention to kill Mr. Frick, or just to torture him?" asked Mr. Burleigh.

"I wanted to kill him," said Berkman.

Application was made in the morning for the release on bail of the three suspects, Bauer, Knold and Mollecke, now in the Central police station, charged as accessories with Berkman.

Paul Eckhardt, a leader among the local Anarchists, has been delegated by the local groups to look after the legal interests of the imprisoned men, and has secured the services of Attorney Friedman to represent Bauer and Knold, while Attorney Henry Meyer will represent Mollecke.

In an interview with Eckhardt, he said: "We can get all the bail we want for the imprisoned Anarchists. We can easily get $10,000, and they should and will be be admitted to bail. I know what I am talking about when I say that they cannot do anything with Bauer or Knold. They are Anarchists, it is true, but that is not a crime. We will not see them suffer."

GEN. SNOWDEN'S VIEWS.

His Order to Streator Was to Disgrace Iams and Send Him Home.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—Major-General Snowden of the Pennsylvania National Guard, who returned to his home in this city late in the night from Homestead, where he left General Wiley in charge of the troops, was asked his opinion of the Iams case. The General replied that he had no real connection in the matter and knew nothing of it except from published accounts. "Of course," he continues, "I have an opinion, but I do not, feel ready to express it. My order to Col. Streator was to discharge Iams in disgrace and send him home.

The General said the nature of the punishment was optional with the Colonel, but he would not say whether he over-stepped his authority in having the refractory private strung up by the thumbs.

General Snowden compared the present situation at Homestead to a volcano. The eruption which caused the fearful result on the day of the battle with the Pinkertons had subsided, but it will most certainly occur again, in the event of another strike. The General was accompanied to this city by Provost Marshal Green, Commissary Cullinan, Assistant Surgeon-General Huidekoper and Aide-de-camp Campbell.

The regiments at present at Homestead will be retained there until all vestige of trouble has disappeared. It may be that certain regiments of the First Brigade may yet reach the seat of the trouble, but they will not be called upon unless the regiments now at the scene are kept there for a long period or indications of trouble arise.

COL. STREATOR TO BE ARRESTED.

Iams's Lawyers to Map Out a Line of Action Against the Military Authorities.

PITTSBURG, July 30.—The attorneys interested in the Iams case met in the office of F. P. Iams to consider the preliminary steps to be taken in the prosecution of the men who were responsible for the punishment of the young man.

The attorneys were C. C. Dickey, F. P. Iams, J. P. Watson, and S. U. Trent. They expected Col. Free of the West Virginia State Guard, but he did not arrive in time.

They decided to file informations against Col. Hawkins and Lieut.-Col. Streator for aggravated assault and battery. Other informations for simple assault and battery will also be sworn out.

The civil actions cannot be filed at present, since the law provides that no civil process can be served on a member of the militia during service or until thirty days after his discharge. The civil suits will be for trespass and damages in the United States courts.

There will be two suits, one on behalf of Iams and the other for the father, as the boy is only 18. There is also a conspiracy charge.

Christian Alliance at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 30.—The Christian Alliance services yesterday were devoted to divine healing. Rev. M. B. Fuller, Mrs. Beck, Mrs. French and Rev. Stephen B. Merritt of New York were the speakers. Rev. A. B. Simpson of New York annointed 50 for divine healing.

THE RIFLES HIDDEN.

Departure of Troops from Idaho Feared By Citizens.

WARDNER, Idaho, July 30.—Of the 200 or more rifles known to have been in the hands of the rioters on the 13th inst., not a single one has been found, though a thorough search has been made. The general belief is that they were taken into Montana upon the advent of the troops. This fact more than any other causes the law-abiding citizens to dread the departure of the troops.

Peter Breen, a citizen of Montana and a member of the Legislature of that State, and who was a prime mover in the recent trouble, is still at large.

A new plan of legal procedure against the prisoners is to commence at Wallace. United States Commissioner Hoffman of Coeur d'Alene will open court there and issue warrants of arrest as the cases are brought before him.

The report that the United States have decided the union a conspiracy is given color by this move of the authorities. The charge of conspiracy will be entered against all union men, and a separate charge will be entered against those charged with complicity in the Mission affair.

A BOYCOTT IS ON.

Merchants Fighting the Northern Pacific Railroad.

FARGO, N. D., July 30.—The boycott declared against the Northern Pacific railroad is being carried out by the merchants and business men of this place.

It is claimed by the citizens that the Northern Pacific people had repeatedly promised to put in a new depot and erect a $20,000 hotel. It is asserted that the road has violated every promise and has erected fine depots and hotels at other points.

A manifesto has been issued asking merchants to ship their goods over other lines.

It is the citizens' intention to keep the warfare up till the Northern Pacific erects a new depot or the several roads running into the city conclude to erect a union depot.

IS HE LOSING HIS MIND?

Col. H. Clay King is Acting Strangely and Is Likely to Break Down.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 30.—The action of Judge Howell E. Jackson, of the United States Court, in refusing a writ of habeas corpus in the Col. H. Clay King case, has had a very depressing effect upon the prisoner and it is feared that his mind is giving way.

He acts strangely and imagines that he is being constantly watched by detectives and others. The only hope now is in application to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of error and accompanying stay or an appeal to the executive clemency of Gov. Buchanan, who is being flooded with long petitions appealing for mercy, and others protesting against executive interference with the course of justice.

Fatalities at Buffalo.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 30.—The general humidity yesterday was greater than any other time this week, although at 9 a. m. the thermometer did not indicate as high a temperature as at the same hour on preceding day. The thermometer at that hour registered 87 degrees in the shade, at noon it was 89. Yesterday afternoon two workmen in the Syracuse Tube were overcome by the heat and are in precarious condition. At Lyons, Theodore Clump, a stoker, in the Manhattan Silverplate Works, was overcome by the heat yesterday and fell unconscious on the sidewalk. He died an hour afterwards. George Morsheimer, a farm laborer, living near Lyons, also died last night from the effects of sunstroke.

An Asbury Park Visitor Missing.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 30.—Mrs. S. L Taylor of Richmond, Va., who arrived at the Sheldon House, Ocean Grove, on Monday, is missing. She left the hotel on Wednesday evening, saying she would take a walk along the beach. Nothing has been seen of her since. She is about 40 years of age. The hotel proprietor says the woman acted strangely. She was dressed expensively, and was of respectable appearance.

Sale of the Althorp Library.

LONDON, July 30.—The portion of the Althorp library which Lord Spencer has been obliged by his circumstances to dispose of was sold yesterday at private sale to an Englishman, whose name has not been given to the public, and who will, it is understood, dispose of the books at public auction. The portion of the library sold is the better part of the collection, which is said to be unsurpassed in value and excellence.

The Cable House Poisoning Explained.

AMESBURY, Mass., July 30.—Dr. Cooper of this place has made an analysis of water taken from the well at the Cable House, Salisbury Beach, where the inmates were poisoned. He found that the water contained a large percentage of chloride of ammonia, nitrates and other organic matter. This seems to explain the cause of the wholesale poisoning at the Cable House.

Veteran Newspaper Man Dead.

TROY, N. Y., July 30.—Willard Oscar Carpenter, the veteran newspaper man and musical critic, is dead in this city of a complication of diseases, originating from the grip a year ago. TO CONTROL THE FUR TRADE.

A Combine of Dealers With $10,000,000 Has Just Been Announced.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The combination of fur dealers throughout the country to control the sealskin trade which has just been announced may not seem important to the people of the United States now when heat costs nothing, but it may be a matter of great concern to them during coming winters.

It is possible that the new trust will lower prices here. It may also be the deciding factor in the Bering Sea controversy. The principal fur houses of this country have united themselves into a company, with a capital which, it is expected, will be $10,000,000—though papers have not yet been filed or prospectuses sent out.

The combination is known as the George C. Treadwell Company and is named after the famous Albany fur dealers, who are in possession of a secret for dressing and dyeing sealskins superior to English and French methods. The Treadwells have heretofore refused to cure sealskins for other firms, which have been obliged to send their furs to London to be put through the process.

This has been a great expense, but the new company owns the secret, having secured it over the offers of an English syndicate. The combination was effected in the office of Riker & Riker, in Newark, and the Chemical National and Merchants' National banks, in this city, will bring out the stock here.

Among the directors are George Thatcher, John D. Parsons and George H. Treadwell, Albany bankers. E. L. Ridgeway and W. B. Tims, of this city, are interested in the company. The new concern will dress and dye skins for home dealers, and arrange for mutual protection in bad years and seasons of small seal catches. It is said that there are 10,000 sealskins in New York caught by poachers and affected by the Bering Sea arbitration.

FOR A SUMMER SCHOOL.

The Movement of Catholics Meets With Encouragement.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 30.—Thomas Armstrong, president of the State Farmers' League, and Smith M. Weed, of Plattsburg, have subscribed $5,000 each to the fund being raised to establish a Catholic summer assembly.

The committee appointed to select a permanent site meets at New London, Conn., on Aug. 9. Sites on the St. Lawrence, near Clayton, Pleasant Lake in the Adirondacks and on Lake Champlain, near Plattsburg, are being considered by the committee.

The movement to establish a great summer school on the university extension line is being encouraged by the Catholic hierarchy and prominent Catholic laymen. The assembly at New London the present summer, which continues from Aug. 1 to 9, will be largely attended. The lecturers include George Parsons Lathrop, Richard Malcom Johnson, Maurice Francis Egan, Katherine Conway, Rev. Walter Elliott and others. The subjects include science, ethics, literature, political economy, Egyptology and American history.

A PAYING INDUSTRY.

The Smuggling of Chinamen from Mexico Into the United States.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—A despatch from Eagle Pass, Texas, says: The smuggling of Chinamen into the United States from Mexico at this point in violation of the Exclusion act has become a paying traffic to those engaged in it.

The custom house guards along the river here have been exercising great vigilance recently, and as a reward for their industry 17 foreigners have been captured during the past two weeks as they were attempting to cross over to this side.

Eight Chinamen were captured yesterday and lodged in jail here.

They will be taken to San Francisco and from there transported back to China.

May Have Been Murder.

NEWARK, N. J., July 30.—Joseph Andrus, the keeper of the deep lock of the Morris Canal where it enters the Passaic River, who was found drowned in the canal near the shanty, is thought to have met with foul play. Andrus was 73 years of age, and very quiet and peaceable. Three canal boats were stuck in the lower locks all night, and it is thought that one of the boatmen got into a fight with the lock keeper and struck him in the face, knocking him into the river.

To Sell the Alva.

CHATHAM, Mass., July 30—William H. Vanderbilt states that he will sell his steam yacht, the Alva, at auction to the highest bidder. It is expected that the sale will take place in Boston next week. He was advised by Capt. Sharp of the wrecking steamboat Rescue that the strong current at Pollock Rip makes the result of the efforts to save the ship doubtful. The Luther Eldredge is now guarding the wreck.

Stanford University Expenses.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 30.—There is a disturbance in prospect at Stanford University when the students return next month. The price of living in the college dormitories has been advanced $10 per month. This increase is the work of Ariel Lathrop, Senator Stanford's brother-in-law, who manages both the Palo Alto stock farm and the material department of the university.

A Novel Counterfeiter.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 30.—Ed Wolcott, a young man from Omaha, is under arrest here for counterfeiting. He took new silver quarters, cut out the letters "quar," and changed the last "R" to "N," making it read "ten dollars." The coins were neatly plated with gold. He went to stores and bought five and ten cent articles to get the change, and was arrested in the act of passing one.

ENGLAND IS AFTER IT

Johnston Island Claimed By American Citizens.

A COMMANDING NAVAL STATION.

One of Great Britain's War Ships is Now on the Way to the Island for the Purpose, it is Said, of Seizing It—Washington Officials Alert.

SAN FRANCISCO July 30.—The departure from Honolulu of the British cruiser Champion to seize Johnston Island has occasioned interest in San Francisco, where the Americans who claim its ownership belong. That it is an American possession which the Champion is about to take possession of there can be no doubt. A Washington dispatch says that the State Department has gathered clear proof of American title to the island which the British now wish to grab and use as a relay station for their proposed cable from Honolulu to New Zealand.

Capt. Roberts, of this city, who is one of the present owners, says that there is no question of the American title to the island. Fully $50,000 had been expended on the island. He and his partner, Mayers, had sent a sloop and a bark down there, but of late had not done anything, as the guano was not first class.

"The island," said Capt. Roberts, "lies in the rainy belt, and the richer portion of the guano deposit is washed to the sea. One cargo was taken from there to New York, but the charterer of the ship lost $30,000. The island would be valuable to the United States for many purposes, and would be just as important to England. It lies just south of the direct route to China, and is on the proposed route of the English cable from New Zealand to Honolulu.

"In case of war the Hawaiian Islands and the Samoan Islands would be neutral, but Johnston Island is in an important position, and could be used as a station by the Government in possession. There is excellent anchorage there, although about $10,000 worth of dynamite would be needed to blow up some of the coral to widen the mouth of the harbor.

"The island is about six feet above water on the right side of the harbor, and vessels can lie right alongside without any wharf. In troublesome times the island would be worth a great deal to this country. No other island as suitable for a station could be purchased for $500,000. There can be no doubt about the island being the property of Americans. Mayers and myself have the original papers of Parker, and his deed to us. We also have an affidavit sworn to by him before Cheever, then Clerk of the United States District Court, in which he states that he discovered Johnston Island, and never transferred his interest to any corporation."

The orders that will be included are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Johnson, of 70 Canal street, who died Thursday, had been attended by Hurd. AN EXAMPLE FOR PLAINFIELD.

Bound Brook Pushing Its Sewer Project, And Likely to Beat the Crescent City.

A number of citizens met at F. H. Cook's office in Bound Brook last Saturday night to discuss plans for providing a sewer for Bound Brook. It was decided to circulate petitions asking the mayor and council to take the necessary steps to bond the borough for $35,000 for the purpose of laying some three and a half miles of sewer and subsequently repairing the roads.

These petitions have been signed by quite a number of citizens, and if the signatures of one-fourth of the legal voters are procured by next Tuesday night they will be then presented to the council.

Under the law, the next step for the council to take is to call a public meeting of the citizens at which time the whole subject can be thoroughly discussed.

If after that meeting it is deemed advisable to order an election the citizens will be called upon to express their desires at the polls, for or against the issue of bonds.

THEIR ORGAN'S OUT OF TUNE.

MAYOR, POSTMASTER AND THE OTHER REPUBLICAN LEADERS CATCHING IT.

But If the "Courier" Does n't Quit Abusing Its Backers, Its Editor Will be Out of a Job in 1893.

It 'pears as if there'd be a new city clerk, next year!

The Courier published on Thursday a more or less foolish and false article about the wretched condition of Plainfield's streets. This was in the same iconoclastic line as its articles of the day before claiming that "Plainfield Takes the Cake!" "Its the Hottest Place in the East!"

But worse than the Courier's attacks on Plainfield was its attacks on its prominent people by name. It said the worst "mudholes" were "in front of the residences of Mayor Gilbert, John W. Murray and Elias R. Pope."

Of course Mr. Meeker immediately took the paper by the neck, shook it into subjection and compelled it to take back its reflection on the street commissioner. This it did yesterday in these words:

Street Commissioner Meeker says that the muddy spots on the streets and avenues of the city are not caused by the roadway being worn, but are there on account of the way in which the streets were left by the Water Company.

Yet not satisfied with a record of two days that included the casting of slurs upon Mayor Gilbert, postmaster Pope, John W. Murray, street commissioner Meeker and the water company, but the city clerk's paper, also in yesterday's issue, accuses Mr. Runkle's electric light company of dishonesty in these words:

Should the committee on Police and Public Lights of the City Council look into the matter it is not improbable that they might question the bill of the Electric Light company for this month. For a week past from 12:30 until one hour before sunrise every morning, the lights have burned with one-half their usual brilliancy. A number of persons have remarked this decrease of the illuminating power and have spoken about it.

Possibly to-day the post-office will be accused of selling misfit stamps.

All of which causes the public to surmise that there'll be a new city clerk next year and one less paper in town.

Base-Ball News.

It seems that the exposure by THE PRESS yesterday of Somerville's scheme to run pitcher Jack Highlands up against the Plainfield team to-day, has spoiled the project. Managers Keller and Reed will not permit the new man to pitch without the required three days' notice, although Murphy, Leidy, Turner and the rest of the Crescents are now begging for a chance to knock Highlands out of the box.

Finding their plan nipped in the bud, the Somerville manager now denies that he ever even thought of having Highlands, and it is said that the letter from Highlands seen by a PRESS reporter, was "written by Carbonell". But THE PRESS happens to know different, and that its story about the Highlands scheme is true.

The Brighton Athletic club, Long Island's crack team, will play the Crescents here next Wednesday.

PRESIDENT NEVINS'S MODEL ROAD.

Its Men Will be Uniformed and Its Service Will be Perfect From the Start.

General superintendent Passmore of the street railway company, will make another trip to the shops in Philadelphia to insure the arrival of the cars in Plainfield in time to begin running next Saturday. The delay has not been without good results. The road will now start under the most favorable conditions. Everything is ready for perfect service from the very beginning. Even the uniforms of the motormen and conductors will all be finished and President Nevins's model road will be a model from the start.

The Arlingtons Still Winning.

The Arlingtons went to Dunellen yesterday morning and defeated the Stars of that place for the fourth successive time, by the score of 11 to 7. It was a well-played game all the way through, and the Arlingtons did not win it until the last man on the opposite side was out. Following is the score by innings:

Arlingtons	0	5	0	5	0	0	0	1	x—11
Stars	2	0	2	1	1	0	0	1	0—7

Batteries—Stars, Craig and Humpston; Arlingtons, VanHorn and Sutphen. Umpire—Craig.

Bound Brook's New Fire-Alarm.

Chief Oldham of the Bound Brook fire department has been presented with two old locomotive tires, weighing about 500 pounds each, the Philadelphia and Reading company being the donors. The chief proposes to utilize them for a fire-alarm, and is now looking around for a suitable tower or other elevation on which to place them.

A Good Man Is Harrity, and Represents a Greater.

Bound Brook puts on lots of airs because William F. Harrity, the chairman of the National Democratic Committee, has installed his family at "River Rest", just outside Bound Brook borough, for the summer, and is to be there "more or less" for a few weeks to come. He's a man any community might well be proud of.

The Trolley Conqueror.

(From The New York Evening Post.)

The employment of storage-batteries on street railways is being very actively discussed just now, without any apparent results in the way of practical work. The trolley goes on conquering and to conquer, but the storage-battery falls back dispirited and defeated after nearly every new effort.

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head—for a week at a time I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured. It is wonderful how quick it helped me. Mrs. Georgie S. Judson, Hartford, Conn.

For three weeks I was suffering from a severe cold in my head, accompanied by a pain in the temples. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me. After only six applications of the Balm every trace of my cold was removed. Henry C Clarke, New York Appraiser's office.

TOO HOT FOR JUSTICE.

Judge Bartine Adjourns the Somerset Court for That Reason.

The heat was too great to tempt loungers to hold down the benches in the Somerset county court of special quarter sessions yesterday morning, and no one but the lawyers and witnesses interested in the diferent causes was present. The great brown stone building usually so cold and grim looking, was in every sense of the word a hot box. The wheels of justice moved slowly. The judges on the bench were compelled to use fans to get breath for their duties.

The prosecutor appeared at 10:30, and the first matter called by the court was that of the State against Fredrico Dall' Asto, for selling a pint of Jersey lightning from his house without a license. The Italian trembled visibly when brought to the bar, but with the aid of an interperter he was held in the sum of $200 for appearance at the next term. The penalty for this offense is a fine of $20 for the first offense.

The next case called was that of George Smith, of Rock Mills, against Daniel Lovering for aggravated assault. This was another case of "Daniel come to judgment". Smith and his wife testified that Lovering came to their place and demanded payment for work which he had done. As they did not have the money, they could not pay him. Then he grew angry, threatened to do damage to Smith and the men fought. Emma Yates, a sister of Smith's wife and a cousin of Lovering's, was called for the prosecution but proved to be of valuable assistance to the defense. She is a pretty dark-eyed damsel of 19, and most demure in her manner. She testified to seeing Smith and his wife fall upon Lovering, and while the husband held the latter's hands the wife administered a severe beating to him with a clothes pole, breaking it over Lovering's back. The court held that this was only a family affair, and that Lovering had a right to go to Smith's house and demand his money. Thereupon Lovering was released upon his own recognizance to appear at the September term.

Annie Andrea, who lives in Bound Brook, received $150 to keep for a friend. She placed it in a trunk. When the friend called for the money they both went to the trunk but the money was gone. Annie said she must have lost it. The friend did not credit Annie's word and the consequence was the latter was held this morning for the grand jury on the charge of embezzlement. She plead not guilty. At 12 court was adjourned until the last week in August—judge Bartine saying the weather was too hot to administer justice judicially.

SERGEANT LYNCH SAYS:

"Policemen Is n't on the Streets to be Insulted."

[From The Elizabeth Journal.]

A sensitive policeman of Plainfield had his official dignity so offended by a brief uncomplimentary remark made to him by a drunken man, a few days ago, that he ran the inebriate into the lock-up where he sweltered during the night, and the next morning was made to pay a fine of five dollars, or at the rate of two dollars and a half a word, for his untimely speech.

That Queer Electrical Storm.

William Finn, a skilled observer, reports that the magnetic storm which accompanied the recent display of the aurora borealis, and which was so marked in its effects on electrical apparatus in this city and vicinity, was one of the most severe that he has ever encountered. The disturbance of telegraph circuits, due to the phenomenon, began early in the day, and at last almost completely paralyzed the entire telegraph service of the country. Between 12 and 12:15 noon, he noted no fewer than 150 changes in the direction of the current on a New York and Providence wire, during which time the current averaged 9 or 10 milliamperes. Some of the magnetic waves that struck the wires were of Atlantic force and magnitude, and the effects produced were of corresponding variety and extent. At one time a reading on an iron wire between New York and Boston represented a difference of potential between the grounds at the two ends of about 492 volts. This was the highest electro-motive force observed in any of the tests. The current strength on an Elizabeth, N. J., wire rose to a maximum of 150 milliamperes with an estimated electro-motive force of 210 volts. Mr. Finn holds the spots on the sun to be responsible for these latest extraordinary manifestations, and says that ever since the first days of telegraphy the periods of maximum sun spots have been periods of great "trouble" on the wires.

What Caused the Street Lamps to Flicker.

A tree on fire opposite the residence of C. Thorp, 59 West Second street, attracted the attention of a large number of people last evening. The electric light wire coming in contact with the tree, sent forth a shower of sparks, and at one time it was thought it would be necessary to call out the fire department. The company, however, soon had several linemen at work in the tree, and what might have caused a serious conflagration was overcome.

Something you can't do is to get Dr. Pierce's genuine medicines at what pretend to be "cut prices." They don't come to you in that way.

To prevent fraud and imposition, the genuine guaranteed medicines are sold only through druggists duly authorized as agents, and always at these long-established prices:—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (for the Liver, Blood, and Lungs), $1.00 per bottle; Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription (for woman's weaknesses and ailments), $1.00 per bottle; and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets (for the Liver), 25 cents per vial.

The genuine medicines can be had only at these prices, but nothing else, no matter what the price, can be as cheap, for Dr. Pierce's medicines are guaranteed. In every case where they fail to benefit or cure, you have your money back. You pay only for value received. Beware of dilutions, imitations, and substitutes, offered at lower prices.

Our Clothing will bear the closest inspection, and the conservative gentleman in the picture says he can find nothing wrong even in the buttonholes. They (the clothes) are all wool and as wide as you want them.

We have solved the problem of giving greater value for the money than any other clothing house in the state. Our method of doing this is simple enough when you master it, and consists in having cash with which to buy at the very lowest notch, the judgment to know a good thing when we see it and unequalled and extensive manufacturing facilities. Making our own stock at prices away below what our competitors have to pay, we are in a position to offer goods at prices they cannot meet.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

SAD FATE OF A SOUTH STIRLING FARMER'S DAUGHTER.

Gussie Ryan Took Shelter Under an Oak Tree During the Terrific Thunderstorm, and Met Instant Death in the Bolt That Shattered the Forest Giant—Her Companion Uninjured.

At least one death was caused by the fearful lightning that accompanied the storm of yesterday afternoon in this vicinity. The victim was pretty Gussie Ryan, a farmer's daughter. Gussie's home was on the farm of her widowed mother at South Stirling. The heat of the day had been unbearable, and in search of relief from the heat Gussie went in bathing in the Passaic river. Her companion was Annie Baldwin, who had been visiting her. When the storm came up, Gussie dressed herself and took refuge from the rain under a huge oak tree. She tried to persuade Annie to go with her, but Annie said she was afraid it was too dangerous, and remained in the water. Suddenly a terrific and deafening crash rent the air. A tremendous bolt had been hurled down from the clouds, rending the tree trunk in twain, and shrivelling the branches with its fury. The bolt seemed to leap from out the heart of the oak a few feet above the ground, after tearing, splitting and splintering the tough green wood, and passed directly through the body of the unfortunate girl. She was thrown heavily to the ground by the shock, her clothing was torn open down one side, and one of her rubber boots was ripped open and hurled some distance away. Death was instantaneous. Annie was so terrified by the affair that she hardly dared approach the fateful spot. Finally, however, she satisfied herself that Gussie was dead, and carried the sad tidings to the dead girl's mother.

Gussie was an attractive young girl, only 17 years of age. She was a general favorite, and her sad death has cast a gloom over all her acquaintances.

Netherwood's Annual Promenade Concert.

The principal event of the present week at Hotel Netherwood was the promenade concert and reception tendered by the guests last Friday evening. The subscription list showed a handsome sum subscribed. The orchestra was augmented for the event and the following programme with a well selected order of dance was effectively rendered:

Overture—"Beautiful Galathe".....Suppe
Serenade.....Titt
Selection—"Wang".....Morse
Gavotte—"Chelsea".....Greenop
Prelude—"William Tell".....Rossini
Chorus—from "Tannhauser".....Wagner
March—"Elysienne".....Greenop

A number of invited guests were present and the large throng in the grand parlor and on the broad piazzas of the hotel, testified their thorough appreciation of the charming affair. The votaries of terpsichore were made thoroughly happy in following the selections of the dancing order. The parlor was well filled with the guests of the hotel and their friends and the costumes observable were dreams of loveliness and commanded general admiration. It gives your correspondent great pleasure to state that the event was a most enjoyable one, and I believe that I only voice the sentiment of all the happy participants when I say that the occasion will be long remembered as one among the most delightful events occuring in the annals of fair Netherwood.

There are a large number of prominent families here from New York, Brooklyn and other points. It is quite in order to predict a brilliant and prosperous season at this paradise on the heights. The beautiful drives in this vicinity over excellent roadways are a joy forever, and every day may be seen the fine turnouts of the guests issuing from The Netherwood. August, the queen month of the season, will doubtless add many guests to the number now sojourning here.

The long heated term closed last evening with a brilliant display of electrical forces, so that we may look again for the charming weather usually prevailing in this vicinity.

Other pleasing events are on the amusement list and will be daily chronicled in the columns of THE PRESS.

SOME FACT, AND GREATER FICTION.

A Plainfield Church Viewed from a Newark Standpoint.

The Newark Daily Advertiser says that the Park Avenue Baptist church in this city seems doomed to have trouble; and concerning the difficulty the congregation has in choosing a pastor remarks: "The members are all at sea as to what course to pursue, and a satisfactory adjustment of affairs seems a great way off."

The paper further remarks: "At a recent meeting of the trustees of the church it was decided to pay off the standing debt [!], for which Mr. Dilts severed his connection as pastor, which is an acknowledgment that he was in the right. A subscription paper has been prepared and as soon as the amount is raised the contractors will be paid." All of which will be of interest to the good Park Avenue people. The poor Tizer is dozing again. The Tizer may mean all right, but it seems to be misguided by its Plainfield representative. Its Park Avenue church article is a curious mixture of a little fact and a deal of misrepresentation.

How Many of Its Members Can Vote?

Plainfield Republicans are literally "wheeling into line". They have formed a "wheelmen's division" of the Republican association of that city, the first political organization of the kind known in the country.

Cheap Roads in Westfield.

According to the Westfield Standard, town committeeman Conant has completed more than a mile of solid substantial road, has used over 2,000,000 pounds of crushed stone, and the total cost to the town has been less than $1,500.

LIFE INSURANCE IN NEW JERSEY.

Reports on the Business of Companies Working in This State.

The department of banking and insurance has issued a tabular statement of the condition and business of life insurance companies, which, among other things, shows the enormous amount of business these companies do in New Jersey. There are fifty-six companies working in this State, and this includes accident, fidelity, plate glass and steam boiler. Thirty-three companies write policies on the old life insurance plan and five companies are engaged in industrial insurance.

During the past year there have been issued 5,520 policies on the regular life plan, which represent $15,630,482.16 of insurance. The greater part of this business was done by foreign companies. Two of the large New York life insurance companies do the bulk of the business here. There are now outstanding in New Jersey 30,307 policies, which represent $79,500,486.42 of insurance. The premiums collected during the year amounted to $2,430,333.57; losses and claims incurred, $1,531,471.13; losses and claims paid, $1,494,454.10.

The industrial insurance business, which represents insurance held principally by wage-earners, is working on a very extensive scale in this State. During the year 225,502 policies were issued on this plan, representing $27,366,911 of insurance, and at the close of the year there were 669,366 industrial policies in force, representing $75,471,483. To keep this insurance alive $3,032,310.14 was collected as premiums. Losses and claims paid during the year, $1,144,056.24.

The accident insurance companies do a very meager business compared with companies working on a different plan, and the most noticeable feature about the reports of these companies is the large amount of premiums received and the small amount of losses incurred. The risks written during the year amount to $27,447,659; premiums received, $126,805.05. The losses paid amount to $31,745.59. The fidelity companies received in premiums $7,779.70 and paid in losses only $9.10. The plate glass companies received in premiums $24,006.39, and paid losses amounting to $6,604.06. The steam boiler insurance companies received premiums amounting to $25,124.41, and paid losses amounting to $2,445.50.

CROWING OVER VICTORY.

Now She Has a Good Ball Team Bound Brook May Amount to Something.

[From The Bound Brook Chronicle.]

The people of this attractive town are just awaking to the fact that they have a base-ball club of which they may well be proud. Organized scarcely a month ago and composed wholly of home talent it has quickly sprung into popular favor. In other words, they have quite captured the town with their good playing and pretty suits of bluish gray. Four games have already been played, every one of which they have won. The following young men, with their respective positions, compose the nine: John Foley, 1b; Frank Gregory, 2b; Herbert Harney, 3b; John Shipley, s.s.; E. H. Casterlin, l.f. and p.; John Sullivan, c.f.; William Shea, r.f.; Thomas Burke, p., and Chas. Newhouse, c.

Last Saturday afternoon the Potter Press Works nine came up to Bound Brook with the avowed intention of wiping up the ground with the home team. But alas! fate was against them, for at the end of the game the score stood 18 to 2 in favor of Bound Brook. It was a great victory, for many of the old Crescent club players were in the visiting nine. Burke pitched a beautiful game while the Potters changed their battery five times. Good fielding and heavy batting on the part of the Bound Brooks were the features of the game. Umpire, Mr. Gallagher.

The score by innings is as follows:

Bound Brook....8 3 0 1 4 0 2 0 x—18
Potters.....0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1— 2

Why Plainfield Women Do Not Vote.

Do you know, my positive woman, why women do not vote?—writes Edward W. Bok in "At Home With the Editor", in the August Ladies' Home Journal.—It is because the vast and overwhelming majority of women in this country do not want the ballot, have absolutely no desire for it, and do not waste a moment of their time thinking about it. Do you know why these women do not care to "broaden" their mind by reading Ibsen? It is because they think they sweeten their lives reading Hawthorne and Thackeray and Longfellow and Walter Scott and Charles Dickens and the great mass of living writers whom you believe simply burden the earth with their presence. Do you know why these women will not don the ridiculous "reform" garments which you unblushingly flaunt before audiences of American girlhood? It is because they prefer to be womanly, and dress tastefully and prettily as God intended women should dress. Do you know why these women will not go to club meetings? It is because they have a little club in their own homes and the members of it are of their own flesh and blood, with which God has sanctioned and beautified their lives. Do you know why they turn with disgust from your paintings about "the rights of our sex?" Because their husbands give them every right of love and kindness they want.

May Find Them Stronger Than They Think.

The New Jersey Athletic club is scheduled to play a cricket game against Plainfield's St. George's club at Bergen Point, to-day, and following its usual practice, will put only such an eleven in the field as will make the game interesting to its opponents, they being considered a newly-organized team of limited strength.

INVESTIGATION BEGUN

Mr. Watson Given a Chance to Prove His Statements.

HE SAYS IT WILL BE AN EASY JOB.

Extracts from His Book, the Final Chapter of Which Contains the Paragraphs to Which General Wheeler Took Exception—Work of the Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The book containing the language which gave rise to the exciting scenes on the floor of the House yesterday is No. 1 of a series to be issued by the National Watchman Company, publishers of the People's party organ, and entitled "Not a revolt; it is a revolution." Representative Watson is the author, and in the preface says he has "tried to make it an armory from which People's party champions can draw every weapon of offense and defense."

It is a political history largely, and the paragraphs of which Gen. Wheeler complained, and the truth of which Mr. Watson has undertaken to establish are contained in the final chapter.

The writer, writing of the failure of the old parties to respond to the demands of the people, says:

"The Congress now sitting is one illustration. Pledged to reform, they have not reformed. Pledged to economy, they have not economized. Pledged to legislate, they have not legislated. Extravagance has been the order of the day. Absenteeism was never so pronounced. Lack of purpose was never so clear. Lack of business prudence never so glaring. Drunken members have debated grave issues on the floor, and in the midst of maudlin ramblings have been heard to ask: 'Mr. Speaker, where was I at?' Useless employes crowd every corridor, useless expenditures pervade every department."

The meeting of the special committee appointed to investigate the charges of drunkenness of members made by Mr. Watson, of Georgia, in his book, was held in the evening. The full committee, consisting of Messrs. Boatner, Wolverton, Buchanan (Va.), Grout and Simpson (P. A.), was present. After preliminary statements as to the scope of the investigation the chairman, Mr. Boatner, asked Mr. Watson if he had a list of witnesses who could be summoned to testify as to the charges. Mr. Watson stated that he had, and that he did not believe the investigation would occupy much time.

He expected to prove the statements made conclusively and in short order. A discussion ensued as to summoning J. S. Turner of St. Louis, a witness, and it was finally concluded that he should appear. Mr. Watson stated that he did not shirk an investigation. If he transgressed the limits of a reasonable length of time in the investigation, the Committee could call him to order.

The Chairman said it was the desire of the Committee to conclude the investigation as speedily as possible and make a report at this session. Mr. Watson furnished the following names as witnesses: Congressmen Skell, Butler, Davis, Otis, (Kansas), McKeighan, Halvorson; Simpson, White, Logan. Miss A. B. Dwyer, J. H. Turner, Mr. Baker and A. C. Isdell. The examination will be proceeded with as rapidly as possible.

Attempt to Burn a Hotel.

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 30.—The police of this city, at 1 o'clock in the morning, discovered an attempt at incendiarism in time to prevent the destruction of Schanble's Hotel, which is situated at Elizabethport, opposite the Singer works. The building had been saturated with kerosene and set afire. In ten minutes more the building, which is a four-story frame structure, would have been in flames, as would the adjoining large hotel. The hotels are used as boarding places by a large number of Singer employes. The police are making a rigid examination.

Boy Gored by a Bull.

KINGSTON, N. Y., July 30.—Eugene Bookhout, the young son of George Bookhout, a farmer living at the Moore settlement, was frightfully gored by an infuriated bull and his recovery is doubtful. The bull had jumped the fence and the boy attempted to drive him back when the animal turned upon him, threw him to the ground and thrust his horns into the lad's thigh, making two ugly gashes. When assistance arrived the boy was unconscious.

Harrity's Campaign Committee.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The Democratic Campaign Committee, as announced by Chairman Harrity, will consist of Calvin S. Brice, Ohio; Arthur P. Gorman, Maryland; William F. Sheehan, New York; Bradley B. Smalley, Vermont; M. W. Ransom, North Carolina; B. T. Cable, Illinois; E. B. Wall, Wisconsin; Josiah Quincy, Massachusetts, and William F. Harrity, Pennsylvania.

Yacht Owner Paine Protests.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., July 30.—John R. Paine, owner of the 21-foot Finkel Freak, which crossed the line first in Thursday's race and was later ruled out for carrying a balloon jib which the judges interpreted as a spinaker, has protested all the boats that raced against him except the Sirocco for a similar violation of the rigging conditions.

Mill Hands Strike.

MERRILL, Wis., July 30.—Over 1,000 men employed in the lumber mills here are on strike and threaten violence. The sheriff is unable to get deputies to serve, and Mayor Wright has wired to Gov. Peck saying it was the judgment of leading citizens that the State should be called on for assistance.

Militiamen to be Banqueted.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., July 30.—A banquet in honor of the good work done at Homestead by Company C, 8th Regiment, will be given that company at Mount Alto Park, in this city, Friday next. Judge Steward and several others will make addresses. Col. Magee and staff, and other officers of the regiment will be present.

To Destroy a Wreck.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The U. S. S. Fern has been ordered to proceed along the Rhode Island coast and blow up the wreck of the ship Taylor, recently run down and cut in two by one of the Atlantic liners. The wreck lies in a dangerous position, directly in the line of ocean travel.

Proof of Merit.

The proof of the merits of a plaster is the cures it effects, and the voluntary testimonials of those who have used ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS during the past thirty years is unimpeachable evidence of their superiority and should convince the most skeptical. Self-praise is no recommendation, but certificates from those who have used them are.

Beware of imitations and do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

"Go into the room and bring that cake off the table," said a Murray Hill father to his son.

"If—you bring—out the—strap," he replied, sobbing, "bring the—cake along—too," replied the youth.—Texas Siftings.

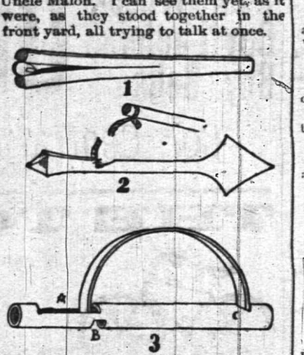
TOYS FOR THE BOYS.

Four Simple Contrivances That Will Shoot as Well as Any Gun.

Uncle Malon had no boys of his own, but he took great delight in his half-dozen or more little nephews, who always thought it a great treat to spend a day with him, for he had lived several years in the Rocky mountains, and was never without a story for them. He could tell them all about Indians, how they make bows and arrows and lots of other things interesting to boys.

It was mean, but that's just the way big brothers always do. Tom and Harry and Will had all gone off for a walk and left the younger ones to amuse themselves as best they could, and in the emergency they had sought out Uncle Malon. I can see them yet, as it were, as they stood together in the front yard, all trying to talk at once.



One little voice piped out: "Me want a dun too." In fact, that was just what they all wanted. They were too young to be trusted with real guns, but wanted something new and something that would shoot.

Charlie, who was little more than a baby, though he never liked to be called one, was the first to be served.

His was a very simple corn-gun, a straight stick of hickory about a foot long and split at one end. Fig. 1 shows how it is made and used. The split is pulled apart, and a grain of corn put in, then by pressing on it the grain is made to fly out with considerable force.

It worked so well that all the other boys wanted to make corn-guns too, but Uncle Malon said he had something better for them.

Several, at his request, went to hunt some pine shingles, which were soon found. These were cut into darts, with a thin diamond-shaped tail and slim tapering shaft, sharpened to a point at the larger end as in Fig. 2.

They were then balanced on the edge of a penknife so that the tail end just tipped down, and from this place a notch, n, was cut upward in the shaft to receive the string, which had a knot at one end.

This string is two or three feet long, and fastened to a stick, by which the dart is thrown.

In throwing, the dart will pass from behind you forward, the knot slipping out of the notch, leaving it free to sail far away almost out of sight.

Once the dart is made so as to hang with the point upward, you will find no difficulty in learning to throw it.

Fig. 3 shows a very clever spring-gun which he next made. The boys had brought several good strong stalks of elder, Sambucus Canadensis. Now don't try to remember this big Latin name. Every country boy knows better what is meant by elderberry, which we will call it for the present.

These, as you know, are hollow stems filled with pith. Cut out a section between the joints, about ten inches long if possible, and remove the pith by running a small round stick through them.

About half an inch from one end cut out a piece, A, two inches long, and another, B, one-half inch long, in the under side and just a trifle farther back than the former. Near the other end on the upper side should be a notch, C. Lastly, procure a good piece of tough hickory or ash for a spring. It should be about one foot long by one-fourth of an inch wide, and thin enough to bend readily. A flat piece of spring steel is excellent if you have it.

One end of this spring is thrust into the notch at C and the other bent around and passed through the larger opening, and so that the end just projects through the lower one, as is plainly shown in the illustration.

Beans and corn grains furnish the best ammunition, but small pebbles will serve. Now, with the spring in position, place a bean against it, then with the forefinger of the left hand push the spring up from below until it is out of the notch, when, quick as a wink, it will "go off."

Last of all, Uncle Malon made a sling of a piece of leather and some string, but cautioned them against carelessness with it. A diamond-shaped piece of leather with a small hole in the center has two strings about eighteen inches long fastened to it as seen at Fig. 4.

Wrap the end of one string securely around the forefinger of the right hand and hold the other between the thumb and forefinger. Lay a small stone in the piece of leather and whirl it around several times, letting go of the free string at just the right time, and you will be astonished to see how far you can throw.

Of all these toys I think the dart is really the best, for it flies so far and so gracefully, but the spring gun will probably afford more enjoyment to most boys.

But, boys, be careful how you use them, and don't shoot about the house and scatter beans and corn grains over the floor for mother to pick up.—J. Marion Shull, in Harper's Young People.

Not a Tyrant.

"You have got a new hired girl, I see, Mrs. Youngwife."

"Yes; I got her about a week ago."

"How do you like her?"

"Very much indeed. She lets me do almost as I like about the house."—N. Y. Press.

An Earnest Worker.

Hungry Higgins—Where you been for de las' tree days?

Weary Watkins—Been workin' for de ticket.

"What ticket?"

"Meal ticket. Wood yard."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Housekeeper's Perplexities.

Pryor—Do you run your household?

Frank—No; my wife runs that.

Pryor—Ah, I see, you run the office.

Frank—No; the janitor runs that.

Pryor—What in thunder do you run?

Frank—Well, I run back and forth.—Truth.

He Might Marry Her.

Mrs. De Korum—I heard you kissing my son.

Servant—No, ma'am, he was kissing me.

Mrs. De Korum—Worse and worse. You must go at once.—Texas Siftings.

Appreciation.

"And then, Waldo dear, Adam and Eve were compelled to leave the Garden of Eden forever. Now was not that awful?"

"I don't know, mamma. Couldn't they have come to Boston?"—Jury.

Adding Torture to Punishment.

Teacher (who has just chastised Tommy in the usual place)—Now go and sit down!

Tommy—Oh! boo-hoo! Don't you think you have punished me enough already?—Puck.

A BIG SNAP.

Reuben—Hello, Phil! what yer goin' to do wid dat old drain-pipe?

Phil—Big snap. I'm sellin' 'em to de decorative art society fer umbrella-stands. I've stole all de pipe in Horseheads, New York.—Judge.

Too Generous.

Beggar—Sir, I am starving.

Cresus—Here—take this penny, and tell me how you became so miserably poor.

Beggar—Ah, sir, I was like you: I was too fond of giving away large sums of money to the poor.—Demorest's Magazine.
